FUMES OVERCOME 15 AT FIRE

$170,000 Damage in 2 Blazes

Fourteen firemen and one police officer were overcome by chemical fumes while fighting an industrial fire in Vernon Saturday afternoon.

Physicians at St. Francis Hospital, Lynwood, said the condition of the men ranged from fair to good. The victims, many of whom reside in communities near Long Beach, were to be held in the hospital overnight for observation.

* * * *

Damage was estimated at 20 thousand dollars. Origin of the blaze was not known.

Firemen hospitalized included Eugene Henry, 39, of 13601 Klondyke, Paramount; Finnie Terry, 30, of 12507 Maidstone, Norwalk; Donald Curran, 23, of 10502 Cheddar, Norwalk; Nick Jurovick, 29, of 7230 Hannon St., Downey; Lloyd Graham, 30, of 14707 Starpath, Whittier; James Stanley, 23, of 4714 Declane, Torrance.

Jay Chapanar, 27, of 8948 San Juan St., South Gate; Thomas J. Lara, 42, of 5361 Aldrich Rd., South Gate; Jack Looper, 41, of Huntington Park; Joseph W. Blaut, 27, of Huntington Park; Thomas Garner, 31, of Huntington Park; Donald Collette, 40, of Los Angeles; Jack Anderson, 24, of Los Angeles; and Donald Melker, 26, of Los Angeles.

Also hospitalized was Vernon police officer Orbrey Duke, 25, of 8110B Commercial Pl., South Gate.

VERNON FIRE CHIEF L. C. Husted, of Maywood, although not overcome by fumes at the scene, went to St. Francis Hospital Saturday evening for observation.

The chemical fumes were from "acids and bases" used by the company in the routine analysis of their products. Don Jordan, a salesman for the firm, said.

Jordan said a list of all the chemicals that were in the lab had been given to hospital physicians.

The fire was the second major blaze in the Vernon community within an hour. Firemen were on their way back to the station after extinguishing flames at the H. Levine Cooperage Co., 5400 S. Soto St., when they were redirected to the vegetable oil company.

THE EARLIER fire caused an estimated $150,000 damage to a barrel factory.

Company officials said the blaze started when Donald Whitaker of Bell accidentally sprayed a hot light bulb with paint thinner.

U.N. Continues Buildup in Egypt

CAIRO (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold plunged into another round of talks with President Nasser Saturday night on the role of U.N. police in the tense Middle East. There was no hint Egypt was retreating from its stand that the police must keep hands off the Suez Canal and concentrate on guarding the old armistice line between Israel and Egypt.

(Israel reported an Egyptian patrol began probing Israeli positions in the Sinai Desert near the canal Saturday. An Israeli army spokesman said five Egyptians were killed and one wounded in a clash 18 miles east of Ismailia, midpoint on the canal.)

* * * *

BEFORE PREPARING to head back to New York Sunday, Hammarskjold had a long talk with Nasser and later dined with him. He had a three-hour conference with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi earlier.

It appeared a great deal of talking had to be done before complete understanding could be reached on the function of the force.

The Egyptian position, reiterated daily by press and radio, is that the U.N. force is here only to oversee the speedy withdrawal of British, French and Israeli forces from the territory they occupied in the recent attacks.

After that, the Egyptians intend that the U.N. forces take up positions along a line separating Israel from its conquests in the Gaza strip and the Sinai Peninsula.

France and Britain demand that the U.N. police take over the canal as a condition for withdrawal of their armed forces.

INDICATIONS of a tough Egyptian attitude came in a decision to place British and

Russ Blast Confirmed by AEC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday night it had "detected an explosion in Soviet territory within the range of magnitude of their previous nuclear detonations."

The statement came from AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, apparently confirming the nuclear test reported earlier Saturday by the Russians.

Strauss said the new nuclear test was detected Saturday.

Strauss said there would be no amplification and no further comment from the AEC beyond his brief announcement.

The Soviet government announced the Russians exploded a nuclear weapon successfully in a test at a great altitude within the Soviet Union.

Disclosure of this latest in a series of Soviet test blasts came in a statement issued by the news agency Tass and broadcast by the Moscow Radio:

"On 17th November, 1956, a nuclear weapon test was carried out in the Soviet Union.

"The explosion was carried out at a great altitude.

"The test was successful."

The world was left in the dark as to whether a hydrogen or atom weapon was involved.

The wording of the announcement gave the impression the weapon was dropped from a plane or carried aloft by rocket.

Reds Propose to Consider 'Open Skies'

President Calls for Careful Analysis of Bulganin's Message

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower ordered Saturday a careful study of Russia's new disarmament proposals.

The aim is to determine whether they offer any fresh openings for negotiations which could end the East-West arms race and bring the threat of a hydrogen war under the control of a global disarmament program.

The State Department received from Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen in Moscow the text of a declaration disclosed in the Russian capital early Saturday. It was understood to have been accompanied by a message from Premier Bulganin to Eisenhower asking for its consideration here. Moscow reported that similar messages were sent to the prime ministers of Britain, France, India and Communist China.

* * * *

BULGANIN CALLED for a new summit meeting of the Big Four powers plus India, but not including Red China. He offered to discuss Eisenhower's "Open Skies" inspection plan which he had previously rejected as being more likely to produce new dangers of conflict than to promote the disarmament agreement.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that "as soon as the complete text is received, it will be carefully studied." At the time he spoke, the text was being received at the State Department.

EISENHOWER discussed the subject with Secretary of State Dulles when he visited Dulles at Walter Reed Hospital. The President's special assistant on disarmament matters, Harold Stassen, called a meeting of State, Defense and other U.S. government experts later in the day to

Fire Wrecks Restaurant at Newport

The Castaways restaurant, famous landmark overlooking Newport Harbor, was destroyed early Saturday morning by fire.

The Newport Beach Fire Dept. said estimated damage was up to $50,000. Four engine companies and volunteers—a total of 44 men—fought the blaze that broke out at 4:39 a. m. Firemen had to roll hose up a steep hill to get to the fire.

Cause of the blaze was unknown. Frank H. Coburn, operator of club, built in 1913, said the whole building seem to explode.

PT&T and Union Still Bargaining

Bargaining between communications union negotiators and representatives of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. continued after midnight Saturday.

A contract extension between the two expired at midnight and there were chances of a general strike which would shut down all but emergency phones. The company serves many communities near Long Beach.

Convict Has Self Shipped Out in Box

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UP)—Authorities were looking Saturday for a "hot" package shipped out of the state prison here. It's contents: a freedom-minded prisoner.

Prison officials said Harry Koch, 24, apparently had an accomplice fasten him into a cardboard box that was part of a shipment from the prison's book bindery. The shipment reached the State Schoolbook Commission one box short, and the escape was discovered.

Koch apparently was making good a notation on his record at the prison: "repeated outrageous conduct."

Calif. May Be Bigger Than N.Y. by 1965

WASHINGTON (AP) — California, the nation's second most populous state, may take over first place from New York by 1965, the Census Bureau said Saturday.

New estimates by the bureau figured that California's population leaped upward by 2,846,000 between 1950 and last July 1. This was 1,481,969 more than the gain of 1,365,000 credited to New York state in that period.

Thus, census said, the gap between these two biggest states has been narrowed from 4,243,969 in 1950 to 2,762,000 on July 1 this year. As of that date California's population was set at 13,433,000 compared with 16,195,000 for New York. In 1950 California had 10,586,223 against New York's 14,830,192.

Census said a projection of gains, based on present factors of increase, indicate California may overtake New York in less than 10 years. California's gain was 26.9 per cent since 1950 against 9.2 per cent for New York.

Although these two led numerically in gains the last six years, both had to bow to Nevada, the smallest state, and to Arizona and Florida in percentage incerases.

Nevada's population jumped from 16,083 in 1950 to an estimated 247,000 last July 1—a gain of 87,000 or 54.6 per cent.

Arizona's gain was 41 per cent with its population growing 308,000 from 749,587 in 1950 to 1,057,000 this year.

Hawkeye President Dr. Hancher Stricken

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Dr. Virgil M. Hancher, 60, president of the State University of Iowa, suffered a mild heart attack after watching the Iowa-Ohio State football game here Saturday.

J. R. Jordan, director of the university's Information Service, said Dr. Hancher's condition was considered to be good Saturday night. He was taken to University Hospital.

THREE KILLED, 3 PLANES BURN

Two B47s Struck by Landing Fighter

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A jet fighter plane, whose pilot apparently mistook a taxiway ramp for the runway which parallels it, rammed into two parked B47 jet bombers at the Lincoln Air Force Base Saturday night.

The fighter pilot and two others were killed, seven airmen were injured and all three aircraft, worth nearly six million dollars, were destroyed.

Jet fuel from the aircraft burst into flames immediately and billowing flames vaulted high into the sky.

The two dead ground crewmen and the seven injured were working around the B47 and apparently refueling them. All suffered burns.

* * * *

TWO WERE reported in serious condition at the Lincoln Veterans' Hospital. Two others were hospitalized at the base with minor burns and three were treated for superficial burns and released.

The F80 fighter pilot killed was identified as 2nd Lt. Robert L. Young of Lincoln, a member of the Nebraska Air National Guard.

All available Lincoln fire fighters joined base personnel in preventing spread of the flames and in less than two hours, the fire was reported totally under control.

The fighter plane, belonging to the Nebraska National Guard, had been shooting landings on a north-south runway and was coming in for a landing when it veered off the runway and struck the bombers, which are valued at about 2½ million dollars apiece.

* * * *

INVESTIGATORS, after checking skid marks, concluded the jet fighter pilot mistook the taxiway ramp for the runway which parallels it, 300 to 400 feet away.

The bombers were the only planes parked on the ramp at the time. The F80 bounced off one, travelled about 100 yards and then hit the second.

The bombers reportedly carried ammunition and fire fighters worked cautiously.

East Tieup May Hit L.B. Port

Thirty-two ships may be tied up in Long Beach-Los Angeles harbors Monday when the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union starts a 24-hour work stoppage on the West Coast.

The stop-work meetings were announced as sessions to discuss current negotiations on the ILWU-Pacific Maritime Assn. contract. However, there were reports from San Francisco that the meetings will determine whether the ILWU will join the strike of longshoremen in the East.

* * * *

MARINE EXCHANGE spokesmen said there were 20 ships in the two harbors Saturday and another 12 are due to arrive, today.

Longshoremen Friday began boycotting ships coming from or going to the East or Gulf ports. Seven vessels were hit by the boycott in the L.B.-L.A. harbors.

* * * *

NATE DeBIASI, vice president of the local union, said the ban would not affect the handling of Army or Navy cargoes.

The PMA, organization of shippers declared the boycott was a contract violation. The dispute is scheduled to go before Arbiter Sam Kagel Monday.

Members of the local longshoremen's union will meet at the union hall, 231 W. C St., Wilmington Monday.

CLOSE ONES

Beavers, Iowa Set for Roses

Iowa and Oregon State virtually wrote their tickets to the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day as the Hawkeyes defeated favored Ohio State in a Big Ten game Saturday, 6-0, and the Beavers squeaked past stubborn Idaho, 14-10, in a Pacific Coast Conference game.

Oregon State can make it to the Bowl regardless of its outcome with Oregon next Thursday. Iowa, which has finished its conference schedule with a 6-1 record, is "in" except for the formality of voting.

Upsets again were paramount across the nation. SC fell to Oregon, 7-0, Washington swamped Stanford, 34-13, and Minnesota topped Michigan State, 14-13. Details of these and other games in Sports Section, pages B-1 through B-6.

Reds Defied by 40,000 Hungarians

BUDAPEST (AP) — Nearly 40,000 workers of the huge Csepel iron and steel works defied their leaders Saturday, ignored government appeals to return to their jobs, and continued their strike.

The plant on an island in the Danube was crowded with workmen. They stood around in groups without even changing into their work clothes.

The mood of the workers was desperate, bitter and firm.

"We know our decisions mean misery for us," one said, "but we can't work under the shadow of Russian bayonets.

"We are sticking to our demands 99 per cent and the rest (1 per cent) are working for the AVH (secret police.)"

(Reports in Vienna said the Hungarian government had imposed harsh food and electricity controls to force an end to a paralyzing general strike.

(Budapest broadcasts also said some labor leaders had urged a return to work.)

Members of the plant's workers' council (leaders) were more cautious in their comments.

They said, however, they were embarrassed by Russian deportations of Hungarians.

A council member said the council is investigating all reports of deportations. He added the Russian commander at Csepel has denied they were taking place.

(There have been widespread reports the Russians are shipping youth leaders of the uprising to the Soviet Union in sealed railway cars via Romania.)

Private Eye Arrested in $20,000 Bilk

A Compton private detective has been arrested in Las Vegas, Nev., in connection with a money-order forgery ring that has bilked Bank of America branches in Southern California of more than $20,000.

Simon E. Singley, 25, who, arresting officers said, was a private detective, was booked with two men and two women for investigation of being fugitives.

The others are Wayne C. Stafford, 34; Eleanor Villa, 42, Amos Green, 31, and his wife, Retta, 23.

B. J. Hanlon, chief of detectives of the Las Vegas police department, said he believed the quintet had operated by buying bank money orders and then raising the amounts before cashing.

Smoke Baffles 200 Firemen, Overcomes 24

CLEVELAND (AP) — A basement full of smoke thwarted 200 firemen—overcoming at least 24 of them—and tied up downtown Cleveland for more than three hours Saturday night.

Thousands of Saturday-night theatergoers stood behind fire lines that blocked Euclid Ave. from Public Square to Ninth Street as the firemen tried to reach the source of the smoke in the basement of a women's clothing store.

Moon, Earth Put On Last Show of 1950s

Nature pulled the switch on the moon Saturday night for 1 hour and 19 minutes.

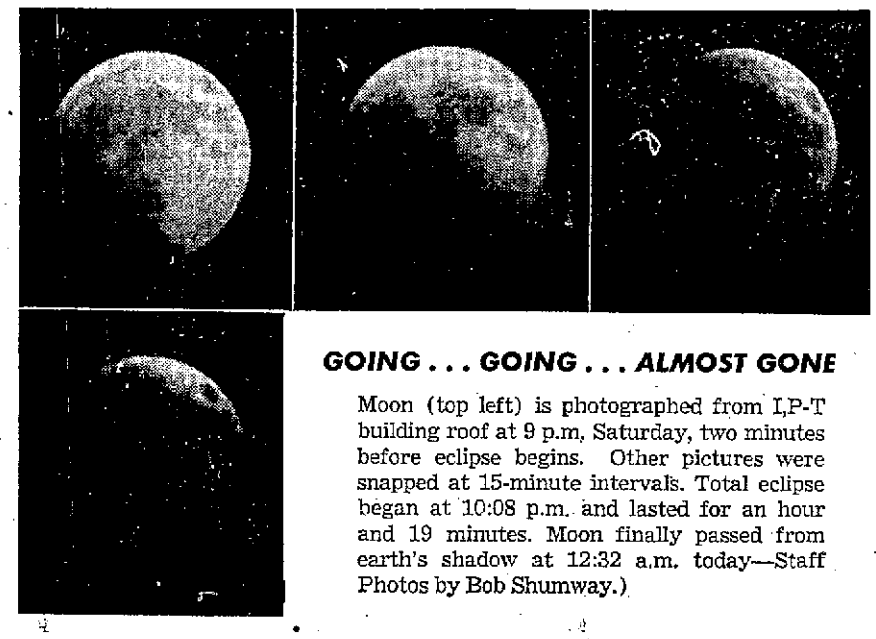

Passing into the earth's shadow, the moon was in total eclipse from 10:08 to 11:27 p.m.

The eclipse was visible throughout the United States as well as many other parts of the world.

The moon entered the penumbra—the earth's faint outer shadow—at 7:59 p.m. It entered the umbra—the complete shadow—at 9:02 p.m., with totality achieved at 10:08 p.m.

At 12:32 a.m. today the moon had passed beyond the earth's shadow.

Another lunar eclipse won't be visible in this country until 1960.

L.A.C. Says: A One-Man Business

A number of books and moving pictures have recently pictured the modern corporation executive as a harassed, neurotic and often confused cog in our free enterprise system. Unfortunately, there is much truth in the picture so vividly drawn in some of these books. In particular is it true of the maneuvering within the executive groups nearing the top of the ladder in individual corporations. As the number of eligible "presidents" is narrowed down to a few vice presidents or department heads the strain becomes intense and sometimes the whole enterprise is endangered by the warring factions.

The book and film, "Executive Suite," tells of how one large manufacturing company had been built into a strong organization through the drive and ability of its president. He had brought about mergers and had become a dominant factor in the entire industry. But at age 56—amid plans for further financing—he dropped dead. He had not announced who should succeed him. There were four vice presidents who immediately started pulling strings in an endeavor to be appointed president.

In the book it all works out well because the natural person was chosen after complete confusion. But in actual practice many corporations and privately owned enterprises are endangered because there has been no individual trained to take over responsibilities if the head of the firm is suddenly taken away. The trouble in such organizations is that one man insists on making all decisions. In many cases he is so bigoted he thinks no one can take his place, so why try a successor? But in other cases it simply means the head man is not capable of training good executives or delegating authority.

This is important to stockholders of a corporation. It is even more important to a family dependent on the income of a family business. Who will be in command if the present commander is dead? The armed forces must be prepared for such emergencies. The result is officers many ranks down the line are prepared to step up in any emergency. But many businessmen seem to think they will never have such an emergency.

Workers who envy those who direct them from upstairs might not be so envious if they realized the tense game played for survival by factions in most large corporations. We recently asked one executive—near the top of a large eastern corporation—if it was true that so much politics existed in companies. His answer was, "You just wouldn't believe all the things that go on in this organization."

It would be wise for investors to know how corporations operate before entrusting their money to them. Most of the older and successful corporations have early retirement ages which means new men are constantly moving up. But where a business is dependent on the personality, ability and health of one man, it would be wise to ask just what happens if he is taken away. A one-man business is a dangerous place to have investments.—L.A.C.

Ike Orders Studies of Russian Offers

begin work on the lengthy document.

The officials sought to determine whether it held new hope of breaking the long deadlock in disarmament negotiations between East and West and producing agreement on some concrete steps for reversing the trend in armament build-up.

It was considered certain that at an early stage of the study the United States would consult with Britain and France and eventually with all its NATO allies on the meaning of the Russian offer.

Initially, officials here were inclined to regard the declaration as being in part a new Soviet maneuver to divert attention from Russia's troubles—the unrest in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe and particularly the ruthless use of Soviet military power to crush the revolution against Communist rule in Hungary.

But none would rule out the possibility that at a time when so much of the world is in turmoil and Russia's own collective leadership is believed to be engaged in bitter internal dispute over high policy, the Moscow government might have opened the way for profitable re-examination of the disarmament issue.

* * * *

AT THE SAME time, there was no apparent tendency here to rush into quick agreement on a summit conference. Only a few days ago President Eisenhower turned down a bid from Switzerland for a meeting of the Big Four powers and India. He said peace efforts were now concentrated in the United Nations which offered the best hope for a solution of current problems. The United States has been backing the U.N. in efforts to deal with both the Middle East and Hungarian crises.

Russia's announcement of a high-altitude, nuclear-weapon explosion Saturday appeared to have no direct relationship to the disclosure of the disarmament declaration a few hours earlier. However, the timing may have been designed to remind the world in a dramatic manner that Russia is an atomic power.

A French spokesman said his delegation must study the text but "we don't think there's much new."

A Nationalist Chinese delegate said "no doubt it's just a propaganda move." He remarked that the Russians were just "repeating the same old ideas."

* * * *

AN AUSTRIAN spokesman suggested that the Soviet Union was bringing out the scheme to divert attention from its action in suppressing the Hungarian revolt.

These new elements were noted in the Russian proposals:

1. An expressed willingness to consider a modification of President Eisenhower's aerial inspection plan. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the U. N. Disarmament Commission last July the plan was aimed to divert public attention from "the real tasks" in disarmament.

2. The final ceiling of 1½ million men each proposed for the armed forces of Russia, the United States and Communist China; Gromyko spoke of 1-1½ million.

3. The final ceiling of 100,000-150,000 men for Britain and France; Gromyko proposed 150,000-200,000.

4. The idea of cutting down British, French and U. S. forces in Germany gradually, with a third of them to go next year; Gromyko said last July that Russia called "now for the withdrawal of all troops from Germany."

The Soviet proposal for a ban on nuclear weapons is an old one.

U.N. Delegates See Little New in Offer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — Delegates Saturday professed to see little news in the latest Soviet disarmament plan. Some called it propaganda.

But it gave the U. N. something fresh to work on in its disarmament efforts. Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov was expected to discuss it fully in a policy speech to the General Assembly Tuesday.

A. U. S. delegation spokesman referred queries to Washington.

Huge Boulder Falls on Car, Kills Motorist

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A huge boulder crashed onto an automobile which had plunged off an icy stretch of a mountain highway about 54 miles east of here Saturday, killing a Sacramento man.

His wife and two small children watched in horror as the 250-pound rock crushed Robert F. Gray.

Mrs. Jacqualyn Gray and the children, Sharon 4, and Richard 8, suffered only slight bruises. They had just left the car after it hurtled down a 50-foot embankment. Gray was pinned inside and was trying to free himself when the boulder struck.

Leslie Peake, Clackamas County coroner, said Mrs. Gray told him she was driving the car when it started to slide and that her husband reached over and swerved the wheel, causing it to leave Highway 50.

The accident happened about seven miles east of the Mt. Hood ski resort government camp.

Mrs. Gray and the children were brought to a hospital here.

Limit on A-Weapon Development Urged

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas Saturday said there must be "some limitation" on the development of atomic weapons for the nation's economy might be bled white and our defenses unbalanced.

He called on the U.S. to "avoid excess" in building up atomic power because a large nuclear war was not as likely as local conflicts.

In another speech, to the Navy League meeting here, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, indicated the Middle East situation and worldwide commitments call for an expansion of the Navy.

Secretary Thomas said he did not personally feel we would have an atomic war, but admitted the nation must have "adequate capability" to prevent or win such a war.

Burke said that Middle East troubles "may take years to settle." He said that the Navy is America's major instrument of power in the Mediterranean.

With stepped-up Navy commitments in that and other areas, Burke said, the Navy faces a need for more men and more ships in commission.

Both Thomas and Capt. John Sidney McCain, head of the Navy's underwater research, agreed that Russian possession of 400 submarines to this country's 110 is far less important than those figures would indicate.

Dockers, Shippers Far Apart

NEW YORK (UP) — Federal mediators failed Saturday to win a settlement of the $20-million-a-day dock strike that has tied up nearly 200 ships from Maine to Texas. A union spokesman said labor and management were "farther apart than ever before."

A mediation session that lasted only one hour and 25 minutes broke up with Louis Waldman, attorney for the striking International Longshoremen's Association declaring:

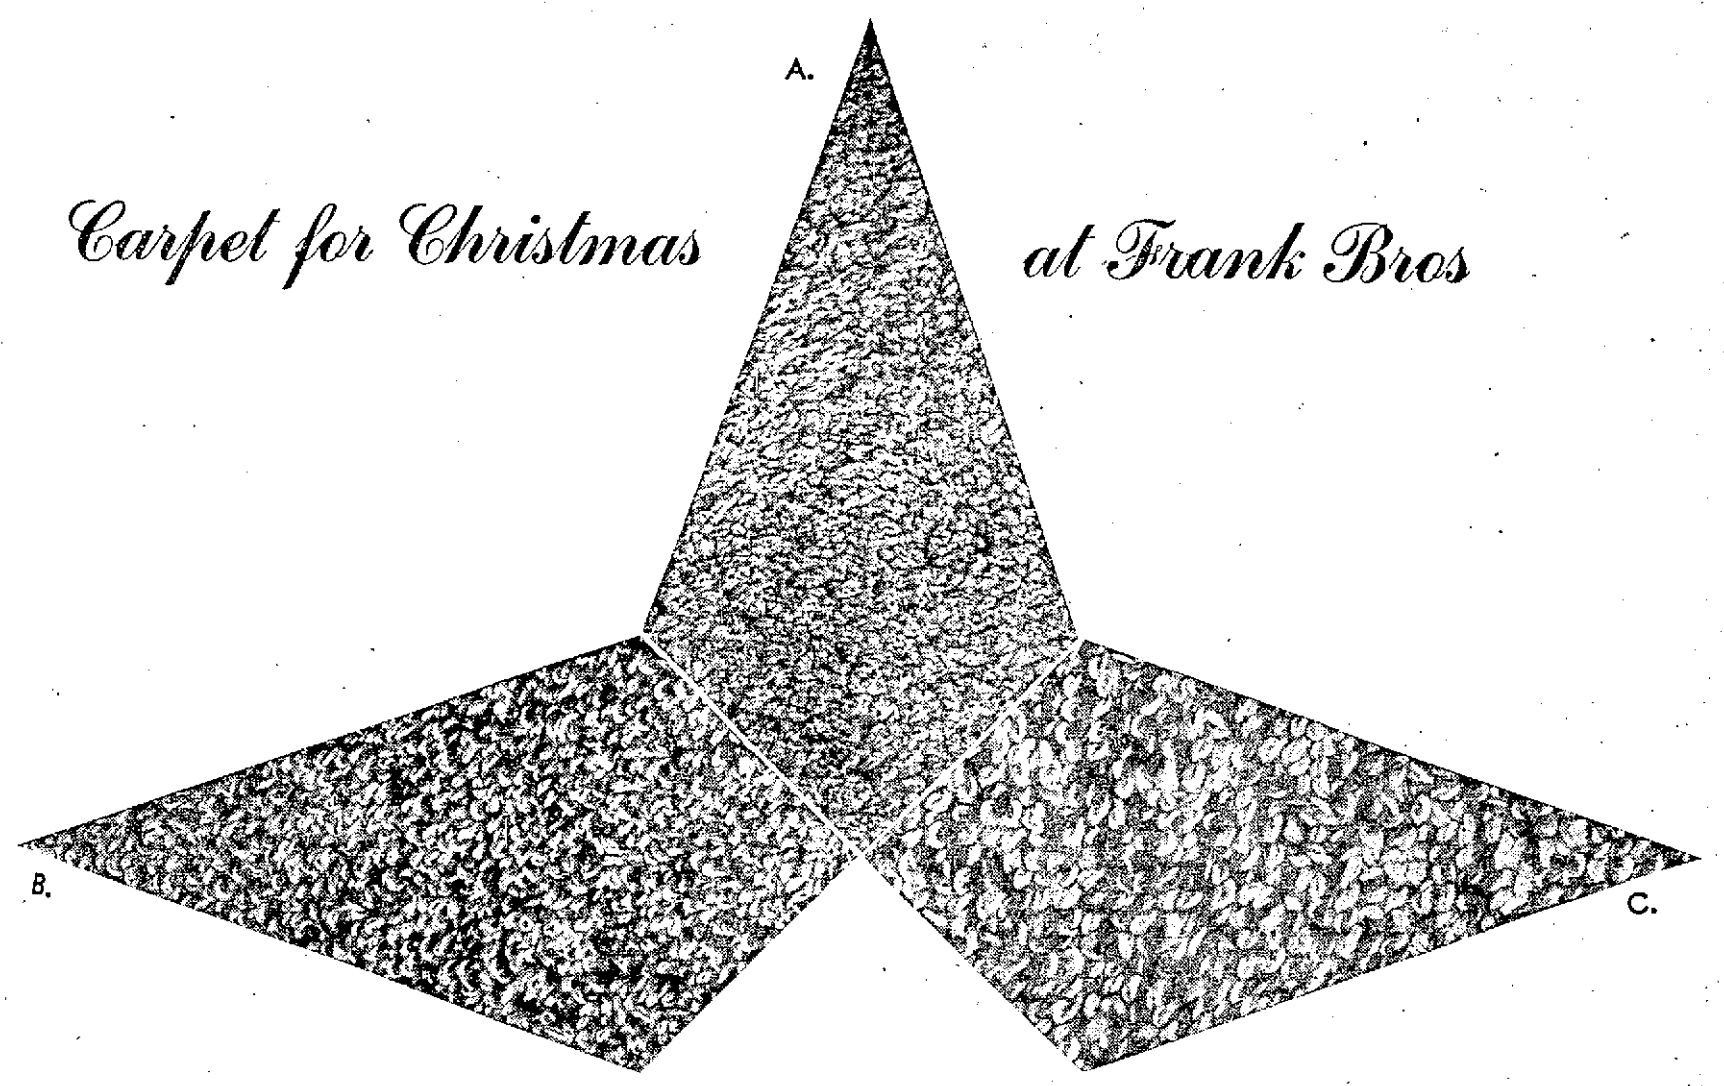

"It was the worst session we've had since we began bargaining. As of this moment, the union and employers are farther apart than ever before."

Union President Capt. William V. Bradley said, "We went backwards instead of forward." A spokesman for the shippers said he did not think there could be a settlement by Monday.

WALDMAN SAID a wage "package" offered by management was "an insult."

Alexander Chopin, speaking for the employers, charged the union has been insisting on "very unrealistic economic issues" and would continue to do so until a settlement is reached on the question of industry-wide bargaining.

U.N. Continues to Build Up Force in Egypt

French nationals under virtual house arrest and a newspaper demand for war crimes trials and reparations.

The one hopeful sign was the fact that the buildup of U.N. police forces on Egyptian soil was moving ahead.

The fact that Egypt has consented to this buildup and is cooperating with the incoming forces provided some optimism.

* * * *

A U.N. SPOKESMAN at the Capodichino staging area in Italy announced Hammarskjold would take a plane for Rome today and fly on tonight to New York. Among the advisers available in New York for consultation is Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of the police force who is to take over the field command next week.

Western Europe is already feeling the pinch of the canal's closing. With that big artery for the movement of Middle East oil blocked, several governments are cutting back on gasoline consumption. Egypt insists the British and French must get out before anything is done to reopen the canal.

* * * *

YUGOSLAVIA, the first communist nation to send in police troops, also sent Egypt two tons of medical supplies. The Egyptian Middle East News Agency said the supplies would be rushed immediately to Ismailia for shipment to Port Said.

British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden told the House of Commons that the Anglo-French Suez occupation was proper, "however drastic and unpopular."

PORT SAID, Egypt (UP) — More than 300 foreign civilians fled Port Said Saturday while Anglo-French troops tightened security arrangements in this captured city.

Some 250 Italians, 30 Greeks, eight Germans and 24 stateless persons sailed aboard the liner Ascania for Naples.

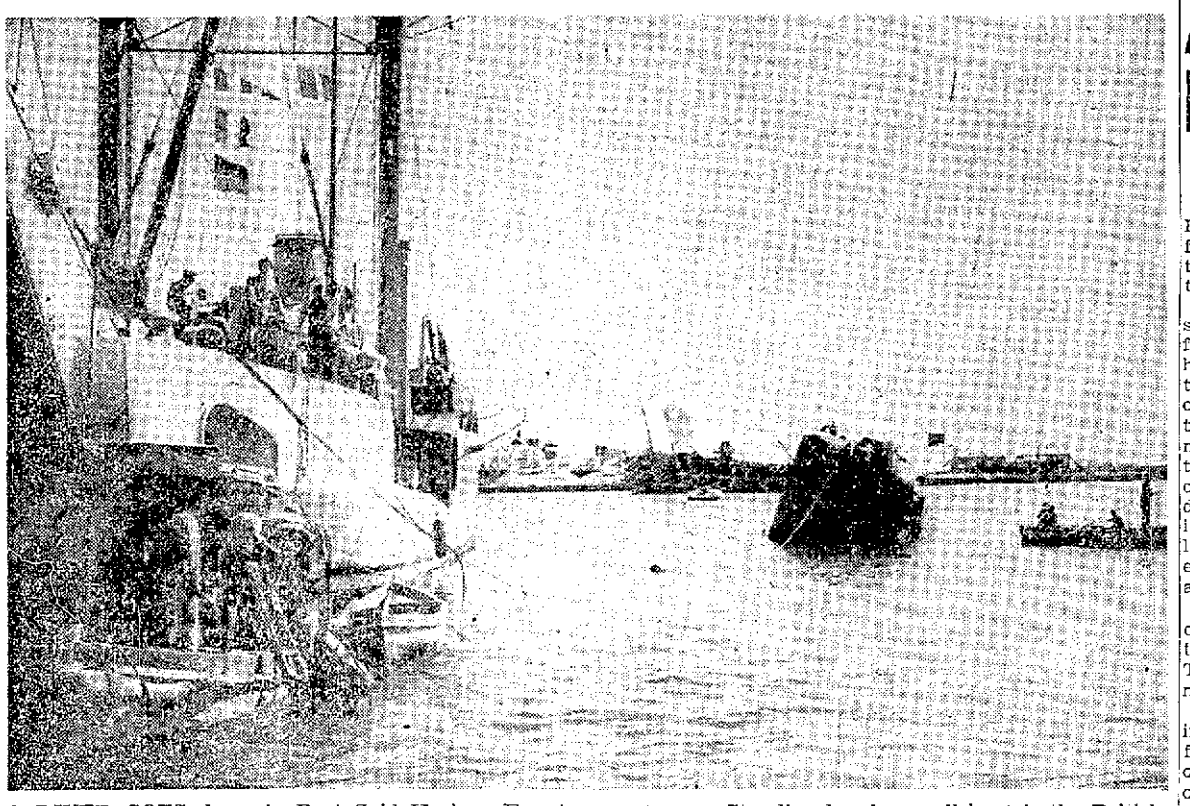

The Italians, all born in Italy, left behind some 1,300 countrymen who either were born in Egypt or had lived here many years and were unwilling to give up their homes.

* * * *

THE ANGLO-FRENCH authorities here simultaneously announced tighter security regulations in the face of a passive resistance campaign carried on by the natives.

Consternation was aroused among foreign civilians by the official announcement that Port Said's former Egyptian police chief, Col. Hussen Roushdi, had escaped to Cairo. Roushdi had taken over the police command under the Anglo-French authorities.

A British spokesman said it was believd Roushdi set up the organization which has been threatening natives with death if they cooperate with the Anglo-French military authorities.

Press Corps in Vienna Enjoying Excellent Food, Genuine Music

By MARIE and WALTER T. RIDDER
(I.P-T Capital Bureau)

The Hotel Bristol, situated on Vienna's famous Ring has been a kind of informal headquarters for the American press during the Hungarian fracas. It is therefore the fount of more rumors, confirmed or otherwise, than almost any place in town, barring perhaps the nearly next-door Sacher Hotel which is where the British correspondents gather for their gossip sessions.

For those not stuck in Budapest, covering this revolution has been absolutely luxurious. The food in Vienna is excellent, the drinks quite up to American standards, and the supply of both unlimited. The musical standards here are unbelievably high. Almost every restaurant has a pianist entertaining at dinner and the boys can really play the piano. A pity so much talent is being wasted on dining spots and night clubs!

One thing about Vienna we love—you can dial a certain telephone number and hear a true "A" note in order to tune your instrument correctly. We haven't put the service to use yet, but if our ears are accurate, our typewriter is several octaves off key.

A British correspondent was trapped in Budapest and slept on the floor of the British Legation. Tiring of this, he decided to move back to Budapest's Dunapalota Hotel where he had been staying before the Soviet attack. In the fighting, the hotel had received three direct shell hits, which put several rooms out of commission. When the Britisher checked in, the clerk inadvertently gave him the key to one of the wrecked rooms. The correspondent, looking forward to a hot bath and a night's sleep in a comfortable bed, opened the door and noted with dismay that the wall overlooking the Danube had been knocked out entirely and that the room's bed dangled precariously over a cavernous hole. With British self-containment, he marched back to the desk and was heard to say politely—"I don't mind my room being a bit airy, but I'm afraid I shall have to insist upon having a floor." He got another room.

There's a kind of "third man" atmosphere around the Hotel Bristol. A bushy-haired, wild-eyed young man of uncertain nationality strolled into the lobby the other day and asked to speak to an American reporter—any reporter. One newsman detached himself from his fellow drinkers and interviewed the youth. The latter told him in hushed whispers that he was going to bomb the Communist newspaper, "Die Volkstimme," at 10:45 that night and he wanted to know if any reporters wished to cover the event. The news broke up the social gathering and the would-be terrorist, replete with accompanying reporters, radio commentators, photographers, and TV cameramen, left the Bristol to meet with his conspirators.

After three hours of consultations, wild automobile rides, whispered conferences, and several unsuccessful decoy maneuvers to lure the police away from the scene, the amateur terrorists gave up their idea at about 2:30 in the morning. Undaunted by their failure, they invited the assembled newsmen to have another go at it with them the next night. The reporters firmly and not very politely refused the invitation.

During the few days of its existence, the Free Hungarian Republic moved with remarkable speed, trying to put things on a pre-war basis. The labor-union organizations, for instance, wasted no time in establishing a trade-union newspaper. In the five days between the cessation of the revolt and the beginning of the Soviet aggression, the unions managed to set up a printing plant and organize a newspaper. Tragically, the paper appeared only once before the Soviets moved back in. One copy of the historic paper is now in the possession of Mrs. Irving Brown, Hungarian-born wife of the AFL-CIO's European representative.

One of the difficulties which beset the ill-fated government of Free Hungary was that too many people wanted to move right back to the prewar pattern far too fast. They couldn't wait, and put tremendous pressure on the regime of the Imre Nagy to establish the old way of life right away. Many of those who in one way or another were calling for a quick restoration of the "good old days" were emigre Hungarian aristocrats who had left Hungary during the Soviet occupation of 1945. As one Viennese lady haughtily, if accurately put it—"The Hungarian aristocracy is rushing to the rescue—out of every night club in Europe."

Europe Feels Anything Can Happen Now

By WALTER RIDDER
(I.P-T Capital Bureau)

MUNICH—A day at Radio Free Europe headquarters confirms a shaky Europe's worries that "anything can happen" in the next few weeks.

To the reporter looking for a story mid-Europe presents a feast of opportunity. In Vienna he can wait anxiously for a visa to Budapest. After two weeks of battle against Russian military might, unarmed, determined Hungarians still are able to keep their country in a state of complete paralysis. Experts differ over whether Russia will install a military occupation, allow a Titoist form of independent government or be forced to an even more liberal regime.

In any case after three weeks of battle, strikes and starvation the population is still defiant. The Hungarian situation is in no way solved.

To the north Poland is awaiting Premier Gomulka's return from Moscow. Observers point out that the next few weeks offer Poland many alternatives ranging from independence to Russian revenge. Most are hopeful that the Poles will restrain their natural ardor, count their blessings slowly and refrain from making so many demands that Russian "face" will have to be saved with Russian armor.

A rhyme current in Warsaw "the Hungarians behaved like Poles, the Poles like Czechs and the Czechs like swine" indicates the high emotional tenor in Poland.

* * * *

MARSHAL TITO to the south has uncovered countless possibilities for trouble with his open support of satellite rights. Declaring "Soviet leaders have erroneous attitudes and defective views regarding Poland, Hungary and other countries," Tito continues with a condemnation of Stalinism.

East Germany carefully tended by 22 Russian divisions is also a hotbed of rumor. Most controlled of the satellite countries—and, haunted by memories of its defeated workers' uprising in 1954—East Germany nevertheless has its student uprisings, and ever increasing flow of dissident refugees to the west, and continued stories of active dissatisfacion.

COLOSSUS OF RHODES . . . Downed in 224 BC.

By Associated Press

That technical wonder of the 19th century, the Suez Canal, is the center of a bitter controversy with Egypt against Britain and France.

Long before the big ditch was dreamed of, Egypt was renowned among the tourists of antiquity for harboring technical marvels. Two of these were classed among the seven wonders of the world.

Only one group of these famed monuments survives—the Pyramids. Here's a chance to test your knowledge of ancient history: Can you name the remaining six wonders of the ancient world?

In case your memory needs jogging, the following paragraphs give some clues.

2. Deals with navigation, and it also stood in Egypt. 3. A botanical showpiece in a city the Bible sometimes speaks ill of. 4. A masterpiece by one of ancient Greece's greatest sculptors. 5. A huge idol on a Mediterranean island. 6. An opulent memorial for a departed king, and 7. A pagan temple in a city which later figured in St. Paul's correspondence.

The answers:

2. The Pharos (Lighthouse) of Alexandria. Reputedly 400 feet high, it stood at the island-entrance to Alexandria and was the prototype of all future lighthouses.

3. The gardens of Queen Semiramis (about 800 B.C.) at Babylon.

4. The enormous ivory and gold statue of Zeus at Olympia, by Pheidias.

5. The Colossus of Rhodes—a huge bronze statue of the sun-god Helios that stood near the island's harbor until earthquake destroyed it in 224 BC.

6. The Mausoleum of Halicarnassus, built for King Mausolus by his widow in 353 BC.

7. The lofty Temple of Artemis (Diana) in the ancient city of Ephesus in Asia Minor.

Lakewood Man, Six Others Die in Crash

A head-on collision of two cars on the San Onofre overpass, seven miles south of San Clemente, killed a City of Lakewood man and six other persons Saturday.

The Lakewood victim was Arthur I. Shankman, 24, of 2948 Alfred St., skipper of the sport fishing boat Neleh, which operates from Seal Beach Pier.

* * * *

HE WAS A PASSENGER in a car driven by Bernie Harry Davis, 24, a Douglas Aircraft employe of Los Angeles. Davis also died in the Hwy. 101 mishap.

The impact hurled their car over a 2½-foot guard rail and down a 20-foot embankment.

The other five victims, all Camp Pendleton Marines riding in a convertible, were identified as Sgt. Maron J. Hughes, 22, the driver, of Midland, Tex.; Pfc. Billie D. Gray, 20, of San Bernardino; Cpl. Donald J. LeBlanc, 21, of Roseland, La.; Sgt. Joe S. Delao, 23, of Los Angeles; and Pfc. Jackie C. Bowlin, 19, of Kerville, Tex.

All the victims died instantly.

California Highway Patrolman Lew Hake reported that the Marines' convertible crossed the roadway center line and crashed into the other car. He estimated the convertible was traveling more than 70 miles an hour and the second vehicle about 55.

The convertible, which ground to a stop on the pavement, burst into flames just after the last of the bodies was removed.

Highway officers called it the worst accident in the history of San Diego County.

* * * *

THE CARLOAD of Marines was headed for a weekend in Los Angeles. Davis and Shankman were en route to Ensenada for a weekend of fishing.

Shankman had been skipper of the Neleh for three years. He is survived by his wife, Yvonne, and two children, Harry, 2, and Gary, 10 months.

Bishops Urge Nationwide Peace Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Catholic bishops of the United States, declaring the world "is poised on the brink of disaster," called Saturday for "a veritable crusade of prayer" for peace.

"Let it be for the specific end that international sanity will triumph over war," the 216 prelates said in a statement issued at the end of their annual meeting here—"that justice may be vindicated by the nations united under law."

They also urged the faithful to pray "that our own beloved country, under God, may lead the way to that better hope for all mankind."

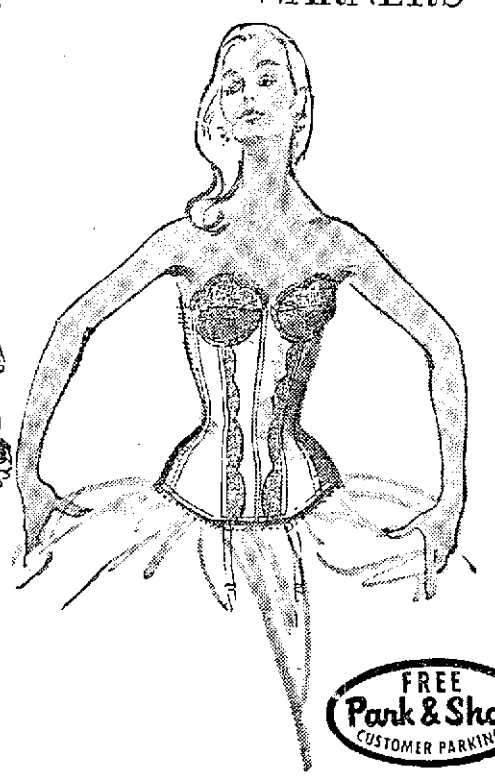

The bishops praised President Eisenhower for "setting a pattern of vigorous leadership" in the quest for peace. On the course being followed by the American government, they said:

"Worthy of highest praise are its efforts, rising above considerations of party and politics, to bring the problems before the tribunal of nations, to restore mutual confidence in all those who seek justice, and to counter the threat of anarchy by marshalling the full strength of those forces of law and order which the world commands."

L.B. Area Cars Kill 1, Hurt 5

Five persons were injured in three traffic accidents here and a 57-year-old pedestrian was killed in Wilmington Saturday, police reported.

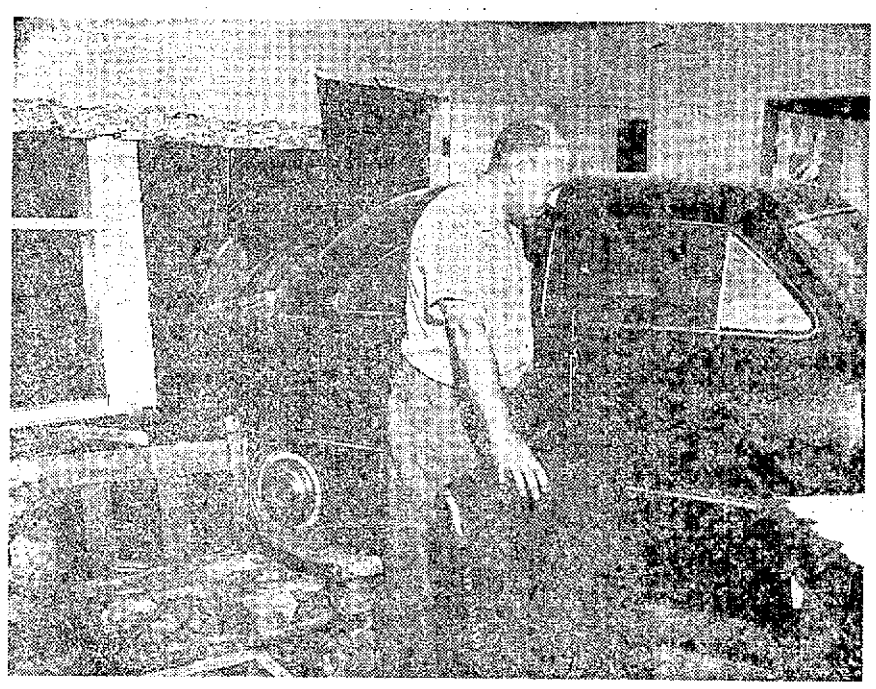

The pedestrian, Manuel Fernandez, no address given, was killed almost instantly when hit by a taxicab as he walked across Anaheim St. near Watson Ave. Driver of the cab, Harold W. Broock, 46, of 287½ W. 15th St., told officers Fernandez walked in front of his vehicle and he was unable to stop before hitting him.

Craig D. Riebow, 3, of 13512 Mills Rd., Garden Grove, was treated at Community Hospital for body bruises and possible internal injuries when he was hit by a car at Corona Ave. and The Toledo. Barbara Joan Coppage, 116½ 6th St., Seal Beach, told officers the child ran in front of her car and she was unable to stop before hitting him.

John S. Ryan, 18, of 355 Lakeview Dr., suffered a fractured nose, left collarbone and a vertebra when his car collided with one driven by Loyal G. Perry, 62, of 1035 Belmont Ave., at 7th St. and Termino Ave. Perry suffered severe head lacerations.

James D. Swimm, 34, of 8459½ California Ave., South Gate, and his passenger, Elaine H. Blake, 41, of 3125 E. 4th St. suffered head lacerations when their car crashed into a boxcar being pulled by a Deisel engine at Pico Ave. and Scenic Dr.

UC Budget Raised

BERKELEY (UP)—The regents of the University of California increased their annual budget by 8.6 per cent yesterday to prepare for an expected 7.2 per cent increase in enrollment. The regents also moved to seek $78,224,685 from state funds for their 1957-58 fiscal year.

Six-Year-Old L.B. Cancer Victim Dies; Rites Today

Six-year-old Rhonda Guthrie, 2122 Merrimac Ave., cancer victim, died Saturday in Los Angeles Children's Hospital.

Last June numerous Long Beach citizens contributed presents and cash for a combination Birthday-Easter-Christmas party for the child. The presents were sent after the appearance of stories in The Independent and Press-Telegram about the little girl's condition.

Funeral will be today with service in the Groman Mortuary Chapel, 830 W. Washington Blvd., Los Angeles. Interment will be in Hillside Memorial Park.

Surviving the youngster are her parents, Naval Aviation Machinist 3/c Don Guthrie and his wife, Shirley, and two sisters, Helene and Cheryl.

Wife Given Divorce From Stan Hack

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Mrs. Stanley Hack, charging that a love affair with a Chicago woman wrecked her 24-year marriage with the former manager of the Chicago Cubs, has been granted an interlocutory divorce decree.

Superior Judge Grover W. Bedeau granted the decree to Mrs. Dorothy Hack of Sacramento, Friday, after she testified Hack twice attempted to break off relations with the other woman but finally asked last September for a divorce.

Hack, named recently as a coach for the St. Louis Cardinals, did not appear in court. The judge approved a property settlement giving Mrs. Hack the family home here and $600 a month alimony.

Million-Ton Russ Wheat Aid to Poles

WARSAW (UP) — Russia has offered Poland a million tons of wheat to keep this country from seeking aid "elsewhere" — presumably meaning from the West, informed sources said Saturday.

The offer has not yet been announced formally—it may be announced in Moscow in the course of Polish leader Wladyslaw Gomulka's current visit there—but the wheat already is arriving, the sources said.

The first shipment was said to have reached the border station of Przeszow three days ago.

POLAND announced some time ago that it needed 1.2 million tons of wheat to tide the nation over until the next harvest. It was reported at the time that the Poles expected to get 800,000 tons from Russia, 200,000 from various satellite countries in Europe, and 200,000 from Canada.

Rumors circulating here said negotiations with Canada for the purchase of wheat on credit already had begun.

Air Academy Uniforms by DeMille OKd

DENVER (AP)—New uniforms for cadets of the U. S. Air Force Academy will go into service next fall, Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles said Saturday.

The designs were developed by movie producer Cecil B. DeMille and his associates, Henry Wilcoxon and John L. Jensen. They worked in close consultation with the Academy's uniform board.

Prototypes of the uniforms were shown recently to Academy cadets. Ninety-eight per cent expressed a preference for them over their present interim uniforms, which are standard Air Force garb.

* * * *

THE APPROVED family of uniforms consists of:

Winter dress—Its cut resembles the standard winter Air Force uniform, but its indigo blue color is more brilliant than the standard blue.

Winter parade dress—Of the same blue as the winter dress uniform, it has a high-necked jacket with rows of buttons which form a V down the front.

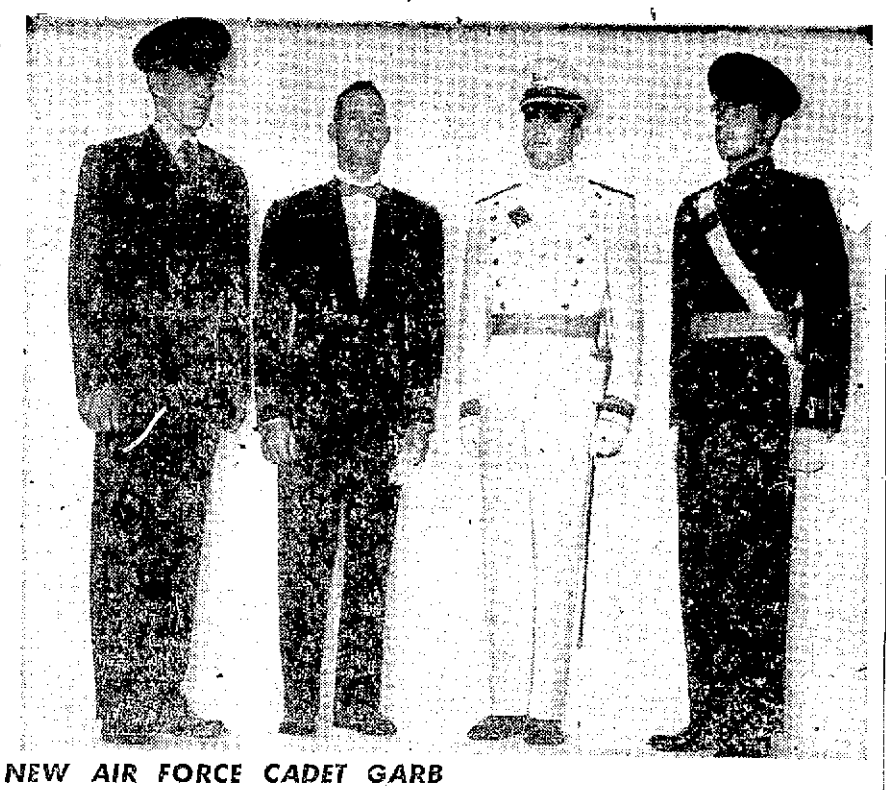

* * * *

EVENING DRESS — The elastique of the jacket will be lighter than in other uniforms and it may be worn both in winter and summer. The evening jacket is on the same shade of blue as the other uniforms and has long rolled lapels. It will be worn with a white pleated formal evening shirt, a blue bow tie, and a blue cummerbund.

Summer parade dress — This uniform is of the same style as the winter parade dress but it is of white cotton cloth.

Cap—It will be blue with darker braid. Its black visor has a silver metal brim. A white cap of similar design will be worn in summer.

Decision on insignia have not yet been made.

Russ Admit Frogman Died

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russian navy magazine "Soviet Fleet" said flatly Saturday that British naval frogman Cmdr. Lionel Crabbe died while investigating "underwater installations" on a Soviet cruiser near London last spring.

The publication cited the mysterious case of the frogman as evidence of increased American and British espionage against Russia from the Pacific to Europe.

Crabbe disappeared under circumstances never fully explained while diving in Portsmouth Harbor, England, last April. The Soviet cruiser "Ordjonikidze" was anchored in the harbor at the time.

Rash of Flying Saucer Reports Probed in Minnesota, Dakotas

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities Saturday investigated a rash of "flying saucer" reports in the upper midwest where at least six persons have sighted strange objects streaking through the sky.

The latest report came from near Crookston, Minn., where a man said he saw what looked like a falling star" plunge to about 500 feet from the ground, then stop and "hang motionless in the sky."

Bill Nimens, 33, Crookston, a former state commander of the Disabled American Veterans, said the object he saw Friday night was bright green and issued a white light.

"It resembled a piece of chrome with a brilliant light to it," he said.

Three other persons said they saw fiery objects over Bismarck, N. D., Friday night. Radio announcer Eldon Ray said he saw a "reddish-white ball of flame, trailing blue flame" speed westward. He said it was at an altitude of 1,500 to 2,500 feet and seemed to be erupting.

A Frontier Airline pilot passing over the city said he also spotted the object but thought it was a meteorite. His theory was discounted by a Civil Aeronautics Administration representative at the Bismarck airport.

"It didn't act like a meteorite," he said. He described it as being "of a glowing nature . . . bluish green."

Two other persons have reported sighting glowing objects flying about the Minnesota and Dakotas during the past 10 days.

World Language to Make Debut

TORONTO (AP)—A new international scientific language will make its Canadian debut at the International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases next June. Called Interlingua, the language has about 30,000 words and will be used by physicians and scientists in preparing papers for the congress. Experts say almost anything can be translated in written material.

Tupolev, Master of Aircraft Design, Once Doomed to Die

NEW YORK (UP)—The Soviet Union's bid for air supremacy over the free world revolves around a portly, balding little man who was once sentenced to death for treason, an authority on Red aviation said Saturday.

Michael Gladych, aeronautical engineer and former Polish pilot, said the latest aerial creation of Andre Nicolajevich Tupolev, 69, known as the architect of Soviet air power, is a four-jet 180-passenger air liner.

Communist Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev has boasted that the TU-114, believed already in production, will be capable of flying nonstop from Moscow to New York.

Gladych described Tupolev's 45-year career as Russia's top aircraft designer in an article appearing in Flying magazine.

* * * *

GLADYCH SAID that Prof. N. E. Zhukovsky and his brilliant pupil, Tupolev, began laying the foundations of Red air power after the Bolshevik revolution of 1918.

Since then, Gladych said, Tupolev has well exceeded his self-imposed goal, of one new plane a year. His aircraft range from a primitive glider built in 1910 to the sleek TU-104, a medium-range, 70-passenger jetliner that stunned the air world when it brought Communist dignitaries to London recently. Another Tupolev creation is the Badger twin-jet, medium-range bomber, unveiled in 1952.

Tupolev, Gladych said, is one of the few men who ever incurred the wrath of Stalin and survived to receive an apology from the late dictator.

* * * *

TUPOLEV HAD reached the top in Soviet hierarchy before the bloody purge trials of 1936. From Stalin, he had received the Order of Lenin, the Order of the Red Banner and the Order of the Red Star. He was vice-president of the Soviet Aircraft Industry Board, which had dictatorial powers over production and design of Red aircraft.

"Tupolev became a frequent visitor at the Kremlin where Stalin no longer dictated to him, but sought his advice," Gladych said. "He had a passport valid for foreign travel without restriction and an unlimited account with the bank of the Soviet Union."

But Stalin's friendship quickly turned to wrath when Tupolev protested the trial of a friend on trumped-up charges of treason. After letters failed, Gladych said, Tupolev went to the Kremlin and personally berated Stalin for the trial of his friend.

Stalin's reply was to order the trial of Tupolev on charges of selling aircraft designs to Germany. Gladych said Tupolev "laughed" at the charge. However, after scores of witnesses "proved" the charge, he was found guilty and sentenced to death.

Stalin commuted the sentence to life imprisonment after the dictator discovered that his top aircraft designers were idled by Tupolev's absence.

* * * *

"HE WAS BROUGHT to Moscow under heavy guard and put to work at his own drawing board," Gladych said. "Watched night and day, he directed the design and construction of his brigades. His decorations had been taken away. He lived in a cell."

But, in 1941, with Russia facing a German attack, Stalin ordered Tupolev's release from prison. Once again a hero, the designer was made a lieutenant general of the Red Air Force. Gladych said Tupolev was summoned to the Kremlin "where Stalin extended his hand in apology." In 1945, he was assigned the job of building long-range bombers in keeping with Soviet plans for world conquest.

Today, Tupolev still puts in a 20-hour day at his drawing board Gladych said—designing the planes that "first broke records—and now threaten the world."

Romania Foe of Reds Stays in Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina has granted political asylum to a chauffeur and his family who fled from the Romanian legation Friday.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Gheorghe Coman, his wife, Maria, and their two sons, one 4 years and the other 11 months old, will be allowed to stay in this country.

He said police have taken them to a hideout as a precaution against Communist reprisal.

A government source said the Comans fled to Argentine police because he was being sent back to Romania to face trial for sedition and anti-Communist sympathies.

The couple broke away when they were entering a car to be driven to the airport. In the confusion of their flight, their younger son was left behind.

Mrs. Coman returned to the legation to claim him, but was held there by Romanian officials. She escaped through a window and Foreign Ministry representatives got the baby while a crowd outside the legation demonstrated against the Romanians.

Interest Raise Studied for Bank Savings

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Federal Reserve Board is making a study to determine whether it should authorize its 6,491 member banks to raise the two and one-half percent interest rate on savings accounts, it was learned Saturday.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which supervises 6,800 state banks, also is weighing the matter.

A source familiar with the board's operations said the problem "has assumed practical importance for the first time since the 1930's." In 1936, when the nation was climbing out of the depression, Congress gave the board discretionary authority to raise or lower the interest rate which has ranged from one to two and one-half per cent.

Millions of savings account depositors would benefit financially if the ceiling were raised. But both the Reserve Board and the FDIC are proceeding cautiously. Many uncertain economic factors are involved.

Radiation Peril Teaching Urged

OTTAWA (AP) — A conference of U. S., British and Canadian scientists recommends that the hazards of radiation be taught as a regular course in all schools.

The conference primarily was concerned with defense against radioactive fallout from nuclear explosions.

U.S. Slashes Price on Atomic Fuel

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower Saturday announced a six-point U.S. program, including a sharp price cut on uranium fuel, to help other nations speed development of atomic power plants.

The effect will be to reduce the cost of building and operating power reactors in countries which are cooperating in the President's "atoms for peace" program.

The proposal also is designed to assure such countries a continuing supply of uranium fuel at a stable price and to guarantee them a U.S. market for the reactor "by-products," sale of which is necessary to make atomic power production economically feasible.

"This nation attaches highest importance to the development of nuclear power abroad," Mr. Eisenhower said in a statement announcing the program. "We are determined that this product of man's inventiveness shall be made available to serve the people of the world."

Navy Birthday Cake Cheers Chinese Girl on Mercy Flight

TOKYO (Sunday) (UP)—A little Chinese girl on her way from Formosa to the United States to undergo a delicate heart operation, received a birthday cake from an American admiral to celebrate her 11th birthday today.

Beth Cho, accompanied by her mother Mrs. Lillian Chu, broke her 10,000-mile journey to Houston, Tex., to receive the cake from Vice Adm. Roscoe F. Good, Far East naval forces commander at the Yokosuka Naval Base near here.

The little Chinese girl is suffering from an "open duct" condition in her heart and has been an invalid since birth.

The child's plight first drew the attention of Navy Lt. George Becker Jr. stationed at Tsoying, Formosa. He wrote Baylor University medical experts in Houston about the girl's condition.

Now she is on her way to Baylor Medical School for an operation.

All three services in the Far East have teamed up for the mercy mission.

After a brief rest here the girl will be flown to San Francisco aboard a Military Air Transport plane.

40-Pound Turkey Given President for Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower, who has been given lots of livestock for his farm, will get some Monday for his table.

He will receive a live 40-pound Thanksgiving turkey in the White House rose garden from representatives of the Poultry and Egg National Board and the National Turkey Federation.

The President spent last Thanksgiving at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm but plans to stay at the White House for this year's holiday.

Fund to Finance Problems Study

NEW YORK (AP)—The Rockefeller Brothers Fund has announced a project to determine and explore problems and opportunities with which this country will be confronted within the next 10 to 15 years.

The project will seek to develop concepts for dealing with these problems and opportunities.

Top Ballerina Collapses

MOSCOW (AP) — Galina Ulanova, prima ballerina of the Bolshoi Theater Ballet, pulled a tendon and collapsed on stage Saturday night while dancing the title role in "Giselle."

Ulanova had just completed a second act solo when she crumpled to the floor.

For 30 seconds the other dancers on stage remained frozen in their positions. Then the curtain was lowered and the house lights turned on.

It was Ulanova's first appearance here in "Giselle" since the Bolshoi troupe's London engagement last month. She is 46 years old.

$1,000,000 Contract for Radio Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Pat Boone who started out two years ago as a $50-a-week entertainer while a college student here, has signed a million-dollar, seven-year movie contract with 20th Century-Fox.

The announcement was made Saturday by Dot Records, Inc., here, which has sold more than a million copies each of Boone's three top recordings.

Boone will co-star with Terry Moore in "Bernadine" which goes before the cameras Feb. 4. The contract calls for Boone to make one movie per year, Dot said.

The young singer, a regular on Arthur Godfrey's radio and television shows, is also a student at Columbia University in New York. He is married to the former Shirley Foley, daughter of hillbilly star Red Foley. Boone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Boone, live in Nashville.

Boone's top recordings include "Ain't That a Shame," "I'll Be Home" and "I Almost Lost My Mind."

CAPITAL CAPERS

By ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

The White House last week started putting out denials of any immediate cabinet changes, but this is what the pundits who are recasting the President's official family for him hear may be in the works after Ike's second inauguration—

State — John Foster Dulles doesn't want to leave but may be eased out following recovery from his operation in favor of Tom Dewey, now a New York lawyer; Jack McCloy, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, or another of the many persons being mentioned for the post.

Treasury—George Humphrey wants to leave and Ike may let him go despite heavy White House reliance on the Cleveland former coal and steel man.

Defense—Charlie Wilson also wants to retire from government and the President's inclination is to let him do so. Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, a successful Michigan politician, is the leading replacement choice.

Justice—It's a tossup whether Attorney General Herb Brownell, a top Eisenhower adviser on many governmental and political issues, would want to quit unless an appointment to the Supreme Court awaited him.

Post Office—Arthur Summerfield also is recovering from an operation but there's little speculation about his retirement.

Interior—Fred Seaton, who replaced Doug McKay earlier this year, is expected to continue in the job for some time.

Agriculture—The rumors are flying but Ezra Taft Benson insisted at a press conference last week that he has no intention of resigning.

Commerce — Sinclair Weeks has told friends he may leave the cabinet next year but not until after the end of the first session of the 85th Congress in the summer.

Health, Education and Welfare—Marion B. Folsom, one of the businessmen-on-loan-to-the-government, is expected to achieve his desire to resign.

THE UNITED STATES Chamber of Commerce, always good for a fresh story, has published a handbook listing the special days, weeks and months awaiting the nation in 1947.

Besides the usual holidays, the chamber advises tha. Old Maids Day is June 4 while Rock 'N' Roll Week and National Sweater Week both start Sept. 16. Also this year, there is Grand Ole Opry Week (May 5-11), followed by Foot Health Week and National Domestic Rabbit Week in that order.

RADIO PRIEST TAMED

Years in Little Flower Shrine Mellow Fiery Father Coughlin

By DWIGHT PITKIN

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) —The years have mellowed the fiery priest of the Shrine of the Little Flower.

At 65, The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin in his pulpit at the Roman Catholic shrine speaks and looks like a philosopher. He gave up his controversial radio career 16 years ago.

No longer is he a Don Quixote tilting with political windmills.

But he still has the eloquence that made his name a household word a generation ago.

Today, instead of denouncing politicians and bankers, he is centering his fire on the Devil.

Except for his parish activities in this thriving suburb of Detroit, Father Coughlin leads almost a cloistered life.

The priest used to hold news conferences and voice off-the-cuff opinions about almost anything. In this campaign year he has given no interviews.

* * * *

HIS SERMONS today reflect sweetness and light. But the old punch is still there when he tees off on the Devil.

He recently warned his parishioners:

"Your adversary is the Devil —a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour."

The priest exhorted the people not to put their trust in material things but in "the sword of truth, which is the word of God."

Father Coughlin's fame reached its peak in the depression days of the 30s as a champion of the poor.

His eclipse as a national political figure began in 1936. That was the year he backed a political loser. And with returning prosperity, radio listeners lost interest in him.

Father Coughlin supported the New Deal in its early years. He turned against Roosevelt in the 1936 campaign and threw his support to a third party candidate, Rep. William Lemke, North Dakota farm congressman and advocate of monetary reforms.

Roosevelt won a second term by the biggest landslide of his four terms.

FATHER COUGHLIN
No Time for Politics

Father Coughlin lost political face. He announced his retirement from radio speaking. He denied there was any compulsion from the church. In the heat of the campaign he had called Roosevelt a "liar and betrayer." This was reported to have caused a painful impression at the Vatican. The priest apologized.

Tired of political warfare, Father Coughlin said he wanted to return to the life of "a simple parish priest."

* * * *

FROM THE START of his radio career in 1926, Father Coughlin had the backing of his superior, Bishop Michael J. Gallagher of Detroit, until the bishop's death early in 1937. The bishop once said:

"Father Coughlin represents the social and economic doctrines of Christianity as gleaned from the scriptures, from the teachings of Christ, from the doctrines of the church, and particularly from the two pontiffs, Leo XIII and Pius XI. He speaks on behalf of millions who are denied their just share of this world's goods."

Father Coughlin stopped broadcasting for a short while after Bishop Gallagher's death, but later in 1937 he started a new series of broadcasts. He soon was in hot water again although his radio speeches were on the mild side.

He was quoted as saying at a news conference that a good Catholic could no more be a member of the CIO than a Mohammedan. His new superior, Archbishop Edward Mooney of Detroit, who later became a cardinal, said the priest was in error. The archbishop said there was no incompatibility between the CIO and the church. Father Coughlin canceled his broadcasts.

* * * *

BACK ON THE AIR in 1938, the priest became subject of bitter controversy again over the position of the church on labor. He also got into a row with Jewish groups over who started the revolution in Russia, but he denied AntiSemitism.

Father Coughlin definitely left the air waves in 1940. He disassociated himself from the magazine Social Justice he had founded to advocate the political and economic views of the national union for social justice.

Abandoning public controversy, the priest devoted his full attention to his parish. When he founded it in 1926, he had a small shingled church and a congregation of 50.

Radio listeners, Protestant and Jewish as well as Catholic who were charmed by the priest's eloquence, poured in gifts that helped build a new church.

The replacement value of the church property, including schools and convents, is estimated at more than 13 million dollars. More than 8,000 persons attend Sunday masses.

Tallest Tower Yet Rises in New Mexico

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — The tallest man-made structure in the world this week started knifing up into the sky 43 miles east of here as construction got under way on a 1,610-foot TV tower.

The tower, being built by KSWS-TV of Roswell, will surpass in height a 1,572-foot television tower in Oklahoma, the 1,472-foot Empire State Building and the 984-foot Eiffel Tower in Paris.

* * * *

IT'S A LAND where bigness reigns. The tower will have as its geographic companion the Bottomless Lakes a few miles to the east, depths of which have never been successfully plumbed, and the largest water well in the world.

Its construction will defy the Texas tradition for the prodigious, inasmuch as the new structure will exceed by 89 feet a television tower at Dallas.

Appropriately, the tower will be located near the oil field where the television station's owner, John Barnett, made his first strike in 1947 and began collecting the fortune that enabled him to plunge into television and radio three years ago.

The tower itself will be symbolic of the meteoric rise of Barnett, who quit a government job in 1947 as a taciturn geologist with only $3,000 in the bank, to play a hunch.

* * * *

THE "GIANT", as it has been dubbed, will carry the station's signal with 316,000 watts over a vast area of cities and small towns in southeastern New Mexico and West Texas to what station operators estimate is a half-billion dollar market. It will cover weak spots of the station's present pattern, and replace the present 790-foot tower.

To Barnett the new tower is an expression of his faith that a predominantly rural area can support quality television.

Kefauver Has No Third-Try Plans

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who failed in two attempts to become president, said Saturday he has "no plans" for a third try in 1960.

GOP Hoping for Control of Senate

WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican senators were told Saturday that control of the Senate in the new Congress "was not definitely decided" by the November election.

This statement was contained in an election review prepared by the staff of the Senate GOP Policy Committee. It noted that the Democrats had retained their 49-47 majority in the Senate but said "the local situation" in Ohio, New York and Texas "could affect the outcome."

After some initial uncertainty, Senate Democratic leaders have been making plans on the assumption that they will retain control of the Senate and organize it on Jan. 3.

* * * *

THE GOP MEMORANDUM first cited Ohio, where Gov. Frank J. Lausche, the Democratic senator-elect, has announced he will not take his seat until after his term as governor expires Jan. 14.

"Furthermore, there is no certainty with which party he would vote on the organization issue," the memo said.

It also pointed out that Jacob K. Javits, GOP senator-elect from New York, plans to stay in his job as state attorney general until after Jan. 9 and that Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.) will become governor of his state Jan. 15.

* * * *

IF DANIEL vacated his seat earlier, the memorandum said, it is "conceivable" that Gov. Allan Shivers might name a temporary appointee who would vote with the GOP to organize the Senate.

Daniel and Shivers have been engaged in a dispute over when the senator should resign. Daniel submitted his resignation in September, effective Jan. 15 or whenever his replacement is chosen in a special session. Shivers, who supported the re-election of President Eisenhower, has demanded that Daniel resign immediately.

The Texas senator issued another statement Saturday asserting that a Texas law permits Shivers to call a special election on 20 days notice before the Senate seat is actually vacant. Shivers' position is based on a different statute, requiring 60 days notice and assuming a vacancy exists before the election can be called.

Daniel criticized Shivers for failing to seek an opinion from the state attorney general. He urged all Texas lawyers to read the statute which he has cited.

* * * *

"THE PEOPLE ARE entitled to know the law from someone other than a governor whose 47-day delay and present demands could result only in denying the people a vote before Jan. 3 and his appointment of a senator on that date," Daniel said.

He said he would have changed the date of his resignation if Shivers had announced his position in time for an election to be held before Jan. 3.

"However, it is significant that Gov. Shivers delayed announcement of his decision until it was too late for the election to be called under his statute before the opening of Congress and until any change on my part would assure him of the appointment of a senator who would help organize the United States Senate for the Republicans on Jan. 3," Daniel said.

CALL A CHICKEN DUMB

Pigs Is Smarties Jasper Contends

By STERLING BEMIS

All those folks who have been telling you, "Don't be a pig" don't rightly know what they're talking about.

Pigs is the smartest animals there is and Jasper Cole has seen enough of them to know.

On his daddy's farm that was homesteaded by his grand-daddy back in the Ozarks, Jasper met up with his first pig almost 60 years ago and he's been a steady admirer since.

Jasper helps train some of the educated animals that perform at Old MacDonald's Farm at Knott's Berry Farm. There are chickens that ring bells, rabbits that ride, pigs that slide, goats that butt the whey out of a mock hired man. Give him his choice of a smarty and Jasper will take a pig every time.

"A PIG IS TUCK from his mother when he is about 3 weeks old and you put him right on the bottle. You can learn him his trick in 10 or 12 days.

"A goat takes three weeks to learn, a rabbit six weeks and a chicken six to nine weeks. You'd have to call a chicken dumb. I helped train two of them to ring a bell. One of them learned good. Other one wasn't no good. He was all right when he was alone but when we brung in the public he wouldn't do a thing."

ALTHOUGH HE retired from farming a year ago, Cole still owns the place which has been in the Cole family three generations. It's 18 miles from Salem, Mo.—60 acres of good bottom land penned in by 170 acres of hills "not good for much but pasture."

You have to have a pretty big piece of land to have enough worth farming in that part of the Ozarks, Jasper opines.

You can find his place on Pigeon Creek at the head of Current River right by the fish hatchery.

Those Ozarks are a mixed up lot of mountains. "Arkansas laps into Missouri and Missouri laps into Arkansas and for a hundred miles you're in the laps of both of 'em."

JASPER COLE was asked if the trained beasts at Old MacDonald's Farm were smarter than the ones back on the farm. He took that as an insult to Ozark animal life.

"Pigs on the farm is just as smart as the pigs that has been educated. Why, we had one here that was trained in Arkansas and just as smart as any of 'em here."

He interrupted his interview to start the century-old, mule-powered merry-go-round.

As the jenny got into full swing, Jasper Cole shouted from the driver's seat:

"Well, I got her started. Now I'll have to worry about stopping her."

JASPER COLE AND FRIEND . . . A Goat's Smart, a Pig Smarter

Italians Report S.F. Man in Line for Luce's Post

ROME (AP)—The Italia News Agency, which has close connections with the Italian Government, said Saturday night Washington has asked Italian approval of James D. Zellerbach, San Francisco industrialist, as U.S. ambassador to Italy.

He would replace Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce, who has made it clear she is resigning.

The Italian Foreign Office declined to confirm or deny the Italia report. Zellerbach called at the White House in Washington Friday but declined to confirm or deny reports he might succeed Mrs. Luce.

96-FOOTER PAYS VISIT

Diesel Yacht Puts New Marina Unit in Business---Temporarily

By BOB WHEARLEY

The Alamitos Bay Marina was in business last week—briefly, but in a big way.

Construction work halted and traffic on the marina's perimeter road slowed to a crawl as the 96-foot Diesel yacht Canim, out of Newport Beach, tied up at the still-unfinished gasoline dock.

On hand to greet the sleek, white ship were Lawrence McDowell, recently-appointed director of the City Marine Dept., and three representatives of the Chamber of Commerce's Shoreline Development Committee—acting chairman Douglas Benwell, Lou Francis and Mrs. Grace Carriker, committee secretary.

• • • •

ARRIVAL OF the Canim was a wide-screen preview of the scheduled January opening of the marina's Basin No. 1, which will accommodate 342 small craft. When the entire $14 million project is completed by early 1959, it will have berthing space for 1,863 boats.

If Marina operations run as smoothly in the future as they did when the Canim arrived, the city has nothing to worry about.

With owner George Gaudin, a Las Vegas auto dealer, at the wheel, the yacht nudged into its makeshift berth with nary a jolt.

• • • •

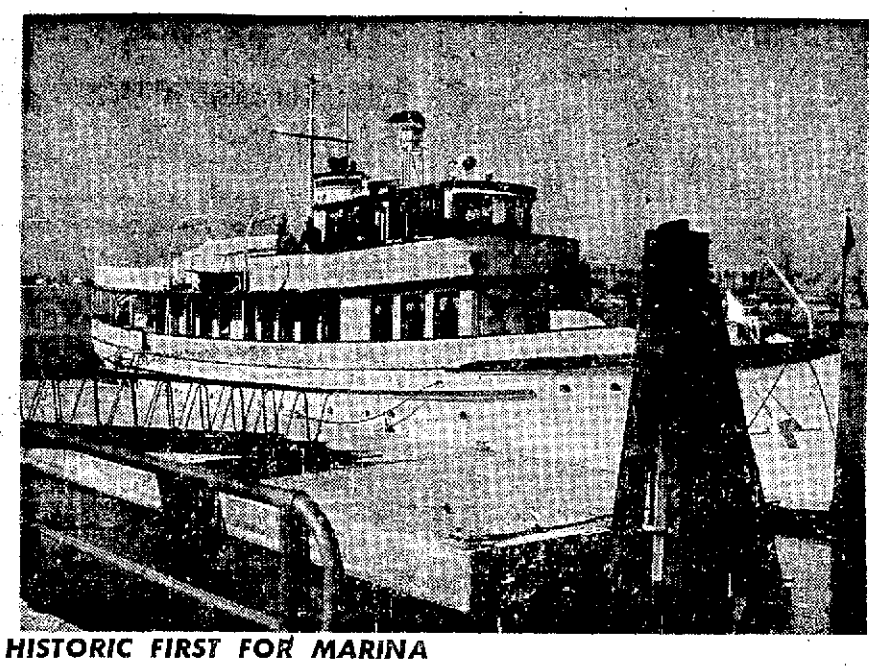

SKIPPER BILL McKAY secured the lines to the dock and allowed as how the new basin would be a considerable improvement over Newport Harbor—where many Long Beach area yachtsmen now moor their craft.

"Here, you've got a clear shot into the ocean through the entrance channel," he explained. "But at Newport, it's at least a 30-minute trip from the channel mouth to the mooring area.

"I imagine that might be a big item for people who have only a limited amount of time to spend on their boats."

McDowell and the chamber committee group later boarded the Canim for a cruise to Balboa Bay.

The Canim's airhorn sounded just the least bit sorrowful as it backed away from the gasoline dock. It was as if she had found a home and didn't want to leave it.

HISTORIC FIRST FOR MARINA

The 96-foot yacht Canim, out of Newport Beach, this week became the first large craft to tie up at the new Alamitos Bay Marina. It was just a temporary berthing, though—the marina won't be officially open until January. — (Staff photo.)

Albums Express Pupils' Gratitude

MADRID (AP)—Spanish school children have presented 50 albums illustrated by hand to U.S. Ambassador John Davis Lodge to acknowledge a free lunch program in Spanish schools conducted with donations from the United States.

Lodge will forward the albums to the governors of the 48 states and officials of the District of Columbia.

City Advertises Bids for Three Highway Projects

The City of Lakewood has authorized advertising for bids on three road improvement projects to cost an estimated $61,000.

The projects are: Resurface Carson St. from the Union Pacific right of way to the eastern city limits, estimated cost, $36,000; install concrete curbs and gutters along the south side of Del Amo Blvd. from Lakewood Blvd. to Coke Ave., $12,000; and improve a 28-foot-wide middle strip on Candlewood St. from Paramount Blvd. to the Union Pacific right-of-way, $13,000.

Bids for all three projects will be opened at 2 p.m. Dec. 19 in Lakewood City Hall. The city council will act on the bids Dec. 26.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Envoys Walk Out on Nikita Tirade

MOSCOW (UP)—Western ambassadors walked out of a Soviet reception for Poland's new leaders Saturday night after Soviet Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev denounced western "imperialism."

The reception for Polish Party Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka and Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz was the first the western ambassadors had attended since Russia intervened to suppress the Hungarian rebellion, Nov. 4.

Khrushchev launched into a bitter attack on western policy, charging that "the imperialists are making hopeless efforts to recover lost positions." At this point, the American, British, French and other NATO ambassadors and the Israeli ambassador decided to leave.

Huge Oil Well Capped

TEHRAN, Iran (UP)—Nature Saturday sealed what is believed to be the world's biggest oil well, a task which man only partially succeeded in doing.

The mammoth gusher at Qum, 85 miles south of Tehran, was blocked off by a cave-in which hurled tons of rock into the well borehole. It finally sealed off the well, which when brought in poured out 100,000 barrels of oil every 24 hours.

Find Motive in Slaying

DENVER (AP)—The husband of a 17-year-old Negro girl stabbed to death at Manual High School told police Saturday they had argued over attentions she had been paying other men.

Mrs. Daisy Lee Furlough Price Friday had been helping 75 other students decorate for a homecoming dance when she was attacked.

The husband, Samuel Robert Price, 24, told police he and his wife were alone in a hallway outside the gymnasium during the argument. He said he pulled a knife and "swung it" but refused to say he hit his wife with it. He is being held by police but no charges have been filed.

Back Yard Air Crash

ATLANTA (AP)—A twin-engine Navy training plane from Key West, Fla., crashed into the back yard of an Atlanta home in a rainstorm early Saturday.

Six men aboard were taken to Grady Hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and other miscellaneous injuries. None was critically hurt.

600 Girls Flee Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Six hundred girl students evacuated from two dormitory halls at Ohio State University early Saturday when fire broke out in a room occupied by three students.

No one was injured in the blaze, although two of the room's occupants were reported by firemen to be in a hysterical condition and under a nurse's care. The fire was confined to the one room.

Austria Hits Arm Charge

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Austria's Chancellor Julius Raab protested to Russia Saturday against charges published in the Soviet press that Austria spirited weapons and men to the Hungarian anti-Communist rebels for their revolution.

MT. HOLLY, N. C. (UP)—Three teenagers were killed here Saturday when a Seaboard freight train hit their car at a grade crossing in a driving rain. A funeral director identified the youths as Larry Ray Crisp, Lyndon Sherrill and Melvin Clarence Lewis, 17 years old. The boys, all neighbors, lived in a rural area.

Campus Girls Copy Little Boys, Big Boys

Today's campus girls are borrowing fashion ideas from almost everybody—haircuts from little boys, striped shirts from big boys, old-style long dresses from Grandma. The wide variety of inspirations proves once again that Miss Coed still knows a good thing when she sees it and with her usual flair manages to express her individuality.

(Staff Photos by H. S. Melvyn)

LITTLE BOY HAIRCUT blends with feminine lines of sweater for smiling Gerry Searcy of Poly High. Necklace supports lucky one's initials.

STRIPED SHIRTS of Ivy League males have been brazenly adopted and adapted by coeds at Long Beach State College. Margie Getz, left, and Aggie Krunic roll up sleeves for another busy day on the campus.

AT STATE, Sharon Estrobridge wears pioneer dress, ballet slippers.

Granddaughter of Revolutionary War General Dies

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—The granddaughter of a Revolutionary War general died here Friday night at the age of 106. She was Mrs. Julia Presson Patrick, widow of John H. Patrick who served with the 32nd Virginia Regiment in the Civil War.

Her grandfather was Gen. John Custis for whom Fort Custis was named. Mrs. Patrick was born March 24, 1850, in York County, Va. She is survived by two daughters, seven grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Ingrid Recovering From Operation

PARIS (UP) — Actress Ingrid Bergman was reported in "satisfactory" condition Saturday from an emergency appendicitis operation she underwent Thursday at the American hospital in suburban Neuilly.

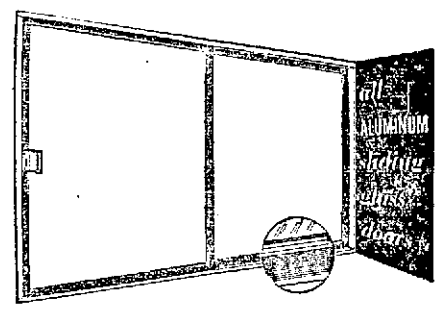

A hospital spokesman said, however, that no date has been set for discharge of the 41-year-old, Swedish-born star.

Let's Finish This Job the Right Way

THE UNITED NEIGHBORS Community Chest campaign is drawing to a close.

As so often before in these drives, our area has fallen short. This time we are short of the modest $925,000 goal by over $150,000.

Are we going to close out the campaign that way?

Surely we cannot be satisfied with such a showing.

THE GOAL which has been set is a minimum goal. It is the amount considered absolutely essential to support the 31 health, welfare and youth agencies which serve 400,000 persons in the four communities—Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, and Dominguez—of our Community Chest area.

Since last year's campaign, there has been a 50 per cent increase in demands for welfare services to families and children. Fifty per cent more young people have used Community Chest youth programs. The influx of new residents from other parts of the country has continued apace. More and more of our youngsters have come of age to require Community Chest youth services. Meantime, per capita income has shot to an all time high and business is in good shape.

Everything seems to be going ahead steadily except contributions to the Chest drive. Something is wrong.

OF 257 INDUSTRIAL firms in the area, 78 have never contributed to a Chest campaign. Nor have their employes. Forty other firms make contributions, but their employes give nothing. All of these businesses and their employes make money from this community, stand to benefit from Community Chest services, and ought to share this civic responsibility.

AFTER ALL, 6,500 persons have volunteered their time and effort without charge to the task of visiting stores, firms, and homes to collect contributions. Usually these workers also make money contributions of their own. If they can perform a double service, the rest of us ought to be able to perform one.

Tomorrow the United Neighbors Community Chest volunteers go out hoping to finish the job successfully for 1956.

Let each of us help them do it.

Ike Ably Answers Hostile Questions

WASHINGTON—Sometimes they come belatedly, but there is no gainsaying the effective rebuttals made by President Eisenhower in his press conferences as he faces a barrage of questions—many of them at times as hostile as if an opposition party spokesman had expressed them.

FOR MONTHS NOW the cliches and bromides of the Democrats have set forth these propositions:

First, that the administration has been "drifting" in the Middle East and has had no "policies" to prevent the situation there from developing as it has.

Second, that the "liberation" policy of the administration has not come to the rescue of nations in Eastern Europe.

Third, that the President has not exercised "leadership" inside his own party and that there really is a serious cleavage as between "Old Guard" and "New Republicans."

With the unmistakable force that his sincerity gives to his public statements, President Eisenhower has refuted every one of these criticisms.

THE PRESIDENT made it clear that never has United States policy advocated the use of our military force to secure the "liberation" of the peoples of Eastern Europe. It is the critics who are hypocritical about this, because they know very well the American people will not sanction the sending of American troops to Hungary to decide a civil war there. Not a single spokesman for the opposition has ever had the temerity to advocate such a course, yet constantly there are barbs of sarcasm thrust at the administration for its failure to enforce "liberation." As the President says, the spirit of liberty and freedom is constantly encouraged by his administration. He might have added that it is discouraged only when anti-administration spokesmen like George Kennan say in speeches that the "status quo" in Eastern Europe has to be accepted with a certain sort of "finality."

One thing is clear—American military power will not be used to settle local wars or to "go it alone." It will be used only in defense against attack where our treaty obligations, as in NATO, require it or it will be used to back up the United Nations where the issue is clearly one that in the long run may endanger our own safety.

It is primarily America's willingness to support the United Nations police force in the Suez area today which gives strength to that expedition, even though United States troops aren't involved.

SIMILARLY, it is America's readiness to thwart the sending of Soviet "volunteers" to Egypt which stays the hand of the aggressors and the would-be aggressors in the Middle East. This is a policy of deterrence based on moral force plus military preparedness. The President traced the policy back for many months and rightly absolved the American government of any responsibility for Soviet plotting and Nasser's acceptance of Communist influence.

As for party politics, the President at his Wednesday press conference gave a definition of "Modern Republicanism" which the critics have tried to twist into something that implies a cleavage inside his own party. Yet nobody can cite more than two or even three Republicans out of the 47 elected to the Senate either in 1952 or 1954 or 1956 who have been or are at variance with the definition of "Modern Republicanism" expressed by the President this week.

Some Republicans, of course, have differed on certain aspects of foreign policy, and so have some Democrats deviated from party concepts. But "Modern Republicanism" was espoused by the Dewey-Bricker ticket in 1948 in almost precisely the language used by the President on Wednesday. Spending huge sums for social welfare is approved in principle but, as the President says, it has to be done within the limits of "integrity in the fiscal operations of the government" and a "sound dollar." It also has to be within the limits of free enterprise except in emergencies.

FOR MONTHS THE DEMOCRATS and their allies in the press have been trying to promote discord inside the Republican party by crying out that the President doesn't exercise "strong leadership." It's another one of those vague phrases like "new ideas in foreign policy" which never are defined or made concrete. Mr. Eisenhower said frankly he doesn't believe in a type of "leadership" that tries to knock heads together. He declared: "I am not one of the desk-pounding type that likes to stick out his jaw and look like he is bossing the show."

Instead, Mr. Eisenhower likes to try persuasion and reason. He has thus given an effective answer to those who forget that there are still 48 states and that the people in those states decide what kind of Republicans or Democrats they wanted to represent them in Washington.

WALTER LIPPMANN

U. S. Policy Shunning Force, Backing U. N., Is Unique Among Big Countries

FOR THE U.N., which finds itself attempting to deal with the two great crises in Hungary and in the Middle East, the critical fact is this: the United States is acting wholly within the legal system of the United Nations whereas the Soviet Union is in the main acting outside that system. The heart of the difference is that the Kremlin is using military force as the instrument of Soviet national policy. The United States, on the other hand, has gone further than any great power has ever gone before to renounce the use of military force except as it might be called for and authorized by a majority of the United Nations.

LIPPMANN

In both crises the course of events is being shaped by this novel, this wholly unprecedented difference in the military philosophies of the two dominant military powers.

* * * *

THUS, the United Nations, or at least a substantial majority of them, have called upon the Soviet Union to desist in Hungary. But as it was certain that they would not oppose the Red Army, the Kremlin has used the Red Army to achieve the Soviet objective. The Red Army, we have seen, is not subject to any of the limitations which the U.N. has wished to impose.

In the Middle East the United Nations have called upon Britain, France, and Israel to desist. They are desisting and they are acknowledging the authority of the U.N. But here again the Soviet is using its military power outside the U.N. It has made threats of military intervention which have never been considered, much less authorized, by the U.N., and it is, unless the available reports are wrong, building up a military bridgehead of its own in the Middle East. The U.N. is being passed by.

* * * *

THE FIRST conclusion to be drawn from all this is not that the United States should decide for a free hand, should in its turn cast off the United Nations, and proceed in its own way to use the influence which its military power can exert. Our first business is to explain to the United Nations this fundamental problem — the problem of the Soviet Union's unilateral use of force as the instrument of its national policy. This should be done, if necessary to give it proper emphasis, by the President in person. For if this problem is not understood by the governments of the world, and its grave potentialities taken to heart, we may all find ourselves on a slippery slope where events are out of control.

Summit Meeting

In adhering to a United Nations policy, we must realize clearly that there are two very different ways of acting on such a policy. One is the way the administration first took, then modified somewhat, but has never seriously reconstructed. This was in essence to treat Britain, France, and Israel as aggressors, to treat Egypt as the innocent victim, and to commit the whole United States influence to the single issue of the withdrawal of military forces.

The other way, which in view of Nasser's record should have been the original way, is to commit our influence in the U.N. insistently and decisively to a solution of the problems which caused the explosion. The U.N. is now being put to its severest test. It it being tested at its weakest point. Its inherent weakness is that it is not, or at least that it has never been, an agency for making peace. It has been only an agency for the making and keeping of truces.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

U. S. Voter Wins His Degree in College of Political Science

IN THIS Presidential election year, the first time since 1848 that a winning candidate didn't carry at least one house of Congress, it became evident that the American voter has won his degree in the college of political science.

No longer does he give either party his undivided loyalty. He has learned, through a long process of education, that no one party, nor its candidates, can rightly lay claim to all of the cardinal virtues.

He now has the basis, through the information he derives from newspapers, magazines, radio, television and other forms of communication, on which to make an intelligent choice at the polls.

And this schooling, if you like, as distinguished from the days when unyielding partisanship was in vogue, has given the voter an independent and selective turn of mind.

Thus, he is able to cast an enthusiastic vote of approval for President Eisenhower and, at the same time, reject the Benders, the McKays, the Langlies and the Thorntons who had Ike's hearty endorsement.

KNIGHT

This significant change in voting habits will be deplored by those of staunch party persuasions. They will say and are saying that the end result will be a breakdown in party responsibility and the two-party system.

Quite frankly, I do not share these fears. On the contrary, it seems to me that the voters' growing independence and selectivity will demand instead a higher calibre of candidates on both sides.

In the future, realistic party leaders will be well advised not to underestimate the public's intelligence. No longer, except in areas where a ward, a congressional district or a state is preponderently Democratic or Republican, can they foist upon the public an array of bumbling party hacks whose only distinction is a long record of party loyalty.

This is a huge gain for America, one of the few nations in the world where unrestricted freedom of expression has given our nation an informed electorate and protected "the people's right to know."

OF FAR MORE CONSEQUENCE than the recent election are the crises in Middle Europe and the Middle East.

The early and hopeful view that followed the uprisings in Hungary has now been dimmed by the brutal and ruthless reprisals of the Russians.

Still, there is much encouragement for the future. The passion for liberty has not been crushed and other stout patriots will rise again to challenge their oppressors.

Furthermore, the free world has witnessed a demonstration of Soviet brutality that will not be soon forgotten. It should be clear at last to all doubting nations that Soviet policy rests upon force, and force alone.

These incredible acts of stupidity by the Russians can only advance the time when the satellite nations must inevitably regain their freedom.

JOHN COWLES, EDITOR and publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, predicted more than a year ago that war in the Middle East was inevitable unless stern measures were taken immediately to prevent it.

But not even the prophetic Mr. Cowles could have forseen that two of our leading allies, Great Britain and France, would have conspired with Israel to violate the United Nations charter and become aggressor nations.

No amount of emotional rationalization can alter the facts of aggression, nor give the Israeli strike into Egypt any designation other than as an act of "preventive war."

To be sure, the Israelis had many provocations for their full scale retaliation against the Arabs. Years of bloody border clashes produced mounting and almost unbearable tensions while Col. Nasser, the "little dictator of the Nile," scornfully refused to negotiate with the Israelis.

But whatever one's personal view of the Middle East crisis may be, the inescapable fact remains that the United States is facing possible involvement in "another oKrea."

IF PRESIDENT EISENHOWER read the election returns correctly, as I suspect he did, this is exactly what the American people do not want.

They believe he is proceeding properly in assigning the task of peace to the United Nations, rather than recommending unilateral action by the United States.

What a tragedy it is that the United Nations did not implement its charter by forming years ago an elite force of 250,000 men to act promptly in situations such as the one with which we are now confronted in Egypt.

The task before us is complicated by the illness of Secretary Dulles and the lack of adequate replacement from existing State Department personnel. Mr. Dulles, who ran a spectacular "one man show," was never noted for his ability to build a continuing organization.

But we can be grateful that we have a President who is not given to the reckless "off the cuff" decisions that lead to war.

EVER SINCE THE ELECTION, a good many political tears have been shed because the President failed to get a Republican Congress.

In my humble opinion, there is no occasion for sorrow. Since 1954, President Eisenhower has worked well with Democratic majorities in both houses.

LOOKING AHEAD, I SHOULD THINK that the Republican party will be gradually reshaped in the mold of Mr. Eisenhower's "modern Republicanism" which is so amorphous that you simply can't rebel against it.

The Presidential candidate in 1960 will be of the Eisenhower mold, "an economic conservative" and a "humanitarian liberal."

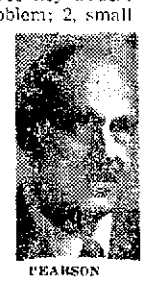

In the next four years, you will see a bitter struggle for control of the Democratic party with the younger senatorial group headed by majority leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas pitted against the forces of Walter Reuther, Gov. Williams of Michigan and other extreme liberal elements.

The feeling is growing in the South and the West that the Democrats cannot win as a radical party in an era when people are becoming more conservative in their economic thinking.

Three Key Issues Hurt Republicans: Farms, Small Business, Public Power

WASHINGTON—Republicans who are frank about the election returns admit that they will have to do something about three key issues: 1, the farm problem; 2, small business; 3, public power. They attribute the gross failure of the Republican party as a party, compared with its leader, to these three issues.

PEARSON

Of the three, the one on which the Republicans took the most clearcut and decisive beating was public power. Almost every candidate who championed the Eisenhower partnership policy with the private utilities was defeated. Here is the roll call of their political disaster:

OREGON — The Democrats swept the state. They elected a Governor, grabbed control of the state legislature for the first time in years, and sent two new congressmen to Washington. In addition, Ike's hand-picked candidate for the Senate, Doug McKay, a former member of the cabinet, was defeated.

* * * *

MONTANA — Rep. Orvin Fjare, Republican, was defeated by L. H. Anderson, Democrat, after Fjare supported Ike's veto of the Yellowtail Dam and reservoir project. Simultaneously Dep. Lee Metcalf, Democrat, who opposed Ike's power policies, was re-elected by a wide margin.

* * * *

IDAHO—Sen. Herman Welker, Republican, was defeated by a young Democratic lawyer, Frank Church, even though Church faced a split Democratic ticket. Welker had been a vociferous buttonholer for the Idaho Power Co. in its battle for Hells Canyon. It did its best to re-elect him, but failed. Congresswoman Gracie Pfost, Democrat, who fought against Idaho Power and for Hells Canyon was re-elected by a big majority.

* * * *

WASHINGTON — Gov. Arthur Langlie, handpicked by the White House to defeat Sen. Warren Magnuson, was defeated. He was made the GOP keynote speaker at the San Francisco convention in order to help him. Ike went all the way to Seattle to speak for him. He lost.

CALIFORNIA—Rep. Leroy Johnson, Republican, was defeated, after 14 years in Congress, by John J. McFall, Democrat. Johnson was an ardent admirer and booster of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. They in turn boosted him. But when the San Joaquin Valley flooded his district and his record against public power was revealed in this column, he was defeated.

* * * *

TOWN MEETING

GOP 'Hucksters' Still 'Bleating'

TO THE EDITOR:

I see the bleat of the Republican hucksters remains the same. They cannot stand even the remotest hint of criticism, yet they feel they have the God-given right to condemn, falsely accuse, and self-righteously set themselves up as judges, that they may find all guilty of disloyalty to our country who do not agree with them politically.

* * * *

WOULD THEY have us believe that the only real Christians and the only real Americans are predominately Republican. Fooey! The maligning of the Democrats, especially as individuals, will stand as a monument to what despicable lengths they will go to gain their own ends. I await the day when this type of creeping sickness is judged for what it is, a malignant growth, able to devour the freedoms this country was founded on.

* * * *

YOUR FAVORITE columnist, David Lawrence, typifies a trait common to all dedicated Republicans in that he repeatedly changes the facts of history and even current events to better suit his prejudices. (Editor's Note: Mr. Lawrence is a long-time Democrat).

It would seem also that all who do not hail Ike as the "Prince of Peace" will indeed be numbered amongst the goats and not the sheep when the division of the heavenly flock is at hand. If this be true, those who set the editorial policy of this paper will slide through the pearly gates with all due speed.

Demagoguery Kicked in Shins

TO THE EDITOR:

American voters turned out in great numbers to give demagoguery a well deserved kick in the shins. There should have been no doubt before the election as to what would happen. The thesis that Mr. Eisenhower, upon reaching the presidency, had allowed himself to become the weak-kneed puppet of politicians and monopolists was even too preposterous for most Democrats to swallow.

ALTHOUGH both houses are Democrat controlled, the overall tone is one of moderation. There are few, if any, New Dealers left, and this indicates that the American people have rejected the pattern of paternalism and centralization set up during the Roosevelt-Truman eras. This return to Jeffersonian concepts is healthy for the Democratic party and for the nation.

* * * *

AMERICA'S growth stems from human initiative, drive, and self confidence. Four years of freedom from government meddling and coddling spelled the death knell to the insidious drift toward socialism. It also brought about a political phenomena where millions crossed party lines to elect a leader of proven ability—a man who they knew could lead them through the perilous times of an uneasy world.

Why Do We Sit Calmly by?

TO THE EDITOR:

Why do we calmly sit by and allow the wholesale slaughter in Hungary? Why do we not help those whose only crime is hunger for freedom?

Make no mistake, it is not the Hungarians' battle alone. If they lose, we lose. We helped encourage these people and then stand by and do nothing when they cry for help. Will this not discourage other Communist satellites from rebellion?

It makes one wonder if all our high-sounded phrases about freedom is only empty hypocrisy. As for me, I'm beginning to lose a little faith in my country. How can we expect the people of the world to look to us for leadership when we remain completely passive in their time of need?

Of course, we do not want another war, but let's face it, sooner or later we shall have one. There can be no such thing as co-existence. One force or the other must triumph. Shall we serenely chalk up another victory to the Communists? No! the time has come to act.

Red Quiz to Call Hawaii Governor

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee said Saturday Gov. Samuel Wilder King of Hawaii will be the first witness at hearings expected to begin Nov. 30 in Honolulu.

The subcommittee is inquiring generally into Soviet activities on United States soil and Communist activities on the waterfront.

Chief Counsel Robert Morris said about 40 witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Holes in Tax Law Studied for Plugging

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House subcommittee next week will begin studying proposals for plugging some tax "loopholes" now open to oilmen, bachelor playboys with mistresses, police officials, bond dealers and others.

The others include some broadcasting concerns, buyers of life insurance, employes of tax-exempt institutions, individuals in high tax brackets and corporations that engage in involved stock-market transactions to avoid or defer payment of income taxes.

A House Ways and Means subcommittee after two weeks of public hearings, starting Monday, will decide whether to recommend changes in the tax laws in the next session of Congress.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), an expert on taxes who believes that Congress can be persuaded over the next several years to make tax law much simpler and more fair. He regards the hearings as only the first step in that direction.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to studying "unintended benefits" now provided for certain taxpayers, the subcommittee will take a look at any "unintended hardships" brought to its attention.

Affected taxpayers have been invited to step forward and testify. But the congressional group doesn't expect to hear any public defense of the tax "loophole" now accorded bachelors with mistresses.

The unconventional type who sets up housekeeping with a woman without marrying her can, under present law, claim a $600 tax exemption by classifying her as a member of his "household."

It seems a safe bet that this incentive to live in sin will be eliminated. Other proposed revisions would affect:

Oil property owners who now can reduce their federal taxes by selling for a flat sum their right to the property's oil, either for a limited time or for a set quantity. Such sales now are taxed at the lower capital-gains-tax rate, rather than the regular income rate.

State and local police officials who can exclude from taxable income as much as $5 a day for subsistence allowances to cover traveling expenses. Some are designating as "subsistence" part of their regular police salary.

Bond dealers — The subcommittee will consider refusing them the right to deduct in certain cases as a loss from other income the premium paid on tax-exempt bonds.

* * * *

BROADCASTING concerns—The subcommittee will consider writing into law a new rule by Federal Communications Commission clamping down on tax deferment on gains realized from sales of stations ordered by FCC.

Expatriates—All U. S. citizens abroad would be required to report back all income earned in other countries to avoid confusion over whether they are validly exempt from U. S. income taxes.

Employes of tax-exempt institutions—some educational organizations are paying some employes all, or almost all, of their compensation in the form of an annuity, which automatically defers income tax on it.

Stock purchases by corporations — Tax rules would be changed to make it more risky for corporations to attempt to reduce their taxes by trading in the stock of other corporations.

Individual stock market profits—Taxpayers would be prohibited from putting off stock-market profits from one tax year to another through use of legal, but fictional, "short-sales."

Corporation executives—New restrictive conditions would be imposed on capital gains treatment of cornered options allowing employes to buy stock at variable prices.

Life insurance—The staff suggested that certain portions of life insurance policies be included in a dead person's estate even though he gave up ownership of the policies before death.

'Do-It-Yourself Kit' Turned Trick for Jubilant Hawkeyes

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Rose Bowl bound Hawkeyes returned to a rose-strewn dressing room Saturday and tossed their coach, Forest Evashevski, into the shower after their 6-0 triumph over Ohio State.

Evashevski, grinning happily, was soaking wet before his players would let him emerge.

"I'm extremely proud of the men on the Iowa team," Evashevski said. "I have never seen so few do so much with so little. I want to express my thanks to all my coaching staff. They have done a wonderful job.

"We weren't sure Michigan State could turn the trick against Minnesota, so we went out and got ourselves a do-it-yourself kit," he laughed.

"Our defense was designed to make Ohio State do what they didn't want to do. That was pass. We expected to pass more, but you'll have to ask Kenny Ploen why we didn't. He ran the ball club."

Evashevski said he used a seven diamond defense to block Ohio's passing offense, adding it was much too complicated to explain.

"We weren't sure at any time in the ball game that we had Ohio State beaten. They're a rough, well coached ball team, but our men played them man for man and proved to be stronger," he added.

Coach Woody Hayes imposed a blackout on Ohio State dressing room activity.

He met with newsmen outside the dressing room and refused to let them talk with any of his team.

"Our offense beat us, and their defense was very good. Iowa was just six points better. That's all there is to it," said Hayes.

"Evy hadn't used a seven diamond defense all year. He was gambling. Any time you change, you're gambling. Iowa played good ball, but is not as tough defensively as Penn State was." Penn State beat Ohio State, 7-6.

Hayes later scuffled with a TV cameraman in the Buckeye dressing room. L. W. Ward of station KCRG said he had finished shooting dressing room pictures and was leaving when Hayes grabbed him by both shoulders and demanded the film. Ward, who had a pass to enter the dressing room, said Hayes tossed him onto a pile of equipment but did not get the film.

Vandals Nipped by OSC

By RUSSELL NIELSEN

MOSCOW, Idaho (UP)—Oregon State's Beavers, played off their feet all day, came from behind in the closing seconds Saturday to defeat little Idaho, 14-10, and clinch the Pacific Coast Conference title and Rose Bowl bid.

Oregon State was hopelessly bottled up by the determined Idaho crew, but a blocked goal-line pass and long pass-run late in the game pulled the victory out of the fire and gave OSC its first conference crown and Rose Bowl bid since 1941.

The winning touchdown came on the strength of a 51-yard pass-run from halfback Paul Lowe to halfback Earnel Durden who was spilled on the Idaho three. On fourth down, Lowe ran right end to score with just two minutes left to play.

Until that moment, however, an almost unbelievable upset seemed probable. Oregon State had been able to move into Idaho territory only three times. The deepest penetration was to the 23.

* * * *

IDAHO'S BRUISING line, which mulled vaunted Oregon State's single wing attack constantly, set up the first score when end Lonnie Parks recovered Durden's fumble on Oregon State's 35. Seven plays later halfback Larry Norby plunged four yards for the score and Jerry Kramer converted.

Norby was a demon on offense, ripping through the OSC line time after time for yardage which enabled Idaho to maintain possession of the ball most of the game.

Oregon State, which didn't collect a first down in the first half, earned a big break in the second period. Center Buzz Randall crashed through to block Howard Willis' fourth down pass and Oregon State took over on the Idaho one. Fullback Bob Berry plunged over on the next play and John Clarke converted. The score stood 7-7 halftime.

OREGON STATE drove to the Vandal 25 midway through the third period but Idaho took over when a fourth down pass failed. The tide turned in Idaho's favor again early in the fourth period when Durden fumbled a fake punt and the Vandals recovered on State's 35. Idaho moved to the 19 before Kramer angled a 35-yard field goal through the uprights with 2:30 played as the small crowd of about 4,000 dad's day fans roared in anticipation of an upset.

Moments later an Oregon State punt into the wind was downed on the OSC 7, but the Beavers recovered a fumbled lateral on their 15. With time ticking, the desperate Beavers gave the ball to Durden on a fourth and sixth situation on the OSC 28. He picked up the vital first down. A penalty moved OSC back to its 31. Two plays later Lowe stepped back and threw to Durden who caught it on the Idaho 34 and rambled to the Idaho three, setting up the winning score.

* * * *

THUS, OREGON STATE will meet Iowa at Pasadena on New Year's Day in the first Rose Bowl rematch in history. Iowa licked the Beavers last month at Iowa City, 14-13.

Ohio St. Tumbled on Pass

By ED STAINSBURY

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UP)—Iowa bought its passport west to the Rose Bowl Saturday, upsetting Ohio State, 6-0, to break the Buckeyes' 17-game Big Ten winning streak and give the Hawkeyes at least a share of the conference title for the first time in 34 years.

The win, before 57,732 fans, closed Iowa's Big Ten season with five wins and one defeat, a record that Ohio State could equal by beating Michigan next Saturday.

But customarily the Big Ten selects for the Rose Bowl the highest eligible team in the standings and thus Iowa is a cinch for the chance as neither the Buckeyes nor Michigan State can play in the post-season match this year. Never before has Iowa appeared in a bowl game.

No single player stood out in Iowa's victory over the Big Ten's top offensive club which last week set a conference record for rushing against Indiana. Saturday that rushing game broke down completely on Iowa's rugged defense, seventh best in the nation, and Ohio State's deepest penetration into Hawkeye territory was only to the 32.

* * * *

INSTEAD, Hawkeye fans had to salute quarterback Ken Ploen, halfbacks Don Dobrino and Bill Happel, fullback Fred Harris, and such line standouts as Jim Gibbons, Frank Gilliam, Alex Karras, Don Suchy and Dick Klein.

Ploen, calling signals astutely, combined with Gibbons on a 17-yard pass for the only touchdown of the contest. Earlier a pass interference penalty on Ohio State cost 15 yards and put the ball on the 20 to set up the scoring toss. The touchdown climaxed an Iowa spurt from its 37 and the second half kick-off.

Bob Prescott missed the conversion attempt and Iowa fans groaned, but as the Hawkeyes grew stronger their dismay disappeared.

* * * *

IOWA IN THE FINAL period was stronger than in any other session, advancing to Ohio State's 15 before Prescott missed a field goal attempt. And when the Buckeyes began to march from their 20, the Hawkeyes threw them back to the four to take possession and threatened to score again in the final minute.

Statistically there was little to choose between the teams, Ohio State netted 147 yards rushing and Iowa 176. Iowa, with Ploen connecting on 5 to 9 attempts, gained 63 yards in the air and Ohio State netted 18 with two completions in 11 tries.

Hawkeye fans erupted from the stands to carry players and coach Forest Evashevski off the field before the game was over.

Iowa had possession of the ball inside the 5 with time for one more play, which the Hawkeyes declined to take because of the crowd.

Tab Bears Over L.A. in TV Tilt

CHICAGO — (Special) — The Chicago Bears, leading the National Football League in nearly every offensive department, go after their seventh straight win today when they meet the five-times beaten Los Angeles Rams before a sellout crowd of more than 49,000 fans at Wrigley Field.

The Bears, who share the NFL's Western Division lead with Detroit, whipped the Rams, 35-24, in Los Angeles two weeks ago and are favored by 13 points to repeat today. The game will be televised to Southern California over KNXT (2) beginning at 11 a.m.

Both clubs have lost key performers since their last meeting. Perry Jeter, the Bears' tricky rookie breakaway runner, broke his ankle in last week's 38-14 rout of Green Bay and will be sidelined about six weeks. Bobby Watkins, however, has recovered from an early-season injury and is ready to step into Jeter's shoes.

The Rams will be without the services of linebacker Larry Morris, who suffered a knee injury as the Rams broke a five-game losing streak against the 49ers last week. Another doubtful performer for the Rams is Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch, the clubs' leading pass catcher.

LAUD IDAHO LINEMEN

OSC Lucky to Get Out Alive--Prothro

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—"Man, we feel lucky to get out of this one alive," said Oregon State Coach Tommy Prothro after he had seen Idaho almost unravel the ribbon from the Beavers' Rose Bowl package.

"They must have had us awfully well scouted," said a weary Prothro in the dressing room after OSC had scored in the last three minutes to squeak by Idaho 14-10.

"They must have been as sky-high for us as we were for the Stanford game, and spirit can go a long way. I'd say this was a good team we played today. I can see why they've won their last few games.

"I'd much prefer to give Idaho credit for this one—they certainly were ready for it and apparently wanted to win it more than we did."

Prothro said the Beavers would now be thinking only as far as the season windup against traditional foe Oregon.

"We have to get ready now for Oregon and I do believe our kids might get a little more fired up for that one."

Idaho coach Skip Stahley, obviously upset by the Oregon State victory after his valiant Vandals had dominated the game, had little to say in the dressing room.

Later he praised the work of the Idaho linemen.

"Our defense kept (Earnel) Durden and (Paul) Lowe from running on the wide stuff," Stahley said.

He said the Vandals had "kicked" the Beavers around.

"Too bad we couldn't beat them."

UCLA Spills Kansas, 13-0

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—UCLA's Bruins converted two second-half Kansas fumbles into touchdowns here Saturday for a 13-0 victory over the Jayhawkers from the Big Seven in a dull but fiercely-contested defensive struggle before the smallest crowd of the season, a slim gathering of only 21,913 fans.

The Bruins struck for the lead touchdown in the third period after recovering a fumble on the Kansas 13-yard line; then staved off two Jayhawk threats with brilliant defensive play before striking again with only 2:45 left after grabbing another enemy fumble on the 24. Tailback Kirk Wilson scored both UCLA touchdowns.

The intersectional win was the Bruins' seventh triumph of the season against but two losses, while Kansas was sent reeling to its fifth setback against three victories and one tie.

The Bruin victory was achieved in much the same manner that UCLA has posted its key wins this season . . . sensational kicking coupled with aggressive defensive play while waiting for the breaks that were bound to come.

Wilson, the nation's leading collegiate kicker, and Don Shinnick set the stage for UCLA to capitalize on the breaks by keeping the Jayhawkers backed up deep in their own territory most of the afternoon with their towering kicks.

Wilson set a new single-game punting record by netting 232 yards on four tremendous kicks—one a 71-yard beauty that actually traveled 81 yards through the air from the point he kicked it five yards inside the end zone. He averaged 58 yards on the four kicks. Meanwhile, Shinnick netted 238 yards with six punts to give UCLA an overall 47-yard average on 10 kicks.

After the Bruins muffed one scoring opportunity in the sec-

Ducks Outfight SC, 7-0

PORTLAND (UP)—A fighting University of Oregon football team outfought Southern California for an upset 7-0 Pacific Coast Conference victory in muddy Multnomah Stadium Saturday before 14,480 fans.

It was only the second loss of the season for the Trojans, who were battled off their feet by the outweighed Oregon line.

The smooth quarterbacking of Tom Crabtree and a lightning-like 50-yard drive in the second period gave Oregon its touchdown. Charlie Tourville, 167-pound sophomore halfback from Martinez, Cal., carried six times on 10 plays on the touchdown drive for 39 of the 50 yards. He packed the ball over from the three and fullback Jack Morris added his 21st straight conversion.

Southern Cal. never got inside the Oregon 30 in the first half. In the second half the Trojans penetrated to the Oregon 13 and 14.

The slippery going obviously bothered the Trojans and their star fullback, C. R. Roberts, although it didn't rain during the game.

End Phil McHugh and two fighting 189-pound guards, Spike Hillstrom and Harry Mondale, were standouts in the Oregon line.

Southern Cal's biggest threat came from passing. Late in the first half quarterback Jim Conroy overthrew halfback Ernie Zampese who was in the clear for what would have been a touchdown.

The Trojans finally solved Oregon's ground attack but they couldn't overcome the spirited line play of Coach Len Casanova's Webfoots.

SC threatened seriously in the final quarter with a spirited and varied attack that moved swiftly from its own 33 to the Duck 13. Runs by Conroy and Zampese, plus an 11-yard pass, Conroy to end Hillard Hill, kept the drive going, but then Oregon stiffened.

After the Webfoots were forced to punt, SC started right back up the field with halfbacks Tony Ortega and Don Hickman and a Conroy to Roberts lateral whipping them to the Oregon 14. Then Duck halfback Jack Brown intercepted a pass in the end zone.

U.S., RUSSIA RENEW GIANT BATTLE FOR TEAM TITLE

Olympic Games Begin Thursday

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP)—The Melbourne Olympic Games, born on a note of internal discord and rocked by international crisis, open next Thursday in this placid tree-lined city with interest again unavoidably focused on the giant team battle between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Bitter tensions and controversies are comparable to those of 1936 at Berlin when Hitler's goose-stepping legions were lighting the fuse of the Second World War, but the stubborn, hard-working Aussies are determined to make these Games "the most memorable in Olympic history."

The words are those of Wilfred Kent-Hughes, chairman of the Olympic organizing committee who adds, "The Olympic spirit transcends all national boundaries and all national differences."

Sir William Bridgeford, executive officer of the games, says "only a world-wide conflagration can stop us. We intend to make this the greatest sports festival of all time."

This determination is reflected in the magnificent sports stage set for some 4,700 athletes from 68 countries assembled here to vie for gold, silver and bronze medals in 16 sports.

The sprawling Melbourne Cricket Ground, scene of featured track and field events as well as the opening ceremony, looks like a painting with its newly constructed brick red track and bright green infield.

Its 104,000 seats and standing space are sold out for the first and final days and both Saturdays of the athletic competition.

Seats in the modern covered swimming pool at nearby Olympic Park have been sold out for months and are being scalped like choice tickets to Broadway's "My Fair Lady."

Originally 75 nations, 6 more than the record list in 1952 at Helsinki, entered the competition but seven withdrawals have left the number at 68.

Those who pulled out of the Games for various reasons were Communist China, Holland, Spain, Switzerland, Egypt, Iraq and Lebanon.

Communist China objected to the admission of Nationalist China forces from Formosa. Egypt, Iraq and Lebanon pulled out as a result of the trouble in the Near East. Holland, Spain and Switzerland stayed out in protest at Russian aggression in Hungary.

The Hungarian team, winner of 16 gold medals at Helsinki and third behind the United States and Russia in the unofficial point standings, is fielding another potent squad headed by Istvan Rozsavolgyi, world record holder at 1,500 meters; Laszlo Tabori, outstanding middle distance man; hammer thrower Jozsef Csermak and two-time boxing champion Laszlo Papp.

The United States and Russia have the strongest delegations in the games — each close to 350 competitors — and they are expected to renew the rivalry started at Helsinki where the United States won unofficial team honors of 614 points to 553½ for Russia.

Uncle Sam picked up 41 gold medals, 19 silver and 17 bronze compared with Russia's 23 gold, 29 silver and 18½ bronze.

This time America again should dominate the men's track and field, winning at least 12 gold medals with star sprinters, hurdlers, 7-foot high jumper Charley Dumas, world record holder in the shotput Parry O'Brien and excellent men in the middle distance.

Russia's hopes lie with distance aces headed by Vladimir Kuts, hop - step - and - jumper Leonid Scherbakov and listed world's record-holder in the hammer throw, Mikhail Krivonosov.

* * * *

KENNETH (TUG) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, calls the American team "over all the best we ever have carried to the Olympics. We will compete in every event and we will be tough to beat in most of them," he said.

The Americans figure strong in men's and women's swimming, diving, rowing, particularly with Yale's 8-oar crew, weightlifting, boxing and basketball.

"Russia's main strength lies with its sturdily built women track and field stars, wrestlers and gymnasts, the latter an event in which the Soviet piled up most of its points in 1952.

Some of the world's greatest names either are out of competition or figure to be disappointments, because of the loss of lustre.

Emil Zatopek, whose victories in the 5,000 and 10,000 meter and marathon at Helsinki made him the outstanding individual performer, is here to run for Czechoslovakia but he says he is a tired old man of 34 who will run only in the marathon.

* * * *

JOHN LANDY, Australia's record holder in mile who has been troubled by pulled tendons, said "I don't have it any more," after finishing 120 yards behind England's Chris Brasher in Geelong meet last Wednesday night.

Landy still insists, however, he will run the 1,500 and 5,000 meters.

Sandor Iharos, who set seven world distance marks in the space of two months, is reported ill and is not with the Hungarian team.

Roger Moens, Belgium's world record holder in 800 meters, is out with a groin injury.

The opening ceremony is scheduled for 3 p.m. Thursday (9 p.m. Wednesday, PST) at the Cricket Ground, where the teams will pass in review and the Olympic torch will be lighted in the traditional ceremony.

On Friday the championships will be decided in the 400-meter hurdles, women's discus and 10,000-meter run and competition gets under way on virtually all fronts. First week's schedule:

THURSDAY
Afternoon—Opening ceremony.
Night—Basketball.

FRIDAY
Morning—Fencing (team foils), modern pentathlon (riding), rowing (heats), field hockey, soccer, track and field (high jump trials).
Afternoon — Basketball, weightlifting, fencing (team foils), rowing (heats), field hockey, soccer, track and field (400-meter hurdles 1st round, high-jump final, 100-meter 1st round, 800-meter 1st round, 100-meter 2nd round, 400-meter hurdles 2nd round, 10,000 meters final).

SATURDAY
Morning—Modern pentathlon (fencing), basketball, fencing (team foils), rowing (repechages), field hockey, soccer, track and field (qualifying trials in pole vault, hammer throw and broad jump).
Afternoon — Weightlifting, basketball, boxing, fencing (team foils), soccer, field hockey, rowing (semi-finals), track and field (400-meter hurdles semifinal, hammer throw final, 100-meter semifinal, broad jump final, 800-meter semifinal, 400-meter hurdles final, 100-meter final).
Night—Fencing (team foils), boxing, basketball, weightlifting.

SUNDAY, NOV. 25
No competition.

Once Over Lightly
by DAVE LEWIS

U.S. track and field athletes have long considered several events in the Olympics as strictly their own . . . namely the pole vault, high hurdles, shotput and the 400-meter relay.

The Americans, in particular, have always been proud of their supremacy in the sprint relay. After losing to England in 1912, the U.S. has won the event in the last seven Games.

This year at Melbourne we have perhaps the greatest relay team yet formed in Bobby Morrow, Ira Murchison, Thane Baker and Leamon King. Thus, it would be quite a feather in the caps of any foursome that upset the American sprinters.

And reports reveal that Russia is engaged in an all-out campaign to "steal" the relay race from the U.S.

"Stealing" a race in track, of course, does not mean by some unfair tactics, but rather through a successful gamble to score an upset victory.

And the Russians intend to gamble with a new technique in passing the baton to defeat the favored American quartet.

The rapid development of the Russian athletes, of course, has been greatly speeded up by copying through the use of motion pictures of American performers the techniques it has taken U.S. athletes a half-century and longer to develop.

After thoroughly studying the various styles of the athletes in the pictures, the Russians decided on one particular type of form to be used in each event.

Thus, while the styles of the individual American athletes differ greatly in some cases, that of the Russians is stereotyped.

The Russians are always on the look for a way to produce better performances and they have come up with their baton-passing strategy which will figure in the 400-meter relay at Melbourne.

They hope to nullify the Americans' superior speed with the baton pass. The race, of course, is roughly a quarter of a mile around one lap with two of the three baton passes being made on curves.

DON CANHAM, highly-respected track coach at the University of Michigan whose Wolverine teams have won the last four Big Ten championships, recently return from a state department mission to Africa with the inside story of how the Russians plan to "steal" the relay race at Melbourne.

Returning from Africa, Canham stopped off at Rome to watch the Italian Olympic trials and there he met an old friend, Georgi Oberweger, the Italian Olympic coach.

Oberweger had just seen the Russians in a meet in Romania and he revealed that the Russians had mastered a way to pass the baton faster.

In this country, of course, it is conventional for the runner to accept the baton in his right hand. Before he passes it to the next man, he transfers the baton to the left hand while running. U.S. coaches contend this is the most accurate way of handling the baton.

The Russians, however, have become proficient with the "inside pass," using the left hand all the way. This has the advantage of turning the runners toward the pole of the track rather than away from it.

CANHAM REPORTS that the Italian coach estimates the Russians can pick up at least two-tenths of a second on each exchange with this innovation because the outgoing men can start faster from the crouch.

"With this method, the Russians figure they have four good sprinters who can beat the four great sprinters of the U.S. by picking up six-tenths of a second with their faster baton changes," Canham says.

In workouts for the Olympics in Melbourne, it is reported that the Russians are coming close to the world record of 39.8 seconds achieved in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin with a team led by the great Jesse Owens.

Meanwhile, Dean Cromwell, former Trojan spike mentor who was head coach of the 1948 American Olympic team, is not concerned about the Russian threat, though.

"The same situation existed at Berlin in 1936," Dean tells us. "I was an assistant coach of the American squad that year and as such was put in charge of the sprint relay team.

"We kept hearing that the Germans had devised a new type of baton pass as well as other bits of strategy that would beat us. In fact, I must admit that many American officials were concerned over this threat by the German sprint team.

"But I was confident all along that we would win, and the American sprinters finally met the German challenge by scoring a sensational victory and setting a world record that still stands.

"And I think the American sprinters will do the same again this time at Melbourne!"

49ERS WIN 3RD IN ROW, 5-3 FOR YEAR

State Blanks Cal Aggies in Finale, 10-0

By JIM MANGAN

A stout defense and some timely punting bottled up the heralded Cal Aggies of Davis, and Long Beach State College rolled to a 10-0 victory in its season finale before 2,300 at Veterans Stadium Saturday night.

It was the third straight win for the 49ers and gave them a season mark of five victories and three losses. The defeat for Davis was only its second in nine games.

Long Beach actually clinched the contest in the second quarter when Stan Guzy blocked Jim Trainor's punt and Jerry Sullivan fell on the ball in the end zone. Harlow Richardson converted.

Just for a safety measure, Richardson added a 10-yard field goal in the third period. It was set up when Joe Rancatore recovered a fumble on the Aggie 33. Ivan Seaton and Richardson then alternated thrusts in moving the ball into position for the try.

* * * *

DAVIS THREATENED only once in the game. A Trainor to Myrel Moore pass for 35 yards and a 10-yard run by John Barovetto gave the visitors a first-down on the State one. But four successive cracks at the mighty Long Beach defensive wall went for naught, the ball ending up on the three yard line.

Davis never had a chance after that and only once did it penetrate past its own 40. The hard-charging 49ers' defense—spearheaded by seniors Ron Albertson, Bob Keller, Rancatore, Gene Ashwill and Tom Baldwin and ably assisted by Guzy and Frank Woodhouse—caused the Aggies to fumble nine times.

Aggie coach Will Lotter said after the game that State put so much pressure on his boys they never could get set. He opined that the State defense was as good as Davis had met all year.

Mike DeLotto, 49er coach, stated that it was Long Beach's best game of the year. He was pleased as were all Long Beach fans—by the punting of Bob Smith. He punted seven times and averaged better than 40 yards to keep Davis in the hole.

JONES NEARS JC BOWL BID

LAUREL, Miss. (AP)—Jones County Junior College swamped East Central at Ellisville, 46 - 15, Saturday night and may have thereby won the East bid to the National Junior College football bowl at Los Angeles, Dec. 15.

Jones, defending champion in the Mississippi JC Conference, wound up in second place behind Pearl River, which completed its season last week undefeated.

Either Coffeyville, Kan., or Joplin, Mo., is expected to be the western representative.

Stevens Nine, Rockets in Park Finale

It's farewell today to the tired wrinkles of Recreation Park's skin diamond and rickety wooden stands.

Next summer a new 3,500-seat steel and concrete grandstand and a grass infield will await local semipro and school teams as well as PCL clubs who plan to schedule more exhibition games here.

But today old Recreation Park will bow out feeling some of the same cleats that used its hard and wind-swept clay as a stepping stone to major or minor league stardom.

Chuck Stevens' Long Beach All-Stars will tangle with Bill Feistner's Long Beach Rockets in the finale, scheduled to start at 2:15 p. m.

Feistner has invited all local players who got their start at Recreation Park to participate in the swan song.

Long Beach major leaguers Bob Lemon of the Indians, Lou Berberet of the Senators and Rocky Bridges of the Redlegs will be there, but are prohibited from playing. They cannot play in exhibitions 30 days after the World Series, so they'll probably serve as coaches.

The Rockets, who have a 25-19 record in semipro play this year, will field their usual lineup with Pete Cassidy on the mound.

Stevens, who will play first base for his club, has corralled some topnotch talent, including Eddie Beckman, Jack Graham, Hank Edwards, Clint Conatser and Bobby Sturgeon.

Gibson Defeats Fry for Aussie Net Title

SYDNEY (UP)—Althea Gibson of New York, who lost to Shirley Fry in the Wimbledon and U.S. championships, beat her fellow American, 10-8, 6-2, Saturday to win the New South Wales women's tennis title.

Althea then teamed with Neale Fraser of Victoria to beat Shirley and Bob Howe of Australia, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, in the finals of the mixed doubles. Ken Rosewall defeated Fraser for the men's singles title, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

62 for Quick at Gardena

Paul O'Leary carded a four-under par 66 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 130 to retain his one-stroke lead in the $3,500 Gardena Valley Open at Western Ave.

Smiley Quick, the Rio Honda playing pro, equalled his own tournament record with a 62 to tie for second place with Billy Maxwell, who shot a 66. Other hot rounds were a 63 by Bud Holscher and a 65 by Jerry Barber, who sank a 50-foot wedge shot for an eagle-two.

Irv Cooper of Long Beach had a 69 for 140, the same total as Lakewood's Jimmy Ireland, who had a 72. The tournament winds up today. Leaders:

Paul O'Leary	64-66—130

Cowboys Nip Tigers, 20-19

STOCKTON (AP) — Hardin-Simmons' fired-up Cowboys battled College of the Pacific to a standstill Saturday night and added a decisive extra point for a 20-19 upset victory.

Undaunted by a heavier Pacific line, Hardin-Simmons uncorked a powerful running game that caught the favored Tigers off guard. Halfback Dewey Bohling rammed in two touchdowns on the ground to supplement a two-yard scoring pass.

COP quarterback Tom Flores matched Bohling with two touchdowns, one a 15-yard gallop, on the final play of the game. The Tigers got their third tally on a three-yard plunge by halfback Jack Larscheid.

Hardin-Simmons scoring: Touchdowns—Berry (2, pass from Saur); Bohling 2 (15, run; 1, plunge). Conversions—Honea, Cutt. Bohling.

COP scoring: Touchdowns—Flores 2 (1, plunge; 15, run); Larscheid (5, plunge). Conversion—Allerdice.

Nittany Lions Trip N. Carolina St., 14-7

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—Pennsylvania State University defeated North Carolina State, 14-7, Saturday in a bruising ground battle that see-sawed from goal to goal before erupting in a scoring spree with less than four minutes left in the game during which all 21 points were scored.

San Jose St. Wins, 35-28

SAN JOSE (UP) — Sophomore fullback George Cobbs raced 36 yards to break a 28-28 deadlock and give San Jose State a 35-28 victory over Cal of San Luis Obispo Saturday night.

The Spartans scored 21 points in the second period in a contest in which the score was tied four times.

San Jose State quarterback Bob Reinhart, the nation's second ranking passer, threw two touchdown tosses, both to end Bob Dunivant for 16 and 56 yards, respectively.

Ram Cagers Down Avalon

By JIM HANCHETT

Stan Anderson scored 34 points to lead Millikan High to a 60-50 victory over Avalon High in the Rams' Basketball debut at Avalon Saturday night.

Anderson, a 6-2 junior who starred for the Wilson High Bees last year, connected on 17 of 18 free throws and with Stacy Higgins helped give Millikan control of the backboards. Bob Evans was high-point man for the losers with 16.

In the preliminary, the Avalon Bees defeated Millikan 43-40.

Tartars Win, 15-12

Two touchdowns midway through the second half erased a surprising 12-0 Cameron, Okla., lead and propelled Compton College to a 15-12 victory at Ramsaur Stadium Saturday night.

After a dismal first-half showing, Compton came alive to roll up its ninth straight triumph of the year and move to within one game of a perfect season.

Compton got its touchdowns on a 60-yard drive capped by Tom Beardman's one-yard plunge and a minute later a blocked punt that was turned into the winning margin four plays later. Mike Black kicked an all-important conversion after the first touchdown. Compton added a safety late in the game.

Parsons Seeks Second Straight Grand Prix Title

Johnnie Parsons, 1950 Indianapolis winner from Van Nuys, will be seeking his second 150-lap USAC Grand Prix midget auto race victory over a star-studded field including many "500" veterans and rookies, Thanksgiving night at Gardena Stadium.

Parsons, 1949 national driving champion, knocked 51 seconds off Dempsey Wilson's old track record in winning last year's traditional midget classic.

More than 30 powerful Offenhausers will try to make the program which will see only the fastest 18 cars in the 150-lap main event. There will be a 15-lap semi-main and a 3-lap trophy dash for the four fastest qualifiers.

Among the Indianapolis veterans set for a crack at the purse of $2500 against 40% of the gate are Johnnie Tolan, 1952 national midget champion from Norwalk; Ray Crawford, 1954 Mexican Road Race winner from Pasadena; Rodger Ward, 1951 national stock car champion from Los Angeles and Johnny Boyd of Fresno.

Arizona State Humbles Wildcats

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Arizona State College ended a four-year drouth in its heated intra-state rivalry with the University of Arizona with a coldly efficient 20-0 victory over the Wildcats Saturday night.

State scored in the first, second and third periods. Bobby Mulgado ran 18 yards over left guard, Dave Graybill plunged one yard and Gene Mitcham caught a 36-yard aerial in the end zone from Graybill.

Salas Wins Split Nod

Veteran Laure Salas slugged out a split decision over tiring Tommy Tibbs of Boston Saturday night in a 10-round lightweight bout at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Tibbs built up an early lead on points but faded in the hot and heavy final rounds.

Judge Tommy Hart scored the bout 98-95 for Salas, Judge John Thomas gave it to Tibbs 94-96, and Referee Russ Bradford carded it 98-94 for Salas.

first time since their Junior Rose Bowl championship club turned the trick in 1953, the Renegades became an almost sure bet for a bid to the Potato Bowl in Bakersfield, Dec. 1.

* * * *

IT WAS RENEGADE fullback Charles (Booster) Ellis, leading his team's ground attack when it counted, who plunged over from one yard out in the final period with the decider.

The Vikings, who were protecting a 12-7 lead entering the fourth quarter, had the ball deep in their own territory when disaster struck. Renegade halfback Jim Lester picked off Viking quarterback O'Jay Bourgeois' pass on the LBCC 19 and returned it two yards.

After three plays brought the ball to the seven, Ellis drove to the one, then bulled into the end zone with three minutes gone in the period to put Bakersfield on top. Bill Hill booted his second conversion to end the scoring.

After trailing 7-0 at halftime, Long Beach suddenly came to life. Gausepohl ran back the second half kickoff 31 yards to the LBCC 41. Gausepohl and Dan Wasnick did the carrying as Long Beach drove in six plays to the Renegade 30.

* * * *

WASNICK, WHO gained 71 yards in 11 carries for a 6.4 average, then took a pitchout from Bourgeois and rambled 26 yards to the four. Fullback Dick Romo then scored the first of his two touchdowns on a slant over right tackle to leave the Vikings only a point behind at 7-6. When Bourgeois' PAT attempt hit the crossbar and bounced back it was grim irony for LBCC.

The Vikings held Bakersfield on the Renegades' next series of downs, and with substitute quarterback Tom Klosterman at the controls, LBCC marched 84 yards in six plays for the go-ahead score. Wasnick kept the offensive fire burning on the Vikes' first play from scrimmage as he burst 12 yards to the 28. Gausephol then sprinted for 21 and 33 yards on successive carries. Wasnick followed by churning three yards to the 15 and Romo, on the next play went 15 yards to paydirt around right end to put his club into the lead at 12-7. Bourgeois' attempted conversion was blocked by Renegade guard Bill Musick.

* * * *

AFTER GOING 34 yards in seven plays to he LBCC 22, the Renegades relinquished the ball on downs and the Vikes took over at the outset of the fourth quarter.

However, Lester picked off the fatal Bourgeois pass and Ellis sealed the LBCC doom with his one-yard TD plunge.

Bakersfield took a 7-0 lead with 14:01 remaining in the second quarter driving 73 yards in nine plays with halfback Ned Permenter scoring from the 10.

American Athletes Still Top Prelims

MELBOURNE (UP) — Late Saturday results from the Olympics warmup track and field meet at Bendigo, Australia showed that the Americans were still dominant.

Bobby Morrow, who had been weakened by a virus ailment, set a new Aussie mark of 20.9 seconds in winning the 220-yard dash and then teamed with Ira Murchison, Leamon King and Andy Stanfield to set a new Australian mark of 41.5 seconds in winning the 440-yard relay.

Josh Culbreath won the 880-yard run in 30.5 and Tom Courtney captured the 440-yard event in 47.3.

In a warmup meet between the Australian and United States women's teams at Melbourne, Earlene Brown of Los Angeles won both the discus and shotput. Mrs. Brown's heave of 154 feet was a new Aussie mark in the discus as was her 48-11¼ effort in the shotput. Pamela Kurrell of San Francisco was second in the discus with a toss of 142 feet.

Bob Richards cleared the bar in his first try at 14-9 while practicing his pole vault specialty.

Meanwhile, Kenneth L. Pug Wilson, U. S. Olympic Committee president, backed the Swiss in appealing to President Eisenhower for a transport to get the Swiss team to the Olympics. The Swiss are stranded since that country's airlines are occupied with ferrying United Nations soldiers to the Suez Canal Zone.

Michigan Rips Hoosiers

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP)—Halfback Terry Barr proved that his often-injured ankle was finally healed Saturday by racing for three touchdowns to lead Michigan to a 49-26 Big Ten victory over Indiana.

Barr scored on a one-yard plunge and on runs of 16 and 26 yards. He also completed a 39-yard pass to end Ron Kramer, was on the receiving end of 38-yard aerial and returned a punt 17 yards.

Ed Shannon, second string right halfback behind Barr, accounted for two of Michigan's touchdowns. Thus, all but two of the Wolverines' scores came from the right halfback position.

Sophomore fullback John Herrnstein plunged a yard to give Michigan a first period lead after Indiana had fumbled on its own eight.

Barr set up Michigan's second touchdown by returning a punt 17 yards, and then grabbing a 38-yard pass from Jim Pace. He finally scored the touchdown with a one-yard plunge.

Shannon scored the next two touchdowns, both on five-yard runs around end, and Bob Ptacek passed 20 yards to Mike Shatusky for another score to push Michigan's lead to 35-0 at halftime.

Indiana fought back gamely with a three-touchdown outburst in the third period. Jim Yore plunged for two of the scores and Dave Whitsell grabbed a 13-yard pass from quarterback Tom McDonald for the other.

But Michigan scored once in the period on Barr's 16-yard run and Barr came back for another score in the fourth period on a 26-yard end sweep.

The Hoosiers scored in the closing minutes when Norm Mackin, a fourth-string quarterback, connected with John Aveni on a 50-yard pass.

Gophers Outlast Spartans

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Defiant Minnesota, firing one last supreme bid for a Rose Bowl trip that was snatched from them by Iowa's victory over Ohio State, slashed 70 yards in an all-or-nothing drive that upset Michigan State, 14-13, Saturday and knocked the Spartans out of the Big Ten title running.

Quarterback Dick Larson, taking over for the heroic Bobby Cox in the fourth period, fused a Minnesota comeback which climaxed with fullback Bob Blakeley's 27-yard touchdown run.

Dick Borstad kicked the game-winning extra point.

THE GOPHERS rolled back one final Michigan State passing offensive in the dying minutes before a chilled crowd of 62,478.

For three quarters, Cox, almost alone as a Minnesota offensive threat, held off the manpower-rich Spartans. Twice he intercepted passes to either start Minnesota goalward or blunt the Spartan onslaught. Cox ran for 128 yards in 24 carries.

Cox sent the Gophers into the lead with 28 seconds remaining in the first half with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Dave Lindblom. Borstad's first try for the conversion missed, but a Spartan penalty gave him a second chance. His next try was perfect.

* * * *

MICHIGAN STATE, the third-ranked team in the land, rolled 78 yards after the second half kickoff to tie the score. Quarterback Pat Wilson hammered over from the three on the 12th play.

The Spartans in the fourth period paraded 86 yards in 19 plays with Wilson going over on fourth down from the one foot line. Mike Panitch missed the extra point.

New Contract

The Minnesota Board of Regents offered football coach Murray Warmath a new 5-year contract Saturday even though his present 4-year pact still has a year to run. Warmath immediately accepted the new contract.

A&M Downs Owls, 21-7

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Undefeated Texas A&M, the center of a boiling controversy with the NCAA for allegedly bad recruiting practices, clinched at least a tie for the Southwest Conference championship Saturday by beating Rice 21-7.

The Aggies struck for three touchdowns in the first half under the inspiration of a fleet of hard-running backs headed by halfbacks Loyd Taylor and John Crow and fullback Jack Pardee.

Rice scored its lone touchdown midway in the third period when quarterback King Hill plunged over from the one to climax a 57-yard march.

Pardee plunged over from the four to score early in the opening period, capping a 63-yard drive which took 11 plays, for A&M's first score.

The hard-driving, 198-pound Pardee scored again early in the second quarter, jumping over center for the final yard.

Center Lloyd Hale set the stage for A&M's third touchdown when he recovered a fumble by Rice halfback Ken Williams on the Rice 35. Taylor circled his left end and sprinted 22 yards for the score.

Cadets Bow to Panthers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Quarterback Corny Salvaterra scored one touchdown and figured in two others Saturday as Pitt's bowl-minded Panthers defeated a speedy Army team, 20-7.

Salvaterra scored on a 14-yard run with a minute and 59 seconds remaining in the second quarter. He engineered a 47-yard drive, which he climaxed with a nine-yard pitchout to Dick Bowen in the third period.

* * * *

PITT'S THIRD touchdown, which came after a 50-yard sustained drive, was a seven-yard pass from Salvaterra to Dick Scherer.

Bob Kyasky, Army's speedy fullback, scored the Cadets' only touchdown on a 14-yard run in the second period.

Sooners Roll to 67-14 Win

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — Top-ranked Oklahoma beat Missouri, 67-14, Saturday to win its 38th consecutive victory and ninth straight Big Seven Conference Championship.

Missouri's debacle ruined the Orange Bowl hopes for Don Faurot's squad and assured Colorado of a bid to the Miami extravaganza Jan. 1. Oklahoma cannot repeat in the Orange Bowl.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners, rolling at more than a point a minute, didn't allow Missouri to score until the final quarter when Wilkinson sent his third and fourth units into the game.

All-America candidate Tommy McDonald, playing less than half the game, led the Oklahoma ground drive with 136 yards in 11 carries. The Albuquerque, N.M., halfback raced 58 and 23 yards for two touchdowns, passed for another and intercepted two Missouri passes. He was the favorite of the 57,000 who saw the game.

Hornung One-Mans Tarheels

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP) — Paul Hornung scored all Notre Dame points Saturday, plunging for the winning touchdown with a minute and 16 seconds to go in leading the Irish to a 21-14 victory over North Carolina and breaking a five-game losing streak.

His first pass completion of the game sailed 58 yards to Jim Morse and opened the way for the first touchdown with Hornung taking it over from the three. Center Ed Sullivan intercepted a pass shortly afterward to get the Irish on the way for another score.

Aubrey Lewis scampered 78 yards along the right sidelines, putting the ball on the 15. Four plays later Hornung went over from the three.

Notre Dame took over on its own 37 with less than four minutes to play and moved it to the 13. Hornung and Jim Milota pounded the Tarheel line for 11 yards in four plays and Hornung went over for the winning touchdown.

Rebs Ruined by Vols, 27-7

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fullback Carl Smith scored the touchdowns as Tennessee rolled past Mississippi, 27-7, Saturday to remain unbeaten and untied.

A throng of 42,000 saw the Vols yield a touchdown to the fired-up Rebels on the opening kickoff and strike back viciously for their sixth straight victory of the season.

Smith, 190-pound sophomore reserve, supplied the momentum as the Vols ripped apart Mississippi's defenses for 383 yards rushing and passing.

* * * *

MISSISSIPPI had gone into the game with the best defense, statistically, of any college football team in the country. In previous contests, the Rebels had yielded only 163.6 yards a game.

Tennessee got its single wing powerhouse rolling in the second period with Smith plunging from the one.

The Vols added two more in the third period on a 52-yard runback of an intercepted pass by fullback Tommy Bronson and a 31-yard run by Smith.

Smith put the frosting on the cake with a 12-yard touchdown gallop late in the fourth quarter.

Mississippi moved 69 yards with the opening kickoff for its score, quarterback Ray Brown sneaking around right end from the two. Brown's passing was Mississippi's only weapon.

Cougars Jolt Cal in Grudge Battle

BERKELEY (UP)—Aerial minded Washington State, led by the passing arm of sophomore Bob Newman, upset California, 14-13, Saturday before 34,000 fans and dumped the hapless Bears into the Pacific Coast Conference cellar.

California saw its chance for at least a tie fizzle in the last three minutes of play on a fumbled high pass from center on Cal's second conversion attempt.

It was a grudge battle in as much as Coach Jim Sutherland of the Cougars, fired by Cal Coach Pappy Waldorf two seasons ago in a dispute centering on the fabled Ronnie Knox, came to Berkeley wanting nothing more than a victory over the Bears.

* * * *

WASHINGTON STATE scored in the first period on a five-yard pass from Newman to end Lewis Turner. Cal tied it at 7-7 in the second quarter on a 54-yard drive capped by Jack Hart's four-yard end run.

The Cougars went ahead in the final period on a 43-yard march. Ed Stevens going over from the four, only to have the Bears grind out 61 yards with the return kickoff, Jerry Drew scoring from the one.

RATTLED SMU GOBBLED BY RAZORBACKS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Arkansas found a hidden lode of scatback talent Saturday and shook four different ballcarriers loose for long gains to beat Southern Methodist, 27-13, before a crowd of 34,000.

Still rattled by the 33-7 walloping they took from Texas A&M last week, the Mustangs were unable to get an effective attack under way.

Quarterback Don Christian went 30 yards for the first Arkansas score. Halfback Ronnie Underwood scored on a 43-yard run, Donnie Stone tallied on another 43-yard run, and James Monroe scored from four yards out after setting up the touchdown with a 26-yard sneak up the middle.

Yale Routs Princeton

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Once-beaten Yale, a sputtering but successfull football machine this season, rose to its greatest heights Saturday, unfolding a striking display of running and passing power to knock Princeton from the unbeaten ranks, 42-20, before a crowd of 67,000 in Yale bowl.

Striking for five touchdowns in the first half and adding a sixth in the third period, the Eli satisfied their most ardent admirers with a brilliantly-executed offensive game, rolling up 271 yards on the ground and 176 in the air.

It was the highest score run up against Princeton in 13 years and the second highest score by Yale in the 83-year series.

Wisconsin Ties Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP)—Underdog Wisconsin, threatening at the goal line all afternoon but suffering from butterfingers, battled Illinois to a 13-13 tie Saturday before 52,858 Memorial Stadium fans.

The Badgers made their game-tying score with about three minutes to go in the final period when quarterback Sidney Williams passed 34 yards to halfback Dan Lewis to the Illinois 9. On the next play, Williams flashed through the line for the touchdown, and John Hobbs converted.

Wildcats Nip Purdue, 14-0

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP)—Northwestern guard Al Viola recovered four of seven Purdue fumbles Saturday, all of them deep in Boilermaker territory, and the Wildcats took advantage of the breaks to chalk up a 14-0 upset victory.

Purdue never penetrated beyond Northwestern's 35, and they couldn't get there until the game's last play. In desperation, the Boilermakers called injured Len Dawson off the bench. But the star quarterback favored his bad arm and avoided contact, fumbling twice.

CHICAGO (UP)—Legislation to eliminate baseball's bonus rule and install a "premium player draft" has been submitted by the Chicago White Sox for action at the minor league meetings next month.

Idaho State Tips AF Academy, 13-7

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Idaho State's Bengals engineered two first half touchdowns then stayed off the Air Force Academy Saturday to hand the Falcons their first football defeat of the season, 13-7.

The Cadets, tied last week by Whittier (Calif.), had rolled over six other opponents, including four Rocky Mountain Conference teams.

Auburn Shocks, Socks Georgia

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UP) — Auburn quarterback Howell Tubbs shocked Georgia with a 70-yard scoring pass to end Jimmy Phillips on the first play from scrimmage Saturday and the Tigers rolled to a bruising 20-0 victory.

The traditional contest blew up into a fistic battle near the end of the final period. The game was delayed three minutes while coaches, police and players attempted to restore order. It took the National Anthem to stop the ruckus.

Swink Finally Roars, 46-0

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Christian's all-America Jim Swink ran wild in Amon Carter Stadium Saturday to score four touchdowns and smash the University of Texas, 46-0. He shattered the all-time Southwest Conference ground rushing record in doing it.

It was a brilliant form reversal for the climax racer, who, until Saturday, had shown none of his old sparkle this season. In seven previous games, he had scored only two touchdowns and two extra points for a total of 14.

Swink scored once on a lightning-like run of 72 yards the first time he got the ball. He scored again from the six-inch line, and twice on passes from Charles Curtis for 32 and 25 yards.

Navy Wins Mud Bath

BALTIMORE (AP)—Navy got the better of a game of swap with a slippery football Saturday and substitute halfback Chet Burchett slithered for three touchdowns to give the Middies a 34-7 victory over Virginia during a steady downpour at Memorial Stadium.

The game abounded in fumbles and pass intercepetions.

Both teams still passed frequently with two by Virginia backfiring into touchdowns on interceptions. Although Virginia stole three passes, it was the timely aerial work by quarterback Tom Forrestal that carried Navy to two of its scores.

Bears Speed By Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—Halfback Delbert Shofner scored on touchdown runs of 91 and 17 yards Saturday to lead the speedy Baylor Bears past Nebraska, 26-7.

Shofner, a 180-pound speedster, steered his way 91 yards behind expert blocking at the start of the fourth period after fielding a kick on his own nine. The scoring run put the Bears in front, 19-7, at that point, and Nebraska's determined but outnumbered squad never mounted another threat.

Tide Nemesis Sparks Tech to 27-0 Win

ATLANTA (UP) — Halfback Jimmy Thompson, a 148-pounder who likes to beat Alabama, tore the heart of a fighting Crimson Tide team Saturday when he turned a faulty signal into a 48-yard touchdown gallop that sparked a 27-0 Georgia Tech victory before 38,500.

Trailing 7-0, Alabama was making a fight out of it late in the third period when halfback Paul Rotenberry nearly fumbled, then pitched to Thompson.

The little Bessemer, Ala., speedster streaked 48 yards down the sidelines behind savage blocking for the score.

Thompson, who scored two touchdowns to beat Alabama in 1954 and scored on a long pass interception against the Tide last year, was not the only Tech standout Saturday, but it was his run that broke open a tight defensive struggle.

Toppy Vann, Tech's overworked second string quarterback, connected on 13 of 19 passes for 159 yards and a touchdown.

Unexpected Resignation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clay Hopper resigned Saturday as manager of the Hollywood Stars and indicated he may end his baseball career.

Hopper, who was Jackie Robinson's first manager in organized baseball, sent a telegram of resignation. President Bob Cobb of the Stars said he accepted the resignation "with reluctance."

Hopper gave no reason for his decision and club officials said the resignation was unexpected.

Huskies Sink Fumbling Tribe

PALO ALTO (UP) — Washington's Huskies, a team which had been laughed at all season for its fumbling, jammed two of them down Stanford's throat Saturday and outplayed the Indians to score a 34-13 upset victory before a stunned crowd of 21,000. In all, Stanford lost the ball five times on fumbles.

Three of Washington's tallies came on sustained drives of 66, 84 and 49 yards while two others were the result of Indian bobbles. Quarterback Al Ferguson had a five-for-five passing record good for 141 yards and one TD.

Don McCumby, a 235-pound Washington tackle, gave an indication of what was in store when he grabbed an airline bobble by halfback Gordy Young and lumbered 70 yards for the first Husky touchdown.

The Indians squared things three minutes later by marching 80 yards in eight plays with Lou Valli going over from the eight.

Washington scored twice more in the second period as halfback Dean Derby tallied from three yards out and Mike McCluskey boomed over from two yards away.

John Brodie hit six passes for 56 yards to start the second half with an 84-yard scoring drive that Doug Dick climaxed with a three-yard run, but Washington added two more TDs on Ferguson's 38-yard pass play to Luther Carr and Credell Green's three-yard plunge.

Washington's massive line, led by tackle George Strugar, guard Whitey Core and center Ben Hammond, ran Brodie ragged, yet he was able to complete 20 of 26 passes for 173 yards to become the school's all-time aerial yardage leader.

On This Corner with DICK ZEHMS

Random reporting . . .

ALL TIDIED UP. Buddy Daley, the crafty young Long Beach lefthander, must be living the perfect life in Cuba this winter. He should be devoid of regrets, unless the balmy weather has made his mind conjure up a new one or two.

When Buddy was ready to report to the Cleveland Indian spring training camp late last February, he confided to This Corner that his one regret was the fact that he had never played on a first division or championship team in six years of professional duty.

This thought alone made him anticipate the wonders of the future, for the Indians most surely would be a first-division American League finisher—providing he was still around to enjoy the rare experience.

He wasn't. Al Lopez sent him down to Indianapolis July 1. He took the demotion in style, which is characteristic of Buddy's fighting spirit. Thereupon, he went to work. He helped pitch the Little Indians to the American Association pennant with an 11-1 season and a 2.31 earned run average, best percentage and lowest ERA in the circuit.

Buddy added victories in the AA playoffs and Junior World Series, finishing 13-1. This was his finest season—two championships. Thus the regret vanished—for $1,657.10 in playoff loot. Daley collected $400.75 for his share of the pennant pot, $250.47 for the playoffs and $1,005.88 for the little series.

Now he is spending the winter pitching for Cienfuegos in the Cuban League. He has plenty of time to reminisce in tropical surroundings. He has lived the rags-to-riches story.

If I know Buddy rightly, this taste of success will only whet his appetite for more of the same . . . with the Cleveland club in 1957. A 13-1 record and 2.31 ERA should be his passport to a full season in the big leagues.

TRIBUTE. More than 100 reservations have been made by former Polyites for the dinner Monday night at Mike Dimas' Coast Inn honoring Walter W. Ball, who will bow out of the local prep physical education picture next June after 30 years of honorable service.

As boys' physical education director at Poly, Walter has guided many a youngster down the path to athletic success. He has spent 29 years on the Poly job. The old guard will be out in force to say thanks.

DIPLOMAT. Buck Shaw and the members of his Air Force Academy football team were guests of the Los Angeles Rams at the Coliseum last Sunday. Buck's old alma mater, the San Francisco 49ers, provided the opposition.

Several radio and television broadcasters invited Buck to appear on their programs at halftime. Buck begged off.

All of which once again emphasizes the greatness of the man who was so indelicately fired by the 49ers owners, Tony and Vic Morabito, a few years ago after nine seasons at the 49er helm.

ACME. Don Shinnick has been kicked around from pillar to post at UCLA in his varsity career. He always seemed to be playing behind somebody who was a shade the better.

Firm of mind, however, Don stuck it out to scale the heights of a hero in UCLA's 14-13 victory over Stanford. Don, you see, was the crasher who blocked the second Indian extra point try—the margin of victory. Of him Bruin coach Henry Sanders said the other day:

"Shinnick would have been the first man I would have picked for the West team in the Shrine game had I been the coach this year.

Fitting balm, indeed, for the trying days of the past.

THE LONG ONE. Don Larsen's perfect game in the last World Series was a longer shot than some people suspect. A figure filbert analyzed it this way:

Charley Robertson pitched the last perfect game in 1922. The two leagues play about 1,232 games annually. This figure, multiplied by the intervening 34 years, amounts to 41,888 games. Toss in 34 World Series, and the figures soar to 42,000.

Therefore, the odds against a perfecto are at least 42,000-1.

FINALE. The Lynn Waldorf era at California should come to an end next Saturday when Stanford and the Golden Bears play their "big game."

Reports persist that Pappy is finished at Berkley—something of his own doing. Look for the genial cigar-smoker to wind up in an athletic director's chair far from these Pacific shores.

CUTE TRICK AND CUTE CHIC

Cute Trick, one of the top horses on the grounds, is led by lovely Rosemarie Bush, in preparation for 23-day all-quarter horse meeting beginning Tuesday at Los Alamitos Race Course. Cute Trick won the Pomona Fututrity at L. A. County Fair.

SEASON STARTS TUESDAY

Card Top Stake at Los Alamitos

Sensational Go Man Go, quarter horse racing's answer to jet propulsion, Saturday headed a field of 11 starters named through the entry box for Tuesday's opening day feature at Los Alamitos Race Course, the $5,000 Clabbertown G. Stakes.

The Clabbertown G., a 350-yard test for 3-year-olds and up, also drew the overnight entry of two other outstanding 3-year-olds, in Bob's Folly and Sure Now.

Bob's Folly is the world record holder for 440 yards, having established a new mark of 21.9 seconds for the distance in his last start, while Sure Now is the colt who handed Go Man Go the only defeat of his juvenile year.

* * * *

THE OTHERS named for the Clabbertown G. were Red Josette, Dividend, Vanetta Dee, Diamond Mae, Bobbie Leo, Pokey Vandy, Rocket Bar and Clabber Juan. The latter will start only in the event one of the others is scratched.

* * * *

Go Man Go, Bob's Folly and Sure Now will carry 120 pounds each under the allowance conditions of the race, Clabber Juan 116 and the others 122.

* * * *

FULL FIELDS were named for all eight races on the program, the best opening day card in the eight seasons the friendly Orange County course has been in operation, but not even Racing Secretary Edward Burke anticipated that the Clabbertown G., which was designed as a tuneup for the bigger stakes later in the season, would draw the entry of almost every top quarter horse in the land.

Go Man Go's entry had been anticipated, but Sure Now and Bob's Folly were expected to duck him and go instead in Thursday's $5,000 Thanksgiving Day Stakes for 3-year-olds.

Shift Franchise?

OMAHA (AP) — Des Moines, Iowa, appeared to be in the driver's seat Saturday as American Assn. directors met to discuss a possible replacement for the debt-ridden Louisville baseball club.

Bob Kelley Says---

CHICAGO—Planing out here on Friday, there was as much conversation about the NFL draft a week from Monday as the game with the Bears in Wrigley Field. Somehow, would you believe it, someone mentioned the Knoxes.

"Ronnie Knox may go in the first round, and then again he may not," Tex Schramm said in reply to my query. "He's quite a football player, everyone knows that. But you've got three other good quarterbacks—Hornung, Brodie and Dawson—and they don't have Canadian contracts or stepfathers."

I asked Tex if the Rams would draft Ronnie, an he said: "You never know." However, Sid Gillman was not quite as cagey as he cut in to say:

"We are pretty well off at quarterback. I doubt very much if we will make any effort to land Knox. After all, I'm busy enough during the football season without having to handle a coach up in the stands, too."

Wonder who he meant by that? Sid went on to hint further, as he added: "I'm no egotist; I don't think I could handle the old man."

Patting Gillman on the shoulder blades, I told him: "I've got news for you. There isn't a coach or an owner in football who can handle Harvey . . . Paul Brown included."

Speculation among the Ram higher echelon is that Brown is the best bet to take Ronnie as a high choice, maybe even in the first round. Of course, with Cleveland's poor record at the moment, they might be among the top teams choosing in the first round. There is an outside chance either John Brodie or Len Dawson will still be available; Hornung, I think, will go as the bonus pick to either the Cardinals or Green Bay.

Should either Brodie or Dawson be up for grabs when Cleveland's turn comes, and it isn't too likely, even Brown would shy away from Harve and pick the boy from Purdue or the one from Stanford.

If they're gone, however, don't be surprised if the supreme ego of P.E.B. asserts itself, and he boldly implies he can handle Harvey by taking Ronnie as Cleveland's first choice. Should the Browns pass him up, most insiders don't think Ronnie will go before the second or third rounds.

Now, I get along splendidly with Harve myself—maybe because I am not a football coach. But, to be honest, Ronnie would be a cinch first round choice were it not for papa. Coaches around the NFL figure they are under enough pressure without asking for more.

I know for a fact that most of the owners in the league are hot for their teams to draft Ronnie—not only for his ability, but the attendant gate attraction he and Harvey would be. As I said, the coaches look at it a little differently.

And except for the case of George Preston Marshall at Washington, most of the coaches are in a position to veto the owners' wishes.

THIS COLUMN is being written late Saturday afternoon, so I can't say for sure, but I'm willing to bet one of the most nervous players on the Ram squad before the game with the Bears will be Elroy Hirsch. Not that Elroy is especially frightened by the Bears; he's that way before every game.

On the plane ride out here, I sat down next to Hirsch and the subject of pre-game jitters came up: "Kel," he said. "I'm as bad this season as I was before my first game in high school, and that's pretty close to 20 years ago.

"From the time I get up on Sunday morning till the kickoff, my stomach is tied in knots." I told Hirsch it didn't show, and he grinned:

"It DOESN'T? Well, I guess I should be an actor then. However, everything's all right when the game starts. You forget all about it and play ball. I'd much rather be belted right in the middle of the back by a 220-pound linebacker than spend those last couple of hours before a game."

I didn't want to embarrass Elroy by saying it then, but this pre-game apprehension is what has made him such a great player for so many seasons. Where others grow blase and indifferent after a couple of years in the league, Hirsch still effuses the eagerness of a high school kid. He still loves to win.

Wish we had a few more like him.

RACING ROUNDUP

Favorites Win as Sulkies End Meet

Jean Laird and Time's Square, runners-up in the American Classics, proved again Saturday they could handle 'em all but the champions, when they shared honors by winning the getaway-day features as Western Harness Racing Association closed out its 33-day fall season.

The meeting proved to be one of the best in WHRA annals for, besides drawing the greatest collection of horses and drivers in the organization's history the daily average attendance was up 1.3 per cent over last fall and the daily mutuel handle also showed an increase of 1.2 per cent over 1955.

Jean Laird, who ended Scott Frost's sensational win streak at 17 straight in winning the second leg of the Trotting Classic but bowed to Saul Camp's champion in the other two dashes, was an easy winner in the $7,500 Sunset Trot. Eddie Cobb piloted him to a length and a quarter win over Scotch Valley in 2.00 3/5.

A half-hour later Cobb came back with his crack pacer, Time's Square, to grab a tarilling nose victory in 2:01 3/5 from Dale Frost in the $10,000 Consolation Pace which was open to all American Pacing Classic starters But Dottie's Pick, winner from Time's Square in both heats.

The only mar on the day's racing was a first race spill. Most seriously injured was Joe O'Brien, the grand circuit driving king, who suffered fractures of both ankles. Driver Ed Shaw suffered a concussion and a badly cut lip.

Cobb wound up the meeting as the leading reinsman, bringing home 19 winners in 89 starts. Joe Lighthill and Clarence Hansen followed with 13 and 12 respectively. Scott Frost was named horse of the meet for the second straight year. Dottie' Pick got all the votes as the best pacing filly or mare and was voted the best pacer among both sexes.

SAN MATEO (UP) — Count Chic defeated the Argentinian horse Holandes 2nd by a head in the $15,000 Villa Handicap at Bay Meadows as the 1-5 favorite Bobby Brocato ran fourth. The latter's stablemate, Lover Boy, was third.

PLENTY OF TIME, BLOCKING FINE, BUT WILSON-TO-WALLEN PASS GOES FOR NAUGHT

The sequence camera shows (1) UCLA's Kirk Wilson fading back to his right behind bevy of blockers (2) who erase Kansas linemen. Wilson passes (3) but Charles McCue of the Jayhawks (4) manages to deflect ball from waiting hands of Bruin end Dick Wallen. Play occurred in first quarter. UCLA scored 13-0 triumph Saturday.—(All UCLA photos by Don Webster.)

'Bruins Wait, Then Strike'

By DICK ZEIMS

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—"It's the same old story. Give UCLA a fumble inside the 20, and you get beat."

Personable Chuck Mathers, coach of the Kansas Jayhawks, was doing the talking in the Kansas dressing room here Saturday after his Big Seven Conference club had suffered a 13-0 pasting at the hands of the Bruins.

"We know that UCLA doesn't treat us like it does a team in its own conference," he went on, "but they always seem to be just a little better than their opponents.

"They're not the same as Oklahoma, of course. They play a different type of game. The Bruins are opportunists. They have great poise. They simply wait for the breaks to come. Then they strike. It takes great discipline to play that way and not get erratic or excited. They execute this style better than any team I've ever seen.

* * * *

"UCLA HAS THE best inexperienced team I have seen. I wish we could get some inexperienced boys like Coach (Henry) Sanders has. We play only three seniors on each of our first two units, but I didn't see much of a parallel out there today."

The former Massilon High School, Ohio, coach, now finishing his third season with the Kansans, paid Kirk Wilson, Bruin tailback who set a new Pacific Coast Conference punting record, the supreme compliment.

"Wilson ran well in scoring territory," he said, "and I was even more disturbed by his punting. We knew he was No. 1 in the country. Still, my boys didn't play back far enough."

What about the heat? "Yes, the heat bothered us," Chuck replied. "The boys were pretty dead in the last half. They kept complaining about no energy."

The chief instrument of defeat for the Kansans was, as has been the case all season for the Bruins, the fine UCLA line.

* * * *

"THE COMPLETE defensive line of the Bruins impressed me," said Mathers. "You don't fail to make it on third and one, then fumble, on fourth and one, and expect to win against UCLA."

As usual, Sanders was humble in victory.

"We didn't play a very good first half," he began, "and then we performed creditably in the last half. I imagine we'll have to play a lot better against SC next Saturday.

"We're hurting personnel-wise. When we lose men like Penner, Griffin and Long, we don't have much depth.

"Of course, we are pleased with any win. I can't find anything really wrong out there today. However, we can't play a high-spirited game every week.

"I don't have to see the pictures to tell you about Esker Harris. He was tremendous. That Harris! I don't know how any guard can play any better. He is the deadliest pass rusher I have seen. When he goes after the passer, he's a dead bird. Jim Salsbury could do some things better than Harris, but Esker is the better man all over the field."

* * * *

THIS WAS RED'S salute to the Negro guard who has been supreme in his line play this season. Then he hailed the work of Wilson, his tailback.

"The ball seems to get new life about 40 yards out when Wilson kicks it," he said. "I think Kirk's punts are jet-propelled. You know, he doesn't kick that well in practice. Wilson had a fine game, except for his signal-calling. I'm glad he's around."

Kirk boomed one punt 81 yards from five yards back in the end zone. The Bruins also had Don Shinnick doing some punting chores because, as Sanders put it, "Don kicks the better squib."

Wilson got the game ball. Wonder who will get it next Saturday night?

WILSON SCORES BRUINS' FIRST TOUCHDOWN

Kirk Wilson, UCLA tailback, lands over goal line after one-yard plunge for Bruins' first touchdown midway in third quarter Saturday.

ond quarter following recovery of a fumble on the Kansas 34, they made good the next time they grabbed a Jayhawk bobble midway in the third period.

Left end Dick Wallen set the stage for the TD when he dove on fullback Homer Floyd's fumble on the Kansas 13 . . . and six plays later Wilson pounded over from the one for the score at 8:27. Don Duncan's kick made it 7-0.

Kansas immediately retaliated with its first real threat of the day when quarterback Walter Strauch passed 45-yards to halfback Bobby Robinson on the UCLA 32 . . . but two plays later found the Bruins threatening again on the Kansas 36.

* * * *

ON THE FIRST play after the long pass, Esker Harris spilled Strauch for a 17-yard loss on the 49 . . . and on the next play Shinnick and tackle Jim Dawson subjected Strauch, fading to pass, to a big rush that drove the Jayhawk quarterback clear back to his 36. There, when he attempted to get rid of the ball, Dawson tipped it into the air and then grabbed it for an interception.

However, the Bruins lost the ball on downs four plays later when they failed to make a first down on the 26 by less than six inches.

Twice Kansas was poised in threatening positions in the fourth quarter, but UCLA's defensive line rose to great heights to stop fourth-and-one stabs at the middle to hold for downs both times and squelch any hopes of a Jayhawk rally.

Kansas reeled off the longest sustained drive of the game at the outset of the fourth quarter, rolling from its own 18 to the UCLA 16 on a 66-yard charge highlighted by Lloyd's drives of 15 and 19-yards up the middle before being stopped less than six inches from a first down.

* * * *

AFTER THE BRUINS had kicked out to the Kansas 46, the Jayhawkers tried to sustain another drive by once again going for the yardage on a fourth-and-one situation on the UCLA 44, but Harris stopped the play cold and the Bruins took over.

Moments later, Shinnick backed the Jayhawkers into a hole on their 18 with another great kick and on the first play halfback Johnny Francisco fumbled the ball into the arms of Dave Peterson and Shinnick on the 24.

Wilson promptly racked up his second touchdown of the day with a 12-yard sweep around left end for the TD at 12:13. He also attempted the conversion, but the kick was wide.

UCLA boomed into Kansas territory twice in the opening quarter . . . rolling to the Jayhawk 33 after the kickoff before an interception broke up the advance, and then moving into position again on the invaders' 34 when Jim Matheny intercepted Strauch's aerial. However, a holding penalty crushed this opportunity as the Bruins were shoved back to the 48 and forced to kick.

Kansas finally crossed the midfield stripe for the first and only time in the first half at this point when the Jayhawks put together three straight first downs to reach the UCLA 44, before being hurled back to their own 43 when Strauch was nailed for a 13-yard loss attempting to pass.

* * * *

EARLY IN the second quarter, Francisco's fumble was picked up by tackle Bill Leeka on the Kansas 34 from where the Bruins rolled to the five. Wilson then boomed to the one-yard line, but a holding penalty on the play pushed the Bruins back to the 17 from where they finally decided to go for a field goal.

However, a bad pass from center broke up the kick. Duncan picked up the ball and attempted to run it, but was dropped on the 24 where Kansas took over.

In all, the Bruins recovered three Kansas fumbles and intercepted three passes as their defense once again outshined the offense and paved the way for the victory.

Winninger Second in Aussie Tourney

MELBOURNE (AP) — Gary Player, 21-year-old South African from Johannesburg, won Australia's biggest golf tournament by six strokes Saturday with a 72-hole total of 280.

Bo Winninger of Oklahoma City, an early leader in the $22,500 Ampol tournament, finished second. George Bayer of Grossinger, N.Y., only other American in the tournament, finished in a tie for 10th with 291.

Colorado Grinds Out 21-7 Triumph

RAMS---

Hirsch is still battling the flu bug and will be replaced at left end by the speedy Bob Boyd.

Billy Wade again gets Coach Sid Gillman's nod to guide the Rams at quarterback. Since the Rams' rushing attack ground out 276 yards against the 49ers last week, Wade will probably try to call another ball-control ground game. It may be wise, too, considering that the Bears intercepted five Rams' passes in their last meeting.

Chicago quarterback Ed Brown and Wade rank 1-2 in NFL passing, while Bears' fullback Rick Casares leads the league in rushing and is second in scoring.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

The fireworks expected over the either-sex deer season didn't develop at Thursday's meeting of the California Fish and Game Commission, but the memory lingers on. Presentation of the Department of Fish and Game report on both the coastal and inland seasons didn't ease the pains of northern and central California sportsmen.

What irked — and that's a mild world—the sportsmen were several facts:

1—Does and fawns left crippled or dead in the forest.

2—Fawns disposed of in garbage cans and rubbish dumps.

3—Hunters who were so trigger-happy they would have shot poodles had there been any within range.

The commission's president, Andy Kelly, limited testimony to the eye-witness type and there were few persons who volunteered to say anything about what they had termed "the awful slaughter."

The hearing did afford the DF&G a chance to present all the facts it had prior to the meeting, and there's a definite chance that more pressure will be exerted by sportsmen's organizations before the F&GC sets dates for the 1957 season.

* * * *

THERE'S NO DOUBT that the California deer population, particularly the female part of it, needs thinning on occasions. Other states have discovered that if this is not done, the deer multiply until they become pests.

Heretofore, California has done its thinning in controlled shoots, issuing a certain number of permits to kill does, but never fawns. It seems to this columnist that those controlled shoots still are the solution to the problem. If too many does still survive, increase the number for the next season.

It also seems to me that certain regulations should be followed wherein hunters must take care of the deer they kill and never leave them crippled or dead in the forests.

There's a certain amount of sentiment harbored by many persons about deer. I know that I for one feel that way. I am not a deer hunter and, unless faced with absolute necessity for meat, I don't intend to become one. That doesn't mean that I am against killing deer. Others can do as they please as long as they conduct themselves legally and in a sportsmanlike manner.

That sentiment of which I write aroused the emotions of certain groups so much that they held mass meetings to protest the DF&G policy of either-sex shooting. What happens next depends mostly on the sportsmen themselves.

THANKSGIVING is just days away and yet, fishermen are still catching yellowtail, bonito, bluefin tuna and even albacore. San Diego landings continue to run a few boats on the 3 a.m. schedule, making the runs to the Coronado Islands, where fresh mackerel baits are attracting big yellows. Two 33-pounders were among the bags there last week. K. B. Walker, Lawndale, caught one of those.

The marlin total at San Diego neared the 450 mark for one of the greatest seasons in history. Mrs. Nell Bowen, San Diego, boated a 232-pound marlin, and Mrs. S. Howard Minor, San Diego, caught her fifth of the season, a 146-pound fish.

If you are still looking for trout, try these spots planted late last week by the DF&G:

LOS ANGELES COUNTY — Crystal Lake, Little Rock Reservoir, East and West Forks of the San Gabriel River. RIVERSIDE—Fulmor Lake. SAN BERNARDINO — Arrowhead, Green Valley and Gregory Lakes, Middle and North Forks of Lytle Creek. VENTURA—Matilija Reservoir.

WOULD YOU KNOW what to do if you were hopelessly lost in the mountains, with no shelter, food, proper clothing? In nine cases out of 10, the victims would not know what to do.

So, it was with that thought in mind that Bradford Angier wrote "Living Off the Country" ($5. The Stackpole Co., Telegraph Press Bldg., Harrisburg, Pa.)

Even if you are never lost or stranded under such circumstances as already mentioned, you'll enjoy Angier's book.

Angier's theory is that life is free for those who want to survive; that food and water are everywhere just for the seeking. And he doesn't mean that you have to become a tramp to get them.

Angier provides adequate solutions to such problems as lighting fires under all adverse conditions, finding shelter and clothing.

The book is made more interesting with dozens of illustrations sketched by his wife.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The Compton Hunting and Fishing Club, following up its recent successful crow shoot, is planning a turkey shoot for Sunday, Dec. 2, at the Dominguez Gun Club, on Artesia Blvd. between Avalon and Central. This is one of the largest turkey shoots in California, with 100 turkeys, hams and other prizes. It is open to the public. If you wish further information, call Will E. Sprott, club president, at NE 5-5131.

Anticipating good fishing for perhaps weeks to come, Eddie McEwen, skipper of the Fisherman (Pacific Landing) will start daily 2 a.m. runs to Catalina Island Monday. On a test run last week, Eddie and four passengers found a school of barracuda, some white sea bass and plenty of kelp bass.

Mrs. Nola Hulpin, of Morrison's Fishing Lodge, Merlin, Ore., writes that steelhead fishing on the Rogue River is the hottest ever. The season ends Nov. 30. Nola says that her guests filled the ice boxes every day last week with 10- and 12-pounders. Guides expect the fishing to continue that way until bad weather stops it.

There are many vacancies for duck hunters at the Hazard-Wister and Finney-Ramer public shooting grounds in Imperial Valley. You may make reservations through the Department of Fish and Game, State Bldg., Los Angeles, or just travel to the units and take your chances on a first-come, first-served basis. Vacancies this week are for Wednesday and Thursday.

GOLF BOOM AT LOS ALAMITOS

Plan Two New Courses

By JERRY WYNN

One new nine-hole public course and the possibility of a new 18-hole private course, both in the Los Alamitos district, are in prospect for Long Beach area golfers.

The public course, situated directly west of the Los Alamitos Race Course, is already under construction. It is owned and will be operated by track president Frank Vessels.

The status of the proposed country club private course is still uncertain. However, several parties have shown extreme interest in its development and preliminary plans have been sketched. The property is located south of Los Alamitos Naval Air Station bordering on Garden Grove Blvd.

Vessels' course will be 3,100 yards long with a regulation par of 36 and will be ready for play by late summer or early fall of 1957.

According to architect Billy Bell, it will be "a pleasant course with characteristic contour. Because of the flatness of the land, it will have many devices to toughen it such as elevated tees and greens and sand traps."

Original plans were to have part of the course in the track infield but that would have necessitated halting golf during race meetings. There is room available, however, for another nine holes if expansion is desired.

* * * *

ANOTHER NEW Orange County course under construction is the Fullerton Country Club owned by the Jones Bros. Corp. of Long Beach.

It is located on the 900-acre Emery Ranch north east of Buena Park and will measure 6,450 yards from the middle tees and from 6,900 to 7,000 yards from championship ones. Seeding is under way and the course should be ready for play by the middle of next summer.

Two syndicates are reported interested in developing the private course at Los Alamitos. Bell and George Lake, head pro at Recreation Park, made a preliminary survey of the land at the request of one of the potential developers.

According to Bell, there is ample room for two 18-hole courses. He said that the land, owned by the Bixby family, has been specifically set aside for the construction of a course.

Millikan vs. Brawley in Grid Playoff

Long Beach's newest school, Millikan High, travels to Brawley Friday night in a small schools football playoff game to headline this week's dwindling local athletic schedule.

Millikan, coached by Gordon Dooley, played a freelance schedule and was unbeaten and untied. Brawley is kingpin of the Imperial Valley League.

Long Beach City College and L.B. State basketball teams open their schedules against all-star alumni teams Tuesday night.

MONDAY

JV Football—Jordan at Poly, Wilson at Excelsior, 3 p.m.

TUESDAY

Turkey Day Sail at Alamitos Today

By BOB RUSKAUFF

At least 35 individual sailing races among some 15 fleets—that will be the picture on bay and ocean today as Alamitos Bay Yacht Club presents its traditional Turkey Day series.

At 11 a.m., says Race Chairman Bob Hoffman, some 10 bay classes will launch the first of three races each. Larger classes, starting over a line one-half mile to seaward and westward of the jetty entrance, will sail one race per each class, the first getting away at 12:30.

Custom decrees the winners get edible awards — turkey, chicken, fruit cake—to help the Thursday Thanksgiving board a mite.

. . . Next weekend will witness a triple array of events:

Cabrillo Beach and Santa Monica YCs will jointly sponsor the annual all-class Thanksgiving series, Saturday and Sunday. Coronado YC hosts the 10th annual Lightning series.

Bidding to prove top feature, Newport Harbor YC will on both days present the traditional Fall Gold Cup series, an invitational fixture for 14 one-design classes.

ANNUAL BIG closing party of the Long Beach Yacht Club, plus its election to choose flag officers and members of the board of directors for 1957, will be conducted Tuesday evening at Vivian Laird's.

Commodore Stanley Wiedrick, who has guided LBYC through a highly successful year, is expected to greet more than 125 member Corinthians and their ladies.

* * * *

TWO WESTERNERS (Dr. Wayne Ingalls, Bell, chosen vice president and Jack Colcock, Seattle, secretary) are on the list of flag officers and council of the American Power Boat Assn. for 1957. The 47th APBA annual conclave closes today in Chicago.

Three veteran inboard hydroplane drivers will head Southern California Speedboat Club, the "club of champions;" for 1957—Keith Black of Lynwood as commodore, succeeding Kent Hitchcock, Newport; Kenny Sprow, Huntington Park, vice cmdr.; Kenny Harman, Rosemead, rear cmdr.

L.A. Man Held

WASHINGTON (UP) — Police Saturday arrested a dapper, well-groomed confidence man after he had cashed 14 bad checks on an 11-hour "shopping spree." The police identified him as Robert Weiss of Los Angeles.

Elva Horning Gets Lead in Next Play

Even a serious drama has its lighter moments and Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy," the forthcoming production of the Lakewood Players, is no exception. This controversial drama of life in a boys' school changes pace with the entrance of Lily Sears, the giddy factulty wife. Director Al Rashkow of the Players has obtained Elva Horning for the role.

Miss Horning, who comes fresh from a local appearance in "State of the Union," is a Downey resident and no stranger to local theaters.

Elva, who claims Anaheim as her home town, studied at Fullerton Junior College and USC.

Elva's Lily Sears is one of the only two feminine roles in this play. The other is that of Laura Reynolds. Charlotte Watson of Long Beach has this role.

The play begins Nov. 23 at McArthur Auditorium, Centralia and Woodruff Ave. in Lakewood.

Radford to Lead Inauguration Parade

WASHINGTON (AP)—The inaugural parade Jan. 21 will run just two hours and will be led by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was disclosed Saturday.

LANDS ROLE

Jean Ruth, a Thespian leading a double professional life, left here Sunday to play a role in the San Francisco production of "Desk Set." She rehearsed for the play while holding down the job of directing "Picnic" which is now playing at The Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave. Miss Ruth will appear with Shirley Booth in "Desk Set" which opens next month in San Francisco.

SAD SHEREE

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Sheree North—the girl who was picked to fill Marilyn Monroe's sweaters—is not the happiest girl in Hollywood.

"I thought at first to get that check every week would be great, but really, it's not that great," Sheree told me in a remarkable moment of candor when she visited New York recently.

"I usually get put in a picture when somebody else doesn't want to do it," the ash-blond Sheree added as she looked across a table at me at a television rehearsal.

SHEREE NORTH

"Oh, come on, you're doing very well!" I protested — for I could remember only three years ago when she came to Broadway a complete unknown in a show called "Hazel Flagg."

"I don't mean they haven't been wonderful . . . but I'd like to work more . . . I suppose everybody would," she shrugged.

"But I don't want to be a big dramatic actress.

"I mean those movies where they're always having babies in the rain — or stabbing their grandmother. Very Studio One. Well, I leave that to the better actresses.

"And I don't fit into 'South Pacific' or 'The King and I'—I guess I'm at the awkward age," Sheree said with a sad little smile.

"You know I was signed at the time they weren't sure Marilyn Monroe was coming back," she reminded me.

"My feelings were and still are that nobody's going to replace Marilyn Monroe — especially not me. And now they've got another voluptuous blonde, Jayne Mansfield.

"But you're blonde and also voluptuous," I mentioned.

Sheree, her hair tousled and wearing some unglamorous rehearsal togs at the Perry Como headquarters, said, "No, I'm going to leave that to the fat people."

"Fat people?" I said. "You mean Marilyn and Jayne aren't voluptuous . . . they're just fat?"

"That's what my doctor says," smiled Sheree. "He says all that's just a lot of fatty tissue."

So she has done three films since she went to Hollywood three years ago, she's got married, and she's changed her hair to black—and back to blonde.

"Why did you change it to black?" I asked Sheree whose platinum blondness was her trade mark on B'way before Hollywood.

"I just wanted to see what it would look like," Sheree said, "in its real color."

THE WEEK-END WINDUP—"Don't Print That!" A famous Hollywood film-maker pays a NY book publishing company editor $25,000-a-year to help him get a look at good book ahead of rival studios. It's legal and ethical, too; sort of "enterprisingly sneaky."

On learning that some nude pix of her had been cut from "God Created Woman," French actress Brigitte Bardot groaned, "What a pity. And I was so beautiful!" . . .

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Two Boston women, sightseeing in California, thought it was hotter there than in Boston; then one said: "You have to remember, too, that out here we are 3,000 miles from the ocean."

When a play ends happily, it may only be that you're happy it ended. . . That's earl, brother. (Copyright 1956, The Hall Syndicate, Inc.)

New City for Florida?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Gov. Leroy Collins says one of the nation's biggest manufacturing firms is planning to build an entire city in Florida which would have a factory partly manned by the company's semi-retired workers. The governor didn't name the company.

60 Bands Will March in Review

HOST BAND READY TO MARCH

Massed behind their drum major, senior Terry Leroux, bandsmen of Wilson High School are ready to march in the huge All-Western Band Review here next Saturday. As the host band representing Long Beach, Wilson's corps of musicians will not be eligible to compete for prizes.—(Staff photo.)

Batons Toss Glitter Into Huge Parade

By BOB HOUSER

The flashing glitter of 520 batons—twirling, tossed and cadence-keeping — is the fancy dressing on Long Beach's All-Western Band Review Saturday.

But the gaudy sticks represent only a fraction of the worth of equipment which will be on parade along Ocean Blvd. at this 16th annual event starting at noon.

Anthony F. Gill, executive director of the review, estimates the batons flourished by teenagers from 60 competing high school bands are worth about $7,500. But adding to this the worth of instruments, uniforms and equipment for the 5,500 marchers, the total "money walking down the street" is $2,013,400.

Gill stressed, however, that it's the enthusiasm of the high school directors and musicians and the keen competition for honors which makes this city-sponsored review "the world's largest musical parade."

* * * *

THE MAYOR'S TROPHY is the sweepstakes award, top prize for a band and may be won by any school, regardless of which of the six size classes it competes in.

Col. Ralph Selby is chief judge of a staff from the All American Judges Assn. Judges will watch the review from their stand at Elm Ave. on Ocean Blvd. They will score school bands on the basis of showmanship, color, uniform, equipment, musicianship, interpretation, precision, files, ranks, among other items.

Majorettes will be judged while marching on dexterity, grace, posture, strutting and personality. Military drum majors will be judged on leadership, control of group and precision.

Local host band for the review is the 70-member Woodrow Wilson High School Band directed by Nicolas Furjanick. Honor guest band is the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Band directed by Robert M. Fleury. It will be the lead-off band.

High school bands which will be in the competition for the first time are Hanford, West Covina, McFarland and Capuchino High School of San Bruno.

* * * *

MISS WELCOME to Long Beach, Sybil Smith, will be a parade attraction. Mayor George M. Vermillion will ride in the official city car and will make the awards at the Municipal Auditorium awards program and dance which starts at 7 p.m.

The awards program will include a concert by the Long Beach Municipal Band directed by Charles Payne; baton artistry by Bob Roberts, of Los Angeles, a national baton champion and director of baton instruction at Pepperdine College, and the Fred C. Nelles School for Boys Wrigley Drill Team in precision drills under direction of Frank O'Connell.

Dance music will be provided through the courtesy of AFL Musician's Local 353, through the Musicians' Performance Trust Fund.

Awards will be announced at about 8:45 p.m., Nov. 24, and will be broadcast over station KFOX, Long Beach.

The band which wins the Mayor's Trophy will be invited to take part in the half-time show at the Los Angeles Rams-Baltimore Colts professional football game Dec. 9, in Los Angeles Coliseum.

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

Churches Set Thanksgiving Union Rites

Union Thanksgiving Services will be sponsored by the Long Beach Council of Churches in seven different areas of the city.

Services in the Los Altos-Lakewood area will be held Thursday at 9:30 a. m. in the Woodruff Community Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Lakewood Village Community Church.

North Long Beach services will be at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Community Presbyterian Church. In Wrigley Heights, the Westminster Community Church will join in with the First Church of the Brethren Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

* * * *

THE WESTSIDE Church of Christ will hold services Thursday at 10 a. m. for the west side of the city.

Churches in the northeast section of the city will unite in the Burns Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Services in the Grace Methodist Church will be at 9:30 a. m. Thursday for the East Long Beach area.

* * * *

THE ATLANTIC AVE. area will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Nazarene Church. Union services will be held for the downtown area Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

4 Destroyers Due at 10 a.m.

Four ships of Destroyer Division 231 are scheduled to tie up at the Net Pier of the Long Beach Naval Station today at 10 a.m. after six months in the Western Pacific.

They are the USS Picking, USS Potter, USS Preston and USS Fechtler.

Two other Navy ships will hold open house today. The attack transport USS Talladega will welcome visitors from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the foot of Pico St. The submarine USS Sawfish will be open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Navy Base.

Women have been advised by Sawfish officers to wear slacks. No cameras will be allowed.

Adm. Phillips Takes Command of Destroyer Flotilla 3 Monday

Rear Adm. Richard H. Phillips, decorated veteran of naval actions in World War II and the Korean conflict, is scheduled to arrive here today from Washington to take command of Destroyer Flotilla 3.

Formal change - of - command ceremonies will be held Monday aboard the admiral's flag ship, the Long Beach-based destroyer tender, USS Bryce Canyon.

* * * *

ADM. PHILLIPS will have administrative command of all Long Beach - based destroyers while they are operating from their home port and, in certain instances, in other West Coast areas.

Adm. Phillips reports to his command from duty in the Defense Department, where he was secretary to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

* * * *

THE PREVIOUS commander of Destroyer Flotilla 3 was Rear Adm. Charles K. Bergin, who was ordered to new duty last month.

Temporarily in command of the flotilla since then has been Capt. L. D. McGregor, whose regular duty is commanding Destroyer Division 9.

* * * *

ADM. PHILLIPS won the Navy Cross while commanding a destroyer division in an attack against the Japanese in the Battle of Surigao Straits in 1944 and was awarded the Bronze Star for action in the invasions of New Britain and the Mariana Islands in World War II. He was awarded the Legion of Merit while commanding the cruiser USS Rochester during the Korean conflict.

Public Aid Asked on Chest Goal

Public cooperation in helping the 160 United Neighbors Community Chest agency board members put the goal "over the top" was asked Saturday by L. H. Brewer, campaign chairman.

"Agency board members anxious to have a successful campaign and finish it before Thanksgiving are going to make calls during the next three days on those who have not contributed," Brewer explained.

* * * *

AS THE WEEK starts today, $150,000 remains to be raised of the $925,000 goal requested by the Chest budget committee.

Checks may be mailed directly to the Chest at 1213 Cedar Ave., Brewer said.

Special recognition has been given to Orville Wostenberg, chairman of the Dutch Village business soliciation, for reaching 116 per cent of the quota during the past week.

Former Postmaster H. K. Goodwin Dies

Howard K. Goodwin, postmaster of the Long Beach office for 18 years before his retirement in 1953, died Saturday morning at Seaside Hospital.

The former postmaster, who was 65, had been in the hospital a week.

* * * *

GOODWIN'S term of office saw the organization grow from a four-branch office with 254 employes in 1935 to a 14-branch system employing more than 900 persons in 1952.

Postal receipts during that period jumped from $581,000 to more than $3,400,000.

* * * *

HE WAS BORN in Antigo, Wis. He and his father operated a lumber business in Washington before coming to Long Beach in 1930.

He was a veteran of World War I, having served three years overseas with the Canadian forces.

He operated a furniture store on American Ave. for several years before he was appointed postmaster.

Lectures on Africa Scheduled by College

Dr. Giles T. Brown will be presented by the City College General Adult Division in a new public lecture series on "Africa —the Emerging Giant" beginning at 7 p.m. Monday in Room 202 of Poly High School.

Topic of the opening lecture will be "People and Policies in Congoland." Three additional lectures will cover Tanganyika, Kenya, Zanzibar, Uganda and the Union of South Africa. All will be illustrated by color slides.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the social science division at Orange Coast College, made a 30,000-mile trip to Africa last summer and interviewed many government leaders on such questions as the Mau Mau rebellion in Kenya and the tensions brought on by segregation policies in South Africa. He also gained audience with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiaopia.

Additional public lectures and forums scheduled for the week:

TUESDAY

Guide to Nutrition—Dr. Gladys Stevenson, "Feeding the Entire Family From One Menu," 7:30 p.m., Franklin Junior High School auditorium.

WEDNESDAY

Health for Senior Citizens—Dr. George Ainlay, "The Modern Answer to Arthritis, Neuritis and Rheumatism," 2 p.m., Dewey auditorium.

Investments — Jess Grundy, "When to Buy and Sell," 7:30 p.m., Room 418, Wilson Adult Center, Park Ave. near 7th St.

Toy and Equipment Workshop —"Puppets for Children," 7:30 p.m., Child Development Center, Lakewood campus (Clark Ave. between Carson St. and Harvey Way).

L.B. Heart Assn. Asks Volunteer Fund Solicitors

Volunteers to solicit their neighborhoods are being sought by the Long Beach Heart Assn.

"More than 1,000 residents of the Long Beach area already have signed up to serve as 1957 Heart Fund volunteers on the evening of Heart Monday, Feb. 25, between 4 and 8 p.m.," reported Mrs. Gerie Searcy, coordinator for the door-to-door appeal.

"However, we must have a total of 4,200 to contact every home in the area," she added.

Prospective volunteers are asked to contact Heart Fund headquarters at 921 Pacific Ave.

Hospital Has Fire

An electrical short circuit caused a minor fire in the therapy room at Seaside Hospital Saturday afternoon. City firemen extinguished the blaze, which caused minor smoke damage to the walls of the room.

Security Dealers Elect H. T. Booth

Howard T. Booth has been elected president of the Long Beach Security Dealers Assn., officials reported Saturday. Booth is associated with the firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Other new officers include Keith Davis, E. F. Hutton and Co., vice president; Mottel Peak, Dean Witter and Co., secretary-treasurer, and directors Samuel Isenberg, Floyd Mason, Wilbur Wood and Bill Schoof.

Bandsman Held as Drunk Driver

WEST LOS ANGELES (U.P.)—Rocks Rockwell, 33, singer and trumpet player with Lawrence Welk's band, was arrested on a misdemeanor drunk driving charge Saturday on Sepulveda Blvd.

Officers Dave Oswat and R. E. Stephens said Rockwell was driving very slowly and erratically.

Junior Chamber Reveals Wings Over Nation Plan

Plans for the 18th annual Wings Over the Nation, three-day aviation tribute event, were disclosed Saturday by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The aviation fete is scheduled for Dec. 7-9. It is staged annually by Jaycees to focus public attention on the importance of the aviation industry to the City of Long Beach.

* * * *

INCLUDED IN the 1956 Wings Over the Nation presentation will be displays of commercial and military aircraft, exhibits of aviational equipment and hosting of stewardesses from national and foreign airline companies. Don Granger is chairman of the project.

Participants will include Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach Air Force Base, commercial carriers, and the aviation department of the City of Long Beach.

Leadership Said Scouts' Challenge

"The number one challenge of the Boy Scout movement is to secure and hold top quality volunteer and professional leadership," the national president of the Boy Scouts of America told more than 400 leaders of Region 12, BSA, Saturday night.

Kenneth K. Bechtel of San Francisco, speaking at the closing session of the two-day meeting in the Wilton Hotel, explained that the challenge comes because the scout movement is growing much faster than the population, particularly in the Southwest.

Three regional leaders received the Silver Antelope award, highest honor bestowed scouters in the region. They are: J. Leo Flynn of San Fernando Valley Council; Dr. William J. Matousek, Verdugo Hills Council, Glendale, and Gerald C. Thomas, San Diego County Council.

Milo Bekins of Beverly Hills was installed regional chairman to succeed George Harding of Palo Alto.

Drunk Suspect Battles Police

A 202-pound suspect gave two Long Beach officers "a bad time" early Saturday when they attempted to arrest him as he chased a woman across the street in the 1300 block of Lewis Ave.

The suspect, Alfred Tennyson Lee, 24, of 1425 California Ave., assertedly fought with Insps. W. R. Decker and Frank A. Shaw, but they finally subdued him. Decker suffered a bruised elbow and Shaw suffered a sprained hand and wrist.

Lee was booked in City Jail on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

'Louisiana Story' Film Scheduled

The movie, "Louisiana Story," Robert Flaherty's story of a young Cajun boy, will be shown at the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., Friday at 7:30 and 9 p.m. The public is invited.

The program is one of a series on "Film, a Universal Art," being presented by the Public Library, photographed by Richard Leacock with music by Virgil Thomson.

Library Adds McDonnell Water Colors

Latest additions to the framed picture collection in the Long Beach Public Library are two water colors by the late Angela MacDonnell, graduate of the Chicago Art Institute and formerly of Galveston and New Orleans. They were presented by a friend of the artist.

Miss MacDonnell did the water colors in Spain in the thirties. One depicts a street in Fuenterrabia, an old Basque town. The second is of the coast line of Sitges along the Mediterranean. Both pictures are bright with the sunshine of Spain and in the clear vivid colors characteristic of the medium.

The pictures will be on display in the Art Department of the main library through December. Following that, they may be borrowed singly or as a pair for a two-month loan on a regular library card.

New Records AT CITY LIBRARY

Rare vocal treats are offered by the Long Beach Public Library, in the new record listing of unusual LPs. For epicurean diets try these samplings:

Bach, "Cantata No. 211' (Coffee Cantata); "Elizabethan and Jacobean Music" (Alfred Deller counter-tenor, with lute, harpsichord and viols); Handel, "Semele" (soloists with St. Anthony Singers); Kodaly, "Te Deum"; Orff, "Trionfo di Afrodite" and Weill, "Der Jasager" (opera based on an ancient Japanese Noh Play).

French Celebrate 200th Birthday of Mayonnaise

PARIS (AP) — Brass bands blared patriotic tunes and dignified chefs paraded near the Porte de Versailles Saturday.

The chefs were out to parade their sauces and win prizes.

France was celebrating the 200th anniversary of mayonnaise. The sauce was invented by the cook of the Duke de Richelieu, who commanded the French army at the siege of Port Mahon in 1756.

Red Chinese Ratify Agreement on Tibet

HONG KONG (AP)—The standing committee of Red China's National People's Congress has ratified an agreement with Nepal confirming Chinese control of Tibet. The agreement particularly affects movement of traders between Nepal and Tibet and their exchange of ambassadors and consuls.

LUNCHEON AND SERVICE CLUBS

Clubmen Will Mark Day of Thanksgiving

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Bachman, minister of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, will bring the annual Thanksgiving message to Kiwanis Club of Long Beach Tuesday noon in the Lafayette Hotel.

The Rev. Dr. Bachman was graduated from Kansas State Teachers College, Pittsburg, in 1937 and from McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, in 1940. He has served pastorates in Missouri, Minnesota and North Dakota. During World War II he was a Navy chaplain.

Weckford Morgan will be chairman of the day, and President Stedman C. Gould will preside.

The Rev. Milton Gabrielson, minister of Bay Shore Congregational Church, will talk on "Religion vs. Morality" at a Thanksgiving program of Long Beach Exchange Club Wednesday noon in the Lafayette Hotel. Charles Branningham will be chairman, and President Orland L. Ford will preside.

Another Thanksgiving program will be that of Long Beach Shrine Club and Long Beach Masonic Club, meeting jointly Tuesday noon in the Wilton Hotel. The Rev. Dr. Raymond I. Lindquist, minister of First Presbyterian Church of Hollywood, will talk on "How to Live at Your Best." Rolla Alford will sing.

DOWNTOWN 20-30 CLUB — Wednesday 7:30 p. m., Coast Inn. Joel Dionne, chairman; Harold Hunsaker, presiding. Speaker: Bob Hoffmaster, assistant harbor engineer.

UPTOWN OPTIMIST CLUB — Monday noon, Lakewood Country Club. Harvey Tuttle, chairman; Howard Rogers presiding. Film, "Flight to Germany," from TWA.

LONG BEACH ROTARY CLUB—Wednesday noon, Lafayette Hotel. Raymond H. Green, chairman; Vaile G. Young, presiding. Speaker: Rilea W. Doe, vice president of Safeway Stores, Inc., Oakland.

CD Lessons Urged

WASHINGTON (UP) — The U.S. Office of Education urged the nation's schools Saturday to give their students lessons in civil defense and set up standby emergency programs.

FACE AND VASE

Pretty Jan Harrison holds an ancient Chinese vase which is one of the rarities to be displayed Nov. 29-Dec. 2 in Long Beach Antique Show in Municipal Auditorium. Show hours are 1 to 11 p. m. daily.

Corn Pest Worse Than Borer Found

WASHINGTON (UP)—A parasite more destructive than the European corn borer has been discovered in a few corn fields of the Carolinas. The pest is so new to this country that agriculture department scientists have not yet worked out control measures.

The common name of the pest is "witchweed." Botanists call it "Striga Lutea," or "Striga Asiatica."

$5 Million Antiques to Be in Show

Nearly five million dollars worth of rare and historical antiques will be shown by 75 exhibitors at Long Beach Antique Show in Municipal Auditorium Nov. 29 through Dec. 2.

Hy Ginsberg, general manager for the show, said growing shortages of old English, French, Italian and Oriental antique furnishings have heightened interest in the show.

A record turnout is expected, he said.

* * * *

SHORTAGES RESULT from current restrictions on trade with China and the fact that American tourists have bought up most of the available valuable items from European estates and castles in recent years, Ginsberg explained.

Show hours for the four days will be from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Exhibitors are from all parts of the West, Ginsberg said.

Chief Russ Engineer Drowns in India

BOMBAY (AP)—The chief Soviet engineer working on India's Bhilai steel plant drowned Saturday night.

The engineer, N. G. Krantenko, drowned on a duck hunting trip at Maloda, about four miles from Bhilai. He came to India in May, 1954 to help set up the Russian-assisted Bhilai project.

Roster of Ballet Books Displays Broad Variety

With the growing interest in ballet, there is a steady demand at Long Beach Public Library for books on the subject, according to Leila H. Seward, head of the art, philosophy and music department.

For the young student interested in fundamentals there are such books as Kay Ambrose's "Ballet Student's Primer," Nancy Draper's "Ballet for Beginners," Felicity Gray's "Ballet for Beginners," and W. W. English's "Basic Ballet."

Biographies include "Ballet Biographies," by Gladys Davidson; "Dance to the Piper," by Agnes DeMille; "Pavlova," by Arthur Franks, and the true story of two ballet dancers who escaped from occupied Europe, called "Leap Through the Curtain," by George Mikes.

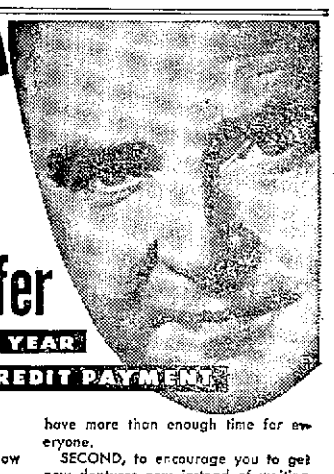

Inviting to seasoned balletomanes are, "S. Hurok Presents the World of Ballet," Maurice Seymour's "Ballet Portraits," and "Theatre Street," by Tamara Karsavina.

For ballet-lovers planning to attend performances who may wish to familiarize themselves with the story of the ballets, the library has books such as "Ballet Carnival," by Margaret Crosland; "Victor Book of Ballets and Ballet Music," by Robert Lawrence; "Twentieth Century Ballet," by Arthur Franks; and "Ballet of Today," by Cyril W. Beaumont.

Gets News Award

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Hugh B. Terry, president and general manager of stations KLZ and KLZ-TV, Denver, Colo., Saturday night was presented with the first annual Paul White memorial award by the Radio-Television News Directors Assn.

DR. F.E. CAMPBELL DENTIST

ANNUAL YEAR-END denture offer

WAIT UNTIL NEXT YEAR TO MAKE FIRST CREDIT PAYMENT

HERE'S WHY:

It's better to get new dentures now for two reasons.

FIRST, we are less busy during the holiday season than any other time of the year. Although we try to spend as much time as is needed on any case during the whole year, now we have more than enough time for everyone.

SECOND, to encourage you to get new dentures now instead of waiting until next year, we are extra liberal on credit. Save your cash for holiday fun and expenses. If you need it you may have two full years to pay.

Tele-Vues by TERRY VERNON

This is a "loaded" day for viewers with a lot of good shows from which to select so let's start out with a rundown of the changes taking place on (5) then pick up the loose ends later on.

"The 1956 Olympic Games" debuts on (5) at 5 p.m., in COLOR, showing films flown in from Australia and the Games. Hereafter black and white films will be shown each day at 6:45 p.m. with a repeat later on at night. Opener shows the lighting of the Olympic torch in Greece on Nov. 3 and the beginning of its journey.

Dick Sinclair brings his "Polka Parade" to (5) at 6:30 p.m. for a full-hour. This show was highly rated on (13) and the personal appearances of the troupe brought out huge crowds. Good musical show with a fine emcee. . . . Larry Finley opens up his "Strictly Informal" at 9:30 p.m. with 30-minutes of music-interviews-etc. Sarah Vaughn is the first guest and Larry has a contest for home viewers.

Then there are such items as "See It Now" on (2), "LaBoheme" in color on (4) and Bob Hope on (4) at 9 p.m.

DAYTIME DATA

Sophocles' classical tragedy "Antigone" starring Jacqueline Brooks and Robert Geodier is seen on "Look Up and Live" (2) at 8:30 a.m. . . . "Let's Take A Trip" goes below the Hudson River to see how the third tunnel of the new turnpike is coming along on (2) at 9 a.m. . . . Gil Stratton takes viewers on a tour of the press box over (2) at 10:45 a.m. and at 11 the Rams-Bears game comes from Chicago. . . . Ruth Hussey and Jeffrey Lynn co-star in a Family Theatre Thanksgiving film on (4) at 11:30 a.m. It is the story of the blind beggar, Bartimeus, whose sight is restored by Jesus. . . . NBC-TV's "Opera Theatre" opens its season on (4) at 2 p.m. for a two-hour colorcast of "La-Boheme" with Dorothy Coulter, Jan McArt, John Alexander and Richard Torigi singing the leading roles. . . . Carolos Arruza, one of the greatest matadors in history, has written his autobiography and it is discussed on "Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 3:30 p.m. . . . Martha Raye tries out her newly designed personality when she headlines Ray Bolger's "Washington Square" on (4) at 4 p.m.

4:30 P.M.

The atomic-age has brought many changes to the armed forces of our nation and Edward R. Murrow explores the "Revolution In the Navy" as an hour-long "See It Now" on (2). You'll dive in the atom-powered sub Nautilus as a camera, mounted on the conning tower, sees the water come up and over. You will be aboard Navy ships that launch guided missiles and jet planes, all types of Navy craft and armament will be explored, tested and discussed. This should be extremely interesting to all Americans.

"Medical Horizons" (4) makes its first visit to the West and will stop at the California Medical Center in San Francisco for a "live" program featuring the research and medical horizon for the Adrenals.

5 P.M.

Lomita's Narbonne High School and Wilmington's Banning get the star treatment with students from the schools appearing on "Spotlight on Youth" over (11). Alex Cooper is host.

5:30 P.M.

Ricky Vera is featured as a Mexican youth who discovers the guidance he needs in the person of a priest, played by Harry Bartell, in the "Telephone Time" story by John Nesbitt on (2).

COLOR—"Long John Silver" (5) has trouble with polluted drinking water.

6 P.M.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and Walter Cronkite co-narrate a humorous backward look at aviation in its early stages of development during "Airpower" on (2).

Russia's Nikolai Khokhlov, an intelligence officer for 13 years before his escape to America, will "Meet the Press" on (4).

6:30 P.M.

When local streams dry up, "Lassie," the Miller family and friends work with the Fish and Game Commission to move fish to the Miller lake but crooks also have ideas. Lassie solves the whole problem with dynamite.

7 P.M.

Tragedy strikes the "Jack Benny" home when his ancient Maxwell is stolen during his outing on (2).

An Indian sergeant in the "77th Bengal Lancers" (4) must choose between the honor of the regiment and loyalty to his rebel father in a tense tale.

"You Asked For It" visits a reindeer farm on (7) in a trip to Oregon.

7:30 P.M.

William Bendix takes a seat on the panel of "What's My Line" (2).

A retired circus performer saves his employer's 12-year-old daughter from a killer horse and regains respect and admiration during "Circus Boy" (4).

8 P.M.

"Ed Sullivan Show" (2) has scenes from Elvis Presley's new movie "Love Me Tender," and on-stage Ed will have Fats Domino, Guy Mitchell, Don Rondo, Ben Blue, Mitzi Green, Lou Nelson, Elsa and Waldo and comedians Conn and Mann.

Olsen and Johnson drop in on "The Steve Allen Show" (4) along with Gene Nelson, Erin O'Brien (see Southland Magazine), Duke Ellington, Betty Walker George Hamilton IV and a couple of female boxers.

8:30 P.M.

The question of an immigrant quota for California is discussed during "The Dan Lundberg Show" on (13).

9 P.M.

Bob Hope's "Chevy Show" (4) offers Joan Davis, Julie London, Dinah Shore, Perry Como, John Cameron Swayze and some "special guests" in a hour of mirth and melody.

Another in the recent repeat plays featuring the late James Dean is seen on "G.E. Theatre" over (2). He portrays a youth of 19 who tells a foolish lie to his first love, Natalie Wood. Commentator is Eddie Albert.

"Omnibus" on (7) for 90 minutes, stars Siobhan McKenna in scenes from great Irish plays.

9:30 P.M.

Two genteel, birdlike spinsters discuss the delicate problem of getting rid of a body during "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on (2). Each also has laid some tender plans to kill the other. Nice girls!

Civil Service Class

Starts on Nov. 19
First Session Free

For the first time in this area, a thorough Civil Service and Job Improvement Course will be offered in Evening Classes at the Monroe Institute.

The first session is free and everyone interested in qualifying for Civil Service Employment is invited to attend on Mon., Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. Thereafter the class will meet on Mon. evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for eight weeks.

This will not be just another home-study type of course where students are given a book and told to go home and study. In addition to complete text material furnished with the course, four highly experienced instructors will cover the majority of the subjects and questions most often asked on Civil Service Examinations. A few of the subjects in the course are: Filing, Arithmetic, Vocabulary, Reasoning and Judgment, Address Checking, Spelling, Grammar and Word Usage, Aptitude and Trade Tests, Cube and Figure Turning and I.Q. Tests.

The purpose of the course is to prepare men and women to pass examinations for practically every type of position offered by City, County, State, U.S. Government or Private Employment. The training will also be extremely valuable to those already employed who wish to prepare for examinations for higher ratings or jobs with greater pay.

Everyone interested in Civil Service or Job Improvement is invited by the Monroe Institute to attend the first session Mon., Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m., WITHOUT COST OR OBLIGATION AND RECEIVE A FREE I.Q. TEST.

Home Builders Institute Elects Pardee President

George M. Pardee Jr. will become the 15th president of the Home Builders Institute, succeeding R. Reese Myers, it was announced yesterday by the HBI, trade association of Los Angeles-Orange County large-scale builders.

Elected to take office with Pardee at the January meeting of the HBI are Milton J. Brock Jr., first vice president; Ben C. Deane, second vice president; John D. Griffith, secretary, and Ray K. Cherry, treasurer. George O. Prussell will continue as executive vice president.

A member of a family which has been in the home building business in Southern California for two generations, Pardee sees a continued growth of population and an undiminished demand for new homes.

* * * *

BEHIND THE CONTINUED need for new homes, he said, is heavy in-migration, a rising rate of new family formations and the desire and need for better homes by established families.

Said Pardee, "The trade area served by the HBI ranks second nationally in home building. The wide scope of home building here is making a major contribution to the entire economy, creating employment in all industries at all levels."

The new HBI president-elect is a partner with his two brothers, Hoyt S. and J. Douglas Pardee in the Pardee Construction Co., which his late father founded in 1921. The Pardee brothers are also partners with Gifford Phillips in the Pardee-Phillips Construction Co.

'Story Book' Home Sales Are Soaring

Features that equal or surpass those found in far more expensive homes are standard qualities of the moderately priced 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes of Chapman Woods in Garden Grove.

According to a spokesman for the "Story Book" dwellings, buyers appreciate the spaciousness of the homes as well as the features and rapid sales in the development reflect this appraisal. Immediate possession is still being offered, it was noted, and families may expect to be completely settled in their new homes by the holidays.

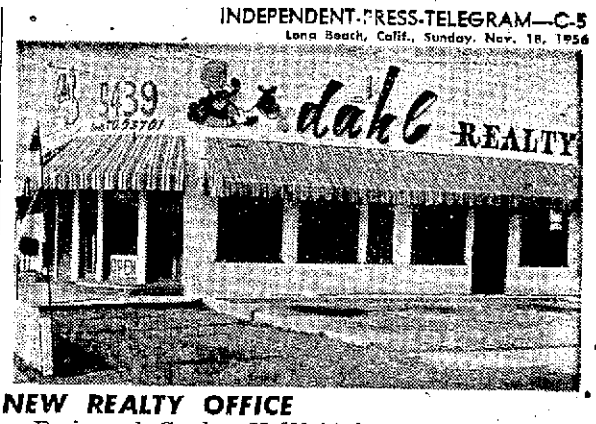

With built-in breakfast bars, food pulverizers, General Electric washer-dryer combinations, Armstrong linoleum, and birch cabinetry, kitchens are almost completely equipped. Other features winning strong approval are Pullman lavatories, colored bath fixtures, tiled stall showers, central hall planning and cathedral ceilings.

Sliding "Horizon" window walls, free-standing fireplaces, cove lighting, backyard incinerators, Royal Jet forced air heat with summer ventilation, insulation and weatherstripping, oak flooring with raised foundations, Telejack-TV outlets, washable interior walls and two-car garages are more of the many qualities that make Chapman Woods "Story Book" homes such extraordinary values.

Located within easy access of major transportation to the industrial areas of Long Beach, Santa Ana and Los Angeles, Chapman Woods homes are close to major shopping centers, fine schools, churches and community activities. Such wholesome recreation areas as Disneyland, beaches, parks, resorts and mountains are all nearby or within short driving distance.

Priced from $13,850 to $14,950. Chapman Woods homes are available for only $95 cash required. Furnished models are reached by driving out Garden Grove Blvd. (Seventh St.) to Hwy. 39, turning north to Chapman Ave. and east to 9th St.

Buckingham Square Homes Offered Vets, Non-Vets

Homes for the Royal Family—King, Queen, Jack and Jill—are being offered in West Anaheim where Buckingham Square homes stand amid the orange groves.

Spacious 3 and 4-bedroom residences priced from $15,490 are now offered to both veterans and non-vets on VA and FHA terms.

The "King" of the family will appreciate the fine workmanship of Buckingham Square homes, reports Walker and Lee, sales agents. There is genuine plaster throughout, quality hardwood floors and sliding glass doors opening onto huge patios.

A "Queen's Kitchen" has been decorated in soft colors and wall-coverings designed by color consultant Marilyn Price. There are such built-in features as O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, Westinghouse disposal and custom cabinets. The floors are comfortable, easily-cleaned rubber tile.

Young royalty gets special treatment at Buckingham Square with three all-day schools within walking distance, and fine parks, shaded quiet streets and play areas.

To reach Buckingham Square from Long Beach, take Carson St. (Lincoln Blvd.) to Brookhurst, turn right to Orange St., and left to the furnished models.

Two Midwood-Signature Developments Attracting

Plans for new schools, shopping centers and other key facilities in the fast-growing Garden Grove area have helped to focus additional attention on Midwood-Signature Homes' new twin communities of traditionally styled residences in two classic concepts and two separate price ranges.

Midwood spokesmen Saturday reported thousands of visitors at furnished model homes which typify the new properties in two locations, open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Four furnished model homes at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves. represent the "First Edition" luxury residences, which are priced from $15,800 and offer a choice of 3 bedrooms and family room, or 4 bedrooms, all with two spacious baths.

Three furnished homes on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave. typify the "Special Edition" series, featuring top quality conventional construction with raised foundations, hardwood floors and cedar shingle roofs, yet priced from only $11,700.

* * * *

SALES MANAGER James H. Waters announced that VA and FHA terms are available in both series. The larger "First Edition" homes, from $316 down, plus costs and impounds, have monthly payments from $66.42 for principal and interest, while the "Special Edition" homes, from $234 down, plus costs and impounds, require from $52.50 for principal and interest.

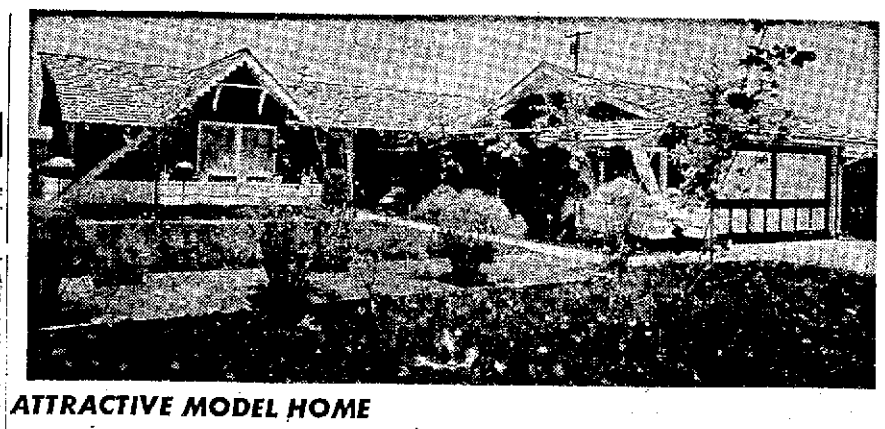

Waters announced a wide selection of traditional stylings at both locations, with some modern designs also available.

Among the many luxury features of the spacious "First Edition" homes are color-styled O'Keefe & Merritt built-in gas ranges and double gas ovens with large look-in doors, automatic timing and exclusive rotisseries. Also included are heavy shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces, "cathedral" ceilings, colored bath fixtures, ceramic tile throughout, tile Pullman tops and forced air heating.

IN THE "Special Edition" series, conventional construction features select hardwood floors and cedar shingle roofs, meeting high standards for modest budgets, officials explained.

Visitors may follow the Santa Ana Freeway from downtown Los Angeles, turn right on Magnolia Ave. three miles to the "First Edition" models at Cerritos Ave. For the "Special Edition" display, turn right off Magnolia Ave. on Ball Rd., then left on Dale St. to the models.

From Long Beach, visitors may drive east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Magnolia, then left three miles to models at Cerritos; or they may follow Carson (Lincoln Ave.) to Magnolia and turn right on Magnolia one mile to Cerritos, to the "First Edition" homes. From here, go north on Magnolia to Ball, left on Ball to Dale, and left on Dale to the "special Edition" display.

ATTRACTIVE MODEL HOME

The above typifies Midwood-Signature Homes' "First Edition" series at Magnolia and Cerritos Ave., Garden Grove. "Special Edition" models are also on view on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos.

Bank Group Shows Gains

With a membership of nearly 1,000 bank men and woman, half of whom were enrolled in educational classes in banking during the fall semester, another banner year for the Harbor District Chapter of the American Institute of Banking is underway, according to Donald Sparks, assistant cashier of the Bank of America's Viking Way Branch, this year's chapter president.

The occasion for his remarks was the annual dinner forum attended by over 200 banker members of the chapter held in the Cavalier Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Principal speaker at this dinner-forum was Robert Kohler, special representative of the International Business Machine's Banking Department whose topic was "Electronics in Banking." Part of Kohler's presentation included a 20 minute film, "Direct Line to Decision" that showed the lightening calculating speed of modern electronic computers.

Excelsior Village Home Buyers Move In Quickly

Veterans in need of quick occupancy of a new home may just do that with the convenient no down terms at Excelsior Village. All he needs to move in now is just costs and impounds required by the VA. FHA buyers are also able to have immediate occupancy.

This is a community where there are schools for grammer students right across the street. Mom or Dad will not have to run a shuttle service back-and-forth to carry the children to school. This gives Mom more time to enjoy the easy aids that are built right into Excelsior Village Homes kitchen. Built-in ranges and ovens, built-in washer - dryer combination, plenty of extra-space natural finish cabinets of hardwood, along with the wonderful American-Standard fixtures that add just the right touch.

Dad will enjoy the large 2-car garages, safe paved streets and sidewalks along with the extra spacious, pool-size, landscaped lots.

The whole family will like the convenience of many nearby churches, shopping centers as well as the nearness of urban stores. A 42-acre shopping center will be right across the street along with many fine facilities. Drive out 7th St. from Garden Grove to Brookhurst (Wright St.) and turn right to the models, or from Santa Ana come straight out Westminster Ave. (17th) to Wright St. and the models.

LUXURY HOME

Custom Styling in Signature Estates

Custom-styled homes with entries and porches with flagstone floors and with all-electric kitchens are attracting large crowds to the fashionable new community of Signature Estates in the exclusive Sunny Hills section of Fullerton, it was reported yesterday by James H. Waters, sales manager.

Two beautiful furnished model residences, with decor by Lloyd's of Long Beach, comprise the center of interest for visitors to the property on El Dorado Dr., just north of Del Monte West, off the Santa Ana Freeway.

A planned community of winding streets and individually terraced lots, Signature Homes adjoins an area of $30,000 to $50,000 homes, Walters pointed out.

* * * *

FEATURED in the model homes are colorful all-electric kitchens of turquoise green, woodtone brown, petal pink and canary yellow with color-matched appliances which include wall-hung refrigerators, built-in ranges and ovens, automatic dishwashers and automatic washers and dryers.

Rising on sites fully 80 feet wide, the homes offer buyers a choice between 4-bedroom plans and 3 bedrooms with family room, and all have two spacious baths. They are priced from $22,990, with VA, FHA and conventional terms, from $460 down plus costs and impounds and from $91.86 a month for principal and interest.

Among the many special luxury features are wood-burning fireplaces of flagstone, Texas white stone and used brick; entries and porches with flagstone floors; sliding aluminum windows and huge walls of sliding glass leading to paved patios.

Offers Home Near Beach at Low Cost

Near the ocean on 6,000 square foot lots, requiring a low down payment of only $295, Costa Mesa Sunshine Beach Homes, according to builder, Richard Hunsaker, are being purchased by local residents who are aware of value offered.

Sunshine Beach Homes, at Wilson & Placentia, are located in a high rental resort area, close to Orange Coast College and within 5 minutes of the beach. Three bedrooms are provided, 2 full baths and 2-car garages. Yet, monthly payments are said to be less than rent.

Homes are of attractive contemporary design with colorful rock roofs. Interiors are easy-to-maintain with cork tile flooring in living room and bedrooms and confetti tile in kitchens. Also, kitchens feature natural birch cabinets and extra space for family snack area. All homes have 40-gallon water heaters and plenty of closet space.

Model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

OFFERED IN FINAL SALE

Last chance is offered to buy a home at Homestead Gardens, typified above, where early sellout is predicted. Location is Verano St. just north of Westminster Ave., near Santa Ana Freeway.

Refreshments for Homestead Gardens Visitors

Free refreshments and free rides for youngsters will be part of the big "Homestead Sale" of remaining quality-built homes at Homestead Gardens Sunday in Garden Grove, where vets and non-vets can move into a new residence for only $50.

This was announced yesterday by Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the property, which is showing a display of furnished model homes, with decor by Aaron Schultz, on Verano St., just north of Westminster Ave., near the Santa Ana Freeway, in Garden Grove.

"The great demand for possession of homes before the Christmas holidays," a spokesman said, "has resulted in our program to offer these homes at once on terms of move-in for $50, to vets and non-vets."

* * * *

THE HOMES are built on big lots of 7,200 square feet, with thermostat-controlled heating, big wardrobe closets, steel casement windows, fibre-glass insulation, acoustic type ceilings, lath and plaster walls, stall showers with big glass doors and big garages with extra storage space.

Also included are garbage disposers, wide driveways, weatherstripping on doors, 40 to 50-gallon automatic water heaters, gutters, downspouts and wide overhangs, while some homes have Modernfold doors to give flexibility to living arrangements.

The property is near fine shopping centers, within a half mile of schools, a few blocks from business districts and within a 15-minute drive of key industrial and employment centers.

"With such low terms, luxury features and desirable location," a spokesman said, "we anticipate an early sellout of the remaining homes, which still are available in a wide choice of stylings."

'Hearts Desire' Contest Winners Are Announced

Twenty-eight prizes valued at $25,000 have been won by 28 Southland residents who visited model homes during five weeks ending Oct. 7 and wrote what their "Heart's Desire" in a new home is.

Names of the winners were released yesterday by the Suppliers' Council of the Home Builders' Institute, sponsors of the contest, which was designed to dramatize local observance of National Home Month and to furnish builders with information as to public preferences in architecture and home features.

Winner of the sweepstake prize, an all-gas kitchen and laundry valued at $5,525 was Albert G. Lazar, 11229 Hollyhock, Norwalk. The prize, which will be designed to the winner's specifications by the Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Co.s' Kitchen Planning Bureau, gives him his choice from among seven famous makes of built-in gas ranges.

Winner of the grand prize, given by California Kitchens, Inc., a complete kitchen valued at $3,417.25, is Mrs. James N. Cochran, 1902 E. Rowland Ave.

FIRST PRIZE WINNER was Mrs. Theresa C. Kelton, 206 E. 185th St., Gardena, who will receive a General Electric kitchen center valued at $1,810.

Special Award winner, who has won a flight for two to Honolulu and a week's stay at the Hawaiian Village Hotel on the beach at Waikiki is Mrs. J. W. Atherton, 17235 Woodcroft St., Azusa.

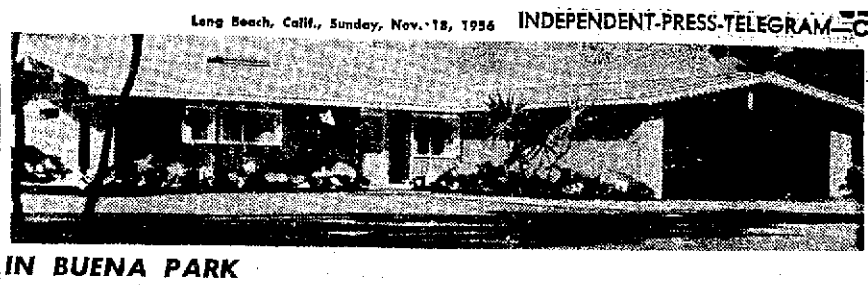

Other prize winners include Mrs. G. J. Davelaar, Temple City, kitchen cabinets and pullman; and Mrs. Golda Neely, West Covina, a freezer.

Gas ranges were won by Mrs. James Perry, Pomona; Mrs. Emmett Ingram Jr., Compton; Mrs. Vergil Brooks, Pomona, and Mrs. Anna L. Dunkelberger, Lennox. Mrs. D. A. Silverli, Sunland, won a furnace, and Mrs. Barbara B Conant, Culver City, a dishwasher.

Water heaters were won by Mrs. Marion Maddox, and Mrs. Elinor Gale, both of Los Angeles, while Mrs. Jayne Shanault, Azusa, won a blower, hood and fans. Marie Moore, of San Marino, also won a large water heater.

Winners of ventilating hoods were: Mrs. Wesley E. Eberle, Sepulveda; William Irwin, Gardena; Mrs. Barbara M. Lutes, Long Beach, and Mrs. Marjorie H. Woodside, Pomona.

Mrs. John B. Girdler, Duarte, won a 10-piece kitchenware set, and electric clocks were won by Joann Danch, Ventura; Clarence H. West, Ontario; A. G. Erickson, Pasadena; Mrs. C. D. Edison, Pasadena; Richard Chandler, Los Angeles, and Mrs. D. C. Hamilton, Tarzana.

IN BUENA PARK

Luxurious three-bedroom, two-bath home with den-dining area and spacious kitchen, shown here, is in Town and Country Square in Buena Park. Built by Larwin Co., winners of national award, they stress quality construction.

Homes Designed for Ease

Homes that emphasize the good taste of their owners and add to the pride of ownership, are what spokesmen for the Larwin Co. announce they have created at Town and Country Square in Buena Park.

From entrance grounds, through the large homes themselves, to the corners of each garden, the prize-winning builders believe that the quality of these suburban residences is immediately apparent to every visitor.

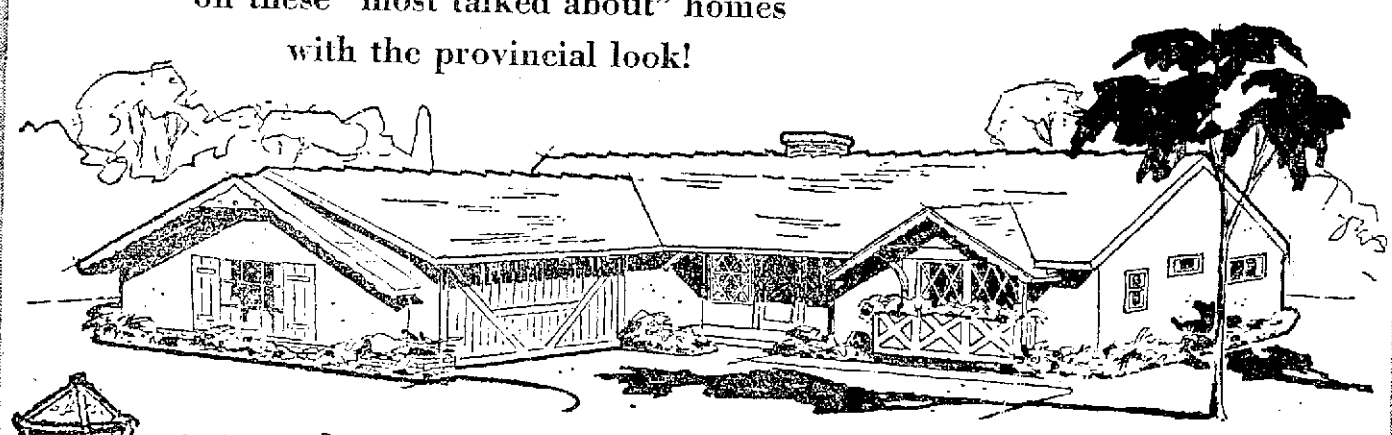

The design of the huge brick fireplaces, the diagonal shape of the concrete patio terraces with their built-in luau barbecues, the sliding glass walls, the enclosed dens and large bedrooms with roomy wardrobes, the richly appointed baths, Jack-and-Jill room, and generous linen closets all show that these homes were made for lasting comfort and satisfaction, the builders point out, rather than merely for quick sales.

Especially delightful are the spacious New Freedom gas kitchens with Western Holly oven set into a wall of aged brick, with built-in range top surrounded by genuine quarry tile.

Located only 10 minutes from Long Beach, in Buena Park, Town and Country Square is easily reached by driving east on Carson St. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.) and turning north on Miller to the model homes furnished by W. & J. Sloane.

A ROSSMOOR MODEL

Rossmoor, new $200,000,000 suburb ofLong Beach, opens today, with four furnished model homes. A view in one is shown above. It is under way a mile east of the new Long Beach State College.

Cortese Opens New L.B. Suburb of Rossmoor Just East of City

Developer Ross W. Cortese's fashionable Rossmoor, new $200,000,000 suburb of Long Beach and itself a planned complete modern city will focus national attention upon the Southland homebuilding industry at its colorful grand opening here today.

The introduction of Rossmoor, comprising one of the largest community development programs in the history of Southern California, will place on display daily, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., 4 estate-class luxury model residences, completed and furnished as forerunners of 4000 homes to be built in the area.

Conceived "in the tradition of Westwood and Berkeley," according to developer Cortese, the new city is under construction on a 1200-acre portion of the historic Rancho Los Alamitos a mile east of Long Beach State College.

"Rossmoor has been planned," Cortese said, "as an ideal suburban California community, well within a major campus environment and so situated that children from kindergarten through college.

"ROSSMOOR IS CLOSE to the Marina, only minutes away from the Municipal Golf Course and within access of the growing Long Beach City Park network, providing every type of recreational and sporting activity."

Built by Cortese's associates, Frematic Homes, Inc., of Anaheim, Rossmoor is bounded by Katella Ave. on the north, 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) on the south, Los Alamitos Blvd. on the east, and on the west by the route of the projected San Gabriel Freeway and San Gabriel River. It is accessible from Los Angeles by the Santa Ana Freeway via the Norwalk Blvd. turnoff to the south.

The four furnished model residences, with attractive decor in varying motifs by the Davis Furniture Co. of Long Beach, include "The Salem" and "The New Englander," both with model swimming pools, and "The Plymouth" and "The Farmhouse."

Offering a choice of three bedrooms or three bedrooms and family room, all with two complete baths, the Rossmoor homes are priced from $17,500, according to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, and are available on FHA-guaranteed 30-year loans from $2800 down, plus impounds, as well as on VA terms.

New Whaley Homes Styled to Please

Emphasizing the provincial style of home design, the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at Crescent Estates are fulfilling the demands of present day homebuyers, declared Dave Davenport, sales manager for the new L. S. Whaley home development in Buena Park.

"The provincial treatment does not stop with only the exterior design but is carried on throughout the interior of the homes as well," Davenport stated.

He pointed out that at Crescent Estates home buyers are offered such features as ceiling height used brick fireplaces, wood paneled living room walls, natural birch cabinets, natural finish ash doors and wall papered entry halls and breakfast nooks.

* * * *

IN THE KITCHEN, the homes have all the labor saving appliances including built-in range and oven in harmonizing color, dishmaster, garbage disposal, range hood with light and exhaust fan and built-in spice racks. Ceramic tile surrounds the range work area and is used throughout other kitchen surface areas.

The provincial exterior theme of the homes which are priced from $15,450 encompasses diamond paned windows, custom millwork and used brick planters in some models. Roofs are of thick shake shingles and gables are peaked permitting slanting eave overhang.

Available to veterans on a no down basis, except for costs and impounds, the homes may also be purchased by non-veterans under several convenient financing plans.

TWO FURNISHED MODELS for the residential development are located at Crescent Ave. and Pierce Dr., and are reached by driving east on Carson St. from Long Beach to Knott Ave. where a right turn is made to Crescent Ave. Signs along Knott Ave. direct buyers to the model home site.

According to Davenport, the model homes will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. throughout the week. He noted that the homes could be viewed on Thanksgiving Day and qualified sales representatives will be on hand to answer any questions.

Realtors to Hear Convention News

The high lights of the state and national conventions for the Realtors, which have just by Realtor representatives at the regular Tuesday morning breakfast at the Lafayette Hotel. Clive Graham, program chairman, announced.

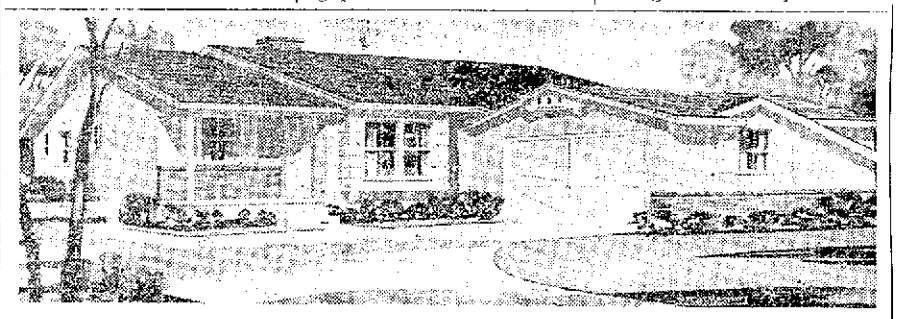

Those taking part in this presentation, which will be a round table, will be Dupuy, Mildred Stanley, Arnold Berg, Barbara Moss, Bill Barbee, Larry Miller, Max Livoni, H. A. Murray, Tenny Moore, Fae Matthews, Art Maspero, Ed Weller, Elmer Roswurm, Jim Burdge, Harvey Miller and Bill Smith. The breakfast meeting will be arranged with eight discussion tables. Expert to Speak to Appraisers

Thomas F. Mason, past president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Appraisers, and vice president of the American Right-of-Way Association, will address the Long Beach Chapter of the Society of Residential Appraisers at its regular monthly dinner meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at the Lafayette Hotel.

Herb Coffey, appraiser of Westminster, chairman of the program committee, said all appraisers and realtors should appreciate Mason's presentation, "Testimony of an Expert Witness in California Courts." Mason has been retained as an expert appraiser in important litigation involving real estate 30 years.

Eugene C. Hoffman, Long Beach appraiser, will preside.

IN SANTA ANA

Here is "The Coach and Four" model home with two bedrooms and den or third bedroom, in new "Prince Charming" series at Fairview Ranchos, at Bristol and Fairview, in Santa Ana.

Kitchen Outstanding in Fairview

The recently perfected automatic kitchens created by Waste King, and introduced for the first time in America in the new "Prince Charming Series" of homes at Fairview Ranchos, in Santa Ana, are proving something of a seven days wonder, reports Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agents for the D and E Corp.'s picturesque big-family homes at Bristol and Fairview.

According to Chandler, these new kitchens not only have everything, but they have also been designed from the woman's point of view to provide every advantage and convenience that could be longed for.

* * * *

FOR INSTANCE, the built-in Waste King wall oven, with automatic oven-tender timer, is large enough to take a holiday-size turkey easily. It has a full-view window, eye-level control panel, and waist-high broiler. The Waste King built-in range has automatic pilots, new-type "spillover" trays, and burners that are guaranteed for life. All these are gas, and may be had in decorator colors. There is also a new type built-in dishwasher with big, roomy contour racks and revolutionary rinsing and drying action which doesn't steam up walls or windows. Disposer, of course, is the Waste King.

Full price for the 3-bedroom or 2-and-a-den, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes in the "Prince Charming" series of Fairview Ranchos, is only $13,750, with monthly payments of $69.67, which includes principal and interest. There is still no down payments for veterans except impounds and closing costs.

To reach Fairview Ranchos from Long Beach take 7th St. (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol, turn right to the models.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN

Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

LOCAL BOYS SET RECORD —Two Long Beach men, Danny Eames and Chuck Daigh, figured recently in a coast-to-coast performance record chalked up by a 1957 stock Ford sedan.

The Fairlane was driven by the two local auto men in setting a record of 47 hours and 37 minutes in the ocean-to-ocean run from New York to Los Angeles, a distance of 2,913 miles.

Eames and Daigh observed all speed limits while breaking the previous record set last October in another make car by 9 hours and 21 minutes.

Driving in heavy week-end traffic, the Ford left New York Saturday, Nov. 19 at 4:38 p.m. and arrived in Los Angeles Monday at 1:15 p.m. The Fairlane club sedan is the same Ford that set an all-time endurance record in September at the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats. Eames, Daigh and 12 other drivers alternated at Bonneville in driving the Ford for 50,000 miles in less than 20 days at an average speed of 108.16 mph. No other land vehicle ever had traveled so far in such a short time.

"In addition to proving the Ford is a dependable car," Eames said, "this run demonstrates the tremendous improvement in the highway network of the nation in recent years. Better roads definitely have shrunk the distance between our two coasts."

Completion of the coast-to-coast run added one more national achievement to the list of 458 international and American records which were set in the time trials in Utah.

BUS DRIVING IN AFRICA—If you ever happen to be driving in Darkest Africa and your car or truck develops a thumping or a brake that slips, forget about it, don't get out and get under.

A bus driver over there just a few months back, according to the National Automobile Club, got out and got under to adjust a brake or two. While he was under, along came a hungry lion and a hungrier lioness. The lioness saw the driver under the bus, decided he might make a tasty morsel, charged in after him, and made a mighty snap.

The bus driver, however, had been warned by the screams of his passengers. He made it to safety in his cab and drove off shakily across the veld.

Returning to the spot a little later, he found the lioness dead. Seemed she had impaled herself on some protruding metal spike under the bus. This time the driver drove off triumphantly, with the giant tawny carcass proudly displayed atop his lion-killing bus.

PLYMOUTHS HOT — Plymouth Division of Chrysler Corp. has found it necessary to advertise to car buyers that waiting time for delivery of new Plymouth cars will be kept to a minimum.

"The overwhelming reception afforded the new Plymouth convinced us that some customers might experience a short delay in getting delivery of certain model Plymouths," Jack W. Minor, Plymouth's Vice President in charge of Sales, said. "The demand will be met quickly, and we will maintain our traditional standard of quality. We advertised to explain the situation to the public and to express our appreciation for the public acceptance of our new line of cars."

This advertising was being placed just three days after the public first saw the 1957 cars. At the same time, Minor announced that Plymouth's November production schedule is 71.8 per cent above the number of cars they produced during October.

New shipments of cars are en route to all dealers and production in all Plymouth plants is being increased. Minor estimated that over ten million persons visited Plymouth dealerships the first three days the cars were on display.

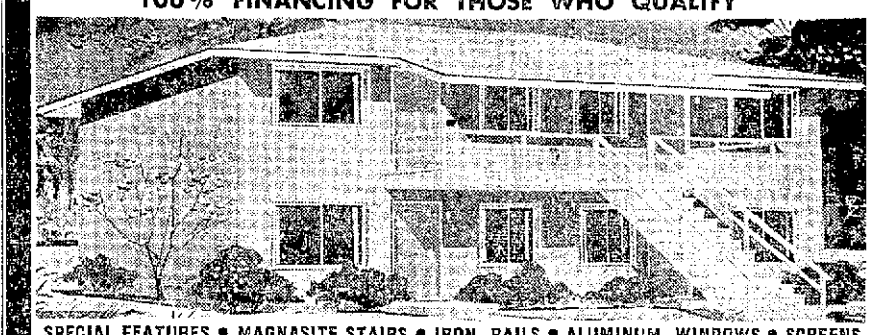

OLDSMOBILE'S NEW FIESTA

A brand new note in station wagon styling is being introduced this year in Oldsmobile's Super 88 Fiesta, pictured above. The Fiesta, which may be seen locally at C. Standlee Martin, is of the so-called Holiday hardtop design which eliminates the center post between the two doors. The second seat folds flush with the floor to provide generous cargo space in the rear. The design incorporates the utility of a station wagon and the luxury and convenience of hardtop styling.

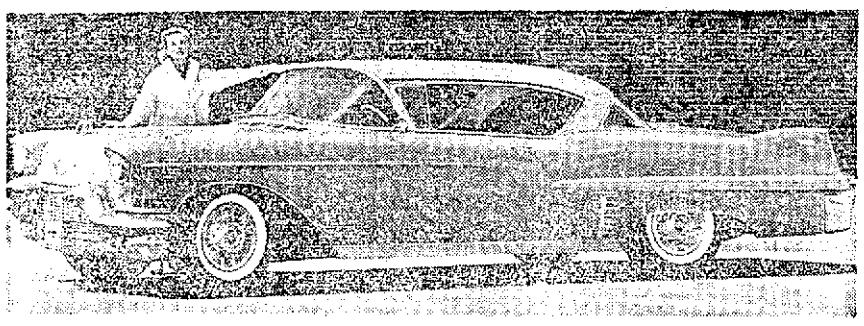

His Motor Really Fouled by Fowl

HILLSDALE, Mich. (UP) — Wilbur Duryea was homebound after a visit with a neighboring farmer when he noticed his motor was misfiring. He lifted the hood and found a hen crouched next to the steering post, hanging on for dear life. But the real source of the trouble was an egg laid by the frightened fowl. It had cracked open and fried, shorting two spark plugs.

NEW CADILLAC DRAWS APPLAUSE

Pictured is the 1957 Cadillac Coupe De Ville which went on display at Ridings Motors, local Cadillac dealership. The luxurious new Cadillac drew its share of ahhs and ohhs as thousands of auto-minded shoppers thronged Long Beach dealer showrooms last week to view the 1957 cars.

Few Vets Behind on GI Loan

CHICAGO — Veterans are establishing an excellent record of keeping their mortgage loan payments current, with loans three months or more overdue amounting to only .25 of 1 per cent, according to the nationwide delinquency survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America as of Sept. 30.

GI loans delinquent two months were slightly higher, .70 of 1 per cent, and for one month rose to 2.10 per cent. The survey, made quarterly, covers 2,451,284 loans, of which 54,802 were delinquent for a national percentage of 2.23 per cent. Loans surveyed cover one to four-family units.

Mortgage borrowers under the Federal Housing Administration plan showed a slightly better record than veterans, however. FHA loans delinquent three months or more were .13 of 1 per cent, for two months .26 of 1 per cent and for one month 1.61 per cent. Conventional-type mortgages, those without government insurance or guaranty, showed about the same record as FHA loans. Delinquencies of three months or more were also .13 of 1 per cent, for two months .25 of 1 per cent and for one month 1.12 per cent.

Nationally, the 2.23 per cent of delinquent loans from a total of 2,451,284 compares with 2.12 per cent a year ago, 2.33 on Sept. 30, 1954, and 2.35 on Sept. 30, 1953.

Bus Driver Has Real Incentive

NEWARK, N. J. (UP) — Stuart Holzman is driving a bus toward a $4,500,000 payoff.

While the 28-year-old millionaire-to-be enjoys the daily round trips between Paterson and the Port Authority Bus Terminal in New York City, he has an additional incentive to the $125 a week he receives as a driver.

Under the terms of his uncle's will, Holzman, in order to come into an estate valued at $4,500,000, must remain on one job from his 25th to his 35th birthday. In the meantime he receives an allowance from the estate which boosts his temporary income to about $9,200 a month.

ON LOW TERMS

Both vets and non-vets can purchase new Enchanted Homes, such as illustrated above, on low down VA and FHA terms. Highly individualized inside and out, each of the homes features a complete powder room in addition to its two baths. Enchanted Homes are located at the intersection of Orangewood and Magnolia Blvds. in Garden Grove.

Luxury Priced Low in Enchanted Homes

Top payment for an Enchanted Home in Garden Grove is only $15,400 Marvin H. Stiller, sales manager announced.

The entire range of Enchanted Home models, each 3 bedrooms and 2 or 2½ baths, is from $15,200 to $15,400 on VA and FHA terms with low down payments, said Stiller.

Because of their luxurious appearance, the homes in new Unit Two have been mistakenly thought to be higher-priced, Stiller explained, noting that prices have been unchanged for many months, despite rising costs in home building.

Each Enchanted Home has sweeping shake roof, diamond-lite windows and such unusual features as panel walls, wide-spreading hearths and deep fireplaces.

* * * *

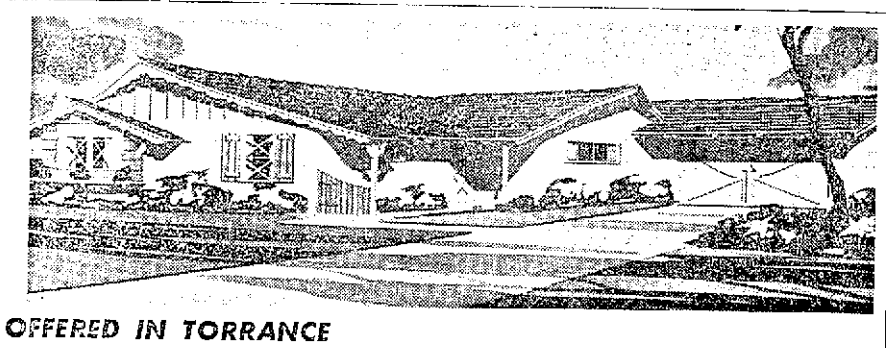

EACH ENCHANTED HOME also has the unique luxury feature of a complete powder room in addition to its baths. The powder room, especially for the convenience of guests, has its own wash basin, make-up table, wall-to-wall mirror and stall shower with ceramic tile and wall paper in warm, inviting colors.

Enchanted Kitchens feature built-in range and oven, life-time work surfaces, efficient garbage disposer and natural birch cabinets. Adjacent is a round-the-clock family room with a wide breakfast bar at one side.

Eureka!

CHICAGO (UP) — A political dinner party was disrupted when a woman newspaper reporter announced she had lost a contact lens. A search was unsuccessful and the guests returned to their appetizers. They were interrupted by another shout from the female reporter. She found the missing lens in her caviar.

OFFERED IN TORRANCE

First rustic-provincial architecture in the Torrance area are new Starlite Homes, one of which is illustrated above. High shake roofs and sparkling diamond-lite windows distinguish the Starlite Homes, priced at $14,950, complete. The Starlite development is located on Ocean Ave. (228th St.) between Main and Figueroa.

IN LA MIRADA

Parkwood Royale, new Devon Construction Co. development in La Mirada, is showing five model houses, typified above, on Luitweiler Rd. between Imperial Hwy. and Rosecrans Ave.

Parkwood Royale, in La Mirada, Offers Luxury in Large Home

Diversified contemporary stylings by three leading architectural firms have gone into the making of Parkwood Royale, new Devon Construction Co. residential community which is rising rapidly in the new City of La Mirada.

"Much of the popularity of this new luxury property may be attributed to the widespread approval of the beautiful and functional designs," a Devon spokesman said. "The homes are spacious and range in size to 4 bedrooms, family room and 3 baths, with such features as built-in gas ranges and oversize ovens with rotisseries."

A display of 5 fully furnished model residences, with decor by C. Tony Pereira, has been attracting large crowds to the sales office at Luitweiler Rd. between Imperial Hwy. and Rosecrans Ave., it was reported. The location is in the new City of La Mirada.

DESIGNED BY A. Quincy Jones & Frederick E. Emmons; David Freedman and Richard Leitch, the homes are priced from $20,950 to $23,950 and available to vets from $500 down, plus costs and impounds.

Non-vets may buy for FHA terms or on conventional financing from $3,000 down, plus costs and impounds.

Built on homesites with olive trees of 15 to 25 feet in heighth, the residences feature structural brick walls in varied patterns, wing walls of stone, aluminum-frame sliding glass walls and concrete patios.

Some models boast double fireplaces, while all have at least one custom-planned fireplace of brick or stone, officials pointed out.

There also are Mr. and Mrs. marble-top twin lavatories, glass-enclosed tub-showers, large size glass-doored stall showers with six feet of ceramic tile, built-in vanity tables in master bedrooms, custom-designed plastic room dividers and selected wallpapers.

ON EASY TERMS

Homes such as this are selling to non-veterans for $95 down and $90 costs in Ellanbee Manor. They are priced from $11,250.

Non-Veteran Needs Little Cash in Ellanbee Manor

The 1,300-square-foot, 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in Ellanbee Manor are still available to non-veterans for $95 down plus small costs, Frank H. McFarland, sales agent for the development, stated.

"We would like to make clear that the $95 is the entire down payment," McFarland said, "and that the other costs are only $90 for the entire transaction. There are no termination dates and no balloon payments. This is not a come-on where the buyer has to make unusually high payments for a year or two to cover what is really a higher down payment."

MANY FAMILIES are taking advantage of the new terms to be in their new homes before Christmas.

Ellanbee Manor homes are on wide, level lots, close to shopping centers and schools in the westerly outskirts of Santa Ana. Of quality conventional construction with genuine plaster walls and acoustical plaster ceilings, the homes sell at the low full price starting at only $11,250.

Features of the homes include special built-ins in some cases, and in all is included garbage disposals, mahogany doors, oversize double garages, large picture windows that open, and spacious dining and breakfast areas.

To see the homes, from Long Beach drive east on 7th St., which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., turn south on Harbor Blvd. to Westminster, then west to Newhope and south to the Ellanbee Manor Sales office.

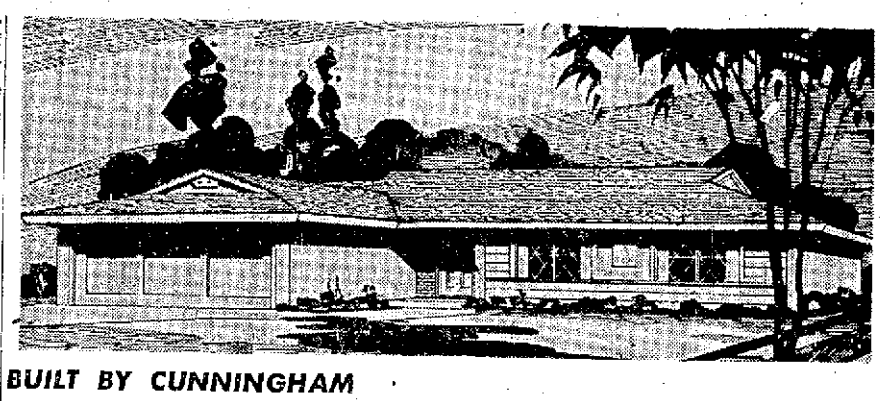

Many Luxury Items in Stratford Homes

According to Charlie Sanders, Walker & Lee sales manager of the Stratford Homes, Broadway Euclid Series of Anaheim, the 3-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings are the finest of Cunningham Co. homes. Sanders, who has been associated with Cunningham Co. developments 8 years, in Lakewood and West Covina previous to the current subdivision in Anaheim, lists the galaxy of fine features that place these dwellings in the preferred class.

Among them are oversize two-car garages with workshop or hobby room, hardwood kitchen cabinetry, luxury-size bathroom mirrors, built-in bookcases in some models, brick fireplaces in paneled living room walls, patios, sliding galss doors, service porches, Pullman lavatories in both baths, stall showers, built-in dressing tables in some models, dust-free slab doors, thermostat controlled forced air heat, an abundance of storage room in closets and cabinets, sidewalks and street lights installed, and oak floors with two-inch tongue and groove subfloors, found in all Cunningham Co. homes.

Close to the mammoth new Broadway shopping center, the Anaheim homes are easily accessible to Los Angeles, Long Beach and Santa Ana. New schools, shopping and recreation centers including Disneyland, beaches, golf courses, mountains and resorts are all easily reached from the development.

Priced from $15,750, Stratford Homes are available on both VA and FHA financing. Models are reached, from Long Beach, by driving out Carson St. (Lincoln) and turning right on Euclid to Broadway.

BUILT BY CUNNINGHAM

Here is one of the models of the Stratford Homes, Broadway Euclid Series in Anaheim which are priced from $15,750. They were built by the Cunningham Co., well known developers.

Immediate Occupancy

Large 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath Harbor Park Estates homes are still available for immediate possession, reports a spokesman for the Garden Grove subdivision. New owners may be moved and completely settled by the holidays.

Especially appealing to families who have outgrown their present homes, Harbor Park Estates offer spaciousness throughout, with expensive features and attractive architectural styling.

Among the many qualities of the dwellings are 2-car garages, plastered interiors, built-in Roper range burners, wall oven, select hardwood flooring and disposal units.

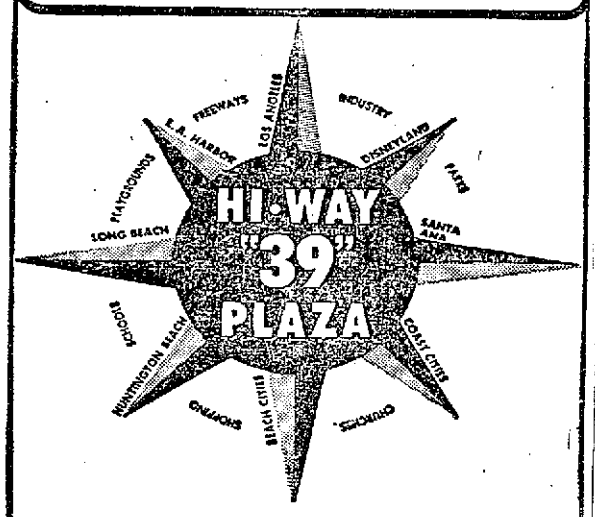

* * * *

IDEALLY LOCATED for families who value short commuting distances to industrial areas, Harbor Park Estates are close to Long Beach, Santa Ana and Los Angeles, with major transportation to all three cities easily accessible. The recreation areas of Disneyland, famous Southland beaches, golf courses, parks and resorts are also nearby.

Non-veterans may purchase a Harbor Park Estates home for only $900 down, while veterans may buy their new homes in the development by paying impounds only.

Models of the homes are three-quarters of a mile east of Harbor Blvd. on Chapman Ave. From Long Beach, visitors drive out Garden Grove Blvd. (7th St.) to Hwy. 39, turn north to Chapman Ave., and continue past Harbor Blvd. to the dwellings.

Senior Engineers
NORTH AMERICAN'S
MISSILE DEVELOPMENT DIVISION
at
Downey, California
Has openings in the following select positions:

ADVANCED ENGINEERING

Our continued growth has created several select positions requiring the best engineers in the industry to perform all aspects of composite analysis and design of advanced guided missile systems — airframe structures, air breathing and non-air breathing power plants, missile internal functional systems and ground support equipment.
Prefer M.S. or Ph.D. in M.E., C.E., Aero, Physics or applied mathematics.

WEAPONS SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

Several positions exist for men with engineering, scientific or military backgrounds to apply their knowledge to the integration of advanced missile weapons systems. Fields include operations research, economic analysis, weapons systems characteristics, development, evaluation and planning.

These positions require advanced highly professional experience or training in Physics, E.E., Economics, Mathematics, Military Development and/or Air Operations. Combinations of Engineering and Business Administration degrees are also acceptable.

AERODYNAMICS

Senior level aerodynamics engineers are needed for aerodynamic support of our advanced engineering effort.

They will perform all aspects of supersonic and hypersonic aerodynamic and heat transfer analyses and design of advanced guided missile systems. Intermediate and senior level positions are also available on current Navaho project.
Prefer advanced degrees in Aero. Mechanical. Physics or applied mathematics with at least 3 years experience on related problems.

STRUCTURES

Structures specialists with advanced degrees and experience applicable to investigations of thermal stress problems. Heat transfer experience desirable — to investigate new methods of handling structural problems arising from high-speed flight.

Positions also available in structural analysis, load investigations, weight control and design for vibration environment.
B.S. or M.S. in related areas preferred.

THERMODYNAMICS

Excellent positions available for men with experience in internal aero-dynamics, jet engine theory, wind tunnel testing, supersonic air inlet development, compressible flow phenomena, heat transfer or boundary layer theory.

B.S. in M.E., Aero or Physics required.

American Indians used wampum for money...

Modern folks use money from PF!

NEED WAMPUM FOR FALL EXPENSES?

The American Indian spent months making beadwork wampum to get things he couldn't make or hunt. Modern folks use money and credit... need extra amounts this time of year for heavy fall expenses.

PICK A PAYMENT PLAN

18 Mo. Payts.	Amount of Loan	24 Mo. Payts.	Amount of Loan

WHY DON'T YOU?

DO YOU NEED A REALTOR?
DO YOU WANT TO SELL?
DO YOU WANT TO BUY?
If you do it seems more than logical that you would want personal service direct from your Realtor. As a matter of fact you have a right to expect it! Yes, even demand it. You will get just that type of service as our staff is small & our sales percentage is tall. We like to stay on the ball and serve you, one and all.

HOW TO CARVE YOUR ARMOUR STAR BROAD BREASTED TURKEY

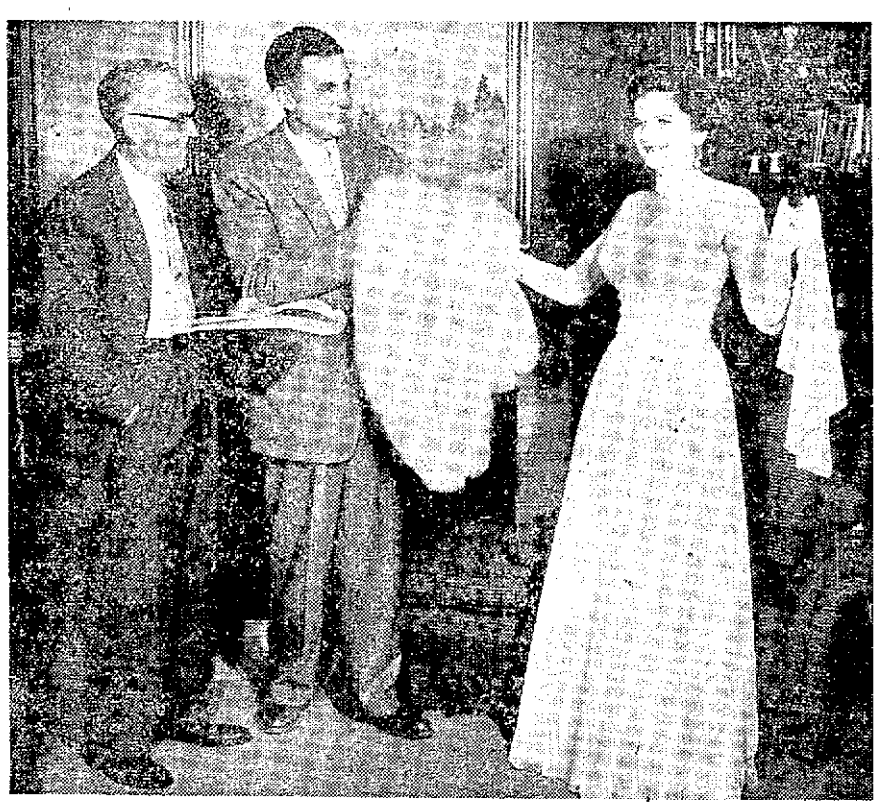

1. Hold end of leg nearest carver by bone and cut through skin of thigh. Pull leg and thigh away and bend it down to expose joint, then cut free.
2. Separate nearest wing in same manner, cutting around joint to expose exact dividing joint.
3. Plunge fork into breast to steady bird. Slice breast at an angle from high point of breast bone down, making first slice nearest wing joint.
4. Separate thigh and leg at joint and slice both pieces lengthwise, or serve whole leg or thigh. Carve second side in same manner.

Forecast: A Gay and Warm-Hearted Christmas

YES SIR, MR. SNOWMAN! You're the center of attention as all eyes swing your way. But you'll have to share the spotlight when the Sandlarks Christmas Fantasy gets under way Nov. 30 with its four-day display of intriguing holiday decorations. Fanciful and traditional, miniatures and giants, conversation pieces all, the brilliant creations will set many a visitor a-buzzing with holiday plans. This display of beguiling decorations originated four years ago and met with such enthusiastic response that Sandlarks promptly labeled it an annual event, with proceeds designated for the adoption work of the Children's Home Society of California. Admiring the debonair snowman are (from left) Mrs. Jack Marsh, Mrs. Dan Farnham, Mrs. Robert Peek and Mrs. Charles Stevens. Kneeling beside tiny Dennis Marsh and Stacy Selman is Mrs. Victor Selman. Entries will go on sale when the doors open at 1 p. m. but will remain on display for four days. —(Photo by H. S. Melvin, staff photographer.)

March of Dimes Fashion Show Promises Gala Evening

QUILTED WHITE SILK CREPE fashions these attractive Slim Jims and matching three-quarter length coat, worn with a filmy chiffon blouse by Marie Blume. Mrs. George Vermillion, in whose home these pictures were made, and William J. Curry, chairman of the Long Beach Chapter of March of Dimes, look on admiringly. —(Photos by Jasper Nutter.)

Yuletide Fantasy Spins an Aura of Anticipation

By ELISE EMERY

The holidays season has rounded the corner — already Thanksgiving has lifted the door latch, and dates on the calendar are an arrow aimed straight through Dec. 25 to New Year's Day.

To the homemaker plagued with the problem of devising unusual, imaginative holiday decorations the Sandlarks bring a soothing solution with their fourth annual Sandlarks Christmas Fantasy which opens at 1 p.m. Nov. 30 in the lobby of Wilton Hotel. Decorations will be displayed and sold for four days.

Many a professional office will likewise make use of the colorful, sparkling decorations. Among an expected 200 entries to be donated by business firms, florists, professional decorators and amateurs will be door decorations, table pieces, mobiles and mantel adornments ranging from modest to colossal size. All are designed to be of permanent use so that they may be stored and used from year to year.

Formal Opening

The formal opening of the fantasy will take place the evening of the first day when trophies will be awarded. Cups will go to a sweepstakes winner, a business firm, and a florist. In addition a $25 merchant order will be given for the best amateur entry and a $25 check for the best pro-

Tri-Delts to Celebrate

The 68th anniversary of Delta Delta Delta's founding will be celebrated by the Long Beach Alumnae Chapter and Phi Kappa Chapter of Long Beach State College, at a 6:30 p. m. banquet Tuesday in the Wilton Hotel Empire Room.

Mrs. Charles Burch and Mrs. Richard Alexander are co-chairmen for the traditional event, and reservations may be made with Mrs. D. L. Young, 745 Havana Ave. All collegiate and alumnae members are invited.

Off to Mexico

Three delightful weeks in Mexico City will be enjoyed by Mrs. Rosa Richardson of 10 Atlantic Ave. who flew to that city Friday to visit with her brother. Accompanying her was her granddaughter, Sara Richardson, of Balboa.

PRETTY AS A POSY, little Mindy Miller daintily raises her pale pink skirt to show off her bouffant petticoats for Mrs. Arthur Randall.

'Santa's Fashion Wonderland' Hints of Wondrous Day of Enchantment

Another philanthropic first will make its bow to Long Beach Nov. 27 when "Santa's Fashion Wonderland," fashion show sponsored by the March of Dimes, is presented at 8 p. m. in Municipal Auditorium.

Already ticket sales are zooming, for few can resist the appeal of a delightfully dramatized production when they know all proceeds will go to the Long Beach Chapter of the Polio Foundation. Sponsors expect to make the show an annual event.

Wilma Hastings, who will produce and direct, promises a display of fashions for the entire family, music by Burrel Ubben and his 11-piece orchestra and selections by the 64-voice choir from City College under the direction of Royal Stanton.

Santa Claus, of Course

Appealing star of the show will be little blonde Cathryn Robinson, 7, daughter of a Navy couple, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Cathryn was stricken with polio in October 1950 and has recovered now, progressing to the use of crutches and a brace. Long Beach's own Jimmy McGarrigle will portray the classic role of Santa Claus. Twenty models from Wilma Hastings' modeling school will parade on the 114-foot ramp in the convention hall so that fashions may be seen in detail.

The narrative will tell the story of a typical American family's Christmas. A towering silvertip tree, decorated by the Recreation Commission, will glow with lights in a cozy living room furnished in Early American maple pieces.

Magical Day

Scene one will depict "The Mystical, Magical Morning." Scene two, "Visions of Sugar Plums," reveals through French windows the dining room ready with its bountiful feast, and the final setting for

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

Home came the travellers, Irene and Bud Cook, last weekend after seven weeks in Europe. With them they brought memories in all shapes and sizes and, naturally, the most colossal centered around the two world shaking events that occurred while they were there—the Hungarian revolt and the English-French decision to enter the Suez conflict. Their first hand account makes you put your think cap on.

They were in London the day Eden told the people of England's intervention plans. Irene and Bud said the English were as surprised as we Americans were and just as shocked, if not more so. "News is bad," they muttered, "'ope it comes off all right." Arguments pro and con raged in the pubs, on the streets—everywhere, and there were violent riots in Whitehall before the Parliament buildings. One thing was true. A tremendous number of Englishmen objected fiercely that their government had by-passed both the United Nations and United States in its decision.

In Copenhagen, just prior to taking off on their polar flight home, they witnessed an inspiring incident. That huge city came to a complete standstill for a full five minutes. No vehicle moved, no telephone rang, no one spoke to another as the Danes bowed their heads and prayed in absolute silence and fervor for the embattled and courageous Hungarians.

Leaving Copenhagen at night on their return, this being the time of the long winter night in pole country, they flew through total darkness for almost 20 hours. Dawn was just breaking as they sped over North Dakota and full daylight didn't develop until they were over Salt Lake City. The Cooks toured in company with former Long Beachers, Col. Howard and Jean Quinn, who have been living in Peru for the past several years where "Howie" is port authority in Lima.

Ask any guest who was at Assistance League Clubhouse Thursday what it was like. Then step aside quickly to make room for an avalanche of glowing adjectives in description of the harvest brunch which was tri-hostessed there that day by Dorothy Goodknight, Mildred Brayton and Flo Newton. Asked to assist at the gracious party were Marge Van Dyke, Cecile Appleton, Betty Smith of Van Nuys, Emily Persons, Polly Chace, Winifred Campbell, Hart Davis, Margaret Hanson, "Jo" Paap, Marion Ritner, Jane Hosmer, Verna Collins, Hazel Robinson, Della Lawson and Alice Haylett.

A host of dainty angels and tiny cherubs gathered for a meeting Friday along the branches of a white Christmas tree. Then and there they made a ceramic proclamation decreeing life-long happiness for John and Elizabeth (Norberg) Hodgkin, who were married recently in Mexico.

Fortunately, their meeting coincided with a tea being given for the new bride by Loraine (Mrs. John) Lungren and Virginia (Mrs. Franklin) Waters. So, smart hostesses, they used them as a tea table centerpiece. In addition to angels and cherubs, Liz was surrounded by about 45 friends also there with their wishes for happiness. The party was given at Loraine's home, 4180 Chestnut Ave.

You know how women walk after an all day shopping excursion in heels too high and shoes too tight? Barbara Ver Plank talked and ate with very much the same kind of excruciating slowness after dental surgery to remove a wisdom tooth first of this week.

Now it can be told. A van carrying explosive cargo maneuvered slowly through Park Estates week ago last night. Inside the big trailer were 64 human beings, all primed and crackling with laughter, ready to explode any minute. The fuse that set them off in a chain reaction of good wishes and merriment was arrival at Ruth and Fred Jensen's new home at 5565 Lorna Linda Dr. where their discovery by Ruth and Fred touched off a housewarming of pyrotechnical proportions! The Jensens expected the truck, but thought it contained some furniture!

Party incendiarists in charge were Dolly and Jeff Stone Dixie and Noble Millie, Laurel and Bob Bult, Mary and Julian Knutson and Rose and Travis White. In the van with the surprisers were gifts galore for the new house, plus a case of chilled champagne and a cake built in replica of the new home. Understand Ruth and Fred smashed their glasses into the fireplace after the first toast in the traditional gesture of absolute and complete joy.

How's your arithmetic? Three times two celebrating one equals what? The answer will be found in the next sentence. Last night Carolyn and Don Raney, Marion and Jim Fletcher and Dorothy and Fred Wise gathered at the Raneys for pot luck dinner to commemorate the first successful year (almost to the day!) of the beginning of new careers for the men. One year ago Don went into private practice as an attorney, Jim began a gas station venture and Fred started in a paper products business.

The day of feminine courage is not past. Norma Harris had her hair cut—short! The day of the beauticians' art isn't over, either. Norma looks terrific! The day of big business for the milliner is at hand, too, because not one of Norma's hats fits her any more.

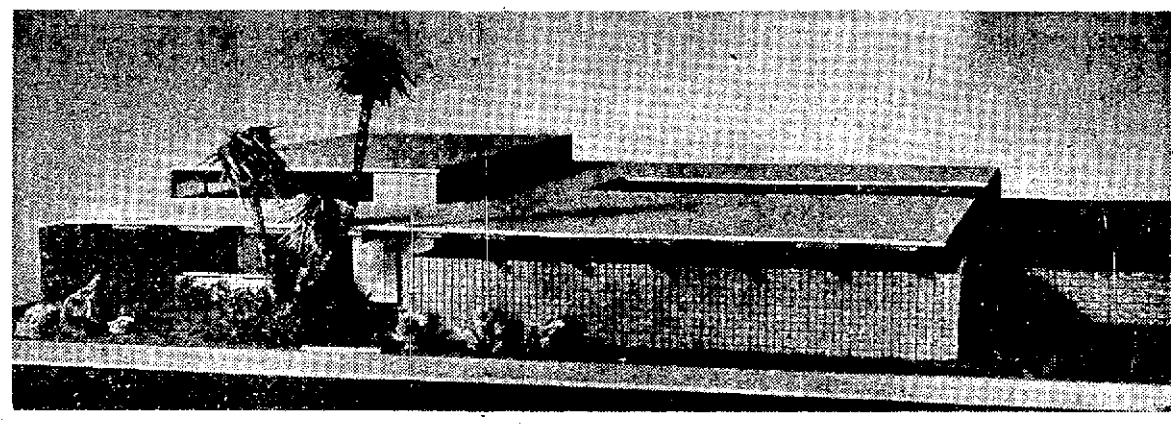

Jimmy Durante has had local competition in the schnoz department ever since Tuesday night when Bill Kelly sustained a busted proboscis in an auto accident. If Bill's nose is as big as it feels Durante is about to say "Good night, Mrs. Calabash" for the last time.

A fond look backward and a verbal accolade to last week and Polly Chace whose expressive parties, in the spirit of "Thanksgiving for Friendships," were so completely delightful. Just in case Burton's wife doesn't know, we'd like to say that all her friends count knowing her among their blessings, too.

Ready to break in your 1957 calendars? Then mark Feb. 28 in red and save the date. Hark ye what's planned. Alpha Phi alums are going to have a fete that day at Virginia Country Club—a sort of a table setting contest and grand party all rolled into one. Already letters have gone out to just about every woman's club in town inviting them to enter a table setting. A $50 check will go to the winner along with an opportunity, if they so choose, to "advertise" their own particular club objectives through their use of decorations. Spark plugs for the event are Betty Lou Hayter, "Rod" Strong, Mary Marks and Virginia Waters, to name a few. Proceeds from the party will go into the sorority's national heart fund as well as into a strictly local building fund which will grow and grow until Long Beach State College Alpha Phis have a sorority house of their own on the local campus!

If you ever want a good press agent all you have to do is "sell" Jane Krest on your cause. Her enthusiasm probably sent more people up to the California Water Color Society show at the L. A. Art Rental Gallery than there are easels in Laguna. She was "sold" some time ago on Rex Brandt when she heard him as guest speaker at a Junior League meeting. Then, when she went to the show and discovered his painting, "Going to the Races," had taken one of the major awards, that's when she really started beating the drums in earnest. Accompanying Jane the day she went to see and came home to praise were Rosemary Sadler, Ellie Person and "Win" Rhodes.

Assistance League Begins Bold Venture

MINIATURE MODEL OF THE proposed new Girls' Club to be built by Long Beach Assistance League on Santa Fe Ave. is pictured above. Designed by Architect Francis J. Heusel, the clubhouse will be open to thousands of teenage girls as a wholesome meeting place for recreation and character-building pursuits.

LONG BEACH ASSISTANCE LEAGUE is now embarked on the most extensive venture in its history with plans to build a modern clubhouse to be maintained for the exclusive use of teenage girls. Mrs. Dean Lucas, left, president of Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the league, is pictured presenting a check in the sum of $5,500 to Mrs. Thomas E. Noble, center, building committee chairman, and Mrs. Francis J. Heusel, league president, the first donation toward the building fund drive now in progress.—(Staff photo.)

Fund Drive Started for Girls' Club

A bold new venture—one in which this community can take pride—has been embarked upon by Long Beach Assistance League.

This week the league officially announced plans to construct a new clubhouse exclusively for teenage girls and a major fund-raising campaign for this building is now in progress.

Purpose of the club is to provide a wholesome meeting place for young girls where they can join in character building activities and share yearned-for advantages in crafts, homemaking and social graces with others whose families are not financially able to provide such experiences during the psychologically important years of their teens.

The Assistance League is no stranger to girls' club work, having maintained the only club in this city for 12 years. During this year alone thousands of girls have enjoyed the West Long Beach Girls' Club, totally supported by the league. With an average daily attendance of 70 girls, accounting for 21,000 individual participations, more space is imperative, members feel, if the work is to continue. Juvenile authorities and educators alike agree that untold good is the result.

The new clubhouse will be erected on Santa Fe Ave. between Willow and 27th Sts. on a league-owned lot 245 feet wide by 100 feet in depth. The building, designed by Architect Francis J. Heusel, A.I.A., whose wife is president of the league, will contain approximately 5,228 square feet, enclosed, with a large adjoining patio. The women are asking for a total subscription of $50,000 from the public before ground is broken. They will provide many additional thousands to complete the total amount needed.

Appropriately, the first donation to the building fund, a check for $5,500, was made by Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the league. Mrs. Bruce Mason is chairman of the fund committee. Mrs. Thomas E. Noble is heading the building committee. Slogan for the worthy fund drive is "Girls Are Important" and letters asking for donations are now in the mail.

In its many years of work for teenage girls this is the first time the league has ever asked for public financial assistance. Members are convinced that many others in this community will answer their call, wanting to share with them in "helping girls to learn to help themselves."

Noted Hungarian Pair on Civic Music Program

Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky, famed Russian-trained Hungarian dancers who made headlines with their escape from behind the Iron Curtain three years ago, will appear with their ballet ensemble Friday at 8:15 p.m. at Wilson High School auditorium under auspices of the Civic Music Association.

Since their escape, audiences in Eastern Europe, New York, Paris, London, Brussels, Lisbon and Barcelona have acclaimed the brilliant technique of the young couple, adding to the praise they previously had received in Moscow, Leningrad and Budapest.

The dancers met while students at the Budapest State Opera and came to the attention of the great Russian ballerina, Ulanova, who took them to Russia. There they were recognized as two of the Soviet Union's finest ballet dancers. Despite their success, special privileges and financial rewards, their anti-communist feelings grew as they experienced restrictions of their artistic and personal freedom and observed the life about them.

In 1953 they escaped into the Western Sector and asked Allied officers for asylum. American officials arranged for their appearance with the Festival Ballet in London with Roland Petit's Ballet de Paris. They made their American debut in 1953 on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," later appeared with the Ballet de Paris at the Broadway Theater in New York.

In 1954 they rejoined London's Festival Ballet and appeared with the noted British company during its North American tour in 1954-55. A movie about their escape was shown on the CBS television program "Omnibus." They were warmly received in South America during 1955. This present tour with their dance ensemble will take them to many parts of the United States.

NLB Women Set Luncheon

Members of North Long Beach Women's Club will meet for a Thanksgiving luncheon at noon Wednesday in Houghton Park Clubhouse. Hostesses will be members of Group Two, and reservations may be made with Mrs. Edward Ditto.

Mrs. Rawlin Abrahamson, program chairman, will present Mrs. Louise Meteer, society editor of a North Long Beach paper, who will speak on "Facts and Fancies in a Woman's World." Christine McAdams will be soloist. Mrs. Virgil Koon will conduct the business session.

Glamorous holiday cooking was theme of a recent meeting when Francis Meyer was guest speaker. Also featured was Miss Isla Anna who entertained with a viola solo, accompanied by Mary Anna.

A noon refreshment hour preceded the meeting. The tea table featured autumn decor arranged by Mrs. Kenneth McCafferty. Pouring were Mmes. Virgil Koon, Lee Carter, Arthur Brookover and E. C. Hawley.

WEDS IN EASTERN SERVICE

Miss Leland Merriam Ernst, physical education instructor at Polytechnic High School, became the bride of Melvin Schantz in recent ceremonies read in Kirkwood, Mo., her parents' home. The pair will reside in Long Beach following a wedding trip to Phoenix, Ariz. The bride was graduated with honors from University of Illinois and has done graduate work at LBSC and University of Hawaii. Her husband is an alumnus of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and served with the U. S. Marine Corps.

Appoint Prominent Woman

The appointment of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell as vice chairman of the Women's Division for the 1957 Red Cross Fund Drive was announced this week by Mrs. Lon E. Peek, chairman.

Mrs. Howell has worked in the Long Beach Red Cross fund drives for the past twenty-five years serving in various capacities.

Active in community service, Mrs. Howell is past president of Chapter KJ, P.E.O., and a past president of the First Baptist Women. She also is a past president of Ebell.

Her activity in P-T.A. and scouting groups throughout Long Beach held Mrs. Howell's major interest for many years. She was president of the P-T.A. at Longfellow, Hughes and Poly, and is one of the few women in Long Beach to have had such a position on all school levels.

Mrs. Howell is a member of the board of directors of the Heart Association and is past vice president of this association.

Upon accepting the position of vice chairman for the Women's Division, Mrs. Howell said she felt Red Cross was one of the most important charities and that the public should accept its responsibility to serve in this civic project.

Mrs. Howell resides at 3845 Lime Ave. with her husband. She has a married daughter, Mrs. Roger T. Williams, and a son, Jack, who is attending Stanford University.

Joan (Hollinger) Johnson Is Honoree 'in Absentia'

Baby shower honoree, in absentia, was Mrs. Dean Johnson of Chicago, Ill., the former Joan Hollinger of Long Beach at a party given Tuesday by Mrs. Burton Chace and Mrs. Edwin R. Chace in the Burton Chace home, 4160 Country Club Dr.

Accepting the lovely gifts for her daughter as guest of honor by proxy was Mrs. Mertroe Hollinger. Inspiration for the pretty courtesy is young Keith, the Johnsons' first child, now just six weeks old.

For the party the hostesses used pink as their color theme. Guests were seated at quartet tables covered by crisp pink linen cloths, each centered by appropriate flower containers in the shape of bootees, baby carriages and the like, holding little bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Guests brought their gifts unwrapped in order that Mrs. Hollinger could enjoy viewing them and then as an after luncheon diversion, guests wrapped the presents and prepared them for mailing.

Those attending the shower were Mmes. Nathan Chace, Josephine Brown, May Chace Miller, Dwight Sigworth, Ray K. Person, Eugene Chace, Allen Kearney, Weldon Parker, Maude Baldwin, Larry Stiles, Mary Alice Melick, Charles Wickham, Robert Goodall, visiting here from her home in Ogallala, Neb.; Mrs. James Record with her baby daughter, Janice; Mrs. William Cheney with her baby daughter, Susan, from Garden Grove, and Mrs. V. Ray Townsend and her baby son, Stephen Chace.

Book Reviews for Ebell Club

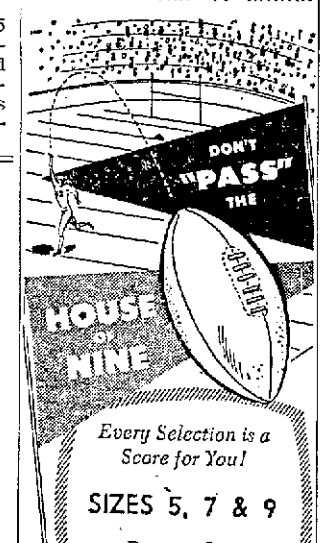

Marjorie MacIntyre will review current books at Ebell Club Monday afternoon following a brief business session conducted by Mrs. L. E. Shanks at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. James A. Worsham, program chairman, will introduce the speaker and members of Group Q, led by Miss Bess Chappell, will be hostesses.

The reviewer has traveled widely throughout the United States and Canada, a circumstance which enables her to bring understanding and interpretation to her program.

Mothers Club

Gamma Phi Beta Mothers Club of Beta Alpha Chapter, USC, will meet at noon Tuesday at the chapter house.

Please Remember the Forgotten Children

Retarded Will Gain From Drive for Funds Monday

By JEAN B. MOORE
Women's Staff Writer
(Last of a Series)

Give thanks by giving.

A nation will bow its head once again Thursday in gratitude for its many blessings.

A city will open its heart tomorrow by opening its pocketbook, glad that it can care for its forgotten children, the mentally retarded.

Those four words—give thanks by giving—might well apply to one's daily living.

Tomorrow in particular they are the theme of the one-day drive by the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

BE ON THE LOOKOUT for a man, woman or teen wearing a yellow badge with the words "Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation," printed in black. Each will carry a lavender and white canister, slotted at the top to receive hard coins or folding money, and carrying the plea, "Help Retarded Children."

Funds realized will be divided this way: 75 per cent to the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation; 15 per cent to the National Association for Retarded Children; 10 per cent to the California Council for Retarded Children.

Now that Long Beach mentally retarded youngsters have their own school at 4519 E. Stearns St., why are more contributions sought, some may ask.

Because . . .

The school receives no monetary aid from the Community Chest, the state or the federal government.

It costs $100 a day just to keep the school running.

Most parents financially able pay $25 to send their child to the school. Actually, it costs at least $40 a month for each child. The first amount was set several years ago and has not been raised.

No child is denied entrance if his parents cannot pay the tuition.

Four salaried teachers, dedicated to their missions and paid below public grade school wage scale, comprise the faculty. Instruction not requiring professional knowledge is given, free, by mothers and fathers of the children.

More qualified instructors are needed, especially a speech and physio-therapist.

Some persons may rationalize, "There is no reason for me to give. My children are not retarded," or "We'll never have a mental problem in our family."

But when three out of 100 babies born daily are mentally retarded, how can they be sure?

(Persons wishing to contribute and not contacted personally by representatives of the Exceptional Children's Foundation may mail their checks (income tax deductible) to the Foundation at 4519 E. Stearns St., Long Beach 15. Or they may call the Foundation, HEmlock 5-0496, or the drive chairman, Mrs. Albert Horn, GArfield 9-8128, and a representative will call for the gift.)

WILLING TO HELP

Benefit for Polio Fund

"Christmas Night" is around the glowing fireplace as snow softly drifts outside the windows.

Larry Johns, director of Community Playhouse, will act as co-commentator with Mrs. Hastings, while voices of Phillip Drehmer and John Puckett will be heard offstage.

William Curry heads the hard-working committee for the show. Members are Mayor George M. Vermillion, campaign chairman; Lyman Lough, chairman of the Men's Division; Mrs. Le Roy Bonhall, vice president of the Long Beach Chapter; Mrs. Arthur Randall, chairman of distribution; Mrs. Ray E. Withee, ticket chairman; Mrs. Meredith S. Algeo, executive secretary of the Long Beach Chapter; and Mrs. Charles F. Reed, who in her capacity as chairman of the Women's Division and Mothers' March has worked closely with Mrs. Hastings.

The Gibson Style Shop, Tiny Tot's and Walt Jordon Clothes for Men will supply clothes to be modeled. Alexander Shultz will provide furniture for the stage setting and floral decorations will be by Benner Florist. Mace Taylor and the Shriners will set the stage and serve as stage hands.

News Talk by Columnist

Lawrence A. Collins, editorial columnist of the Long Beach Independent, will discuss current events throughout the world at Monday's meeting of North Long Beach Republican Women Federated in Houghton Park Clubhouse. A noon luncheon will precede the business session.

Other events on members' calendars include a 1 p. m. legislative meeting on Nov. 26 at the home of Mrs. Raymond C. Goodmiller, 1655 Poinsetta St. The Bill of Rights will be reviewed during a panel discussion.

The Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women Clubs will convene Nov. 28 at the Ambassador Hotel with Judge Stanley M. Barnes as the speaker.

During December, new officers will be elected and new rules distributed to the membership.

PEO Session

Unaffiliated PEO members and visitors are invited to a meeting of Chapter OL at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. F. W. Schwartz, 536 Winslow Ave. Reservations may be made with the hostess.

Bridal Fete Compliments Merle Stang

Miss Merle Stang, who Tuesday will become the bride of Richard Tiffany in a ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Stang, 2009 Chestnut Ave., was complimented by her sisters at a recent bridal shower.

Hostessed by Mrs. Orville Clay Jr., and Mrs. George Merrills Jr., in the latter's home, 2038 Studebaker Rd., the party featured a pink and white theme in decor. Names of the honoree and her fiance were written in pink and white crepe paper on the wall above the fireplace, and a large buffet table held twin cakes also bearing the names of the engaged pair.

Friends and relatives gathered were Mmes. Don Jones, Lillian Winter, George E. Merrill Sr., Lloyd Lund, Margaret Fletcher, Alice Williams, Vernon Steen, Robert McGowen and daughter Loy, George Kelperis, Peter Bromback, Vic Selman, Ruth Davis, Dwight King, Kenneth Homan, France Tnolen, Andrew Bellomo, Marion Clark, Carol Bartlett, Leo Finch, Dale George, Ken Luberg, Miss Karen Luberg, Mrs. Matt Tiffany, mother of the prospective bridegroom, and Mrs. Floyd Stang, mother of the bride-to-be.

Holiday Decor Readied for Lawyers' Wives Meeting

A Thanksgiving motif will be used for Tuesday's meeting of Long Beach Lawyers' Wives in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Hostesses Mmes. George Hart Jr., William Artman and Clarence Hunt are combining artistic talents in their plans for autumn table decor.

Mrs. Everett Miller, president, will welcome members and guests at the 12:15 p. m. luncheon. Program chairman Mrs. Preston Johnson will introduce Miss Happy King who will analyze the handwriting of all present.

A short talk on cystic fibrosis by Mrs. Lois Perry will acquaint attendees on the seriousness of the disease and of the national drive scheduled for next June.

Jewell Tent to Nominate

Nomination of officers will highlight a 7:30 p. m. meeting Monday of Emily R. Jewell Tent 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War at Veterans Memorial Building. Dr. Mabel Conger will preside.

Past Tent Presidents Club will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Bernice Hamble, 1546 Sherman Pl., for noon luncheon. Fanny Whitwood will lead the business session. The sewing and social session Thursday has been cancelled because of Thanksgiving.

DUVCW Tents 15 and 58 entertained recently with a reception at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Carroll, 2895 Fashion Ave., honoring members who hold department office. Honored guests were Mmes. Laura Collins, Bernice Hamble, Hazel Deane, Jennie Duffey and Miss Florence Chadwick. Dr. Mabel Conger and Mrs. Rose Capron poured.

Blessings Upon the Two-Party System!

By ILKA CHASE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luce request the pleasure of Dr. and Mrs. Brown's company for dinner, Tuesday night, Nov. 6. Election returns. Sounds festive. Dr. and Mrs. Brown accept with pleasure.

November 6th being semi-holiday, husband gets home at civilized hour. We re-dress. Are in fact ready ahead of time. Balmy evening, husband suggests walking six blocks to Luce apartment. Walk! In evening slippers? And having just spent hour on casual arrangement of hair! Suspect husband balmy, too. We compromise and take taxi. Arrive couple of minutes early. Husband observes that premature arrival won't bring returns in any sooner. Suggests drink at River Club across street. Do private clubs serve liquor before polls close on election night? Look at each other in ignorance. Feel uncouth. Decide to investigate.

Still hesitating on doorstep when two other couples arrive in evening clothes. They are also going to Luce party. Ride up in elevator together. Greeted affably by host. Look around. Suppose hostess to be in another room. More people arrive. Introductions. Feel moment has come to say good evening to hostess. Spot host again.

"Oh, Harry, where's Clare?" Mr. Luce looks surprised. "In Rome. Didn't you know?"

"Why no. The invitation said . . . "

"That's right. Until Thursday she thought she could make it but with the European situation and refugees from Hungary pouring into Rome she can't get away."

In time of crisis ambassadorial duties obviously come first but disappointed not to see hostess and old friend. Missed her in Rome, too, last summer. No luck.

Meet Lord Beaverbrook, distinguished British publisher. Said he always comes to America for the elections, always hopes for excitement. Said glumly, "No excitement tonight. No contest."

Glittering Guests

Mrs. Stavros Niarchos owner of famous yacht and sister of Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, mistress of another famous yacht, also a guest. Mrs. Niarchos in pale blue with lovely chandelier earrings of rubies and diamonds. Looks rich. Is.

Our ambassador to the U.N. John Cabot Lodge arrives for dinner, leaves immediately afterwards. U.N. in constant session. Pin in buttonhole in backwards. His candidate is Eki. Dark horse maybe?

Buffet dinner served. Two television sets going full blast. News already looking very good. For Republicans. After dinner stroll about admiring Luce art collection.

Ah, Antiques

Sit down to watch television as avalanche begins. Room crowded. When husband comes in move over to make place for him on chair beside me. We sit for few minutes. There is sharp splintering sound of wood as chair gives way and Dr. and Mrs. Brown descend gracefully—I hope—to floor.

Much laughter, hurried offers of aid and we are helped to feet. A tall Monseigneur in black habit says soothingly he is sure damage not serious. Look dubiously at chair. Fear Monseigneur overly optimistic. Tell Harry Luce who hides dismay behind well-bred, host-like masque. Remains delicate task of writing absent hostess to thank her for party and break news of disintegration of antiques.

By now Beaverbrook pronouncement of no contest proven accurate. As must be up at 6:30 next morning to fly to Texas we decide to watch finale at home. Go to bed. In about twenty-minutes husband wakes me up. "Want to see Stevenson concede?" Stumble sleepily out to living room. See Stevenson. See Ike. Think to myself — what a blessing, the two party system.

'Femininity' Highlights Designs

Editors View Edith Small's Custom Work

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent-Press-Telegram Women's Editor

It is one thing to study the art of designing by going to art school, working with and learning from dress designers already established, but it is another thing when you have the background and the knack and literally "fall into" the profession. Such is the case of Edith Small, prominent California designer of custom suits and gowns.

Miss Small's grandfather and uncles were tailors on Bond Street, London, England, counting members of royalty among their clients. She undoubtedly inherited her love of fine clothes from her family. On a trip to California, from her hometown of Chicago, she was constantly asked by friends where she bought her suits — and in reply she always told them she would cut them one. Hence, from small beginnings and 10 years of hard work, she has built one of the greatest designing businesses in the country -- it has reached the five-million-dollar mark!

FROM THE HOLIDAY COLLECTION of Edith Small, California couturier designer, is "Rhapsody," a slim ankle-length three-tone chiffon gown with a draped bodice-side swag and back flowing panels. Aqua, green and white are blended in this graceful model accented with rhinestone clips. This was viewed by fashion and women's editors across the nation Friday afternoon at Miss Small's Los Angeles salon during California Fashion Press Week.

Edith Small

Significant trends in her resort and spring collection, as shown Friday to the fashion and women's editors attending the sixth annual National Press Week as guests of California Fashion Creators, are the young short look in her hipbone-length fitted jackets; the smart long look in several high-waisted, high belted models in imported silk or golden beige worsted; the new "weskit" look in a suit of English sharkskin; the jumper look in a two-tone sheer worsted suit with red accent; the jabot look, the short sleeve look and the "decorative" look -- suits embroidered in motifs.

Miss Small is utterly feminine and this is reflected in her clothes — a rose at the neckline, white violets on a sleeve, a white carnation on a lapel or a rose accent on a regency scroll bodice. Suit fabrics in this collection include fine chiffon weight worsteds, striped and pin-check worsteds, imported French and Italian silk tweeds, striped and pin-dot silks and quality striped and teardrop mohair.

Very few designers handle Chantilly laces in as sophisticated a manner as Miss Small. She has created for this coming season cocktail and formal dresses fashioned tier on tier with faille trims and glitter accents. In a long-skirt slender formal she has used Venise lace in daffodil yellow with cascading spiral back panel and in another, the palest pink taffeta in a new old-fashioned silhouette studded with rhinestones.

Important every-day, all-day dresses, include a useful black Italian silk with soft bodice, high-buttoned and high-belted; lots of stripe linens, silk shantung, Persian printed cottons, checked ginghams and silk prints blended in springtime's brightest colors.

TV Can Aid in Education

"It is estimated that by 1960 there will be eight million additional children enrolled in our now overcrowded schoolrooms," said Mrs. Frank J. Hardesty, president of the Long Beach Chapter for Television Education when she appeared as guest speaker this week at the dinner meeting of the Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club.

She pointed out that in this land, where there are more television receivers than bath tubs, educational television is not being fully utilized. There are a number of educational television stations throughout the nation, she stated; however, the Long Beach area is without such a station. Mrs. Hardesty said that "a school without walls" seems to be the answer to the deficiency of educational facilities and public acceptance of educational television has been well attested to by the success of the Frank Baxter Shakespearean broadcasts.

Mrs. Eunice Snyder, president of the club, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Cornelia Pollard introduced the speaker. Marjorie Reed, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Russell Davidson, provided the musical portion of the program.

War Mothers

November birthday celebrators will be honored at the Monday meeting of American War Mothers Chapter 5 in Veterans Memorial Building, Broadway and Cedar. Convening at 11:30 a. m., members will enjoy a covered dish luncheon at noon. Mrs. Laura Addis will preside at the 1 p. m. business session.

Schroeder-Walker Vows in Episcopal Rite

A gown of white silk shantung, fashioned with lace bodice, complemented the bridal loveliness of Lt. Maybelle R. Walker of Parks Air Force Base, when she exchanged nuptial vows and rings with A/1c Arnold L. Schroeder Jr., also of Parks Air Force Base, at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in a late afternoon ceremony read by Rev. Hiram Crosby.

The bride, daughter of James A. Walker of Chicago, Ill., was given in marriage by her father. Her bridal veil cascaded to elbow length from a seed pearl crown, and she carried white orchids with stephanotis.

Lt. Marjorie Kindem attended as maid of honor, wearing an emerald green satin sheath dress and carrying bronze and gold spider mums. Ronald R. Schroeder, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the 75 wedding guests were escorted to their places by Kenneth C. Williams and Martin McNair. The bridegroom's sister, Michele Lynn Schroeder, was flower girl.

Mrs. Arnold Schroeder Jr.

The church parish hall was scene of a reception honoring the newlyweds, with Capt. Mildred I. Butler of the Air Force Nurses Corps, and Mmes. Paul Ytreeide, Glenn Martin and Ray Jones as hostesses.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Laguna Beach, and now are residing at Danville.

Mrs. Schroeder, a member of the Air Forces Nurses Corps, was graduated from the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago. Her bridegroom, son of Col. and Mrs. A. L. Schroeder, 2229 Montair Ave., was graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. He will attend Oregon State next fall following completion of his Air Force service.

Guide Plans

Activities of South Bay Kappa Alpha Theta alumnae are being directed by the group's new executives, Mrs. Lawrence Green, president; Mrs. Paul Morgan, vice president; Mrs. William Moyn III, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Les Bailey, treasurer; Mrs. Janet Brown, hospitality; Mrs. Evan Chatfield, public relations and scrapbook, and Mmes. Earl Lackey and Richard Carlton, Panhellenic delegates.

Karl Seethaler to Exhibit Art in Vienna

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

Here is a peaceful note from the strife-torn shores of the Danube:

Karl Seethaler, director of the Long Beach Academy of Art, has been notified that the Austrian Cultural Society (Oesterreichische Kulturvereinigung) will sponsor a one-man exhibition of his work in the Vienna Concert House (Wiener Konzerthaus) starting Jan. 8. Seventy of Seethaler's paintings and sculptures will be displayed in the foyer of the building.

The Seethalers (Karl and Marguerite) on their recent trip abroad saw an exhibition there when they attended a concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The paintings will be selected by a jury from 150 of Seethaler's works now in Vienna, according to his Vienna agent, United Press representative Hans Janitschek.

Simultaneously, the jury will pick out five or six pictures for the spring show of Austrian artists at the Kuenstlerhaus, to which Seethaler was invited when he was in Vienna.

The Austrian Cultural Society is composed of the elite of Vienna, according to Janitschek. Its president is Egon Seefehlner, managing director of the Vienna State Opera and the membership includes statesmen, university professors, industrialists, etc.

Karl Loebl, cultural editor and art critic of the Bild-Telegraf, Vienna newspaper, was instrumental in obtaining sponsorship of the group for Seethaler's show. Loebl interviewed the Long Beach man on his arrival in Vienna and wrote an article on his work at the Long Beach Academy of Art, Brittany Gardens, 1st St. and Atlantic Ave.

Two other articles written by Janitschek and mentioning Long Beach have appeared in Vienna newspapers.

"I believe the fact that I was born in Austria may have some bearing on this piece of good luck," said the Academy's director.

Paul Edmond Soldner, whose ceramic work has been in many major exhibits in the United States and who has won awards for ceramics, graphic arts and photography, will address the Long Beach Art Assn. at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Virgil Bullock will be program chairman.

Soldner received his Master of Fine Arts degree in ceramics last June from the Los Angeles County Art Institute—the first student to receive that degree from the Institute. His thesis was a creative experiment to discover new ceramic forms suggested by an extended throwing technique, made possible by an improved potter's wheel and stoneware body.

The fall show of the San Pedro Art Assn. opens today in Hotel Hacienda, where it will remain through Nov. 23. A "Meet the Jury" dinner is slated for 6:30 p.m. The jury included Willard Sheets, Arthur Beaumont, Caesar Hernandez.

San Pedro Art Assn. officers are Virgil M. Bullock, president; Wynne Jewers, vice president; Ruby Butcher, secretary; Jessie Bohney, treasurer; Leslie Stone, publicity chairman.

The association will present a series of lectures on fine arts sponsored by the San Pedro Adult School at 8:15 p.m. Thursdays in Hotel Hacienda. Speakers and dates: Arthur Beaumont, marine artist, Nov. 29; Noel Quinn, water colorist, Dec. 13; Ted Gillen, oil painter, Jan. 3; Caesar Hernandez, water colorist, Jan. 17.

Eight colorcastings and two mosaic-castings by Leo S. Hunter, 2808 Monogram Ave., will be displayed the remainder of this month in the Lakewood Plaza branch of the Bank of America, near Palo Verde Ave. and Spring Sts.

They are "African Stalemate," "Lighthearted," "Mrs. Chaney's Bookshop," "Barracuda," "Cruiser," Symphony," "Bohemia," "Survival," "The Musicians," "The Flower Cart."

"The Old Homestead" by Ann (Mrs. Norman) Olmsted won first place in the recent fourth annual art show of the Long Beach Junior Women's Club in the North Long Beach branch library.

Second place went to Meda (Mrs. H. A.) Herbrig for "Faad," portrait of a young Arab employed by the Herbrigs when they lived in Arabia.

Third place went to Athena Hall for "Seclusion," a secluded cottage.

Honorable mention went to Myrle Cooke for "Sis's Farm"; Helen Cott, "Ocean Scene"; Jackie Gott, "Trees and Pond"; David Donevan, "Tartan Warrior."

Drawings, paintings and sculpture by Elizabeth Gyler, Rod Briggs and Connor Everts make up a Christmas show which will open Monday at The Studio, 1009 Ximeno Ave. The show will remain through Dec. 28. Hours are 9-5, closed Sunday.

Ben Messick will demonstrate casein painting at the meeting of the Cultural Arts Center Assn., Inc., at 8 p.m. Monday in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The demonstration and lecture will be open to the public.

fessional arrangement.

Judges will be Mrs. Walter Desmond Jr., Mrs. Pearl McInnis, Mrs. James Kresl, Jimmy Jones and Howard E. Rogers.

All entries will be sold to the public and buyers may call for their purchases beginning at 1 p.m. on Dec. 3.

Although holiday-conscious folk have come to look forward to this delightful event for its charm, color and atmosphere, they are motivated, too, by the underlying purpose of the project.

Adoptions Are Goal

Entire proceeds go to further the adoption work of the Children's Home Society of California, an agency which is a member of the local Community Chest.

Sandlarks, with 25 active and 58 associated and sustaining members, is one of 95 auxiliaries throughout the state interested in adoption work. Mrs. Fred Lehman is president of the organization and Mrs. George Lake is chairman of the Christmas Fantasy.

In 1955 the Children's Home Society gave services to 235 families in Long Beach. A total of more than 500 children were placed for adoption in all areas through the agency, and it is expected that the number will be 600 in 1956.

In Long Beach 78 couples entered requests for children, 21 youngsters were placed for temporary care in boarding homes, 12 adoptions were completed and 8 other children were placed for adoption.

A dream of the future, which Sandlarks hopes will soon come true, is the establishment of a local office for the Children's Home Society.

At present, the agency does much of its work here through the Family Service of Long Beach and through the Catholic Welfare Bureau. A major service is counselling—last year 1,200 natural parents sought assistance.

Shortly after the first of the new year, the agency will begin a campaign to promote interest in adoptions in minority groups.

Sandlark members, devoted to the interests of children, work constantly toward an objective. Their shining purpose is that Christmas, and every day, may be radiant with joy as childless couples and parentless children are welded by love into the circle of a whole family.

Among Career Women

Week Highlighted by Tribute to Popular Career Woman

By ANNE GILCHRIST

One of the most heart-warming tributes ever paid a Long Beach career woman was "collected" by Glada Strode Thrall upon her retirement as program director of the Long Beach Armed Services YMCA. Mrs. Thrall was honored during last Sunday's evening buffet dinner at the Y for service men of Long Beach.

Judge Lyman Sutter, chairman of the committee of management, was joined by other members and their wives in serving the dinner and presenting the terrific evening for Mrs. Thrall which was highlighted by a "This Is Your Life" program. Chaplain Harvey McClellan, USN, was in charge of evening arrangements assisted by Mrs. James Bickel, Raymond Gillingham and George McLean, secretary of the organization. Clovis Putney, new director, organized the gala program.

The honoree has served as program director of the Long Beach Armed Services Y for the past eight years and preceding this served in a similar capacity in Shanghai, China, and in Honolulu. By tape recordings, through pictures and in-person surprise attendance service men and women who have known Mrs. Thrall throughout the years participated in the unfolding of "This Is Your Life." At the close of the program she was presented with a tape recorded transcript of the entire proceedings and a book inscribed to her in which all the letters, telegrams and pictures received for the occasion had been placed.

The honoree and her husband will continue to live in Long Beach with Mrs. Thrall embarking on a new career as a teacher in the local school system. For many years she has been associated with Pilot Club, prominent Long Beach women's service club.

Quota Club

The old saying, "never a dull moment," could easily be adopted by Quota Club as its slogan if its pace of this past week continues. Week ago last night members and their guests were bidden by Rita (Stanfield) Phipps and Genevieve Parker for a home cooked lasagna dinner and card party at the home of Mrs. Phipps, 3940 Linden Ave.

Another personalized ways and means feature, the party was successful from all standpoints providing fun for those attending and financial gain for Quota's coffers. Then Monday night members met at the Lafayette Hotel for a regularly scheduled business dinner. It was voted to donate the Saturday night revenue plus additional money from the treasury for the use of foreign exchange students enrolled at Long Beach State College, the fund to be handled by Dr. James Nagar, LBSC counsellor of international students.

Tuesday club energies will be devoted to the monthly party Quota gives for its adopted ward at Long Beach General Hospital. Mrs. Phipps, November hospital chairman, and her committee will provide the customary gifts for ward patients, refreshments and program.

Lois Provart, transfer member from Eureka Quota Club, was welcomed to Long Beach membership Monday.

Soroptimist Club

"Business as usual" was dispensed with at Long Beach Soroptimist Club meeting Friday at the Lafayette Hotel to enable all members to become acquainted with their five newest sister members: Bess Bulgin, Mabel S. Colton, Roma K. Martin, Esther M. May and Ella Place. The honorees told informally of their work, special hobbies and interests during the period usually reserved for a program.

Wire Club

Wire Club (Women in Real Estate) had its annual Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mrs. Grace Small, 3025 Mariquita St. recently. Special guests of the evening were Ros and Pat Plonsky who now reside in Beverly Hills. Ros formerly served on staff of the Long Beach Realty Board office.

President Mary Marrotte dispensed with business for the evening. Winifred Allen, program chairman, presented gifts from the club to everyone present.

Pilot Club

Abner Sneed, special projects officer, Federal Department of Immigration and Naturalization, Terminal Island, will be guest speaker at the program dinner meeting of Pilot Club Wednesday evening in the Boulevard room, Hotel Lafayette. His topic will be, "Problems of Immigration: The McCarran Act."

Anna Louise Gruber, international relations chairman, will serve as program chairman with President Margaret Darby conducting. Carol Kuntz, student at Long Beach State College will be guest vocalist. Other special guests will include presidents of the Anchor Clubs of Wilson and Jordan High Schools which are sponsored by the Long Beach Pilots.

Home Rite Joins Pair

Single ring nuptials at their new Lakewood home, 6200 South St., united in marriage Mrs. Kathleen Gardner and Joseph Glen Gurtler. Rev. Russell G. Shaw of Trinity Methodist Church officiated.

The bride wore a burgundy and black tweed suit trimmed in velvet, and a gardenia corsage. Dainty silver beads adorned her hat of white fur felt. Mrs. J. S. Rustick, as matron of honor wore a champagne lace gown. Attending the bridegroom was Millard Andrich.

The new Mrs. Gurtler is the daughter of Mrs. C. A. Elgin of Long Beach and V. H. Estes of Tulsa, Okla. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Chris O. Gurtler of Long Beach.

A reception followed the ceremony, with the newlyweds later departing on a honeymoon trip to Palm Springs.

Sewing Bee

Anna Etheridge Tent No. 58, Daughters of Union Veterans, will have its sewing and social club meeting at the home of Mrs. Sue Jones, 1639 E. 7th St., at 11 a.m. Monday. Following a sandwich luncheon, Lillian Elstad will be in charge of the afternoon sewing session.

FESTIVE DATE

Preparing for their one big social event of the year —a Thanksgiving Charity Dance Wednesday at Lakewood Country Club — are these members of Young Ladies Institute, from left, Mrs. Joe Hammer, Mrs. Anthony Andrade, Mrs. Laurence Maguire and Mrs. Don Wells. Ray Broggie and his orchestra will play for dancing. The public is welcome.

YLI Dance to Herald Thanksgiving

Turkeys will be stuffed, pumpkin pies baked and all Thanksgiving preparations done early for members of Young Ladies Institute who will entertain Wednesday evening with their annual Thanksgiving Charity Dance at Lakewood Country Club to which the public is welcome.

Proceeds from the group's one big social event of the year will be contributed to the Golden Jubilee Burse, to be presented to the Archdiocese for the education of young men studying for the priesthood.

Included in the entertainment will be a variety show by the Marion Rankin Dance Studio. Ray Broggie and his orchestra will play for dancing.

Heading this year's committee are Mmes. Anthony Andrade and Joe Hammer, assisted by Mmes. Fred Pace, Ward Dixon, William Klein, Don Wells, Laurence Maguire, Misses Martha Metzger, Elaine Hauck and Dorothy Powell.

Cactus Club Plans Fete for Holidays

Plans for a gala Christmas party and turkey dinner were announced at the recent meeting of Long Beach Cactus Club in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, 5933 Lime Ave. The holiday festivities will take place Dec. 16 in Mrs. Sue H. Loomis' home.

President Clarence Wright conducted the November business session which was highlighted by a question and answer period on plant propagation and classification.

Informality was the order of the day for the meeting in the delightful Miller home, noted for its large gardens, covered patio and inviting rumpus room. In the latter multi-hued tile covers the floor, and beautifully designed inlaid tables are used to fashion the room's tables and long benches.

Fascinating vari-colored rocks and bright desert glass, all collected by the Millers on their many tours, faced the impressive fireplace. On the walls, shelves hold interesting collectors' items, new and antique.

Refreshments were served by the hosts.

Rite Reflects Loving Sentiment

Like a page re-read from a beloved book, the marriage service of Earlene Joan Opie and Garry Lane Leming repeated details made significant in the ceremony which united her parents 23 years ago.

The bride's gown and her flowers were purchased at the same shops which supplied her mother's accoutrements, the reception was given in First Foursquare Church where the earlier wedding was performed, and the bride's grandfather read the service as he had the other one nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Earlene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Opie, 324 Bort St. Escorted to the altar at Colonial Tabernacle by her father, she wore lace trimmed ivory satin with a fingertip-length veil. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

She and her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Leming, 1109 Lime Ave., spoke vows before 500 guests. Her grandfather, the Rev. Earl H. Opie, was assisted in performing the ceremony by the bride's pastor, the Rev. O. C. Harms, and the bridegroom's pastor, the Rev. David Shock. Dr. Peter Slack of KGER played the beautiful wedding music.

Linda Opie, in shrimp colored taffeta, was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids Darlene Mittlestedt, Doris Russell, Millicent Weygandt, Nina Armstrong and Claudia Taylor wore deep aqua taffeta.

The bridegroom's brother, Larry Leming, was best man. Bill Hemple, George Evans, Vernon Leming, Tom Allen and Joe Lee Goodman ushered. Little Kathy Moll was flower girl.

The bride attended Jordan High School and is now enrolled at Long Beach State College. She is a member of the American Guild of Organists. Her husband is a graduate of Polytechnic High School.

After a Santa Barbara honeymoon, the newlyweds will make their home in this city.

Mrs. Garry Lane Leming

Norma Warbington Now Mrs. Ralph A. Anderson

Lighted tapers cast a soft glow in First Brethren Church for the double ring wedding Nov. 9 of Miss Norma Susan Warbington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Warbington, 4552 Monogram Ave., and Ralph Arthur Anderson, 1715 Cherry Ave., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Anderson of Fargo, N. D.. Dr. Charles W. Mayes read the lines.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of rosepoint lace and net over satin. Insets of the lace adorned the full length train. Her fingertip length veil was held by a crown of seed pearls, rhinestones and sequins. She carried white orchids and stephanotis on a white Bible.

Mary Ann Martin, the maid of honor, was attired in a gown of American beauty velvet with scalloped neckline. Mrs. Dwight Foster, Mrs. Jack Britton and Miss Carol Jean Anderson attended in gowns of varying shades of American beauty and pink velvet similar to that of the maid of honor. All carried cascade bouquets of pink camellias and wore matching hats.

Lee Stauffacher was best man to the bridegroom. Seating the 200 guests were Rodger McClelland, Ronnie Olson and William Mills.

After a reception in the social hall of the church the young couple left on a trip to Idyllwild and Palm Springs. They will be at home in Long Beach after Nov. 26.

The new Mrs. Anderson was graduated from Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City College. She was a member of Tammuz sorority.

The bridegroom's family was in the city from the midwest for the ceremony. His mother and sister plan to winter in Long Beach.

Service Families Will Travel Far to Join Together for Thanksgiving Observance

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Wonderful Thanksgiving time moves front and center stage to star in the many fall activities of the busy Service Set.

Among the many family gatherings for Thanksgiving will be the one at the home of Rear Adm. George J. McMillin, USN (ret.) and charming Mrs. McMillin. And again this year, sharing honors with the turkey, will be the admiral's birthday cake.

Those who will join the family dinner and birthday celebration will be Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lightbody and children; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lightbody; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen, who are the admiral's uncle and aunt from Laguna, and their son, George J. McMillin Jr.

Another Thanksgiving birthday to be celebrated will be the sixth one of Joan Kauffman and ninth of her sister Nancy. A gala birthday event is planned for the two sisters by their parents, Cmdr. and Mrs. Maurice Kauffman of NAS, Los Alamitos. Also helping with the plans are sister Susan and brother, Charles.

Both Joan and Nancy arrived on Thanksgiving Day, although three years apart.

Then up in Mill Valley Michael Creel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Creel will blow out five candles on Thanksgiving Day. Flying up for the party will be his grandmother, Mrs. Margie M. Cobb of this city.

Looks like they'll be able to form a girls' trio before too long at the home of Mrs. Edwina P. Gladden, where Lt. and Mrs. William Lee Jr. welcomed their third child, a beautiful little girl, Susan Jeffery.

Susan, seven pounds and 12 ounces, arrived Nov. 8 and was welcomed at home by her grandmother, Mrs. Gladden, and by her sisters Edwina and Nell White. There was much black cigar smoke drifting this way from San Diego when the happy father, Lt. Lee, announced the event to his shipmates aboard the USS Alamo.

Speaking of new residents, there's a new member in town at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Larner. They recently welcomed a son, Mathew John, who weighed eight pounds and three ounces. Besides being welcomed by his three sisters Linda, Laura and Leslie, he was most joyfully greeted by grandparents, Capt. and Mrs. Harold Larner of this city.

Among those going away for Thanksgiving will be Cmdr. and Mrs. R. M. Whepley, who will be with their old friends Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Parham Jr., and children in White Sands, N. M. Now visiting with the Whepleys are Rear Adm. and Mrs. Walter L. Dyer, down from San Francisco.

Then off by train to Albuquerque, N. M., go Mrs. Alberta Davis, and daughters, Diana and Terry Lenore, and father, Stanley Simpson, to enjoy Thanksgiving at the home of Mrs. Davis' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hightower and daughters Susan Lynn and Cindy Lee. Also from the city will be Mrs. Davis' parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hovey. And joining the gang there will be a sister-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. Crook Waller and Johnny.

Thanksgiving dinner this year will be enjoyed by Cmdr. and Mrs. W. G. Nicol at the home of Mrs. Nicol's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons of this city. And coming here from New Mexico for the dinner will be Mrs. Emmons' mother, Mrs. Walter Hill.

New hospitality chairman for the Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base is Mrs. William Kline, appointed last week by the president, Mrs. Durwood Hegland.

Last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. B. Koethe, a delightful coffee gathering was enjoyed by the wives of officers attached to the USS Helena. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. K. B. Brisco.

Last night Capt. and Mrs. James A. Shilson entertained at the cocktail hour for officers attached to the USS Bryce Canyon and their ladies.

Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Hogan entertained a group of friends recently at a cocktail party.

The Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base had a cake sale recently. Hostesses at their dessert bridge on Friday were Mrs. Hunter Alverson and Mrs. Roma Brooks.

Instead of their coffee at the end of the month, the group will tour a furniture factory and a candy factory in Los Angeles on Nov. 30.

While in San Francisco recently Capt. and Mrs. Arthur F. Spring enjoyed a visit with Mrs. Spring's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Murphy Jr.

Chaplain and Mrs. Ward McCabe entertained a group of friends recently at a dinner party in their Belmont Shore home.

Guest speaker this Sunday at the Navy Family Chapel will be Chaplain L. W. Meacham of El Toro. He will also baptize little Warren and Kenneth Kopes, son of Marine and Mrs. William Kopes. Hostesses for the coffee hour following will be Mrs. Leroy Rodd and her sister, Mrs. M. Sapot. Flowers for the altar will be given by the personnel of the USS Steven Potter.

Variety in Civic Show Program

Ben Phelan Studio will present young dancers in a fast moving variety show of ballet, tap, acrobatic and personality singing on the Community Program, sponsored by the Recreation Department, in the Exhibit Hall of Municipal Auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

From the opening ensemble "Alabama Jubilee" to the closing group of "Oh-By-Jingo" barberians, the program will move with rapid pace and will offer many interesting acts. Katherine Trammell will accompany the young dancers at the piano.

Dancers include April Allard, Diane Allen, Debra Austin, Linda Bales, Barbara and Mary Jo Bartholomeo, Ginger Bentley, Randi and Leslie Blesner, Linda Bobbitt, Debbie Browne, Patti Brownlow, Polly Burnham, Dorothy Cassio, Peggy Cooper, Nikki Crabtree, Mary Davis, Colleen Dellan, Kathy Drum, Donna and Kathy Duffy, Patricia Ellis, Colleen Gallaway, Pamela Huber, Carol Jensen, Felicia Kirchmann, Sally Knox, Earlynn and Sharon Lancaster, Diane Lewis, Leslie McCombs, Linda McInturff, Diane McManamy, Kirsten Perry, Susan Peterson, Teri Rauscher, Charlotte Reels, Barbara Santiago, Connie Sico, Deena Jo Smith, Connie Stolp, Linda Vegas, Barbara Wallace, and Alice Zavala.

Community singing will open the program at 7:30 p.m. led by George Griffith with Mrs. Madeline Frazer as accompanist.

Old time and square dancing to the music of the Tyo Orchestra will follow the stage performance.

Everyone is invited to this free civic program.

Neighbors Meet

Ocean View No. 297, Neighbors of Woodcraft, will meet Tuesday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave., with special district guests officiating. Marguerete Truman will be in charge of refreshments. All Neighbors are invited.

Ormond W. Merritt

Chef of the Week

Calorie Counters Click as 'Uranium Orm' Cooks

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

. . . "And so, today, Florida and California meet." Chef of the Week Ormond W. Merritt, in his search for year 'round sunshine, left that other place and came to Southern California in 1922, and to Long Beach in 1935.

Our "chef" actually was given his "given" name from Ormond Beach, Fla. You see, his dad, one of the earliest golf pros, had two golf courses . . . a summer one at Brettonwood, N. H., and a winter one at Ormond Beach, Fla. Merritt was born in Boston, Mass.

Once here, he made a complete departure from the family "profession." He became promotional manager of the Los Angeles Athletic Club chain, a position which he held for 10 years. Three of those years he managed the Pacific Coast Club.

Inspired and influenced by the importance of the culinary arts, he dreamed of his own restaurant. That dream took shape in Ormondo's, a restaurant which he originated and built in 1946. During the next three years he had some of the most famous European chefs in his employ. The supervisory assistance of Mrs. Merritt, a home economics major from Simmon College, Boston, Mass., is not to be discounted.

After selling his restaurant, Merritt conducted an import-export business with the Philippines, for a number of years, before organizing the American Plant Protection Co.

In this project, he is still active . . . but in a unique fashion. He grubstaked two of his guards in search of uranium. You can guess the rest . . . he made the most of it, now owning the largest uranium deposit in the State of California. His company, of which he is president, is known as Coso Uranium, Inc. They are now negotiating the first uranium mill to be built in our state. It will be located at Lone Pine.

Membership in the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, keeping "hep" with his two teen-age daughters and teaching his young son to play golf, occupy his spare moments.

Needless to say, when he cooks, he's doing what comes naturally. Today, he's preparing a Chateaubriand.

Chateaubriand

Brown a short tenderloin quickly on four sides. Slice in half-inch slices and serve with Sauce Bernaise.

SAUCE BERNAISE

To Hollandaise Sauce add finely chopped parsley, tarragon, shallot or onion. One-half teaspoon horseradish may be added if desired.

Bazaar Plans

Woman's Relief Corps No. 93 will meet in Veterans Memorial Building Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 to complete plans for the club's annual bazaar set for Nov. 27. Luncheon will be served.

DBE Luncheon

DBE members will gather for luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Doris Newton, 560 E. 21st St.

Look Who's Dancing . . . . .

Harvest time—festival time—time for blessing counting and thanks giving—and time for happy people to rejoice once again in the bountiful plenty of our land. Bright young faces above dancing feet—lilting melodies over a gleaming floor—warmth and laughter—Call's Fine Arts Center at Thanksgiving week.

Why Grow Old?

Voice Is Part of Beauty; Practice to Use It Well

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do you realize that the impact of a voice, even over the telephone, is so terrific that large companies often employ experts to instruct the women who take their business calls? The experts teach them how to get "life" into their voices as well as graciousness and good telephone manners.

A voice can give you a lift. It can make you feel valued and warm or it can irritate you, leave you flat or sometimes even make you mad.

If a big business recognizes the importance of an attractive speaking voice, one which has enthusiasm and understanding, why shouldn't we take a hint? Our friends, our social life, the members of our family, the people we deal with in business, all make up our personal world and there is no world so important to us.

In addition, we just naturally expect a charming woman to have a charming voice. When she doesn't it is a jarring note in an otherwise pleasant personality. Your voice is the most important medium for expressing your thoughts, moods and emotions.

Unless there is some structural abnormality, an unattractive voice is usually due to tenseness, laziness or unawareness. Do you really listen to yourself when you talk in order to see how you sound to others? I doubt that you do and, actually, it would take the spontaneity and fun out of conversation if you were that engrossed in yourself.

However, reading aloud is splendid training in developing a magnetic speaking voice. Listen to your diction as well as to the tone of your voice. Pitch it low and pronounce the words distinctly and do not omit syllables and endings. Also try to reflect in tone the moods and thoughts on the printed page.

There are two extremes which detract from an attractive voice. There is the person who has tense jaws, tense lips, a tense tongue and so forth. Then there is the one that has a very lazy mouth. The former leads to a scratchy or shrill voice while the other is the indistinct mumbling kind. Try to avoid either of these.

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

Well, the verdict is in on last Friday's homecoming: the best ever! And despite the fact that their school is still new enough that they can count all past homecomings without taking off their shoes, students at Long Beach State can feel a genuine satisfaction in this year's celebration.

Probably the biggest surprise was the excellence of the float construction; the dean of students complimented the builders when he said all floats would do credit to any college campus in the nation.

Only thing missing was a large number of "old grads" returning to marvel at the many changes taking place. But time will remedy this little deficiency.

Congratulations to Lynn Richmond, Jerry Jones, Gary Flynn and all the others who labored mightily to make Homecoming 1956 a wonderful day. You have given future Forty-Niners a high standard to match.

Now that the hustle and bustle of homecoming is over, and with Thanksgiving vacation—short as it is—almost upon us, a little relaxing is the order of the day.

The Sigma Kappas get things under way tomorrow evening in the student lounge when they host sorority and fraternity members in their regular semester All-Greek Coffee Hour.

Practically a tradition at State, the affair will provide a chance for all the Greeks to gather in one spot and become better acquainted.

Still in a relaxing mood, students will have piano music next Wednesday night when Dorothy Judy Klein is featured in the fourth of the Fall Evenings on Campus. Miss Klein's recital in the campus Little Theater at 8:30 p.m. is open to the public. The program will include works of Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Liszt, Debussey and Shostokovich.

Also listed on the social calendar is a Sigma Alpha Epsilon Thanksgiving dance. Wasn't able to contact any of the SAE boys as to the details, however. Guess they were just too relaxed.

Placer Miner is one of the lucky ones who moved into quarters in the new administration building recently. The new nerve center of the college is an impressive structure, and its occupants are glorying in all the working space available. All facilities are so designed for efficient work handling that we don't see how anyone in the building can help but do a much better job.

LBSC students are responding generously to Crusade for Hungary Week, Nov. 14-21. Designed to raise funds to aid unfortunate student victims of the Hungarian revolt, the Crusade acquired $600 in the first two days.

Jack Markel, chairman of the campus World University Service, the International student aid group which will channel help through its Geneva offices, and Student Body President Huey Shepard are sparking the drive. The two have set a goal of $2,000. They invite the public to join the State student body in their rehabilitation efforts.

Contributions or inquiries should be addressed to Crusade for Hungary Committee at the college. The mailing address is 6101 E. 7th St., Long Beach 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Preston

Pair Notes Golden Year

Four generations were represented at the recent golden anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Preston, 5662 Myrtle Ave., in the American Legion Hall, North Long Beach.

Host and hostess for the evening were the couple's two sons and wives, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Preston, all of Long Beach, and one daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore from Midpines.

Gowned in rose lace trimmed in satin and accented by a white orchid corsage, Mrs. Preston, with her husband, cut a four-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature gray-haired bride and bridegroom. Golden gladiolas, white stock and bronze pompon chrysanthemums centered the tables, which were further adorned with rich ivy and yellow mums.

Among the 125 friends and relatives showering felicitations on the goldenweds were five grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and several of the original wedding guests of 50 years ago.

Miss Eunice Smock attended the guest book while Mrs. Ruby Wilcox registered gifts. Hostesses were Mmes. Glen Yudis and William Spurrier.

The couple exchanged wedding vows in Oconta, Neb., and moved from that town to Long Beach in 1924. Mr. Preston has been employed by the City of Long Beach for many years.

Chi Omega Dinner

Chi Omega Mothers Club of USC will host its traditional Thanksgiving dinner for families and friends of actives, pledges and alumnae, at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Chapter house, according to Mrs. Gustav C. Berg, president. A program will follow dinner.

Coronado Visit

Recent guests at Hotel del Coronado have been Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Howell and Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Sommerville, all of Long Beach.

Our Children

Guiding Power of Love Is Great—Use It Wisely

By ANGELO PATRI

When talking about loving the children so that they feel wanted and cherished, one must define love, say what that means to him. Judging by the letters I get about this, it is evident that some people quite mistake the whole idea.

One group thinks that it means giving a child anything he desires short of the moon, regardless of what that may cost other people. That is not what we mean by giving a child love.

Others say that advocating this love is to encourage the parents to spoil their children by giving them their own way, making parents afraid to teach their children the hard facts of daily life and so make them unfit for that life. This is again the wrong idea of what we mean by love.

Love is a powerful force, a strengthening force. Any attitude toward children that weakens their understanding of their place in the scheme of things, that gives them the idea that to have and to get is the aim-all, end-all of life, is not love. Quite the contrary.

A truly loving parent knows that things never make anybody happy for any length of time. Things do not touch the spirit of men with love, but quite the reverse. Too much getting without giving dulls the spirit and creates selfishness, breeds attitudes that can only end in unhappiness.

A loving parent shields his children from their unknowing demands. He says "No" when that is necessary for the sake of the demanding child and for the welfare of the family. That "No" once given and held fast can be a bulwark of strength to a child. He leans on it, although he may be unconscious of the attitude behind it. It is the force that gives the child confidence in the security of home and family. Underneath his seeming rebellion, there is the reliance on the strength of father and mother. They care about him.

The children of today take cars, planes, telephones, entertainment as matters of course, and because they do not know the dangers, difficulties, entanglements these accessories of modern life bring with them, they reach for them. Wisely loving parents shorten that reach and allow their children gradually to become acquainted with these useful things, preparing them, teaching them how to use things sensibly.

A 15-year-old boy complains that his father will not buy him a car. A 13-year-old girl complains that her parents won't allow her to "go steady." A small boy cries because his mother says he cannot ride his velocipede beyond the first corner and must not under any circumstances cross the road. Such mandates come from wisely loving parents. Cheers for them.

If your child has bad eating habits, or is a food fusser, you can find the solution to your problem by following Dr. Patri's advice included in booklet No. 303, "Feeding Children." To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin to him, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Bad Guess Unnecessary

The grand slam was a very reasonable contract in today's hand, and should have been made. South gave himself a guess without really needing to do so.

West opened the ten of hearts, and dummy won with the queen. Without thinking ahead, declarer took the ace of spades and continued with the king and queen.

The spades did not break, and South had to choose a discard on the third round of that suit. After much thought, South discarded a club, since he seemed to have a better chance for four tricks in diamonds than in clubs.

	NORTH 17
	♠ K Q 10 5 3 ♥ Q 2 ♦ A K 10 ♣ A K 3
WEST		EAST
♠ 9 4 ♥ 10 9 8 3 ♦ J 8 4 2 ♣ J 8 6		♠ J 8 6 2 ♥ 7 6 5 4 ♦ 7 5 ♣ 10 9 5
	SOUTH (D) ♠ A 7 ♥ A K J ♦ Q 9 6 3 ♣ Q 7 4 2

North-South vul.

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	7 N.T.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ 10

The rest of the story is simply told. The diamonds failed to break and South wound up with only 12 tricks.

There was no need for South to suffer this misfortune. The correct play is to save the spades for last and to try out the diamonds and clubs very early.

If South first tries the diamonds, he discovers that the suit doesn't break. He next tries the clubs, and can claim 13 tricks when the suit breaks favorably. Even if both suits fail to break, South can still fall back on the spades, having lost nothing by his preliminary plays.

Told Value of Service in Military

In keeping with Veterans Day observance, Altrusa Club asked Edward Gulliver to appear as guest speaker at its Monday dinner meeting at the Lafayette Hotel.

Choosing as his topic, "The Importance of Universal Training," the speaker, a graduate of Harvard University and former member of the Armed Forces Strategic Services, said that men's understanding of their duty toward their nation is invariably strengthened through military training. They are stronger physically and mentally because of their experiences.

Susan Moore, accompanied by Jerry Morse, was evening's soloist. Mrs. Jean Joyce, acting program chairman, introduced Gulliver and Miss Moore.

President Carmel Tyo conducted the meeting. Myrtle Poultney announced that Mrs. Joyce was winner of the club's "Double the Buck" ways and means project of last month.

Molly Mayfield

He's a Confirmed Wife-Beater

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

To get to the point quickly, I left my husband last summer. I was two months pregnant at the time. When I told him there was to be another child, he became furiously angry and threw me down the steps.

He has an awful habit of drinking and fighting. Not that he'd fight anybody who had half a chance—just me and the children. I put up with this for three years, and finally packed and got out. What else was I to do despite the fact the children were only nine and two, and there was another on the way.

Well, I didn't walk far enough. I went to stay with my parents, as he knew I would. After three or four months of living alone he decided he'd like to settle down again.

In the meantime, I met a man who loves my children. He even helped me pay the hospital bill when my baby was born. This man says he loves me and wants to make a home for us.

My husband, though, promised to reform and I finally went back to him. A mistake, I'm afraid, as he has started drinking again. Now I'm wondering if I should go back to the man who really loves us. My husband beats me two or three times a week.—DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I'm not going to say "go back to the other man," because I simply don't know enough about that part of the whole situation. Maybe he is worthy; maybe he isn't. Maybe he loves you; maybe he doesn't. At least he cared enough to help you when you needed it most.

However, the question of staying with a man who beats you up seems to me so utterly absurd I hardly know what to say. If you can manage on your own, or with help from friends or parents, then why risk your health, and happiness of your children by putting up with such bestial abuse?—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I guess my problem is typically American and happens in every neighborhood, but I am getting to the point where I'm bored with the childish women of today.

My wife happens to be a "Queen Bee," which happens to mean the type that has to be constantly getting the neighborhood women to come over for "coffee." Then the gossip starts flowing and I get it all when I come home, when all I ask is for a nice rest with my three kids.

I'd like your advice, Molly, because I'm seriously thinking of taking up dancing, bowling or anything to get away from my miserable evenings at home. Let me hear from you.—GEORGE S.

DEAR GEORGE S.:

I wish I could be more sympathetic. But, you see, I can't blame your wife for having the gals in for "coffee," or going out with them; I can't blame her for being interested in the neighborhood gossip.

I certainly can't blame her for wanting to discuss it with you. After all, you both have—or should have—mutual interest in the neighborhood.

Why not start taking her out for dancing or bowling or what-not so she will have other interests besides the neighbors? Why not, indeed! —M.M.

Your Baby & Mine

Family's Friction

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Every parent knows when a child's behavior is beyond the ordinary. She knows when no one's child she knows acts this way, that there must be extraordinary reasons why hers does. Then it is time to find someone to study the child, to study the family to ferret out the causes for this unusual behavior. It demands all of that.

Mrs. R. B. says she baby-sits and has for more than 10 months for a 5-year-old child. "He is brought here at 5 a.m. and goes to sleep until 8 or 9 a.m. He is good until his mother comes for him and then you would think he was a changed boy. He threw a spoon at me and hit my glasses. When she calls he brings in dirt and dumps it on the floor. He picks up rugs and swings them about. He wets in the wastebasket. He soils his clothes (about five times a week). He kicks the milk off the front porch. He will step on you or kick you.

'The mother says other baby-sitters have told her the same. No amount of talking to or spanking works any change. His mother says he is good after she gets him home. She tries to make over him when she comes.

"I buy him a toy or a sundae any time we go to town. He begs to stay here all night and when I keep him over weekends he is a doll. He is a smart boy, loves attention. Perhaps his parents not getting along would be responsible for his behavior. They shower him with presents. He does not seem to notice the upset in the home. He has gained 12 pounds since I took him."

Of course, this boy is aware that something is awry in his home. His behavior is a perfect reflection of his anxiety and the hostility which springs from it. This hostility would most apt to be turned against the mother who leaves him for the whole day—and whom he may blame for the family difficulties.

The anxiety and hostility build up during his day with you—and you aren't to blame—but the moment his mother appears it is necessary for him to spill them out in all of the aggressive and naughty behavior he can think up.

I hope his mother will take this seriously and for the child's sake and maybe her own, consult some counselor who will study the family and the child and try to make some headway in smoothing out the tangles. The Family Social Service or a personal marriage counselor or psychologist or psychiatrist would all be helpful in this situation.

Our leaflet on "Obedience and Discipline," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it and ten cents to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of the Press-Telegram.

Honor Newlyweds on Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory were feted at a post-nuptial reception last Sunday by Captain and Mrs. James Tosh in their home, 929 Terraine Ave., from 3 until 5 p. m.

Mrs. Gregory is the former Suzanne Robinson. This visit to Long Beach marks the newlyweds' first trip here since their marriage in Redwood City on Sept. 22. They are visiting with the bride's mother, Mrs. Bevier Robinson, 411 Orlena Ave.

For the reception, to which 125 were bidden, the Tosh home was beautifully decorated in a repetitive color scheme of yellow and white. The tea table was centered by an arrangement of yellow crysanthemums flanked by tall silver candelabra aglow with white tapers.

Assisting the host and hostess were Miss Barbara Bakken, who stood with Mrs. Gregory as maid of honor, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Howard Bakken, Mrs. Katherine Herbert and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robinson, the bride's brother and sister-in-law.

Worry Clinic

Hubby's Wrath Increases as Wife Dawdles Around

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case T-316: Esther D., 23, has been married four years.

"Dr. Crane, Esther is an ideal wife," her husband admitted. "She is a wonderful cook and housekeeper. "She handles our little boy perfectly. She is also affectionate and charming. I still regard it as a delight to take her out on a date. But one fault has caused me to gripe and complain more than any other.

"It is her inability to be ready on time when we have an engagement at church or for a movie. She claims the baby delays her, but that isn't the real excuse, for she was like this before the baby came.

"Esther just has a poor sense of time. She thinks she can work in the kitchen till 10 minutes before our departure time, and still get ready. But she can't and for four years, I've explained and pleaded and even sarcastically bawled her out. Nothing has worked. Dr. Crane, what can you advise?"

* * * *

WIVES, what have you to say for yourselves. Why don't your surprise your mate and get into the automobile ahead of him? For Esther is guilty of the most widespread fault of all wives. Smart or dumb, young or old, wives seem chronically unable to steer their actions by a clock! And by detaining their husbands, they launch the latter into an ugly fit of criticism and faultfinding.

Many a good husband teaches a Bible Class on Sunday. He is scheduled to be on hand at a definite minute, such as 9:30 a. m. His devoted wife knows this, yet she may work in the kitchen till about 9:15 before putting on her make-up and her Sunday frock. Then she can't possibly be ready and in the car at 9:25 or even 9:30, so she causes the entire family to be late. And her irritated husband is then in no mood for a benevolent Sunday school lesson or sermon.

In order to make the crucial appointment on schedule, he may then speed unduly and possibly wreck the car.

Thousands of adults as well as children, have been killed or badly injured because the family didn't get started away from home on schedule.

* * * *

"BUT OUR WORK is never done," the wives defend themselves. "We are just trying to get Sunday dinner started and all the little chores finished before we leave."

That sounds logical, doesn't it? Yet wives are just about as slow in getting started even before they have any children to use as an alibi. And if they are dining out Sunday noon and thus have no home dinner to prepare, they still are late.

It is a rare woman who can judge time and get into the car on schedule. In fact, if any of you husbands reading this column have such a wife, please drop me a note so I can try to publicize her virtue in this respect.

Often I have suggested to Mrs. Crane that she get all ready for Sunday school first, and then, if she has 15 or 20 minutes of extra time, that she put on an apron and do some of her kitchen chores meanwhile.

"But I don't want to soil my good clothes in the kitchen," she alibies. "Then put on an apron," I have argued ineffectually for almost 30 years. "That's why aprons were invented."

The ability to watch a clock and complete duties before a deadline, is an adult reaction. Children ignore time pieces. Women seem to retain this same child-like disregard of clocks, too.

It would be so simple, however, for them to avoid these recurring criticisms from their husbands. Just get ready first and then wear that apron.

This feature appears Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Independent.

Demo Club Bazaar Set

Democratic Women's Study Club will sponsor luncheon and a bazaar Wednesday at the Woman's City Club building, 1309 E. Third St., under chairmanship of Mrs. Don McClellan and Mrs. Agnes Jarnagin.

Handiwork articles of members, suitable for Christmas giving, will be offered for sale from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Luncheon reservations may be made with Mrs. Reta Carter, 461 Gaviota Ave., and the public is welcome. Card playing will follow.

Members of the executive board will meet at 10 a.m. at the clubhouse, with Mrs. Lucien F. Remley presiding.

White and White

White nylon lingerie should always be washed with white things only.

Attend Conclave

Five members of Bellflower Business and Professional Women's Club received recognition at the recent conference of Sierra Mar District BPW Clubs at Lafayette Hotel. They were Mrs. Ada Robinson, recently named "Woman of the Year" by the local club; Frances Scott, Mary Ferguson, Carmen Osler and Eleanore Schmodel. Delegates also included Edythe Clearwater, Joan Cameron, Alba Kristensen, Margaret Milan and Dorothy Bush.

Give Warmth

Nice wear for baby or toddler during the days that precede winter are blue jeans lined in cotton flannel. Worn with a sweater and hat, they keep out the wind without making baby a bundle of clothes before it's necessary.

BRAND NEW
DIFFERENT! Like nothing you have ever tried before!
NOW AVAILABLE FOR FIRST TIME!

Flushes Fat Right Out of Your Body

REDUCE up to 6 pounds the first 2 days... up to 11 pounds the first week...

OR PAY NOTHING!

Just Like A Doctor's Prescription! Revolutionary New Reducing Regimen Guarantees Amazing Weight Reductions Without Fad Diets, Without Intense Hunger, Without Exercise! Proved Safe In Doctor-Conducted Tests!

Just released! An amazing scientific discovery that melts off up to 49 pounds of ugly fat! You lose up to 6 pounds the first two days... up to 11 or 12 pounds the first week... up to 40, 50 pounds or more in a reasonable length of time, without A SINGLE HUNGRY MOMENT, WITHOUT GIVING UP ALL THE FOODS YOU LOVE... or you pay nothing!

Yes, it's the amazing discovery you've heard about... the product you've wanted to try... now available for the first time ever!

It's amazing! It works all the time... while you eat, while you sleep, at work or at play, at home or away! Positively fantastic... so effective, your friends may barely recognize you as little as ten days from now!

Sound too good to be true? Don't take our word for it! Prove it to yourself! Try this amazing plan for 10 days entirely at our risk! It must work for you! Must produce the same fantastic results on your body as it has on countless others in Doctor-supervised clinical tests, or you don't pay one single penny!

You have nothing to lose but ugly fat! See for yourself! You be the judge! Read these scientific facts. Then take advantage of this fantastic no-risk offer!

HERE'S WHY OTHER PRODUCTS DON'T WORK!

Here are the facts! Straightforward, hard-hitting facts... just as your own doctor would tell them to you.

Ordinary reducing plans...the very kind you are probably familiar with... cannot, of themselves, reduce your weight! You have to furnish the will power. You have to do the starving! You have to cut down on the foods you enjoy eating! Then, and only then, will you lose weight!

In other words, the very reducing plans you have paid $5 and $10 for, do nothing more than appease or dull your appetite! You have to do the rest! And it's not hard to see why...

Not one of those passive reducing plans actually works on the root of your problem... your fatty tissue itself! Not one of those products helps to burn up ugly fat... to oxidize fat... to actually melt that fat away forever!

And you know it! When you took those products, you did all the work! You took pills and capsules three and four times a day! You turned down delicious foods you loved so well. You suffered week after weary week! And the results? Perhaps if you were very lucky, you lost 5 or 6 pounds.

But how long could you keep up that starvation diet? How long before you sneaked in a snack here and a snack there? How long before you were eating as much as ever? And how long before those ugly ounces and pounds of dangerous, deadly overweight came back to make your life miserable?

What next? If you are like the average overweight person, you tried another plan, and still another. And the results? Always the same heartbreaking story! Little or no loss in weight! Little or no lasting effect. Then what did you do? Were you like the men and women whose utterly amazing case histories were reported in our clinical tests? Did you discover a better, more effective way to reduce? WITHOUT TORTURE? WITHOUT FAD OR STARVATION DIETS? WITHOUT THE NEED FOR TREMENDOUS WILL POWER?

THANKS TO THIS AMAZING DEVELOPMENT, YOU CAN REDUCE FASTER AND EASIER THAN YOU EVER THOUGHT POSSIBLE!

Doctors had the answer... a reducing regimen identical in principle to the one more doctor's prescribe than any other... an amazing combination of ingredients medically proven to be the greatest aid for the elimination of excess fat ever as proved in astonishingly successful clinical tests!

Not a bulk-producing agent... not a sweet wafer supposed to "kill" your appetite... not giant pills or capsules, this astounding compound is like nothing you have ever tried before, because it has just been made available for the first time ever!

It is guaranteed safe, guaranteed effective, guaranteed to perform not one, not two, but all three functions necessary for quick, easy, comfortable weight reduction! This is what it does...

1. E.E.D.R. flushes away the bloat-like water that makes up to 70% of your fatty tissue! It goes to work the very first day... removes that water... makes you lose weight fast! Makes you see and feel results almost instantly!
2. E.E.D.R. actually gives you a boost... makes you feel peppy and alert. Helps you overcome that tired, dragged-out feeling. Actually may help you feel more vibrantly alive than you have felt in years!
3. E.E.D.R., without filling your stomach with sluggish bulk, works internally on the true center of your appetite! You still enjoy your food, but you have less desire to overeat, and you find it easier to do without fattening, unwholesome extras that are making you fat.

No wonder that when E.E.D.R. was tried on overweight patients in hospitals, results were so astonishing!

POUNDS GONE FOREVER!

Here are the amazing facts! Read them carefully. Think of what they mean if you are a person who must lose weight!

When doctors tested this amazing product on overweight patients, they did not tell those patients to go on a diet! They did not tell those patients what to eat! They did not tell those patients how to eat!

Those patients lost pound after pound of ugly fat... up to 12 pounds the first week... up to 39 pounds the first month, up to 49 pounds in a longer period of time! Day by day, safely and more quickly, more easily than ever before, their ugly, health-destroying pounds started to melt away!

While they were eating three delicious meals a day, they were losing weight. While they were enjoying mouthwatering steaks and chops, juicy roast beef, vegetables and desserts, bread and butter... while they ate the foods they liked, off came ugly inches from waist, hips, thighs, everywhere!

And best of all, in case after case, they actually said they felt better... had more pep, more energy, more vitality than they had in years!

And when the tests were over, those men and women showed remarkable weight losses. And they did it without discomfort, without diets, without horrible hunger! It was like a wonderful dream come true! They had actually turned back the clock... made themselves look more youthful and even feel more youthful than they had in years!

And what's more, they could stay that way!... could continue to keep their weight under control, for as long as they wanted to... even the rest of their lives! Because now they had an active, fat-reducing regimen available that would actually help keep ugly fat away!

PROVE IT TO YOURSELF! TRY FULL PACKAGE ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK!

Now you can try this very same tested and proven plan in the privacy of your own home without risking one single penny!

This amazing plan must melt up to 6 pounds of ugly, excess fat right off your body in the first two days... up to 11 pounds in the first 7 days... or you don't pay one single penny!

These are not idle claims. These are not exaggerations. Your own doctor will tell you the same thing! This plan was proven almost 100% effective in doctor proved hospital tests! It worked for countless other normally healthy overweight folks and it will work for you!

For the sake of your health, for the sake of your appearance... even to prolong your life... you owe it to yourself to reduce! And in the opinion of our experts the very best way to do exactly that is with the aid of the E.E.D.R. lo-calorie plan.

Now we have done everything humanly possible to make it easy for you. We have presented you with the opportunity to obtain, for the first time ever, the same type of medication doctors prescribe for overweight patients. The rest is up to you. If you really want to reduce, you can. So right now, fill out the enclosed order form, and mail it in the postage paid envelope provided. You'll be happy you did! If you are not absolutely delighted, your money back, no questions asked. You have nothing to lose but ugly fat!

E.E.D.R. IS SAFE!

E.E.D.R. is a safe, tested product proved effective by doctors. It cannot harm your heart, lungs, liver or other vital organs. Any normally healthy person may take E.E.D.R. as directed, with complete confidence, content in the knowledge that it cannot be harmful.

OTIS LABORATORIES, Inc.
2 East Ave., Larchmont, N. Y.

READ THESE ASTONISHING RESULTS OF CLINICAL TESTS CONDUCTED BY DOCTORS!

No other product ever prints actual clinical test results, because no other product can show such astounding weight losses!

1st week up to	12 pounds lost
2nd week " "	24 pounds lost
4th week " "	39 pounds lost
6th week " "	44 pounds lost
8th week " "	49 pounds lost

These tests were conducted by doctors on average, normally healthy overweight persons. Those men and women were NOT told to diet... were NOT told what or what not to eat! All they did was TAKE ONE TINY TABLET SMALLER THAN AN ASPIRIN, BEFORE EACH MEAL... yet their weight losses were almost unbelievable!

THIS IS THE MOST POWERFUL PROOF YOU HAVE EVER SEEN FOR ANY REDUCING REGIMEN! NO OTHER PRODUCT SOLD IS AS EFFECTIVE AS E.E.D.R.

HERE ARE FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT E.E.D.R.

WHAT IS IT?

E.E.D.R. is a scientific combination of safe drugs which works just like a doctors prescription to help you lose weight.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

E.E.D.R. works three ways to help you reduce quickly, safely and easily.

1. E.E.D.R. draws off and flushes out the weight-adding, bloat-producing water that makes up to 70% of your fatty tissue.
2. E.E.D.R. inhibits your appetite without bloating your system with bulk material.
3. E.E.D.R. makes you feel better, more peppy and alert... actually gives you a lift while those pounds are coming off!

HOW DO YOU TAKE IT?

E.E.D.R. is a tiny tablet smaller than an aspirin tablet. For the first three days you take two tablets before each meal. After the first three days, you take only one tablet before each meal.

IS IT SAFE?

E.E.D.R. is not a dangerous drug, not a laxative, not a thyroid extract, not a bulk-producing medicine! It is a safe, doctor-tested product made of pure, medically-approved ingredients. Any normally healthy person may take E.E.D.R. as directed with complete confidence because it cannot harm you in any way.

When you follow the E.E.D.R. plan, you do not have to do back-breaking exercises, you do not have to go on a fad diet, you do not have to give up all the foods you love to eat, you do not have to take giant pills and capsules, powders or sweet wafers all day long!

YOU SIMPLY TAKE ONE OR TWO TINY, TABLETS (SMALLER THAN ASPIRIN TABLETS) BEFORE EACH MEAL! NO OTHER PRODUCT IS SO EASY TO TAKE!

WHY YOU SHOULD TRY E.E.D.R...

EVEN IF YOU PROMISED YOURSELF YOU WOULD NEVER TRY ANOTHER REDUCING REGIMEN AGAIN!

Are you a person who has tried everything?... giant pills and capsules 3 and 4 times a day?... fad diets?... powders you sprinkle on food?... exercise?... gadgets and gimmicks?... everything and anything that promised freedom from those extra pounds of fat that are spoiling your figure and endangering your health?

Are you a person who swore you'd never try another reducing plan? Stop and think a moment. Wouldn't it be a shame if E.E.D.R. was really the one product that could help you, and you didn't at least try it?

You see, regardless of what you think, regardless of how many times you have been disappointed before, E.E.D.R. really works! Really does everything we claim it will! It's safe, it's quick, it's easy! In doctor-supervised clinical tests, it was proved to be astonishingly successful!

And no wonder... For it is the only reducing regimen sold that is really like a doctor's prescription. It flushes away bloat, it keeps you from feeling hungry, and it actually picks you up and makes you feel better than usual while those ugly pounds are coming off! And how they come off — actually faster than ever before!

So don't miss out on this opportunity! Don't turn back now! Even if you have been disappointed before, now you are within sight of your goal. Think of how wonderful it will be to look better and feel better... to really be slimmer and trimmer than you have been in years! That's the opportunity that now awaits you! And you can do it all without risking one single penny! Simply send for E.E.D.R. now.

Try it for as long as you like. If you are not satisfied, you are under no obligation to keep it. All you do is mail back the unused portion and get your money back immediately, no questions asked. You are trying, not buying. If you don't get the results you hoped for, you have paid nothing, and at least you have had the satisfaction of trying this amazing new product. You have nothing to lose but ugly fat!

So don't put it off. Act on that impulse! Determine to help yourself... determine to have the slim, youthful-looking figure that amazing new E.E.D.R. can help you obtain. And do it now! It only takes a minute to fill out the enclosed order card and mail it in the postage-paid envelope provided. If you are not delighted in every way, all you will have lost is a few minutes of your time. You know we must have great confidence that E.E.D.R. will help you or we could never afford to make this spectacular no-risk offer. So why not send now?

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Use a whole package of E.E.D.R. in your own home at our expense! If the E.E.D.R. plan doesn't help you lose up to 6 pounds in the first 48 hours... up to 11 pounds the first week... If it doesn't make you look better and feel better... If you are not completely convinced this lo-calorie regimen is the quickest, best way to reduce you have ever tried, don't keep it! Return the unused portion and we refund your money immediately, no questions asked!

MY FRIENDS, TODAY I'D LIKE TO TELL YOU ABOUT ONE OF OUR VANISHING AMERICANS, THE WHOOPING CRANE

A FEW YEARS AGO, DURING SPRING AND FALL MIGRATIONS, GREAT FLOCKS OF THESE CRANES DARKENED THE SKIES

TODAY, HOWEVER, THERE ARE ONLY 25 OF THESE MAGNIFICENT BIRDS LEFT

NESTING IN THE VAST WILDERNESS OF NORTHERN CANADA, THE WHOOPERS CAN HOLD THEIR OWN AGAINST NATURAL HAZARDS

SO I BEG YOU NOT TO FIRE AT ANY LARGE WHITE BIRD!

BUT INDISCRIMINATE GUNNERS ARE THREATENING TO WIPE OUT FOREVER THESE STATELY CREATURES

ONLY BY THE MOST CAREFUL PROTECTION WILL THIS SPLENDID SPECIES BE PRESERVED

TRAIL WAYS

THE WHOOPING CRANE STANDS FIVE FEET TALL, ITS WING SPREAD MEASURES SEVEN FEET, AND ITS HOARSE WHOOPING CRY CAN BE HEARD FOR TWO MILES.

FOLLOWING MIGRATION FLIGHTS BY AMPHIBIOUS PLANE, BIOLOGISTS HAVE TRACED THE ROUTE OF THE WHOOPING CRANES AND DISCOVERED NESTING AREAS AT GREAT SLAVE LAKE AND BANKS ISLAND IN THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES OF CANADA

Try the shake test and see... extra measures per pound... lots more flavor, too!

Shake several brands next time you're shopping. You'll find most coffees rattle, but M.J.B's quiet. That's because it's packed right to the brim with extra measures! M.J.B's fuller can gives you as many as 8 extra measures, and more flavor, too! Special roasting is the secret of this big-plus value in every pound of M.J.B.

As the coffee beans are roasted, they're slowly expanded to release all the deep, satisfying flavor. This increases the volume, too. Gives you a bonus of 2 to 8 extra measures. Try the M.J.B shake test next time you're shopping. You can't make a bad cup of M.J.B!

Let's Be Realistic About CD

By Stella George

A smart housewife will buy a few extra cans of food each time she does her marketing, thus gradually building up a reserve supply of staples for emergencies.

AT THE VERY MOMENT you are reading this article, how prepared are you for an emergency? Suppose right now an earthquake occurred — or a bomb exploded 30 miles away -- what would you do? Do you have an adequate food and water supply on hand? Would you (housewives included) be able to turn off the main gas valve for your house? Could you find a flashlight in the pitch-black of night, and would it work? Do you have medicine for that asthmatic youngster, in case he developed a sudden attack in the midst of confusion? In short, are you prepared for the worst in case it should happen suddenly?

Actually, the need for preparedness is a vital one which exists every moment of every day, and one which requires the full support and consideration of every adult, regardless of age or position. As one woman who had lived through the last war in London said:

"We were asleep because we said, 'It can't happen here.' Heaven help the people in America if they are asleep, too."

AS EVERYONE KNOWS (or should know), the Long Beach-Los Angeles area could be a prime target for destruction. A calm and relaxed attitude on the part of local residents could result in panic and chaos in the event of an emergency. People who lived in Long Beach when the 1933 earthquake shook the city from its foundations will remember the distress and confusion suffered by those who were routed temporarily from their comfortable homes.

We can and should do something about Civil Defense (which, of course, means preparation for other emergencies such as earthquakes, fires and floods as well as hydrogen bombs) by giving the subject a lot of thought and a little effort. The average housewife can easily provide for the material needs of her family at such a time. And with these physical needs taken care of, many psychological problems will be eliminated also. Here are some specifics:

1—FAMILY ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION — At the earliest possible time have a family round-table discussion about emergencies. Point out that while we don't look for things to happen, they can and often do occur when we least expect them. If the discussion is presented in a matter-of-fact way, the children will accept the possibility of an emergency as part of daily living, just as they accept air-raid and fire drills at school and treat them as a matter of course.

2—KNOW YOUR HOME — Right now, today, look at each utility valve. Find out if you would need a special wrench to turn off the gas and water. Learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker or replace a fuse in the dark. Know how to make use of the water in the water heater for drinking purposes.

3—BASIC EQUIPMENT FOR EMERGENCIES — Keep basic equipment for emergencies in one place, and keep it there at all times. This should include a flashlight with reserve batteries; medicine, including any special prescription needed by a certain member of the family; first-aid supplies for minor cuts and scratches, and the most recent pamphlets obtainable from Civil Defense headquarters for quick reference. A portable or battery-operated radio and a small camp-type gasoline stove are highly desirable to have on hand.

4—FOOD AND WATER SUPPLY — Check your food and water supply. Have an adequate food and water supply on hand at all times. Every family should have a survival food kit in the home where it will be readily accessible in case of evacuation. It should be remembered that these survival food kits are designed for basic menu needs, and would, of course, be supplemented with other food on hand in case of emergency.

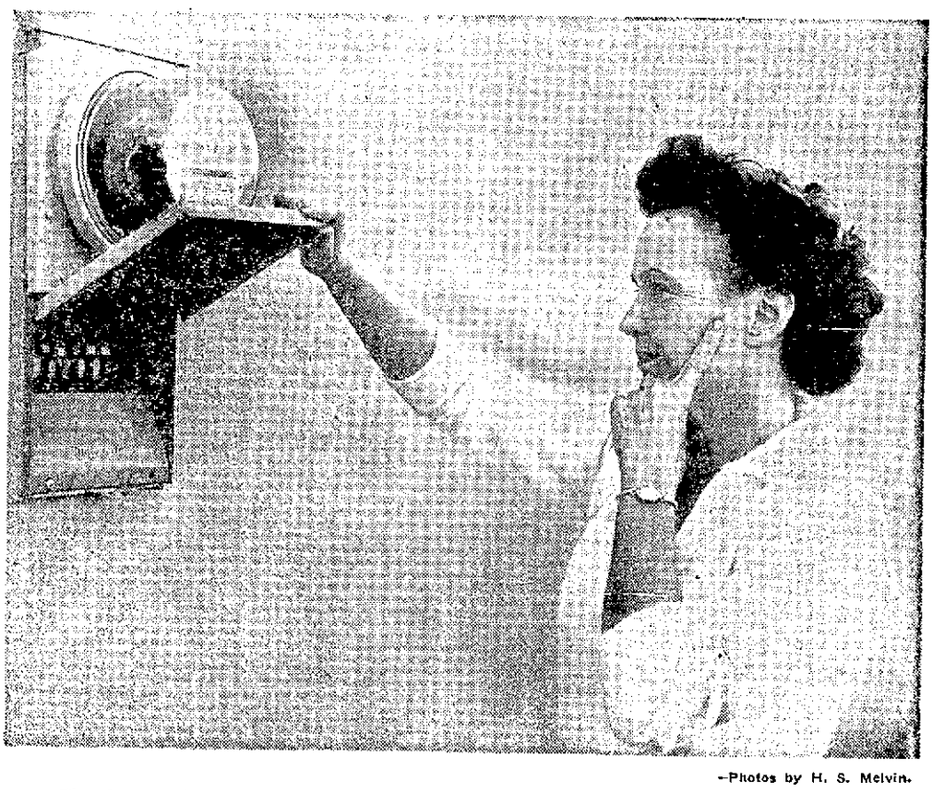

Many families make a practice of once-a-week shopping at the market, and thus, at the end of the week, the kitchen shelves are nearly bare (with the exception of staples). It would be an excellent idea to buy for 10 days instead of a week, and keep in reserve the extra three-days' supply of food. This reserve can be built up gradually, if, at each marketing time, an extra can of tuna or beans is added to the shopping list. The reserve will not stay built up if, when company comes and a minor emergency arises, the extra can of tuna is used and not replaced. A well-stocked pantry shelf plus a survival food kit will ensure adequate menus — a "must" for any emergency.

As many gallons of bottled water as can be conveniently stored away should be kept with the reserve food supply. Because of possible breakage, half-gallon bottles are desirable. The importance of extra water cannot be over-emphasized, as parents of small children especially will understand.

It's a good idea to keep a small stock of hard candy and gum on hand for between-meal snacks — and moral uplift. And those who smoke should by all means keep an unused and unopened carton of cigarettes for the time when they cannot run to the drug store.

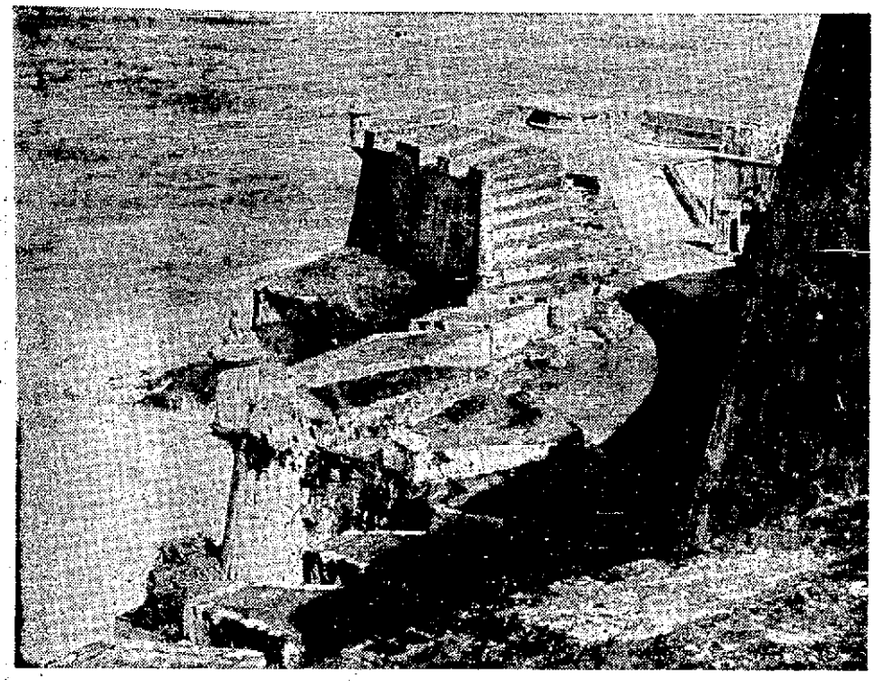

5—CARE OF PETS — The care of pets in time of an emergency is an important issue to be considered. Those who own animals owe it both to the animals and themselves to keep extra cans of pet food stored away. A crazed, half-starved animal roaming the streets in search of food would be a menace to the community as a whole. It is the responsibility of pet owners to take care of the animals' physical needs during an emergency, in the same way that it is expected at other times.

THOSE WHO FEEL and act realistic about civil defense emergencies should encourage their neighbors to do likewise. Civil Defense authorities would have almost more work than they could handle at the actual time of an emergency. Their heavy load can be lightened if each householder does his part in home preparation. The time to prepare for an emergency is when no emergency exists, in the same way that an insurance policy is taken out before an accident occurs. For those who have a realistic and wide-awake outlook of their own and their families' future, that time is NOW!

The housewife should learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker before an emergency occurs. And she should also know how to turn off the gas and water.

El Morro, famed fortress that guarded San Juan, Puerto Rico, juts out in the sea. Navy training party found time to visit this ancient landmark.

SHADES OF BUCCANEERS!

Flight to El Morro

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Independent, Press-Telegram staff reporter James A. Allen accompanied a Naval Reserve crew on a 7,000-mile training flight from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station to Miami, Fla.; Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone; San Juan, Puerto Rico, and return. This is his story of that flight.)

By James A. Allen

THE BIG NAVY four-engine transport plane rolled down the runway at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and took off into the night.

The lights of Long Beach fell astern as the pilot set his course for Miami, first leg of a flight to the nation's outposts in the Caribbean.

Aboard the plane were members of VR771, a Naval Reserve air transport squadron based at Los Alamitos, participating in their annual two-week training period.

They were simulating the squadron's war mission—to deliver supplies or personnel to scattered points throughout the world.

In this role, the squadron during the two weeks traveled 61,272 miles in three R5Ds (the Navy designation for the Douglas DC4), making two flights to the Caribbean, three to Honolulu, two to New York, one to Washington, five to Phoenix and two to Alameda.

THE SQUADRON'S PILOTS averaged 86.5 hours of flying time in the two weeks—more than the average for airline pilots in a month.

The plane commander for this Caribbean flight was Lt. Cmdr. Robert H. Hippe, 2661 Crestview Dr., Newport Beach, a partner in the architectural firm of Ramberg, Hippe and Lowrey, Santa Ana.

Lt. Cmdr. William J. McGillivray, Westwood, a pilot for Trans American Airlines, was navigator. He supervised navigational training on the flight.

Co-pilots were Lt. Cmdr. Gerald B. Wilson, Altadena, assistant superintendent of building for the City of Pasadena, and Lt. Cmdr. Levi Bowman Brookshire, Westchester, a designer for Northrop Aircraft.

Crewmen were AD1 Douglas A. Wignall, 5750 Scrivener St.; AT1 Clarence E. Doxstater, 9752 Russell St., Garden Grove, and AD1 Elwood W. Milson, all Naval Reserve stationkeepers at Los Alamitos NAS; AD1 Lee Joseph Braem, San Bernardino, an aircraft inspector at Norton Air Force Base; AD1 Clarence A. Poulson, Phoenix, ad room foreman for the Phoenix Gazette and Arizona Republic; AD2 Charles E. Joiner, Palm City, a journeyman aviation machinist at the Naval Air Station, North Island, San Diego, and AA Jerry D. Stark, San Diego, a jig and fixture builder for Convair.

JOC LEWIS B. REED, Temple City, of Wing Staff 77, and a power sales engineer for the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power, co-ordinated news coverage on the trip.

The plane flew airways to Galveston, then headed across the Gulf of Mexico on the flight to Miami. The pilots had ample opportunity to brush up on celestial navigation on the long overwater hop.

The group landed at the Marine Corps Air Station, Miami, at 10:50 a. m. Tuesday after a nonstop flight of 13 hours. After arranging for refueling and servicing of the plane, squadron members enjoyed a little relaxation at Miami Beach, noted for its miles of plush hotels and assorted night clubs.

THE PARTY DEPARTED Miami at 9:10 a. m. Wednesday for the Naval Air Station, Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone. In a short time the plane passed over Cuba, then was over water until Pt. San Blas was sighted, northeast of the Panama Canal. The plane flew in over dense, humid jungles and landed at Coco Solo at 3:40 p. m.

The landing strip at Coco Solo has been hewed out of the jungles. At the far end, a taxi strip led to the Naval Air Station. As the plane taxied along, it appeared that the trees nearly touched the wingtips on either side. Near the station, the strip crossed the highway. A police officer and traffic signals held back the cars while the plane passed.

The officers and crew took advantage of the variety of exotic items offered in the ship's service at the base, then headed for the port of Colon, a few miles distant at the Caribbean side of the Panama Canal.

Junior Coeds Look the Most

By design and not by accident are the girls in the local junior high schools well groomed, tastefully attired teensters. In their first days at junior high these 12, 13 and 14-year-olds learn that blouses and skirts, sweaters and shirts or sport type dresses are the only acceptable items in milady's school wardrobe. Low necklines, midriffs and backless or shoulderless garments get the thumbs-down treatment. Also unacceptable for school wear are play clothes such as slacks, pedal pushers or shorts. Definitely out are head coverings, curlers or pin curls. Excessive jewelry and makeup are not considered appropriate. Personal grooming, such as hair combing, applying makeup and manicuring in the classrooms is a violation of good manners. Shown here are DeMille Junior High School girls in typical, appropriate and approved school wear.

Girls are invited to discuss dress and activities with faculty advisers, as group above is doing with Mrs. Georgia Hambly, DeMille dean of girls.

How Big's Your Thanksgiving Table?

Spread for the bountiful feast that is imminent, this Thanksgiving table is a symbol of national rejoicing.

By Barbara V. Myers

LINKED to the rich heritage that is ours, no holiday can surpass Thanksgiving in national significance to Americans. Whether we trace our forebears to an early sailing vessel or an immigrant ship of recent years it is easy for all of us to identify ourselves with the reverent crowd who gathered to hear Gov. Bradford proclaim the first Thanksgiving on Nov. 29, 1623, and to thrill, as did those pioneers, at the goodness and greatness of this, our America.

Family gatherings about well-laden tables at Thanksgiving have become a favorite American tradition. All over the land in the weeks before the holiday great preparations are made. Homes are cleaned and decorated, silver polished, and a menu planned that will surpass all previous occasions.

Yet, if we are true to our heritage, we will remember that there is a deeper preparation called for in this season than that which satisfies our physical appetites alone. It is the preparation of a grateful heart. Attempts to express our gratitude in three different ways may help get our hearts ready for the real feast of Thanksgiving.

THE FIRST, of course, would be, in the words of Gov. Bradford, "to render thanksgiving to Almighty God for all His blessings." Mrs. Grover Emmons, a Long Beach author, has included a poem by Corlandt Sayres in her book, "The Mature Heart." The poem prescribes a dream in which the writer receives a bill from Life. On it were listed the dawns and the sunsets, the flowers, the sea and the stars, his friends, his love—all the blessings of his life. Seeing this abundance in one magnificent picture his heart filled to overflowing and he burst forth:

"I wondered when I waked at day,
How—how in God's name — I could pay."

Who has not felt like this? "Though our mouths were full of song as the sea," says a prayer from the Hebrew morning service, "and our tongues of exaltation as the multitude of its waves . . . we should still be unable to thank Thee . . . O Lord, our God . . . for one ten thousandth part of the bounties which Thou hast bestowed upon our fathers and upon us."

BEING THANKFUL for our blessings is a fairly easy exercise, but along comes St. Paul and complicates things. It is easy enough, says he, to be grateful for just the good things. Our need is "to give thanks in everything." This is much more difficult. A modern parable tells of two men who were riding in a train whose roadbed was extremely rough. One man cursed and complained everytime they hit a bump and alighted from the train cross and physically exhausted. The other man sang "Hallelujah" each time the train hit a rough spot. He reached his destination calm in spirit and nearly fresh as when he had started. By journeying the entire trip with praise on his lips

WHILE THE CAMERA WATCHES

Honeybees Crown a New Queen

(The author is a noted wildlife and time-lapse photographer who has contributed many fascinating scenes of animal and plant life to Walt Disney's nature films. He has spent years in close camera study of bees, and here tells of his adventure in filming the bee sequence on wilderness location for "Secrets of Life." His home is in Garden Grove.)

By Stuart Jewell

MY MOST exciting adventure as a wildlife photographer was not in the realm of big savage beasts but in the separate world of the insects—among the wild bee colonies of the California foothill country.

It was not only the most fascinating, but one of the most difficult and dangerous as well.

My assignment for Walt Disney's most searching nature picture, "Secrets of Life," can be as deadly as a rattlesnake. The honey bee can sting a man quickly to death.

It was with caution that I approached these disarmingly beautiful creatures on the strangest of all motion picture locations.

I SET UP my camera in an aged oak within a couple of yards of a very populous bee castle in the hooded hollow of a tree. One afternoon I noticed a sudden strange commotion about the entrance of the hive.

A regal looking creature, golden and glistening, had emerged from the castle port and paused there in the sunlight. At once hundreds of little workers began gathering about her with folded wings as if awaiting some signal. I knew I was about to witness one of the supreme and ceremonious events of apian society—the change of reigning queens in the dynastic successions of a million years.

Inside a young princess would be ascending the throne. On the threshold, the old matriarch, surrounded by her loyal retainers, was taking her peaceable and ordained departure.

IN A MOMENT they rose in a great golden swarm, following their queen to some new home the scouts had indicated. Through my "head mask" I heard the hum of their myriad wings.

Carefully, I opened a section of the hive to expose the interior for my spying movie cameras and waited for the inevitable attack upon my armor-clad person to subside. I had interrupted the violent procedure by which the new queen would establish her reign. The deadly business had not yet been completed.

The regal succession is determined by duel—by battle royal.

The ensuing battle was witnessed by my close range camera with the magnifying lens.

From special cells in the waxen compartments four newborn candidates for the throne emerged in as many minutes. An instinctive rage, a blind jealous hatred for their princess sisters was born with them.

THEY PAIRED OFF in grappling duels, their lethal stilettos probing and stabbing for the death thrust. One after another they lost their brief lives until only the two finalists were left. These then closed in the last furious embrace, with one groggy survivor entitled to the crown.

Apian society is a matriarchate. Every instinct and act is shaped to the benefit of the pampered queen who is the preserver and propagator of her race. She is a prodigious egg layer, incredibly fecund from one impregnation. The only sexed female of the hive, she is the mother of swarming generations until in turn displaced by a new monarch.

The queen bee is the product of one of nature's chemical marvels—the transformation of a neuter embryo into a highly potent female by specially administered vitamins known as royal jelly. This is a mystery to laboratory scientists.

AS SOON AS the surviving princess has recovered from the wounds of battle, she prepares for her wedding flight.

The one-time marriage of the queen bee is an irresistible compulsion. Waiting for the event, and sensing the time, a group of drones or sexed males, present themselves as competitive mates. One of them, the boldest and the swiftest, will become the actual bridegroom. His conquest will cost him his life.

The camera watches the young queen and her courtiers take off in the fateful flight. No man has seen the actual moment of mating. But within the hour the impregnated matron returns to the hive and her paramour will have fallen from the high rendezvous.

From this time on the queen will be a captive in her own castle, endlessly depositing eggs in the nursery cells.

The drones who have returned in chagrined defeat from the amorous chase now face a crucial day.

FROM BIRTH THESE dandies have been petted and pampered by attentive workers and hive nurses. They do not work, merely eat and loll at ease, preening themselves. But now they are no longer needed, even as standby paramours.

Inglorious, they are cast from the castle in the oak, to perish of hunger and neglect.

Bees are especially susceptible and sensitive to smells. Odors guide them to their sources of food supply. Nectars seduce them to the heart of flowers where they help perform the germinating rite that supplies the precious pollen for bee bread. Odors identify friend from enemy.

Even the human breath will excite and antagonize them. In working close to a bee colony, wild or domestic, I always sprinkle myself with floral perfume and disguise my breath.

A DEFENSIVE creature, not a belligerent warrior, given to minding its own business, the honey bee has needed its potent venom to survive down the long ages of animal competition. Slow to anger, its fury, once aroused by peril to his hive and the precious queen, is matched by few living things. Their attack is suicidal, for the very act of stinging eviscerates them.

I have discovered by painful experience that it takes from 20 to 30 successive stings during an interval of several weeks to become immunized. Half that many stinging in a brief period can cause serious illness and might prove fatal in some cases.

Naturalist-photographer Stuart Jewell of Garden Grove films humming bird at closeup. Bees also were pictured for Walt Disney's "Secrets of Life."

Classics in Yuletide Cards

"Christmas on the Railroad," by John Rogers.

LAVISH as always in the wealth of originality and gaiety they offer, the Designers & Illustrators, this year, have added a series of "Engraved Classics" that show, for the first time, just how glamorous a formal Christmas card can be!

Choice examples of the engraver's art are enriched by high - lustered "jewel - strewn" backgrounds and other contemporary elegancies.

Among the well-known Designers & Illustrators whose new cards tell charming, gay and entertaining stories of life at Christmas time are Mary Blair, Roger Duvoisin, Fred Eng, Oscar Fabres, Isabella Howland, Ervine Metzl, Art Seiden and Elli Zappert.

Mircea Vasiliu, author of a best-selling fabulous autobiography and illustrator of many other books, shows his own festive living room, complete with a tree that actually sparkles. Other designs that radiate cordiality are gaily decked doorways by Hall Byther of the West Coast.

John Rogers contributes an exhilarating view of a railway caboose—which he titles "Christmas on the Railroad," with its gala Christmas tree aboard

Amusing new Designers & Illustrators Christmas cards, some of which show Santa as a major performer, reflect many popular interests: Photography, television, golf, weight-reducing—even "parlor magic"! In more serious vein are designs that ingeniously combine today's universal hope for peace and good will with various individual interests.

TELEVISION

There'll Always Be an O'Brien

By Terry Vernon

Independent, Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

First of 14 Long Beach O'Briens to win a place in the entertainment field is Erin (above), who sings on TV.

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE an O'Brien in the entertainment field and just to be sure they come from Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs .Vicnent P. O'Brien of 1400 Hellman St., have 14 of them coming along.

Of course, two of them have already achieved some fame in the world of show business and both are extremely beautiful colleens, which doesn't hurt a bit.

Erin, now 21, is back in New York where she stayed after her sister, Sheila, 19, introduced her on Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" (CBS). Erin won with ease and got her week of work with the Godfrey daytime show. This led to bigger and better things and she is now a "discovery" of Steve Allen, who should have known her when he was deejaying on KNX.

ERIN BEGAN her career several years ago on the Al Jarvis show and this taste of show business imbued her with the top. Jarvis is still ecstatic about her and calls her one of the best singers he has ever heard.

She stayed with Jarvis on his afternoon show until she fell in love, was married to singer Jimmy Fitzgerald and had a baby. She retired temporarily when the stork arrived but show business was in her blood.

Now Erin is well on the high road to success so let's take a look at her sister's future.

SHEILA IS ALSO a singer but spends her working days at the General Telephone Company here where she is a Miss Information . . . not prone to giving mis-information.

She has won the junior and senior division award presented by the Long Beach Women's Music Club and has studied under Louise Agal, Long Beach voice teacher. She is a member of Phi Beta, a national women's fraternity of art, music and speech. She went to St. Anthony High School and Long Beach State.

Her most recent TV appearance was as a panel member on the now defunct "Johnny Carson Show" (CBS). Her job was to answer questions and "gripes" thrown at her by the studio audience.

JOHNNY ASKED the first question, probably the one uppermost in the minds of all men who saw the show, "Do you have men asking for dates when they call information?"

"Yes, I have," replied Sheila.

"Well," asked Johnny, "did you accept any dates?"

"No," was her reply and she added, "If any of them got too persistent, I would refer them to the supervisor."

Immediately Johnny wanted to know "would the supervisor accept the dates?"

Sheila hasn't yet cracked into the entertainment field with her vocal abilities but she is studying and readying herself for the day when she can take her place in the limelight along with Erin.

Then after she gets going good there are still 12 good Irish O'Briens ready, willing and able to step into the spotlight.

Beautiful Sheila, Erin's sister, hasn't made a permanent place in show business, but is ready as a singer.

The Magic Wand of Music

Long Beach adores the majorettes who march in city's annual All-Western Band Review. Above, Barbara Webb.

By Martha Johnson

ALL LONG BEACH—all the world, in fact—loves a pretty girl. All the world likes vibrant music. Put them together, add a swirly skirt, sky-stepping boots and shining, fast-spining baton and the result is the main ingredient for this city's All Western Band Review, spectacular annual parade which goes into its 16th presentation next Saturday.

But, suppose that in front of the band, instead of this lithe-legged lovely, marched a gangling man, carrying a tremendously long spear with hammered brass washers dangling on the shaft. The washers are jingling to the rhythm of many tomtoms and the man twists his body accompanyingly. At the same time the spear clangs noisily up and down his arms, shoulders and back.

Strange? Well, not if the scene was in Siam decades ago. For there was baton twirling in its earliest traceable stage.

WHEN THE energetic youth of today throws a flaming baton into the air, he or she is using the same kind of trick employed long ago by the natives of the Samoan Islands. Instead of fire, Samoans used a cane knife, razor-sharp, attached to a long rattan-bound handle. This was done in unison at many celebrations.

American baton twirling began its rise to popularity along with the first crinolines and has increased in interest and enthusiasm, until today it has become a mathematical art requiring top skill and physical endurance.

For many years men held top priority in the field of the animated peppermint stick. Musical groups were called upon to participate in community celebrations and a capable young man would march alongside the unit carrying an object that aroused more curiosity than the strange "clinkers" of the band. It resembled a jug, with a small sphere-shaped bottom and a long stem jutting out from the top. For a while, the necessity of this queer object was kept secret, but the secret gradually leaked out and soon everyone knew the strange ornament contained wine, which went along with the group as a "pick-me-up."

DESPITE THIS FACT, the urn-like musicians' companion continued to go along with parade bands. Exuberant young men began to take advantage of the situation, perhaps to attract more attention, and twist the urn about with as much a degree of grace and rhythm as the liquid contents would allow. This touch of showmanship soon paid off for the questionable adornment was soon promoted to the very front of the musical unit. This led to the liquid being removed and the urn being remodeled into a crude-looking stick with a long shaft, resembling the present day signal baton.

In the early 1900s the "juggling drum majors," as they had labeled themselves, began to outdo themselves with new twists, turns and extreme rhythms. Because of the difficulty in maneuvering the long, heavy baton, the athletic wand was shortened and evolved into a stick about the size of today's large twirling baton. At this time, the art became officially known as "baton spinning" and the juggling majors guarded their tricks and movements with zealous secrecy, refusing to teach anyone their professional secrets.

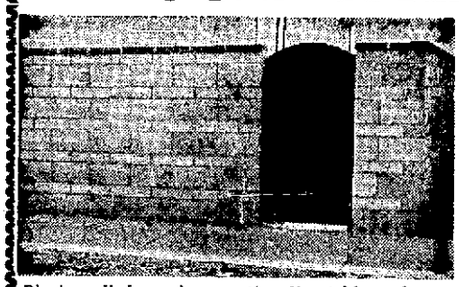

IN THE SECOND quarter of the 1900s, the "hand that rocks the cradle" moved in. Several women were called upon to head musical units solely to display their graceful movements and appearance. This seemed to please the general public. At first their beauty and boldness in accompanying the bands held the public interest but as their presence more and more became an accepted fact, the gals searched for a different means to maintain their popularity.

A lighter and shorter baton was designed for feminine use and, one by one, girls began to take over the decorated stick. As the year 1940 approached, women twirlers numbered in the thousands and men began bowing out to their more comely competitors.

By 1950 many high schools and universities had begun adapting baton twirling for use in their musical and physical education programs.

Today, wherever the smiling nimble-fingered majors or majorettes appear, they capture the audience and the cameras, still, movie and TV. American baton twirlers are the most famous in the world. They are living evidence of the poise, gracefulness, ambidexterity and self-confidence required to master an ageless art.

The Log of a Fighting Lady

Will an A-ship be named for Long Beach? Once before a proud warship bore the city's name—a frigate (above)—launched in 1943 and battle-tried in World War II.

By Fred Bolinger

NAVY SECRETARY Charles S. Thomas announced recently that "careful consideration" is being given the proposal to name an atomic-powered cruiser for Long Beach.

That turned back memories to the night—yes, night, it was wartime, if you remember!—of May 5, 19 3, when the USS Long Beach, a frigate, was launched in the Wilmington yard of the Consolidated Steel Corp.

What became of that doughty ship, named for Long Beach, home port of the Pacific fleet?

Toughness must have been built into the frigate's steel plates for within a brief time after her shakedown cruise, she started to gather battle stars.

Manned by a Coast Guard crew of youngsters, the ship was rushed across the Pacific to join Adm. Halsey's famous 7th Fleet.

Sleek and fast, the frigate slugged at the Japs with her 3-inch and 50-caliber guns. She'd knife in near the shore and support LCI's as they rammed onto the terrible beaches of the South Pacific.

Her machine guns covered troops as they fought for their slender beachheads among the Admiralty Islands and in the Bismarck Archipelago.

A FIRST BATTLE star was won for those operations.

The frigate was in the spearhead of the surprise landing at Hollandia, in New Guinea, and won another battle star.

Came August 1944. The USS Long Beach really grappled with the foe.

She bombarded Soepiori and Biak Islands, in New Guinea.

Knifing within a few hundred yards of the beach, she fired her guns point-blank at the Japanese, entrenched in fortified caves.

DURING THE ATTACK, an Army reconnaissance party was put ashore. They re-embarked aboard the frigate as she covered them with her blazing guns. Mission accomplished.

In September 1944, the ship was an escort into Morotai, for a convoy towing heavy equipment to outfit a small naval base.

For fighting in the Philippines, at the Leyte landing operations, in November, she won her third battle star.

New Year's Day 1945, found the frigate homeward bound. She sailed to Boston, via the Canal Zone and was drydocked for overhaul.

RECONDITIONED and with new war paint, the frigate returned to the Pacific, arriving in Seattle, in April.

She proceeded on to the Aleutians and was turned over to the Russian Navy along with 100 other naval vessels.

Only July 21, the frigate reached Petropavlovsk, Siberia. The next month, the Soviet Union declared war on Japan.

With the Hammer and Sickle flying from her mainmast, she saw action in the coastal waters off Manchuria and Korea.

The Japanese surrendered September 2.

During the next four years, the frigate was lost behind the Iron Curtain.

QUITE SUDDENLY on Oct. 17, 1949, she was returned to the U. S. Navy at Yokosuka, Japan.

The heroic USS Long Beach appeared somewhat the worse for wear—decks were dirty, were in need of paint and polish. She went into drydock again to be reconditioned by the Navy that first had tested her mettle.

Then in November 1953, the frigate was loaned to the Japanese Navy.

In Costa Rica, the Oglers Get Ogled at La Retreta Time

THE PRETTIEST senoritas, the gayest oxcarts, the best coffee, the most orchids and the retreta — that's Costa Rica.

Ah, the retreta! It is something every member of the National Society of Girl Watchers should know about. It is more dignified but more effective than watching on windy street corners.

The ogler gets ogled in the retreta. Instead of an averted face and embarrassed blush as on windy corners, eye meets eye and boy meets girl in the retreta.

THERE ARE RULES for the delightful custom. It takes place three times weekly at Central Park in San Jose, the highland capital of Costa Rica served by Pan American World Airways.

Boys walk in circles around the park. Girls walk in the opposite direction. Their elders sit on the park's benches to insure decorum is maintained. And everybody watches to his heart's content.

ALL THIS OCCURS in a setting of great natural beauty. San Jose is a city of 90,000, built on the central plateau, a region about 3,700 feet high and ringed by mountains. Its altitude gives a temperate climate and blankets are frequently needed for sleeping comfort. Two of the mountains are dormant volcanoes.

Aside from its senoritas and volcanoes, Costa Rica has the most interesting oxcarts found in the Western Hemisphere. Their two wheels are made of 16 wooden wedges held together by an iron rim. Elaborate geometric designs are applied in bright colors, and the wheels have been compared with stained glass windows of cathedrals.

Orchids grow by the millions in Costa Rica. Bunches of orchids are sold like daisies on city squares, and as cheaply. Enough to decorate a room can be bought for 25 cents. The country's national flower is an orchid — the Guaria Morado (cattleya skinerii).

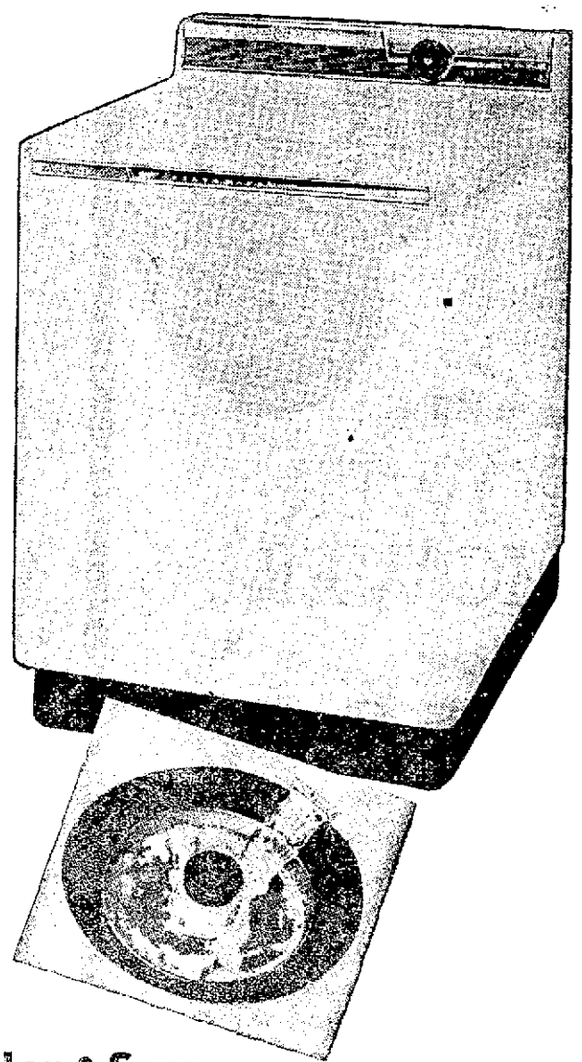

There are good hotels and the cities are clean, the water supply pure and sanitary facilities equal to those in the United States. Among San Jose's better hotels are the Gran Hotel Costa Rica, the Grand Hotel Europa and the Oriental, with rates averaging $5.50 to $8 single, $9 to $12.50 double without meals. Other good hotels are available, among them a ranch-type hostelry in a mountain coffee plantation.

California's Sage Grouse

E. J. Greenwalt Photo for U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

California sage grouse are doing a comeback after almost becoming extinct due to heavy hunting interest.

By Mark McMillin

WALK WESTWARD through the back country of Modoc County from the Nevada line to the west side of Lower Klamath Lake, or southward along the east side of the Sierra Nevada as far as Big Pine in Owens Valley, Inyo County, and you will surely scare up several flocks of sage grouse, appropriately dubbed the "Cock of the Plains," though its habitat ranges from an altitude of 3,500 to 12,000 feet.

The largest native upland game bird of California — and also, incidentally, the largest of the American grouse—it is more or less limited in habitat to the semi-arid sagebrush ranges of eastern California and therefore far removed from large population centers. For this reason, it is one of the least known of the game birds, both to the general public and also to the sportsmen of the state.

ONLY THE WILD turkey has a more lavish physique. Measuring from 2 to 2½ feet long, the male grouse weighs from 2 to 8 pounds, and the female from 3 to 5 pounds.

Both have similar plumage—a body of mottled black, grayish brown, gray and yellowish white and a throat of varied black and yellow. The female is chiefly distinguished from the male by her shorter tail. Also, the male has a line of air sacs on the side of his neck, which he inflates during courting season while strutting around in grand style to attract females. While sucking the air in and out of the sacs, he makes a noise very much like a leaking pump.

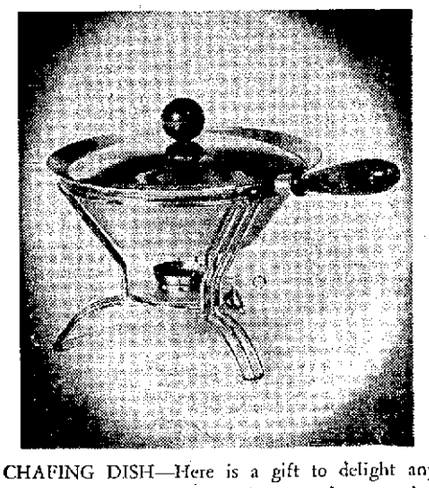

THEY PRODUCE ONLY one brood a year, and like other wildlife they follow a definitely established cycle. In the spring the eggs are laid, usually from 8 to 15, though often coyotes invade the nest and leave a much smaller number. The eggs are heavily colored, greenish gray or olive buff, dotted and spotted with dark brown. While nesting, the hen hides from the cock in a slight ground depression, which is usually canopied with sagebrush and which may or may not be lined with twigs and sage leaves.

The brood is hatched in April or May, and thereafter moves in a covey with the mother and remains under her protection until late autumn, when several small coveys will unite to form a pack. Only then do the males rejoin the flock, which is non-migratory and only mildly nomadic, preferring familiar terrain and waterholes. All winter they shun the more exposed flatlands, and retire to the shelter of heavily wooded valleys.

SAGE GROUSE FEED largely on sagebrush leaves and flowers, and to a much lesser

Gloryhole of the Tough Thirties

By Jo Hindman

MUCKERS loading ore buckets beneath its groaning timbers called the mine the "Gloryhole." The late William J. Rogers, prospector who discovered the golden heart of it on a manzanita-grown hillside, named the strike after his wife. Thus, the Big Susana came to life.

This was in the depression 1930s. A mining journal reported the Rogers discovery in Neenach Township and a gold rush started. Hundreds of persons swarmed into the western spur of Antelope Valley—prospectors, hard rock miners, card sharks, opportunists, muckers, speculators, tin horn gunmen, cooks, and the merely shiftless. Drawn from nearby mines of Mojave's Soledad mountain, from diggings elsewhere, and from points around the world. The prospectors grubbed for new strikes and found them.

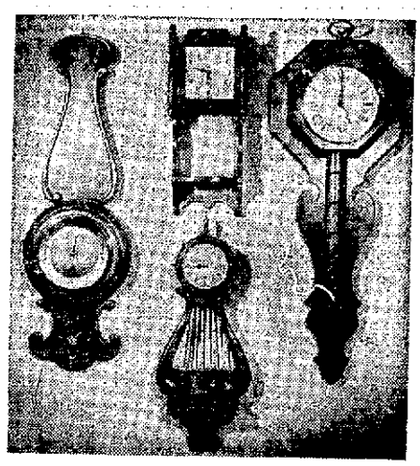

Millions of dollars in gold came from the fabulously rich Gloryhole mine, entry seen above as it is today.

Hard rock miners and the muckers asked for work and got it; likewise, the cooks. The shiftless got drunk.

ALL THE DOINGS stemmed from that precise moment when middle-aged Bill Rogers looked into his pan and saw gold. As the story goes, the gaunt, sunbrowned prospector, who even in wealth remained faithful to work clothes and a nondescript hat, told the curious, "I was trying to find water on the place."

"I had shoveled out a damp hole and sat looking out over Antelope Valley to see if it would fill. I noticed a whitish

When the family has had its fill of turkey and all that goes with the main Thanksgiving Day meal, an oldfashioned cranberry pie is a tempting topper.

FOOD

Turkey and All the Trimmings

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

THANKSGIVING DINNER—there is such hominess about cooking it.

Thanksgiving will be celebrated again next Thursday and, of course, the table will be piled high with the best of the season's food. Today the same traditional foods are found on the Thanksgiving table, but prepared in a different way.

To assure the real holiday spirit in your home, have the biggest, brownest turkey your budget affords. Homemakers may now buy frozen, tender, meaty birds, wrapped in glistening transparent coverings in many sizes to suit particular family needs. Remember when buying the turkey, count on at least ½ to ¾ of a pound of ready-to-roast weight per serving. Keep it frozen until ready to thaw, and then thaw according to the directions on the branded label. It may be kept in the refrigerator up to 24 hours until ready to stuff and roast. And just to make it easy for you, schedules for thawing and roasting may be found elsewhere on the page.

Old-Fashioned Cranberry Pie:

2 1-lb. cans whole cranberry sauce
½ cup raisins
3 tblsp. molasses
2 tblsp. cornstarch
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine cranberry sauce, raisins, molasses, cornstarch. Spoon into unbaked pastry shell. Cover with miniature turkeys cut from pie dough. Bake at 425 deg. for 30 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Cool. Serve with or without ice cream.

Turkey Roasting Schedule:

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Approximate Roasting Time for Stuffed Turkey (325 degrees F.)
8 to 10 pounds	3 to 3½ hours
11 to 13 pounds	4 to 4½ hours
14 to 16 pounds	4¾ to 5¼ hours
17 to 19 pounds	6 to 7 hours
20 to 24 pounds	7½ to 8½ hours

Thawing Schedule:

Thawing Time Read-to-Cook Weight	Refrigerator 40 F.	Approximate Running Cold Water
4 to 12 pounds	1 to 2 days	4 to 6 hours
12 to 20 pounds	2 to 3 days	6 to 8 hours
20 to 24 pounds	3 to 4 days	8 to 12 hours

Southern Dressing

2 cups rice (uncooked)
2 cups finely chopped onion
2 cups finely chopped celery
1 cup minced bell pepper
Ground or chopped turkey giblets
2 teaspoons salt
5 cups stock or bouillon
Poultry seasoning as desired
2 well beaten eggs
1 cup chopped pecans
1 cup minced parsley.

Add onion, celery, bell pepper, giblets, and salt to stock and bring to a boil. (Five bouillon cubes may be dissolved in 5 cups boiling water.) Stir in rice; cover and cook over low heat for until liquid is absorbed. Remove from heat; fold in seasonings and eggs. Add pecans and parsley; combine well. Stuff turkey and bake.

Sassy Cranberry Horseradish

2 cups (½-lb.) fresh cranberries
2 small beets (or 1 large), skin removed
1 small orange (quartered and seeds removed
½ cup (5 oz. jar) horseradish
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Put cranberries, beets and orange through food chopper (fine blade). Add horseradish, sugar and nutmeg and mix thoroughly. Chill. Makes about 1 pint.

Kitchen Tip:

Baking powder thrown on a small fire will extinguish it.

Imagination Creates a Home

From the stairway of the Walter Crawford home, unusual design of a 28-foot living room sofa becomes apparent. Reflecting wall is a striking feature.

By Eileen Ball

A FEW YEARS AGO a two-story residence was built for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crawford at the corner of Redondo Ave. and Ocean Blvd. that caught the interest and pleased the fancy of passing motorists. The builders utilized Ojai fieldstone — vast amounts of it — to face the exterior up to the second story roofline.

Thousands of tourists and natives alike, driving along the ocean bluff, have had their imaginations captured by this outstanding house and their curiosity sparked with wonder as to what it must be like inside.

The Crawford home relies on an enormity of windows and the flattering effects of tropical planting to open up and soften the lines of the structure. Thus, it avoids—completely and happily—the ponderous "stockade" quality that so often goes with stone structure.

A SMALL GATE opens to a walkway bordered on the left by an abundance of heavy-foliaged tropicals that, in turn, are edged by a low wall of Ojai fieldstone.

The front door opens, not to an entry hall per se, but into an alcove that is part of the living room. From the front door one sees the majestic sweep of a mahogany paneled staircase that is, without doubt, the most outstanding feature of the interior. The staircase spirals up in a gentle curve, with a solid bannister-height panel of Philippine mahogany that follows the contour of the stairs like a fluid, honey-colored ribbon. Fixed panels of fluted, obscure glass have been set into the wall as it curves with the staircase, flooding the steps with highly effective light patterns.

To the left lies the living room, a large and tastefully furnished area. Through an open arch one gets a glimpse of the dining room which, by means of its furniture and its decor, is an uninterrupted reflection of the living room. Immediately one is impressed with a simple sort of elegance. Greatly responsible for a feeling of serenity is a soft, completely neutral monochromatic background. The carpet is of wool in a soft facepowder color that is just a blush off beige. Of the same tone are the painted plaster walls.

THERE HAS BEEN no attempt to "startle" or spark the room through the use of vibrant color splashes. Mrs. Crawford likes colors in the purple to lilac range — she wears them well and likes to live with them. This, coupled with the fact that these colors are also pleasing to her husband and sons, prompted the choice of an unusual grape-colored fabric interwoven with small block motifs in metallic gold for the upholstering of the sofa.

View is the feature of the Crawfords' upstairs family room, which is furnished in rugged leather appointments. Room is well-fitted as a fun area.

stery of a gigantic 28-foot sofa that was designed with three attractions in mind: conversation, a fireside and a view. These considerations dictated the ultimate form of the button-back sofa that curves around a huge cocktail table in an intimate conversational arrangement, that extends down to the fireplace and then with a back-to-back sort of arrangement doubles around to face the front view window.

A fireplace faced with black-and-gold veined Italian marble is set into a wall of plate mirror that serves to reflect and seemingly magnify the size of the living room.

THE COCKTAIL TABLE and occasional tables throughout the room were custom-finished in a mar-proof baked lacquer that is impregnated with gold leaf. The soft gold luster of the tables has the admirable quality of being both durable and elegant at once. A perfect contribution to this scheme are candy dishes and smoking accessories in exactly matching, grape-colored ceramic edged with gold. Lamps with ceramic bases of dull gold are topped with rose-pink silk shades that give a most flattering blush-toned light.

The dining room is separate from the living room. Its ceiling-high, open arch is flanked on either side with stationary panels of fluted, obscure glass. The dining set was custom made, as were the living room tables, and is finished with the same baked gold lacquer. The upholstered dining chairs are covered in ashes of roses upholstery.

One wall of the dining room is composed entirely of glass with a pair of glass doors that open to a small and completely secluded courtyard defined by a wall of fieldstone and planted with tropicals. They grow against the glass almost as if they were inside the room. This illusion is further heightened with application to the wall opposite of a ceiling-high philodendron motif.

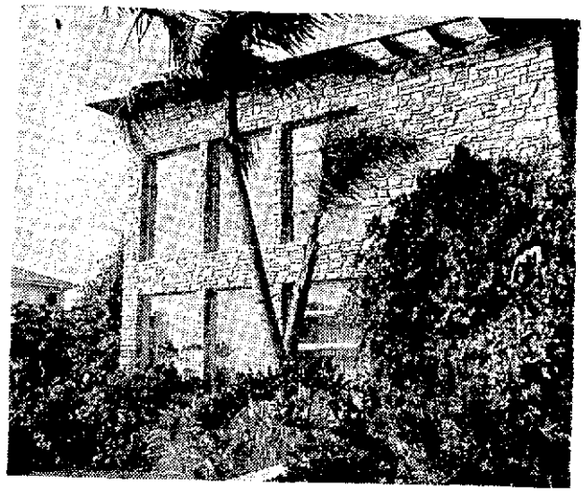

THE KITCHEN is large and is planned for efficiency and ease in its share of the housework. The color scheme is sunny yellow and apple red.

The downstairs den is dramatic with its stark black and white decor. Hand-blocked Egyptian print in black and white was used for the boxed day bed spreads and for the identically matched wallpaper. Geometric plastic-topped tables in black and white are perfect accessories for this room.

The bath is sage green and yellow. Its stall shower is handy for bathers who can come in through the service area, the back door and down a short hallway to the bath. Back-to-back with the downstairs bath is a very attractive guest powder room. Copiously mirrored, it features a color scheme of black and turquoise that has been carried out in fixtures, accessories and French wallpaper. A dressing table draped in gold satin adds appropriate elegance.

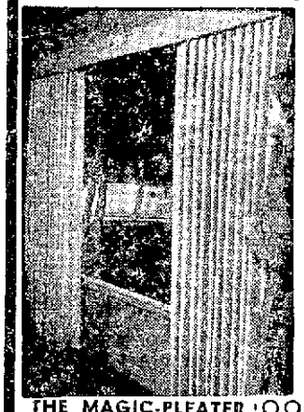

At the head of the stairs is a large open area designated as the family room. It features tremendous floor-to-ceiling

Ojai fieldstone, copiously used, gives a dramatic accent to exterior. Plantings soften stone's austerity.

FLIGHT TO EL MORRO

THIS PANAMANIAN CITY is a dirty but entirely fascinating hodge-podge of historic buildings, shops, cabarets and slums.

The plane took off at 10:13 a.m. Thursday, bound for the high spot of the trip, fabulous San Juan, Puerto Rico. Fabulous is an overworked word, but it doesn't seem so when applied to Puerto Rico.

The plane approached from the west side of the island and flew along the northern coast to San Juan. Rain clouds scudded across the plane, but they could not dim the lush beauty of this Caribbean paradise.

THE CLOUDS CLOSED IN completely about the plane as it made the approach for the landing at Isla Grande Airport. At about 1,500 feet, the craft hurtled out of the clouds and the newcomers aboard were startled to see they were practically in the middle of San Juan.

The walled city known today as "Old San Juan" is situated on a tiny islet just across San Antonio Channel from the airport and adjacent Navy Base on the main island.

The business section of Old San Juan and most points of interest are jammed into a small area about six blocks square. Narrow streets, built centuries ago, provide a fascinating atmosphere but make automobile traffic difficult. Visitors make better progress on foot.

San Juan, capital of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, is one of the oldest cities in the Western Hemisphere. Old San Juan was settled in 1523 after being moved from the original site across the bay in Caparra where it was founded in 1508.

THE SUBURB of Santurce, just across the channel, in the past two decades grew to meet the town of Rio Piedras, 7½ miles away. San Juan incorporated Rio Piedras and the outlying suburbs in 1952.

Modern San Juan is the center of what the Puerto Ricans call "a testing ground to see if an underdeveloped country can raise its standard of living in terms of democracy, contrary to communist claims."

In a dramatic bid, the commonwealth government has offered a completely tax-free period of 10 years to U. S. manufacturers who set up new plants in Puerto Rico.

This, a labor reservoir of 650,000 men and women who have been given training in the commonwealth's vocational schools and a wonderful climate, have resulted in the establishment of 400 new plants there.

THE VISITORS wound up their stay in San Juan with a tour Friday morning of El Morro, the fortress which guarded the city for centuries.

The fortress was started in 1539 and completed in 1591. It was unsuccessfully attacked by Sir Francis Drake in 1595 and taken in 1598 by the Earl of Cumberland. However, he later had to abandon Puerto Rico when his troops contracted dysentery. It successfully withstood all further attacks.

One of the strangest golf courses in the world is situated within the walls of the old fort. Two holes actually are played within the filled-in moat of the fortification. On another, the player shoots out of the moat over a 30-foot wall. The greens are of packed sand. A guide explained that if bent grass were used, the coarse tropical grass of the fairways soon would overrun the greens.

AFTER THE BEAUTIES of Puerto Rico the return flight to Los Alamitos was dull. The party left San Juan at 1:12 p.m. Friday and arrived at Dallas at 10:45 a.m., then took off at 8:15 a.m. Saturday and landed home at 12:54 p.m.

The squadron members had covered more than 7,000 miles and had gained valuable training which will be of untold benefit to the nation in the event of national emergency.

plate glass windows that make a real "command performance" of the magnificent ocean view. for cozier atmosphere, draperies of burnt orange pull across the windows, adding brilliance to the room furnished with leather upholstered furniture in tones of parchment and terra cotta. A piano, a pool table and a series of built-in compartments for hi-fi, records and books contribute to the room's "fun" qualities.

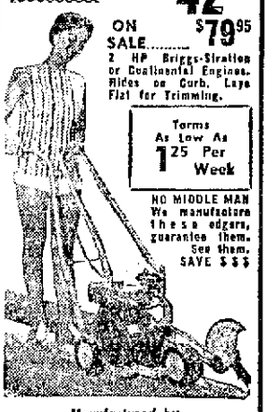

THE TWO CRAWFORD sons have rooms that have sufficient wardrobe storage to accommodate clothing, hobby and sports equipment. Each room has a built-in desk across windows that feature beautiful views.

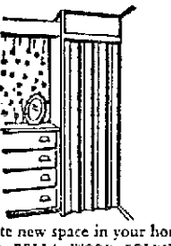

The master bedroom is a large room that achieves an elegant richness with its grape and mulberry color scheme, its lavish use of slipper satin for dressing tables, bedspread and ornately styled curved headboard. Pale pink boucle glass curtains cover huge windows with a gossamer blush.

SOUTHLAND'S SHORT SHORT STORY

The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha

By Owen Rhodes

Illustrated by Diane Demack

PARAPLEGICS were already out in force taking the Southern California sun when Chaplain Hoag walked across the grounds of Veterans Hospital. Some were in wheelchairs. Others, looking for all the world like fabled centaurs, rode the low-slung gurneys.

"Hey, parson!" a voice called as he turned in at Wing 17. It was Boxcar Smith, idling his wheelchair along the foot of the ramp. "You goin' in to see Johnny Hawkins?"

"He is very ill," the chaplain replied.

BOXCAR RELAXED in his wheelchair. "Saturday night I took Johnny out on the town. In my Cad. When we got back it was raining and he wanted to walk in—"

"Why, he is a quadriplegic," the chaplain said. "He can't even—"

"—Can't even twiddle his toes," Boxcar said with a fine air of contempt, wiggling his own toes to show how it was done. "He got wet and caught cold."

The chaplain started to edge away. Then, "They said something over the phone about a brass box—"

"The one Johnny keeps all those love letters in." Boxcar inched his wheelchair forward confidentially. "The boys won't sleep in the ward with it any more. Parson, something jumps around in that box!"

THE CHAPLAIN stiffened. "Nonsense, Boxcar! Your own religious teaching should tell you so."

Boxcar winked mysteriously. "You're a good Joe, parson. Let me give you a tip. Don't lend Johnny your scarf pin!"

Chaplain Hoag was still fiddling with his black onyx pin when he entered Nurse Vestry's small office. She lifted a metal casket from a shelf and slammed it onto the corner of her desk.

"You know what?" she demanded. "You're to read him his five hundred love letters. Take this thing out of here and don't bring it back."

CHAPLAIN HOAG picked up the brass box and held it to the morning light. It was ornate and very old and carried a nameless air of authenticity. Molded on the cover was a sleek, smiling Buddha, its tapered hands pressed against its sides. A break in the stylized perfection caught his eye. The right index finger was missing.

"Tai-Nam Ha!" he exclaimed. "The Healing Buddha!"

"I don't care what it is," the nurse began, "I—"

The chaplain coughed delicately. "I am somewhat of an authority on these things, Miss Vestry. This casket has been missing for hundreds of years. It is worth a king's ransom!"

"I wouldn't have it around for all the gold in Fort Knox," Miss Vestry stormed. "There's something alive inside!"

THE CHAPLAIN tucked the box under his arm and sidled toward the door of the private room. "Johnny—how long?" he asked.

"Better see him while you can." The nurse dropped into her chair and, surprisingly, began to cry. "This is just not my day," she confessed. "That horrid box. And a quadriplegic with five hundred love letters. . . ."

Johnny Hawkins lay on the tilted hospital bed. His face was thin and flushed, his fair hair combed back from his forehead. A sly smile was etched about his lips. He was very young. The chaplain touched one of the slender, unresponsive hands.

"It's Chaplain Hoag, Johnny," he said gently.

JOHNNY CHUCKLED. "Played a big joke on everybody. Got a scarf pin, chaplain?"

The other's hand flew protectively to his onyx pin.

"Need it to open the box," Johnny grinned. "Just fits the hole in the finger stub."

"Do you know the story of this box?" the chaplain asked. "How the Buddha stood on a cliff near Seoul? How, to the afflicted who visited it at midnight, it held out a hand to touch and heal? How—"

JOHNNY LAUGHED. "—How a chiselin' thief cut off the Buddha's finger and carried it away in the box. Tryin' to practice medicine without a license. How the idol shook up the land and threw itself into the sea—"

"The Finger is supposed to heal—" the chaplain began.

"Sure it heals," Johnny chuckled. "Made to heal. Reg'lar Chinaman's trick. Still mad. It heals for an hour, then bloocy! Blow's everything sky high!"

"It's worth a fortune, Johnny. Did you—"

"Steal it?" Johnny grinned. "Old geezer at the temple gave it to me. Scared. Thought it started the Korean War. Open the box, chaplain!"

THE CHAPLAIN shifted the box from hand to hand. "You shouldn't have put your letters in here, Johnny," he temporized.

There was a gay raillery in Johnny's voice. "You afraid somethin' will crawl out and bite you, chaplain?"

The chaplain removed his pin and attacked the box with grim determination. The lock yielded with a tiny snick of sound. Ex-

And because Mary wanted it that way . . . he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Reagan in marriage.

outcropping and decomposed quartz nearby. I mused on the possibilities of the quartz carrying gold. I get my mortar and pan from the car. I pounded up some rock, put it in the pan, dipped from the new water hole and began panning. I finished, and there was a complete circle of free gold!"

That was on Monday, New Year's Day, 1934, and Rogers had owned the property but 13 days.

GLORYHOLE was reamed out of the area's typically firm, decomposed granite into a large room-sized cavern by the square-set, slot-and-pillar type of mining that left chunky pillars of the conglomerate standing to support the cavern ceiling. Stout shorings were set to brace the gopherholing as the fabulously rich gold pocket began raying underground. In all directions Gloryhole was explored, picks and shovels knocked down gold or scooped it up.

For untold years, storekeepers in desert outposts had been accepting gold nuggets presented by the Indians in trade for their simple needs. George Bowers' discovery in 1894 near the present town of Mojave brought mining to the area; in 1934, the Gloryhole pitched gold fever on the desert to a new high.

The tough-muscled, hard-fisted Neenach mining population was centered in a hootin', tar-paper and tent "boom town" that mushroomed in Rivera Canyon over the ridge from Gloryhole. Beer sudsed night and day within the sprawling frame of the "Oasis," the eating house and bar that trembled from the tread of boots walking up and down. Slot machines and a battered piano tinkled crazily.

THE DRINKING, carousing, shootings, romancing, thievery and tomfoolery were punctuated intermittenly by the boom and shudder of dynamiting as Gloryhole's three shifts worked around the clock. Fuses were lighted after each shift checked out, charges exploded and air pumps worked to clear the mine interior before the fresh manpower entered.

In spite of inevitable accidents, Gloryhole claimed no human life, although Fritz Mollinet, a stalwart mucker, came close to losing his at one of the mine's lower levels. Water and mud from a pocket overhead became tapped accidentally. Tons of mud forced the chute gate, poured down in a stifling flood. The ore car that Fritz was using filled, overflowed, and disappeared under the rising tide of mud.

Above in the shaft, Fritz's helper was frantically trying to replace the gate. "Go on—leave!" Fritz shouted, feeling sticky mud trapping him at armpit level.

The mucker grimly remained, straining, fighting and pushing at the crude planking. The timber groaned into place. The mud stopped rising, just inches short of snuffing out Mollinet's life. By then, he was buried to his chin.

THE NEENACH mining boom continued through 1935 and 1936, lesser mines producing along with Gloryhole. Then the richness petered out. Poorer mines found operations unprofitable and closed. Miners folded their tents and the shanty town vanished from the canyon. Bill Rogers moved to Bakersfield; Gloryhole changed hands, settled down to commercial operations of a less colorful sort. A miner and his family set up housekeeping in the ghost town's former "Oasis."

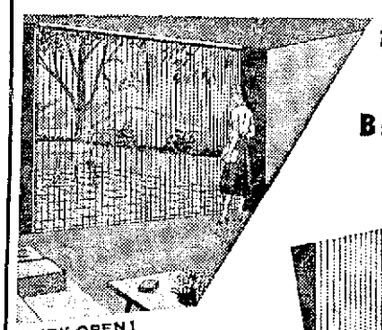

During the two decades following, the ball mill situated a few yards down-canyon from Gloryhole's entrance accepted the mine's later day ore, pulverizing, stirring it into the acid bath diluted by water flowing from the original springs that led Bill Rogers to discover the precious mineral. Tailing piles have inched higher and higher with the years until today, the conical mounds of light colored rock stand almost higher than the looming canyon walls.

At length, even Gloryhole's golden shafts were scraped to poorness. The mine was shut down in the fall of 1955. Abandoned pathways, twisted tracks, rusting ore cars and a padlocked gate guard the silent labyrinth hidden below.

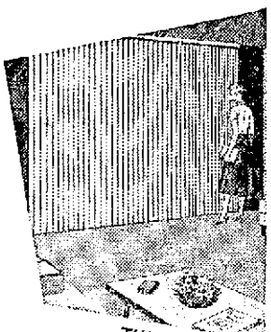

The glory is gone from the Gloryhole.

cept for a folded rectangle of paper the box appeared empty.

"Fooled everybody," Johnny giggled. "No love letters. Never had a girl, except— Read the paper. It'll slay you!"

CHAPLAIN HOAG spread out the deeply creased document. It was an unexecuted license for Johnny Hawkins and one Mary Reagan to wed.

"Joke was on us," Johnny said. "Shipped out too fast to get married. This happened to me and I pulled a hot one on Mary. Faked a wire—missing in action! Bet you can't guess what else is in the box."

The chaplain peeped in with some foreboding. There it was! A slender, gleaming length of bronze lying recessed in the bottom of the box. The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha! He closed the casket and heard with relief the snap of the hidden lock. He stood up.

"I MUST GO NOW," he said. "I will be back soon."

"Sure!" Johnny grinned. "Come any time. Come at midnight. Put the Finger on me and watch the fun."

"Johnny, that's not amusing!"

Of a sudden the boy's face was a tragic mask. "You think bein' just a brain, a voice and a digestive tract is funny, chaplain? I want to live that hour!" Then the passion drained away and he smiled again. "Just thought of somethin'. Mary's still waiting. I've checked. Joke's too good to keep. Go tell her not to wait any longer."

JOHNNY'S EYES closed and he seemed to sleep. Then his lips moved and the chaplain bent over him to listen. He heard him say, "—just to wiggle my toes like Boxcar Smith can do—"

Chaplain Hoag drove through the hospital gate a little later and did not return until eleven o'clock that night. There rode in with him a slender, plain girl whom he addressed as Mary Reagan.

And because Mary wanted it that way, at a quarter to twelve he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Reagan in marriage, with Boxcar Smith and a hastily summoned Miss Vestry as witnesses. And just before he left the two alone, in answer to Johnny's pleading eyes and an urge he could not define, he placed his onyx pin on the night stand beside the brass box.

A local temblor struck Wing 17 at precisely one a.m. Gas lines under the structure broke in several places and in seconds the whole building was ablaze. Heads-up work cleared the wards with just instants to spare.

Chaplain Hoag hurried up, spied Boxcar Smith in the forefront of the gathering crowd.

"All out, Boxcar?" he asked.

"Johnny's still in there, parson," Boxcar said.

"Look!" It was Nurse Vestry cart!" he said, pointing toward the blazing structure.

JUST INSIDE A FLAME-enshrouded window stood Johnny, a blanketed form in his arms. Unhurriedly, he shifted its weight to his left arm and raised the sash. He lifted a foot and kicked out the screen and lowered the burden gently over the sill.

"Johnny! Johnny!" the chaplain shouted.

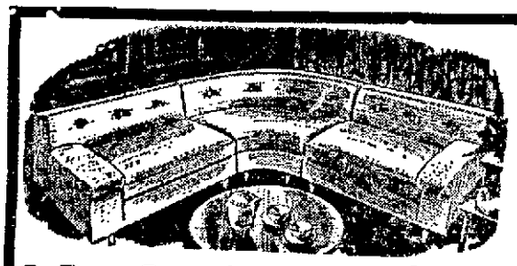

Johnny heard him. He grinned and brought up his hand in the GI's gloating symbol. Then the roof caved in over his head.

BACK FROM THE searing heat, they unwrapped the blanketed figure. Mary was unharmed. The brass box lay in a crook of her arm.

"Funny thing," Boxcar Smith said. "Not another building damaged. What you think happened, parson?"

The lowering flames of Wing 17 reflected the thoughts back of Chaplain Hoag's eyes. He removed his hat.

"Why, an act of God, Boxcar."

CAMERA ANGLES

Be Thankful There Are Cameras

By the Shutterbug

THANKSGIVING is one of our most beloved holidays . . . it is a time for looking back, for remembering and giving thanks. It is a time when families are close together . . . when reminiscences are the order of the day's conversation.

It's a day for looking back through the family album, for viewing of slides and movies that bring pleasant memories of other days.

IT IS ALSO a day of taking pictures, for creating the snapshots that will come into their own on future days of family reunion, for adding today's pleasures to the record.

Flash photography makes such indoor picture taking very easy, when you're taking still pictures. And the bar lights now available for movie cameras make the type of shooting equally simple. With these kinds of artificial light available, you can take the picture wherever it is happening.

You can take a pre-dinner look into the kitchen, for a close-up of mother and grandmother testing the doneness of the big bird or swirling the decorative touches of whipped cream atop the spicy pumpkin pies.

YOU CAN LOOK into the living room where other members of the family are talking together in small groups. The flash attachment on your camera allows you to carry the light source right with you, so you can picture these people in the natural groups which they formed about a mutually interesting topic of conversation.

You can then move into the dining room with your camera and light when the anticipated

Flash cameras or movies with bar lights go easily into the kitchen to picture home Thanksgiving activities.

In the Manner of the Holy Land

Glimpsed through this archway is part of the Biblical garden of St. Luke's Church. The olive tree in center is linked closely to Holy Land and history of mankind.

Ivy of this kind was used in Holy Land rites, festivals. Markers link present plants to Biblical times.

By Walter Finch

CITYWIDE attention is being directed toward the courtyard garden of St. Luke's Episcopal Church because of the unusual theme employed in the landscaping.

Plants for the sheltered garden of the church have been restricted to those mentioned in the Bible and accredited by botanists to have been growing in the Holy Land during or before the life of Christ. Funds for the trees and shrubs were donated by members of the church.

THE PLAN, as above described, sounds deceptively simple. However, Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrill, originator of the Biblical garden, has done an unbelievable amount of research on the subject which offers plenty of scope for debate. One factor that tends to complicate the issue is that many plants referred to in the Bible bear names that have been replaced by newer nomenclature. For example, the "gourd" mentioned in the Book of Job is what we know as the casterbean; the green bay tree referred to by David is known to us as the laurel.

To further confuse the issue, the Holy Land that once was verdant and productive is, today, virtually a barren wasteland. Historians blame the barrenness of Palestine, Syria and Transjordania on two factors: first, the cutting down of natural timbers and leaving exposed land to be eroded and swept away; second, neglect of the ancient terrace-type cultivation. These countries stand today as grim testimony of some of the world's most devastating soil erosion.

Unaware of the change that has evolved since the 7th century, some artists are given to portraying Christ walking in deserts amidst cactus which botanists feel sure was not present in the Holy Land during his life.

OF ADDED INTEREST is the fact that a garden to the Palestinians and Syrians meant, literally, a grove of trees (usually olives) surrounded by walls of stone or briars. The latter was to discourage marauders both animal and human. In the center of these gardens was a mound of earth of rock that afforded the owner of the garden a view of the surrounding— and threatening—countryside.

This garden bears little resemblance to the riotously-colored, heady-smelling rose arbor-pansy bed sort of thing we associate with the name today. Shrubs and trees were cultivated in the Holy Land for purely practical purposes--food, fuel, building material, fodder, medicants and for drink. The business of survival was such a big enough job that there was no time left for the cultivation of prettiness for any save the richest men.

And so the garden at St. Luke's Church may never be known for lush prettiness. But for historical correctness and dignity it is distinctive.

The courtyard of this English-style church is surrounded on three sides by the parish house, the guild hall and the church itself. Across the front of the garden is the covered ambulatory connecting the parish hall with the church.

BEYOND THE OPEN arches of the walkway lies the garden. The enormous and handsome olive tree that spreads its sheltering branches over the southeast corner of the courtyard was transplanted to this site two years ago. A hedge of myrtle borders the garden across the east side, screening the street within the open walkway.

A margin of color and fragrance is offered by a bed of narcissus and tulips that grow in front of the myrtle hedge. Both flowers were referred to as "roses" in the Bible. Covering the beds bordering the north and south sides of the garden is glossy ivy that is referred to by that name in the Bible. Growing in the north section, which avoids the hot afternoon sun, are the acacia tree, almond tree and the fir. The latter specimen was actually brought here recently from the Holy Land. Brought to the garden at the same time was a small pine tree that, like the olive, grows within the center plot.

The walkway leads past a mass of other incidental plants and shrubs that have been identified by small metal markers as to name and to the section of the Bible wherein they are mentioned.

ACROSS THE BACK of the garden is a boxwood hedge, known Biblically as the "box". In front of the hedge grow the lilies. The anemone was known as the lily of the field, the hyacinth as the lily of the valley, the Madonna lily as the Easter lily and the yellow iris as the lily of the stream. These latter two are impractical to grow in the garden and so are merely set out in pots during specific times of the year.

Also growing in this section are herbs which were purchased by money donated by children of the church school. Growing side by side with the fragrant and lovely hyacinth is garlic, onion, mustard, coriander, mint, endive and rue.

On the south side of the garden is a shaded plot that features an old and rustic bench that invites visitors to stop and meditate. The bench is sheltered by a carob tree on the right, a fig tree on the left and is banked in back by willowy bulrushes that wave their feathery foliage in the breeze.

Pleasure Tour of West--1843

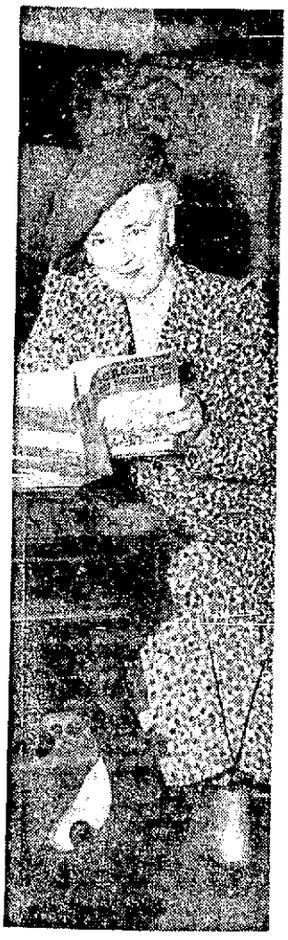

By Katharine B. Moore

IT'S A LONG WAY from Perthshire, Scotland, and the 19th century to Southern California and 1956! A Henry Inman portrait of Sir William Drummond Stewart has traveled that distance, to be a part of the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Porter of Santa Ana. To this couple—formerly of Kansis City, Mo., Taos, N. M.—western history has been a pastime and a supplementary career.

Mrs. Porter (Mae Reed Porter), who collaborated with Bernard de Voto in "Across the Wide Missouri" (Houghton Mifflin), found this portrait under unusual circumstances while doing research in New York. It is one of their many priceless mementoes of the dashing, high-tempered Scotch playboy of well over a century ago. In America, Sir William is chiefly known as the organizer of probably the first conducted pleasure tour to the West—in 1843—after his preliminary treks in 1833 and 1837.

HIS RIGHT-HAND man was Col. William Sublette, hunter, fur trader and explorer. The colonel, an enthusiastic guide, was an associate of such famous mountain men as Joseph Reddeford Walker, discoverer of Yosemite, and Walker's Pass, in the vicinity of Bakersfield.

It is not unusual for present-day sportsmen to travel 2,200 miles to fish in the Pacific or hunt in the High Sierra. In 1843 such a trip was hazardous. Sir William had no air lines or vista dome trains by which to route his clients, but his organization methods were strictly modern. Preparatory publicity consisted of a personal trip to New Orleans, and one to St. Louis by Sublette, to enlist "tourists." The nobleman's previous years in the West made him an ardent advance agent. For an expedition in 1837 he had employed a talented young Baltimore artist — Alfred Jacob Miller — to record the adventure in pictures. As it was not until 1838 that Louis Daguerre invented photography, Miller's tools were water colors, brushes, paper, and a background of European art technique. Ninety-six of his original water color sketches bearing penciled notations are among the treasures of Mr. and Mrs. Porter. Through lectures, illustrated with colored slides made from these paintings, Mrs. Porter has stimulated interest in this once almost forgotten craftsman. A group of the sketches, many perfectly reproduced in color, illustrate "Across the Wide Missouri."

MRS. CLYDE PORTER
Collector of Americana

THE SIR WILLIAM-Sublette guided tour took place in an era of excitement and restlessness. In Southern California the fabulous Yankee Dons, Abel Stearns and Juan Temple, were making plans for fandangos, barbecues, bull fights and horse races on their newly acquired ranchos where Long Beach now carries out its industrial and recreational programs. In Westport and Independence — the east-west links—serious minded emigrants were preparing to launch forth to populate the Oregon country. They looked on in amazement at the elaborate equipment of Sir William's gay crowd.

In May his party of 93 started. It included health seekers, doctors, lawyers, botanists and (according to Sublette's journal) "bug ketchers," besides a large crew of hired men. Their goal was the Scotchman's favorite lake in the Wind River Mountains, just east of the Continental Divide. There they fished from collapsible India-rubber boats. They had on their menus canned delicacies, imported cheeses, and wines. Like many a modern vacationer they thrilled to the scenery of the Grand Tetons. With Joe Pourier and Antoine Clement to lead them, they hunted buffalo. The trails over which echoed the voices and rifle shots of this spirited, heterogeneous cavalcade were new and lonely ones. It was not until six years later that searchers for Sutter's gold streamed across and beyond them.

SIR WILLIAM'S wilderness party was his last fling in America. Managing his ancestral estate, he dreamed of the freedom of the plains. On the walls of Murthly Castle were dramatic reminders of the new world—oil paintings done by Alfred Miller from the water color sketches of 1837.

In a philosophical mood, Mrs. Porter looked at the Inman portrait of a regal and formal Sir William above the mantel in her living room.

"I like to think that Sir William is very happy to be back in America and the West," she said.

The Porters' home on secluded Tropic Lane is a reflection of true art connoisseurs. Their hobby of researching has yielded many unforgettable experiences, as well as tangible souvenirs. Among them is an exquisite miniature of Lt. George Frederick Ruxton, a contemporary of Sir William, gained while delving for facts in England. These energetic historians have co-authored "Ruxton of the Rockies" and have re-issued Ruxton's own book, "Life in the Far West"—both through the University of Oklanoma Press.

"YOU MIGHT SAY Ruxton was a world-traveler," said Porter, as he displayed some formidable appearing horns and other trophies of the daring man's African and Canadian exploits. "And we also have his medals won during the Carlist Wars in Spain in 1937."

The latest achievement of this Western Americana team is a compilation of the reactions of Matthew Field, the ex-actor who "covered" Sir William's 1843 tour for the New Orleans Picayune. This will be released in January 1957 by the University of Oklanoma Press.

Strange spectacle—for 1843—was the conducted tour of the West led by Sir William Drummond Stewart (above).

HOW BIG IS YOUR THANKSGIVING TABLE?

the bumps had turned into blessings!

The second exercise is just pure fun. It is the expression of our gratitude to others. When grateful thoughts come to us about a person during these days let us speak them. It will not only bring them great joy, but will encourage them to release more of this same quality for which we were originally grateful.

WE ARE SOMETIMES slower with gratitude to members of our own family than we mean to be. Al Vermeer's delightful little cartoon character "Priscilla's Pop," appearing daily in the Independent, Press Telegram, expresses the true spirit of family thanksgiving when, after her "pop has granted some girlish desire, she ecstatically exclaims: "Gee, I'm glad we married him!" Pop's chest swells a little bigger, and we can almost feel the love grow between them everytime there is an occasion for a hearty thank-you.

One local family has put gratitude into their Thanksgiving celebration by annually writing letters to two or three people who have meant a great deal to them throughout the year.

THE THIRD EXERCISE in gratitude is its tangible expression through gifts and service. Mrs. A. V. Jacoubowsky, dynamic Long Beach worker for the U.N., once quoted a relief worker in a foreign country who was shocked at what he saw and wrote: "I ask myself this noontime how is it I was the one chosen to eat this food and my neighbor to starve? I do not know nor shall I ever know. But this I do know. It must be paid for by humility and service which springs from a sense of responsibility or else this world makes little sense." Whether it be a basket of food to a local needy family, a CARE package for a neighbor overseas, or an invitation to dinner for the lonely person down the street, our own Thanksgiving feast will taste better for our act of sharing.

California's Sage Grouse

degree on clover, rush, snowberry, prickly lettuce, wooly sunflower, dandelion and rabbitbrush. They also eat ants, grasshoppers, moths and butterflies as well as some seeds. When near wheat fields, they eat the grain, perhaps because it is so easily available.

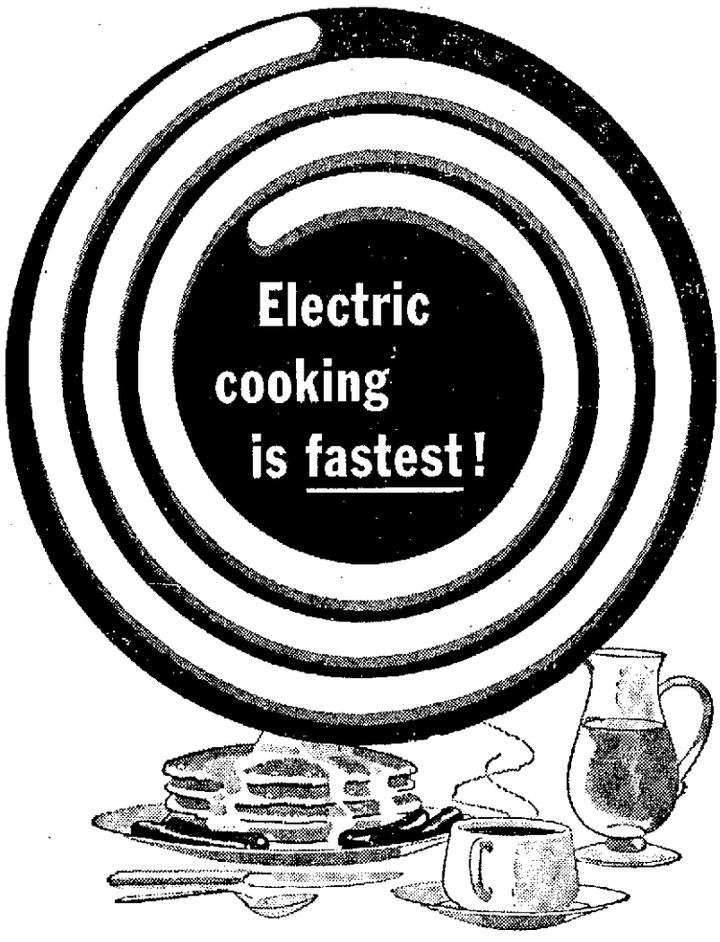

The grouse of California are undoubtedly the descendants of the great flocks whose original range extended over much of the western states as far east as Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, and northward to southwestern Canada — the region known as the "sagebrush country." The birds were first protected in California in 1901, when a closed season was enacted, making it unlawful to possess them between Feb. 1 and Oct. 1. The same law prohibited the sale of wild sage grouse, and also prohibited the shipment of more than 25 birds in one day by one person. But these restrictions were still too liberal, and in 1903 the closed season extended to the period from Feb. 15 to Sept. 1.

THE OPEN SEASON on grouse was still further reduced from 1903 to 1918, yet by 1921 the birds were virtually extinct in several counties, notably Modoc and Inyo. In that year, grouse shooting was prohibited throughout the state. In 1925, all counties were again opened for grouse shooting from Aug. 1 to 15. In 1928, the State Legislature set aside a game refuge in Lassen County as a sage grouse and antelope refuge, and relaxed the hunting regulations. Soon, however, grouse were facing extinction, and a closed season was enforced from 1944 to 1950 throughout the state.

In 1950 and 1951, the season was opened in Mono County, but only for two days, Sept. 1 and 2, and with a two-bird season bag limit. In 1952, a one-day season, Sept. 1, was opened with a three-bird bag limit in Modoc and Lassen Counties.

CHECKING STATIONS set up during the 1950, 1951 and 1952 season revealed that hunting pressure is increasing and that fewer hunters are successful in bagging the grouse. For the year 1953, therefore, grouse hunting was permitted in Modoc and Lassen Counties for two days—Sept. 3 and 4—with a bag and possession limit of two birds per season.

A New Adam and a New Eve

IS THE BIBLE accurate in its account of the creation of the world? Did Biblical characters such as Adam and Eve, and Noah, actually exist? Did David really slay the giant, Goliath?

Greatly expanded, the most-read and best-loved stories to come from the lips of mankind for thousands of years about these figures from the mists of ancient times — are reverently retold by Louis Ginzberg, the noted Talmudic scholar, in "Legends of the Bible" (Simon and Schuster, $5). In what may well become the most significant religious work of the decade, Mr. Ginzberg gives new dimensional values to the oldest and most renowned people in all literature and brings fresh and vibrant appreciation of the Scriptures.

For, instead of leaving fragments of pictures of these legendary figures as we have known them, Mr. Ginzberg calls upon all reliable sources extant to piece together the complete stories of their lives. The result is that Adam and Eve, and Noah, and others emerge as if a veil were lifted from the time they walked the paths of the earth.

Clearing the way for the reader, Schalom Spiegel, another scholar of Jewish history, explains in the introduction that "legend may be taken to imply whatever will come to be read by successive ages into an event or record of the past: the ever-new and ever-changing rereading of old sources by new generations of man. Great events and great books have a posthumous story of their own. Each following period pours its inner self into the patient and pliant texts of old."

Of the legends in the Bible, Spiegel writes: "Devout centuries wove endless fantasies around the characters and occurrences depicted in the holy Writ. Both folk imagination and scholar's wit coaxed and forced from its pages a multitude of tales and a host of fancies unforeseen and unsuspected by the writers of the Bible. . . . Its stories, even before they were written down, had moved the minds and hearts of men for centuries."

Of how these stories came to be included in the Bible, Mr. Spiegel continues: "Even when the legends were assembled in special books, the principle of their arrangement was purely mechanical: they were strung to the passages of Scripture which they employed or elaborated. This method gave them the false appearance of being a running commentary of sections or selections of the Writ . . ."

But believers will find Mr. Ginzberg's mountainous effort tremendously rewarding.—R.J.B.

DR. ROY A. BURKHART, now director of the National Council of Community Churches, shows the way to attainment of four vital freedoms for healthier and happy living in "The Freedom to Become Yourself" (Prentice-Hall, $4.95). Dr. Burkhart believes that most of us go through life knowing only half of ourselves, that great areas of our strength lie hidden, making us strangers to our own souls. He seeks, through ancient teachings and modern psychology, to put us on more intimate terms with our great potentials for happier living.

She had forgotten her alphas and betas, sure, but Emily Kimbrough had reasons of her very own to visit Greece. So visit Greece she did, and also the Aegeans, and such en route spots as Paris and London. The excursion, with its delights, surprises, mishaps and curiosities, seemed to call for another of her inimitable books, so she put it all down in "Water, Water Everywhere" (Harper, $3.75). The result, naturally, is a revealing and witty voyage for the armchair traveler; in fact, he never had it so good.

THE CREAM of the crop of outstanding Yuletide tales, as told by some of the world's greatest writers, illustrators and cartoonists of the last 50 years — comes in "A Merry, Merry Christmas Book" (Prentice-Hall, $2.95). Editor Eric Posselt includes such authors as Robert Benchley, Max Beerbohm, Damon Runyon, Christopher Morley, Roark Bradford and many others, and an array of artists that includes Bill O'Malley, Carl Rose and O. Soglow.

SCHOLARLY Francis H. Buffum's soft-cover book "America at the Crossroads" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $1.25) is something which should be read by all Americans who seek understanding of the basic differences between our country and Russia. It traces the history of the two countries and the factors that led to their growths in world prestige. It compares the ideologies of democracy and communism.

AN INSIDE LOOK at executive-level greed and corruption is given in the first novel of John G. Burnett, "Company Man," (Harpers, $3.50), when Robert Franklin leaves his own agency to join the staff of Farnsworth Airlines as advertising manager. Working with Sidney Starkle, public relations boss, and Peter Lafferty, agency representative, Franklin struggles to maintain personal dignity, yet still conform enough to be accepted into the inner circle.

"THE MAINSTREAM of America" has become a series of books for which the readers of American history await with eagerness and anticipation of a solid delight. Now Irving Stone presents his "Men to Match My Mountains" (Doubleday, $5.95) and the volume is one of the best of the series. You name a hero or a rascal whose feet trod the early western land, and he is here. Just what drew men and women into the roughness and insecurity of the early west is a question, but perhaps it was restlessness or a general contempt for peaceful surroundings. And from 1840 until 1900, brashness, brawn and raw courage had their places beside greed and hatred. Here is how a continent was settled and made secure, and the doing is going to live forever in the hearts of Americans, due in most part to authors like Irving Stone who write proudly and sincerely of great and daring men who walked the land.

WHAT A MAN DOES, thinks, and feels, when told by doctors that he has cirrhosis of the liver, is no doubt the theme behind "The Crossing" by Jean Reverzy (Pantheon $3.50). But the theme obscures and becomes tiresome amid endless, many-syllabled words describing the South Seas, numerous flashbacks, and "pretty prose." If it is a gripping sharply-cut yarn you want—then this is not your cup of tea. This novel is a so-whater.

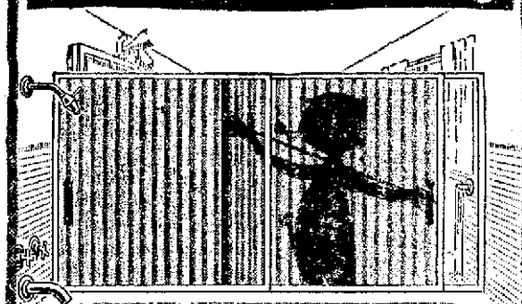

A STORY of the decline in power of the Indian in Washington Territory, and particularly of the Wanapums held to their own ancient ways long after the intrusion of the White Man by a medicine man called Smowhala, the Dreamer, is "Drummers and Dreamers" by Click Relander (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $6). This is a scholarly work which seems to fill several gaps in the history of the settling of the Northwest. Smowhala, the Prophet, and his nephew, Puck Hyah Toot, the last Prophet of the nearly extinct River People, the Wanapums, make intriguing reading for Westerners of the modern day.

ONLY THE SIMPLEST costumes and props, and no special lighting or scenery, are needed to produce in church, school or elsewhere the classical religious plays contained in "Great Christian Plays" (Seabury Press, $7.50). Excellent editing is done by Theodore M. Switz and Robert A. Johnston. The plays are translated into modern English acting versions, and represent the best extant medieval dramas, including the ageless "Everyman." The text of each play is accompanied by an introduction to the background and characters, notes on props and staging, costume sketches and appropriate music. This book would seem appropriate for the library of any Christian church.

LITTLE REAL knowledge of the Japanese geisha has reached the western world. But the true position of the dedicated woman is demonstrated in "Three Geishas" by Kikou Yamata (Day, $3.50). Okichi is the first geisha and she was chosen to be a companion to the first American consul. She was soon scorned by her own people, but she later earned her place in history. Okoi married a fine actor, but she turned to a prime minister to further her country's cause. The last geisha still lives, and her great but tragic story is touching. So the "persons of art" are brought forward and presented with sympathy and drama.

WHAT TO DO with river-loving Grandpa Binkley when the new bridge does away with need for the services of his "faithful ferry" is the problem facing Andy in "Binkley's Bottleneck" — a children's story written and illustrated by Stella F. Rapaport (Putnam's, $2.50).

Mile-Deep City

By Bettie Payne Welles

A CASUAL visitor in Butte, Montana's famous copper camp, no doubt may think it is just like any other western city spreading under vast blue skies. Late model cars are parked at the curb, people walk casually along the sidewalks and shop in the stores. Life is normal.

But stop any citizen and ask him about Butte. He will offer a broad friendly smile and tell of his town's many attractions. He will relate that this metropolis is known as the "mile-deep" city. Underground mine levels and raises form a network of more than 2,200 miles, and there are over 5,000 miles of stope workings. For the uninformed, a stope working is an excavation underground for the removal of ore formed by mining from a block of ground.

At the western city limits is the Montana School of Mines. This school is part of the University of Montana, and has a museum with one of the finest mineral collections in the United States. The museum is open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. At the approach to the campus of the School of Mines is a statue of Marcus Daly made by the American sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens. To know the story of Marcus Daly is to know the history of Butte.

It was in the early 1870s that young and brilliant Marcus came from Virginia City, Nev., to manage the Alice Mine for a group of Salt Lake City bankers. He came in time to see the bonanza silver mining days of Butte on the wane, for the silver ore mined was of low grade. Every one in the camp was discouraged, and one by one families were leaving for better "diggin's." For a few years it looked as if Butte was destined to be another ghost town.

COPPER WAS discovered, but very little was known of this metal at that time. Its production was very expensive. It was shipped by sailing vessels around the Horn to the Atlantic Coast to the smelter. This took many months.

But the faith and courage of Marcus Daly saved the camp. He borrowed money and sank mine shafts. He blocked out ore when people said it could not be done. He persevered, refusing to admit defeat. Today he is credited with founding the vast copper industry in Montana, and making Butte the world's leading copper city.

In the years that followed, history records that great wealth poured into Butte from all corners of the earth. It became a city of contrasts. Fabulous fortunes were made and lost overnight. There were bitter quarrels and murders to settle disputes over mining claims. Court calendars of that era were filled for years with mining claims to control the bodies of ore underground and on the surface. All this is different today. The mines are consolidated and operated by the Anaconda Mining Company. Underground mines are connected for safety, drainage and ventilation. These factors give good up-to-date mining operations.

Butte serves her country in times of peace as well as in times of war. For example, her yearly production of copper, zinc, lead, and manganese reaches well into the hundreds of millions of pounds.

IN THE COURSE of conversation with Butte residents one may be told that a visit to a copper mine may be arranged. The Leonard Mine is usually the one used for guided tours for visitors during the day. It is located next to Meaderville, a lively little Italian settlement on the outskirts of the city on U. S. Hwy. 91.

From the parking area of the Leonard, the view is dominated by copper mining. There are large flumes and launders, locally known as "copper tanks." They carry the mine water which is pumped from the high ore shaft on the hill. Years ago it was discovered that iron left in the water was replaced by copper precipitates, and today copper tanks yield 6,000,000 pounds of copper a year.

On the right are the Rarus, the Berkley and the Tramway mines, properties made famous in the rowdy early days of Butte's gaudy mining history. To the east are McQueen and East Butte, settlements made up of Central European people who have brought their language and their customs with them. Below these settlements are slag dumps from smeltering operations years ago when copper was "heap-roasted" in the open by igniting sulphur. All vegetation for miles around was killed by this method of smelting.

BREAKING THE SKYLINE to the west is the giant Anaconda stack. Marcus Daly selected Anaconda as a sight for this smelter because of the favorable water supply and the nearness to limestone sources. This is another trip of interest to add to the list of things to see in Butte.

ANOTHER COMMUNITY outside of the city limits of Butte is Centerville, a Cornish settlement where generations of Cornish miners have lived with their families. A common joke among local people is that in by-gone days on St. Patrick's Day the Cousin Jack Band used to lead the parade for the Irish because every Irishman insisted on being the bandleader.

One with extra time to spend in Butte will enjoy a trip to the Columbia Gardens, a popular recreation spot two miles east of the city and located at the foot of the Continental Divide.

This is Butte's Park St., looking west. The city is called "the copper capital"; mines support economy.

Tour of Europe

Norway, Sweden and Denmark will be three of the 14 countries visited by Lindskog's Annual Friendly Spring Tour of Europe when it departs next May 19 for 57 days. Sixteen days will be spent in these three countries during the midsummer eve season when there is no darkness, when flowers and trees are in bloom and the Scandinavians are celebrating the coming of summer.

The tour will feature the best in sightseeing, including magnificent drives by private motor coach along the Amalfi, Riviera, through Swiss Alps, the Dolomites, and along Sweden's Lakes Vattern and Vanern. There will be steamer trips down the Sogne Fjord in Norway. Other spots to be visited include Lake Lucern, the baron castles along the Rhine, and London Bridge, Heidelberg Castle, Four Musicians of Bremen Statue, Stoke Poges and Zeiderzee Dyk will bring back childhood memories. There will be gondola rides in Venice, the jaunting car rides around the Lakes of Killarney. Entertainment will include the Holland Music Festival, opera in Paris, Midsummer Eve festivities in Stockholm, Folies-Bergere in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf E. Lindskog, 15764 E. Lindskog Dr., Whittier, will accompany the group.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

. . . Should we buy foreign money before we leave the United States or should we wait until we get to Europe?

MONEY is stiffening up all over the world in relation to the dollar. Even the asthmatic French franc doesn't gasp into the high exchange brackets any more. And those seedy street peddlers around the American Express and the Boulevard des Capucines in Paris have almost disappeared.

Geneva, Lisbon, Tangier are money markets. They deal in money like groceries. They are close to the European sources. They buy at the best price and sell competitively. You can't do better anywhere than buying in Switzerland.

However, many people don't go to Switzerland first. If you don't, buy at one of the American exchange houses. Nearly any bank will get you foreign exchange. But they won't cut the price quite as close as an exchange house.

Can you suggest some places in Honolulu for cocktails . . .

. . . and dinner?

THE WILLOWS beside a pond of carp. The Queen's Surf is excellent. Canlis is good. The Broiler is elegant and has very good food. Prices are about Stateside.

Local boys touted me on a place called "The Embers" as good and inexpensive. They don't serve liquor and local custom is to pick up a bottle of wine before you go and have it with the steak. The management expects it.

We know woolens are a good buy in London. What else would you buy there? Where?

TRY SIMPSON in Piccadilly, Fortnum & Mason nearby, the Army & Navy Store, Liberty House in Regent Street for silks and woolens. Dunhill has a good shop for pipes. Daks skirts and Daks slacks are good at Simpson's. Burberry and Aquascutum are both good for topcoats, men's and women's. And Locke's is the fashionable place for men's hats.

For antique and modern silver, the silver vaults. Try Mall Deposit and Forwarding Company, Ltd., 10 St. Alban's Street, S. W. 1, or Chancery Lane Safe Deposit and Offices Company at 65 Chancery Lane, W. C. 2. These are show places worth a visit if you don't want to buy.

Nearly all stores have the "export scheme." Means you can buy without the heavy British purchase tax and have the things delivered to your plane or boat.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

PET PARADE

Monkeys Are Fun

By Eleanor Avery Price

MONKEYS and their antics are fascinating, as any crowd watching simian antics will attest, and this fascination is the basis for the almost-obsession some people have for owning a monkey.

Often the start is made with a marmoset (which is not a true monkey but is a dainty and interesting little fellow nevertheless) and graduates up to the gibbon apes and chimpanzees.

A monkey is usually easy to train providing the pet has complete confidence in his owner and providing the owner remembers constantly that the monkey, in spite of the fact that he resembles a little person, is not human. Be patient at all times, scolding only when necessary and never teasing.

IT IS ALSO important that the monkey be rewarded with tidbits when he does things that please, but do not stuff him with peanuts as they will constipate him if consumed in too large quantities. Don't go overboard on the fruit, either.

The monkey's diet should consist mostly of bananas, nuts, whole wheat bread spread with a special liquid vitamin, white and sweet potatoes, carrots and leafy vegetables. Poached eggs, pablum, and milk are often relished. Watch his diet carefully so he will be odorless and easy to keep clean.

If you wish, you can dress the monkey in diapers and rubber pants with or without outer garments. Usually monkeys resent delicate, silky, stiff, or fluffy clothes but will submit to soft knitted outfits.

A monkey should have his own quarters, a sling to swing in, and a tree branch or two to clamber on. He needs to play games with his owner and be talked to by him.

AS WINTER APPROACHES and you think of your own comfort, pause a moment. Have you thought also to "winterize" your pet?

Have a comfortable shelter available for the cat or dog, one with a warm bed out of drafts and shielded from damp weather. Even a turtle needs a nice warm spot in which to snooze!

Step up the richness of the food in your pet's diet, and that includes birds. Be certain the right vitamins are given to help see your pet safely through cooler months without his developing some illness peculiar to this period. Fresh water must always be available, and it should be cool, not icy and not heated. Extreme temperatures in foods should be avoided.

Don't make any pet an "in-and-outer" in cold weather. Radical changes of staying outside for a few days, inside for another period and then outside again will have harmful efects. So plan now just where your pet is to spend most of his time during the next few months.

DON'T USE DDT on a cat for ticks. Dip a cotton-tipped applicator in turpentine and touch the tick's head where it enters the skin. The tick will release its hold and can be picked off with tweezers and dropped into turpentine or burned.

A CAT NEEDS its teeth cleaned twice a year to prevent pyorrhea, abscesses, loss of teeth. Even chronic stomach inflammation and kidney diseases have been traced to bad teeth.

A monkey can be lots of fun to own and watch if loved and well cared for.

HOW TO Cover a Cabinet Top with Linoleum, With Installation for Backsplash

1. INSTALL COVE molding next to wall, if you'll have backsplash of linoleum, pictured here.

2. PREFIT FELT and linoleum to match dimensions of top and where it forms backsplash. Sharp jackknife or hawknosed linoleum knife cuts material quickly and easily. Felt should come just to bottom of cap strip—not over it. Attach cap strip after you tack on cove molding.

3. SPREAD LINOLEUM paste onto wall, molding, and top. A notched applicator, you can buy, distributes adhesive evenly. Work from back of the cabinet toward the front. This keeps your arms and your clothing from dragging through the fresh linoleum paste—easy to remove before it hardens.

4. COVER TOP and wall with felt and smooth it down to remove air pockets. After paste has set, apply second coat on felt, and place the linoleum. Slide material against wall, and seat top edge under edge of cap strip. Firm down rest of material, removing air-pockets. Weight till dry.

5. METAL EDGING strip goes on last. Fasten it along one end. When you come to a corner, preform metal by bending it with your hands. Be careful not to kink it. Special fittings are available for square corners, or you can miter this edging for a snug fit at square corners.

6. WITH A WOODEN block, finish molding metal around corners and fasten it to edges.

Survivor of age of reptiles, ginkgo is a stately tree. Leaves resemble those of the Maidenhair fern (inset).

Tree of a Lost World

By Gladys Diesing

LONG YEARS AGO in the age of the reptiles the ginkgo tree was a widely distributed tree in both the eastern and western hemispheres. The ice of the glacial epochs destroyed all of these trees except in China. There it survived and has been carried down to modern times through garden culture — it no longer is found growing wild even in China.

The unique fan-like shape of the leaves resembling the little leaflets of a maidenhair fern have given rise to the ginkgo's common name of Maidenhair tree. The tree itself, however, is not fern-like. Young trees often have the branches radiating in clusters, tier above tier, giving it a spirelike outline. When mature it is a stately tree whose shape is loosely pyramidal. The tree often is rather slow-growing, its rate of growth varying with its location, but will eventually reach a height of 70-80 feet or more. It is deciduous and in the autumn the leaves turn a golden yellow, persisting on the tree for a considerable time before falling to make a golden carpet upon the ground.

One should be sure to obtain a male tree for planting as the fruit of the female tree when it falls has a very disagreeable odor. It is from this fruit that the silver nuts of China and Japan are obtained, being the pure white kernel after the offensive pulp has been removed. The gingko tree is not particular as to soil and is practically pest free. Like other deciduous trees, the gingko is best planted when bare root during the winter.

Harvest Vegetables With Care

By Bob Gilmore

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that so many vegetable crops are ruined by improper handling at harvest time. Garden books usually devote whole chapters to planting, cultivating, spraying, irrigating and feeding, but are strangely silent on how and when to harvest.

The manner of harvesting lettuce is often determined by the variety or type. A head lettuce should be allowed to attain maximum size to guarantee the formation of a solid head. On the other hand, loose-leafed varieties such as the Simpson may be harvested as soon as the foliage becomes large enough. To insure maximum crispness, it is best to harvest just before serving. Don't remove the heads when wet.

SUMMER SQUASH grows very rapidly, and the bushes should be checked daily as they reach maturity. A zucchini squash seems to grow faster than almost any other comparable crop. Pick the individual squashes before the rind has a chance to harden. But the winter varieties, on the other hand, should not be harvested until the shell is quite hard. Harvest muskmelons when fully mature, but before the fruits separate from the vines. The mushy texture of melons results from their being left on the vines for too long a time.

Snap beans should be harvested before the pods have reached maximum size and while the seeds are still relatively small. Maturity of the seeds is usually accompanied by a tough and stringy texture of the pods. Lima beans should be gathered before the pods turn yellow and, as with snap beans, before the seeds reach their greatest size.

GENERALLY speaking, most vegetables will be more tender if picked when comparatively young. The methods utilized by commercial growers may prove quite distinct from what you practice at home. That is because farmers must ship their crops a long distance to market; the home grower, however, probably eats the crop immediately after harvesting it.

Radishes may be pulled sooner than any other vegetable because they grow so much faster. You can enjoy mature radishes just three weeks after planting. It is advisable to delay harvesting until the crop has attained the ideal size, and this may be determined by consulting a reliable seed catalog. Radishes turn pithy quite soon after reaching maturity.

GREEN ONIONS may also be pulled when quite small. Dry onions, on the other hand, should not be dug until the tops have died down. After picking them, they should be dried in the sun. Line the bulbs up so that the tops of one row cover those in each succeeding row. This prevents sunburn.

When cutting celery, make the cut below the surface, thus leaving a section of the root attached. An extremely sharp knife is required for proper harvesting of celery. After washing the celery, it should immediately be placed in a refrigerator. This crop is extremely susceptible to decay unless stored at low temperatures.

Correct harvesting procedures preserve flavor and nutrition in vegetables.

By Dorothy Jonson

Wooly aphis is a cottony substance sometimes found in the crotches of plants such as pyracantha and it is really an enemy with two armies. (1) The "aerial" force, which is seen on the plant, and (2) the "subterranean" force, which you find around the roots.

When spraying the plant for wooly aphis, use considerable force to break the cottony protective covering. But eradicating it from the plant itself will not do too much good unless you eliminate it from the roots also by disinfecting the soil with an ether product.

Long ago, wood ashes were recommended as a control for wooly aphis. Regardless of new and modern products, if you have a fireplace where you burn logs, I suggest that you save the ashes and scatter them occasionally throughout the winter and early spring months in the root growing area around your fruit trees. Wood ashes constitute a simple, natural control for these subterranean enemies in the soil.

Nemesis of Gophers

—Author's Photo

A sweetly scented flower proved to be fatal undoing of this gopher. The flower lured the animal into the trap.

By Grace Killam

THE CALIFORNIA pocket gopher is just as big a pest in Long Beach as it is proportionately in the whole state of California. He works like the little bulldozer that he is, taking every bit of vegetation above his underground labyrinths, regardless of what a gardener may have paid for a prize plant.

Each gopher burrows out a small system of dry tunnels for its home. The twisting runways are dug with a ceiling to be just a fit for one gopher. Only one gopher lives in one labyrinthian unit at a time, but the young stay on with mother gopher until they are able to go out on their own. If by luck one of these prospectors finds an unoccupied subway, it immediately takes it over for an apartment to start a family of its own.

THE BROOD NEST is just a wide place in the lowest spot below ground level. Each brood consists of from two to 13 new little pests. They multiply as rapidly as guinea pigs.

Trapping is the most approved method of ridding a place of gophers, in the long run. Occasionally, one can be flooded out of its dry canal by running a garden hose into an open hole and turning the water on full blast. When the gopher comes out burbling for breath, he can be killed. Another method is to attach a hose to the exhaust pipe of the family car and insert the other end into the gopher hole, then race the engine at full speed. Monoxide gas does the trick.

SEVERAL TYPES of gopher traps are on the market and are probably more efficient, less costly and less wasteful of water and gasoline than the hose or car. Gopher runways must be opened to accommodate the trap, which must be matched to the hole, and sacking or shrubbery should be used for covering, allowing only a tiny aperture for light to draw the gopher into the trap. Gophers are good housekeepers and stray soil should be removed if it falls into the runway. They also are possessed of a keen sense of smell and no trace of human scent should be permitted on either trap or bait. A bit of fresh carrot or a scented flower can be used to tempt the little marauder into the trap.

Should the scent of the trapper's hands alarm the gopher, the animal will carefully push dirt into the trap, packing it tightly, and the quarry will fill a section of runway and withdraw to safety.

POISONED BAITS are also available at nurseries but must be placed in the runways carefully to prevent human scent from alarming the gopher. Covering should be placed, leaving only a tiny ray of light to bring the gopher to inquire about the open door to the burrow.

The pocket gopher is named for the fur lined pockets in its cheeks. The animal eats around the circumference of each runway, packs the surplus into its cheeks to be carried underground for later eating or feeding to the young. When the food harvest has been completed, the opening is filled to prevent the entry of enemies.

Tips on Gardening

TIPS FOR THIS WEEK . . . If you have dark spots in your garden that require highlighting, then plant one of the following: Cyclamen, cinerarias, primulas and bedding begonias. The latter bloom intermittently throughout the entire year.

New crop gladiolus bulbs or corms should be planted. Bulbs planted last spring or early this summer should be ready for digging. They should not be replanted immediately, but should be given a rest period.

Begonia tubers may now be lifted as the tops have probably died down fairly completely. Store them in a cool place until planting time next February.

Discarded beads, costume jewelry are decorations for perfume, cologne bottles in hands of Mrs. Verl Onken.

Gems on Her Bottles

By Ellen Saunders

SOME WOMEN can discard a few loose beads, a broken brooch or a solitary earring without a moment's regret. But Mrs. Verl Onken, 1740 Erie St., prefers to use her old jewelry to transform ordinary perfume or cologne bottles into shimmering bits of golden glitter.

"It's an ideal hobby," says Mrs. Onken.

Decorating bottles with jewels is by no means a new art. What makes Mrs. Onken's hobby different is that she utilizes whole pieces of jewelry as well as individual stones.

A SMALL BROOCH, a cameo, a large jeweled button or a clasp earring, the back of which has been clipped off, is cemented to the bottle and becomes the focal point of interest around which the decorative design is planned.

To decorate more than 200 bottles without duplicating any design calls for imaginative use of color and materials. Beads of every size and shape, rhinestones, sequins and even seashells are utilized.

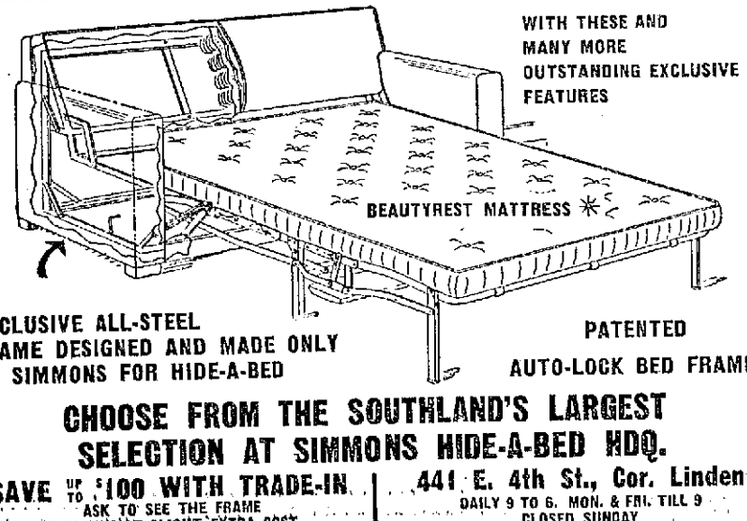

Stamp Meet Set

Don Greaton will speak on stamps of Mexico at the Long Beach Stamp Collectors Club meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday at 208 Linden Ave. Greaton, a teacher, attended the National College of Mexico and the International Stamp exhibition in Mexico City where more than a million pesos worth of stamps were displayed. The talk also will include "How to Live All Summer for $50." Visitors are welcome.

A LAVISH LUAU—featuring cuisine and entertainment authentic enough to delight the most discriminating Hawaiian royalty — will be held Tuesday night at The Hawaiian, 4645 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., a restaurant dedicated to bringing the romance of the islands to Long Beach.

Approximately 350 persons will attend the feast, sitting on the floor in true island fashion and eating exotic foods with their fingers. As an additional fillip, the colorful proceedings will be televised by a Los Angeles station. (We can't mention the time or identify the station because it's a secret.)

The evening will start with a cocktail hour at 6 o'clock. As each guest arrives, he will be given a flower lei and a glass of tropical punch. The feasting will start about 8, and will include the following delicacies: Hawaiian luau pork (barbecued); chicken and long rice, kona yam, baked Hawaiian bananas with coconut chips; lomi salmon (marinated) and poi; banana bread and haupia (frozen coconut pudding). In addition, the long low tables will contain platters of fresh pineapple and papaya.

ENTERTAINMENT will be provided by the Al McIntire Trio. The show, which will start at 9, will be Polynesian in theme and will feature performances by five singers and dancers.

The price will be $7.50 per person. The event will be open to the public, but by reservation only.

Plans for the elaborate affair were worked out in detail by the late Al Mack, owner of The Hawaiian, who opened the beautiful restaurant in July, 1955. His plans have been carried to completion by his wife, Thelma; Bob San Jose, restaurant manager and greeter, and Wally Miller, assistant to Mrs. Mack.

The Hawaiian is open daily, serving American and Cantonese dinners and tropical drinks. Buffet luncheons are served Monday through Friday starting at 11:30 a.m.—TEDD THOMEY

Thanksgiving in Purvis Bay

by ADM. ARLEIGH BURKE Chief of Naval Operations

There may have been blacker nights than Thanksgiving Eve, 1943, in the South Pacific, but none could have been more completely blacked out with regard to information of the enemy.

The Solomon Islands campaign, one of the decisive battles of World War II in the Pacific, was at its height, and the issue had not yet been resolved. Our destroyers were steaming north in search of the Japanese, who were reported to be evacuating their forces from the islands of Buka and Rabaul.

Suddenly our ships made contact with an unidentified force — strength unknown — and closed to fight it out.

The battle continued throughout the night. One after another, the breaks fell to us. The pieces of the puzzle gradually slipped into their proper places as, one by one, the enemy warships were routed or sunk.

But, as dawn came, a new battle loomed ahead. Pursuit of the beaten Japs had put our formation deep in enemy waters, far beyond our own air cover. The weather was clear. Japanese airfields were close by, and we knew they had many fighters and bombers on the four bases in the vicinity of Rabaul.

As we began our retirement to the southward, aerial attack seemed imminent. We hadn't suffered a single casualty during the night action, but now, perhaps, our luck had run out.

To our surprise, nothing happened — nothing at all. The Japanese did not strike back! As we continued to sail into friendlier waters, identical requests began coming in to the flagship from every destroyer in the formation. Finally we passed them all along to Admiral Merrill, our commander back in Purvis Bay: "Please arrange Thanksgiving services for all hands on arrival."

They were waiting for us when we returned to port — our Protestant, Catholic and Jewish chaplains. An explanation also was waiting — a reconnaissance dispatch stating that 58 enemy bombers and 145 fighters had been observed on the Japanese airfields near Rabaul. They had not attacked us presumably because, through the grace of Divine Providence, they didn't know our exact position and, hence, couldn't find us in time.

I'll always remember that Thanksgiving Day in that beautiful, tropical harbor: battle-scarred ships nested together in a quiet anchorage, battle-weary crews giving thanks to God for their victory — and for their deliverance. ■

Mrs. McCormick and son

On the cover: a mother who's an athlete too

The flying young lady on today's cover is probably the most unusual woman athlete on the U.S. team in the 1956 Olympics (which begin Thursday). Not only is Pat McCormick the mother of an 8-month-old baby, but her coach is also her husband.

Most unusual or not, she's clearly our best woman Olympian. (A special forecast by PARADE on how our girls will fare at Melbourne — where they will decide whether America or Russia wins the unofficial team championship — starts on page 8.) Pat, 26, won gold medals in the two women's diving events in the 1952 Olympics, is PARADE's pick to win both first places again this year.

Her husband, Glenn, coach of our women Olympic divers, confesses it's "a little rough" being both husband and coach to a woman athlete, "since it's hard to find time for normal lives." He cites the schedule that enabled Pat to perform the spectacular feat of winning top place on our women's diving team just five months after giving birth to their son.

"Our boy is under my mother's care at our home in Lakewood, just outside Los Angeles," says Glenn. "We see him an hour or two in the morning. Then we go to Los Angeles where Pat practices six to eight hours. When we get home, the baby's in bed. Housework? That's done at night."

S. CON. RES. 88

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

JULY 25 (legislative day, JULY 10), 1956

Mr. BRIDGES (for himself and Mr. CLEMENTS) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Whereas the world today is divided by conflicting ideologies which cause people to live in constant fear of annihilation or enslavement; and

Whereas the basic principles of man's ethical conduct toward his fellow man have been cast aside throughout so much of the world today; and

Whereas a return to the precepts as expressed in the Ten Commandments never was more vital to our survival and continued civilization than today; and

Whereas we believe the Ten Commandments, as the primary moral force behind the three great religions of today, Christianity, Judaism, and Islam, should be reaffirmed as the ethical code governing the lives of men, and are the means of bringing about lasting world peace and a solution to the many problems of mankind: Therefore be it

Resolved

UNRESOLVED:

How will Congress handle the

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Suppose the 10 Commandments were sent to Congress for legislative action. How far would Moses get on Capitol Hill?

That he would encounter obstacles not mentioned in the Bible is indicated by the Senate's handling of Concurrent Resolution 88. Introduced by Sens. Styles Bridges (R., N.H.) and Earle Clements (D., Ky.) two days before Congress adjourned, it went almost unnoticed by the press. Yet it threw the Senate into a parliamentary tizzy.

Resolution 88 proclaims a simple belief that "the 10 Commandments, as the primary moral force behind the three great religions of today, Christianity, Judaism and Islam, should be reaffirmed as the ethical code governing the lives of men and are the means of bringing about lasting world peace and a solution to the many problems of mankind."

The idea was urged upon Bridges by religious-minded friends. Clements joined in sponsoring the resolution to keep it nonpartisan. "We hoped it would stimulate spiritual thinking," Bridges explains.

Then why did this unpublicized resolution cause the biggest backstage stir the Senate has seen in years? The answer is found in the first clause of the first Constitutional Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion . . ."

Intended not to discourage religion but to assure equal religious freedom for all, this clause has been held by the courts to be the basis for separating Church and State. Congress, as an arm of the State, has authority to consider just about every known topic in its various committees — except strictly religious ones.

Thus the parliamentarians first thought the Constitution, itself, would have to be amended before Congress could consider the resolution. Then the Senate's wise chief parliamentarian, Charles Watkins, reread the last line: "Resolved: . . . that we hereby proclaim our faith in the Word of God and thereby perpetuate renewed observance throughout the world, by nations and by individuals, of the 10 Commandments."

The words world and nations caught his eye. Since the subject also had to do with other nations, Watkins assigned Resolution 88 to the Foreign Relations Committee. He soon got a call back from a startled clerk: "Since when did we have jurisdiction over the 10 Commandments?"

That is a question the new Congress will have to face. Bridges and Clements will reintroduce the resolution at the next session. The parliamentarian likely will cross his fingers and send it again to the Foreign Relations Committee.

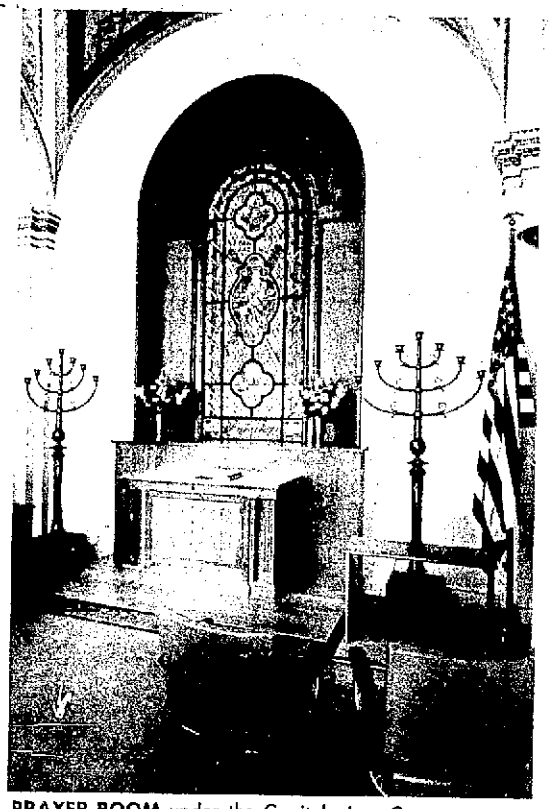

If no objections are heard from Constitutional lawyers, the committee probably will study and approve it. Then it will be sent to the Senate floor for a vote, then to the House for concurrence. Congress may yet declare formally its faith in God and the 10 Commandments. ■

TRAFFIC ABC'S FOR TODDLERS

Vermont airmen build a tiny town to teach littlest drivers safety rules

WINOOSKI, VT.

A new way to teach tomorrow's motorists the importance of safe driving today has been developed by airmen of the Ethan Allen Air Force Base here. Their secret: a complete town in miniature, called Safetyville. Its realistic buildings, put up by the airmen themselves, intrigue the small fry (ranging in age from 4 to 11). Meanwhile, its asphalt streets with exact copies of regulation highway signs permit a sound grounding in the ABC's of traffic safety.

Officers and men of the 14th Fighter Group, and their wives, invited nearby communities to join in Safetyville's program of instruction. It has proved so successful that duplicate programs are being planned for other air bases across the country.

PEDALING on asphalt street, kids learn to heed signs, copies of real ones. They're taught both day and night safety rules.

TINY COP stops traffic so the lady can cross in safety. State and local police, adult safety groups aid teaching.

TROUBLE: When the steering wheel came off in his hands, this unlucky driver ran off road, now wonders what to do.

LESSON: Sgt. Bill Turner, safety teacher during off-duty hours, tells children how reflecting signs help at night.

U.S. GIRLS, led by Shelley Mann, will score most in swimming and . . .

We can win the OLYMPICS!

Our girls, a special Parade forecast shows, hold the key

by JOHN DEVANEY

IF THE UNITED STATES is to triumph over Russia in the 16th Summer Olympics, starting Thursday in Melbourne, the deciding factor will be our girl athletes.

If they score enough points to stay fairly close to the Russian women — thus giving our men only a relatively slight handicap to overcome — we're in.

In 1952 the U.S. girls were soundly trounced by Russia's women in the unofficial point score, 161 to 63. But despite the 98-point handicap, our men scored enough for a U.S. victory, 614 to 553.

With the American men as strong as in 1952 — or perhaps stronger — most experts feel our girls must do only slightly better for the U.S. to win.

Chances are that our girls will do much better. If they follow PARADE's "scoreboard" forecast (above), they'll trail the Russian women by only 68 points. Barring injuries, the U.S. men should easily make up those 68 — with some left over — to win the team championship.

Talk of competition between nations, of course, nettles Olympic officials, who point out that the modern Olympics were set up in 1896 strictly as a contest for individuals. But, unfortunately, the Olympics have been dragged into the cold war. Says Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee: "It is against the Olympic idea to throw one nation against another.

"But we cannot ignore the fact that Russia is putting tremendous emphasis on the development of its athletes."

The obvious reason for this sports push is to help "sell" the rest of the world on Communism as a whole. Willy-nilly, the U.S. has been drawn into a two-nation test of strength.

This year we should win it — if our girls do as expected. After talking with the coaches of our women's teams (we're entered in all four sports open to women), plus checking the best performances of foreign athletes, PARADE has picked, event by event, the probable order of finish for Russian and U.S. girls (below). The forecast shows our girls doing better in fencing and swimming, getting belted in track and gymnastics.

. . . DIVING, with Pat McCormick, 1952 champ, who should win twice.

SWIMMING and DIVING

How our girls stack up against Russia's:

SPORT	USA 1952	USA 1956	USSR 1952	USSR 1956
Swimming and Diving	48	80	6	3
Track and Field	11	12	70	80
Fencing	4	6	0	0
Gymnastics	0	1	85	84
TOTALS	63	99	161	167

"SCOREBOARD" for U.S. and Russian girls compares point scores for 1952 and '56. This year's points are based on predicted order of finish (as shown below). First place is awarded 10 points; 2nd, 5; 3rd, 4; 4th, 3; 5th, 2; 6th, 1.

RUSSIAN GIRLS, like this Kiev woman exercising with a ribbon, will do best in gymnastics. Note the emphasis on grace rather than strength.

Since fencing has only one event, most of the girls' points must come from swimming. Led by diver Pat McCormick (cover and page 2) and a raft of swimmers, our squad should pick up three gold medals, possibly four, and almost double our 1952 point total.

If we don't, our men athletes will face another uphill fight. For the other two women's sports — gymnastics and track — have a total of 15 events (thus a lot more potential points). And in both the Russians are loaded. Here's a rundown:

SWIMMING and DIVING —Ours could well be the greatest collection of girl swimmers and divers ever assembled. On top of that, a change in the rules probably has dropped an extra 19 points into our laps. Until this year the butterfly stroke — similar to the breast stroke and long an American specialty — has been lumped with the breast-stroke race. This year it's a separate event and the U.S. girls entered — Shelley Mann, Mary Jane Sears and Nancy Ramey — should finish 1,2,3 in that order.

We'll get at least one place in each of the other swim events too, says our 24-year-old coach, Stan Tinkham of Washington, D.C. He expects the Australians to be our toughest competition, sees the Russians placing in only two events.

Diving, though, will really be our dish. There are two events, a dive from a 9½-foot springboard and a leap from a 32½-foot platform. In '52, Pat McCormick won both; this year she's again rated a double winner. Behind her are four other U.S. girls expected to lock up 2nd and 3rd spots in both events.

TRACK and FIELD — Though our coaches are optimistic, a check of best performances around the world during the past year indicates we'll do little better than our mediocre 1952 showing. Mae Faggs should place in the 100- and 200-meter sprints. Mildred McDaniel has a chance for 6th in the high jump, as does Margaret Matthews in the broad jump.

But the Russians, besides doing well in track, figure to run roughshod through the field events, particularly the weights. The discus champ should be Russia's Nina Ponomareva (if she's not kept home because she was fined for shoplifting some hats in London last summer). The shot-put champion also ought to be a Russian and the Reds have a fair chance of taking another gold medal in the javelin throw.

Our weight throwers, with one exception, will be out of it. Javelin flinger Karen Anderson actually has a chance to win — but more likely will come in 3rd. Another possible U.S. point scorer is Mrs. Earlene Brown, a young housewife who had never even thrown a shot put until this year. She recently broke the U.S. record with a 46'9½" heave (just 6½' off the world mark).

FENCING — Olympic girl fencers compete only with foils (a sword with a button on the end). Our team captain, Jose deCapriles, thinks either Mrs. Maxine Mitchell or Mrs. Janice-Lee Romary could win; but they're more likely to be 3rd and 5th. The Russian girls, says deCapriles, have so far shown little fencing skill.

GYMNASTICS — Here the U.S. outlook is grim. In the 1952 Olympics we were shut out without a point. This year Mrs. Sandra Ruddick should score at least 1 — but the Russians ought to hit something over 80.

Why? The answer is an ironic one. Since the last century, U.S. gymnasts have followed the lead of Europeans, stressing feats of strength. But in the past decade, the Europeans — led by the Russians and Scandinavians — have switched to a style that emphasizes grace instead (above). Since the U.S. doesn't yet have experienced teachers of this new style, we've been left behind.

All in all, however, our girl Olympians will reflect credit on America's physical fitness. And, barring injuries to our men and the collapse of either our girl swimmers or Mrs. McCormick, U.S. women athletes can be the straws to break the back of the Russian bear in his bid for domination of world sports. ■

A Connecticut

GREENWICH, CONN.

IN SUMMER industrialist Victor Muscat uses waterproofed phone with wife and children sharing his "office."

UNTIL 18 months ago, successful young businessman Victor Muscat would rise each morning around dawn, rush through breakfast, then race to catch a train for the 40-mile ride from here to his New York City office. At 5 o'clock, or later, he'd race out of his office and tear for a train, usually getting home about the time his wife was aiming their three children toward bed.

"It was getting so I saw more of the train conductor than of my own kids," says Muscat. So one day, abruptly and without much thinking about it, he moved his office from Manhattan to his home. In the summer he now works beside — and even in — his swimming pool; in the winter he directs his million-dollar business from his rumpus room.

At 37, he's president of several companies (inherited from his father). They make metal objects ranging from toothpaste tubes to furniture. Last year they grossed $18 million, a higher figure than when he ran them from a regular office.

"Four hours of work at home," says Muscat, "are worth about seven at the office.

businessman shows how it's done

For one thing, I don't waste time chatting with people who just happen to drop by; Greenwich is far enough from New York so that when people come up to see me, they mean business. Also I save two hours of commuting. And I don't have to sit through business lunches where the eating takes 90 minutes and the business 10.

"Then, of course, I don't have to squeeze myself into suit, collar and tie each morning. I can lounge around in slacks, an old shirt and sneakers. I've concluded some very profitable business deals wearing a watch and swimming trunks."

Muscat does the bulk of his business by phone. His pool phone has two direct lines to New York (so customers can phone him without paying a long-distance charge), plus four extensions. In the winter he moves the phone into the basement rumpus room, where he conducts business among furnishings that include a bar and a TV set.

Some of his friends accuse Muscat of being an escapist. "Nothing of the kind," he replies. "I just got out of the office habit, which a lot of other men also would profit by doing. I adapted my life to my family — not to my office."

Temptations do beset the businessman working at home, Muscat admits. There is a tendency to switch on the TV in the afternoon, to take a snooze on a couch after lunch, to go for a lazy swim in the pool on a hot day. But even when an executive succumbs to such temptations, claims Muscat, he wastes far less time than he would in office rigmarole.

Just as enthusiastic about Muscat's ramble from office to home is his wife, a red-haired ex-showgirl nicknamed "Happy" by her friends. "Victor would come home from the city tired and hot," she recalls. "Sometimes, if he worked late, the kids would be in bed and he wouldn't see them at all. Now, even if he has to work late, he can tuck the children into bed and go back to his telephone."

ALL YEAR LONG he works in casual attire. Though cluttered desk shows how busy he is, Muscat makes sure he gets the time to relax.

Mrs. Muscat may well qualify as the hardest-working wife of a tycoon in America today. Although they obviously could afford it, the Muscats employ neither a maid nor a cook (though they do have a governess to care for the children). Muscat has a theory — one of many such revolutionary ideas — that domestic employes just get in the way.

His favorite theory concerns how to relax. "Most people," he says, "don't know how to rest. They chase around after a tennis ball or knock themselves out trying to remember who played what card in what trick. Or else they sit in the hot sun trying to catch a fish they'll then have to clean. There's only one way to relax and that's to sit down, preferably on something soft, and have a drink put in your hand by a pretty wife."

IN WINTER Muscat (r.) moves indoors to rumpus room. After conference held amid some of his products (on table), his wife mixes a drink.

Occasionally, Muscat will stir himself to the extent of paddling idly around his pool. And sometimes, to pop the eyes of friends who doubt a business can be run from a pool, he playfully launches his "floating desk," complete with waterproof phone and water-resistant pad.

Somewhat shamefacedly, Muscat admits to a fancy for golf — but no more than three holes, instead of the usual 18. In typical Muscat fashion of making the mountain come to Mahomet, he had a golf course built on his estate last summer. Number of holes: three.

To Muscat, the best part of working at home is the time he gets to play with his children, for he sees them morning, noon and evening. "You know," he says, "I may be the only father in the eastern United States whose kids see as much of him as they do of television." ■

Why The Church Says: DON'T MARRY A CATHOLIC

Catholic opposition to mixed marriages is often misunderstood —and resented.

Some imagine it to be a manifestation of Catholic clannishness. Others say it is a selfish and unfair practice dictated by a domineering clergy. And still others take it as an insult to their own non-Catholic religious convictions and to their personal integrity.

Believe us when we say that none of these inferences is correct —none of these conclusions is true.

From long experience, the Church knows that the permanence and the harmony of family life are often jeopardized by mixed marriages, and, because of the religious division, the children often grow up in an atmosphere of religious indifference. This does not mean that the Church regards non-Catholics as unworthy or inferior. It is, simply, a matter of the church's concern for the religious life of the Catholic in a family which is divided from the start on one of the most vital questions demanding unity.

It is for this reason that the church recommends the marriage of Catholics to Catholics, and imposes serious obligations where a Catholic and a non-Catholic wish to be married in the Church. These obligations often cause resentment upon the part of those who do not understand the reasons for them.

Catholics believe that marriage is a holy and indissoluble union—a Sacrament instituted by Christ. If a Catholic elects to marry a non-Catholic, the obligation still remains to have the marriage witnessed by a Catholic priest. This does not require the non-Catholic to become a Catholic, but it does require the signing of an agreement to refrain from interfering with the religious life of the Catholic partner, and to raise and educate any children in the Catholic Faith.

The signing of this agreement is, moreover, only the first requirement before the Church will dispense from the law forbidding mixed marriages. The non-Catholic party to the marriage is also required to take at least six hours' instruction in the Catholic religion so as to know what is involved in marrying a Catholic. Above all, the Church requires moral certainty that the union will be a lasting and happy one.

While some may call this attitude of the Church dictatorial, thoughtful and responsible non-Catholic religious leaders take the same dim view of mixed marriages. They know from experience that such unions all too often create a disasterous disunity of family life.

The story that had to be told...

Our forgotten mental patients —who are they?

PART II

HAND IN HAND, an aged married couple walk down a corridor in a California mental hospital. As patients, they must live in separate wards—but they could be discharged if a suitable foster home for two people were available.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

A gentle, white-haired woman greeted a PARADE reporter at the Milwaukee County Asylum: "Good evening, sir. My name is Mrs. James L. This is my home. Won't you sit and talk to me?"

Pointing to beds in the crowded ward, Mrs. L. declared, "I'm so much better off than many of these other ladies. But it does get rather monotonous for an alert person like me to lie here all day long . . ."

That woman, keen, aware, clear-eyed, could have been released from the Asylum years ago. But she's still a patient; there's no place else for her to go.

Mrs. L. is one of thousands of forgotten or "lost" mental patients who are hospitalized in the U.S. today — but shouldn't be.

PARADE got their story first-hand from doctors, nurses, administrators and patients themselves in several states. It adds up to two glaring facts: There are at least 60,000 "mental DP's" — patients who don't belong in mental hospitals because they are improved sufficiently for release, or should not have been committed in the first place. Meanwhile, our mental hospitals are trapped between rising demands and shockingly inadequate facilities to treat and release patients.

The aging, like Mrs. L., represent one of the biggest dilemmas facing the hospitals. Between 30 and 40 per cent of our 675,000 mental patients are past middle age. Yet experts say that up to 50 per cent of this group do not belong in mental hospitals.

Why are they in? Inadequate nursing homes, family rejection, lack of local facilities. People are living longer, but are offered too little, too late in mental-health care.

Let the experts speak for themselves:

Wisconsin: "Mental hospitals represent the end of the road for many aged persons who shouldn't be in from the beginning."

Arizona: "A minimum of 15 per cent of the aged in our mental hospital could be released tomorrow."

Illinois: "Up to 40 per cent of the hospitalized aged belong in other facilities — or at home."

New York City: "Too many aged are being rushed to mental hospitals. We feel the majority do not require commitment."

Texas: "Nobody wants them. They're supposed to be here a few weeks or months, but actually, they're here until they die . . ."

Desperately short of staff and funds, many mental hospitals are turning into glorified old-age homes. In some, patients lie helpless like babies in cribs waiting for the end to come.

The tragedy of the aging: patients hospitalized 'by default'

RECREATION TIME at Central State Hospital (Wis.) finds criminally insane patients pitching horseshoes, playing ball. This group requires intensive treatment which many hospitals cannot provide.

Meanwhile, there is much to be learned about treatment of the aged — and much disagreement among experts on how to proceed.

In Illinois, for example, doctors told PARADE: "Only about 50 per cent of the aged admitted to mental hospitals are 'true' psychotics. The rest have mental illnesses that are not as severe. They do not require hospitalization. They belong in regular hospitals or nursing homes. They are placed in mental hospitals only by default of society."

On the other hand, listen to Dr. Paul H. Hoch, commissioner of the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene (New York, Connecticut and California are said to be among the best states in mental-health care):

"Statements have been made that mental hospitals are admitting patients who are not mentally sick, but who have nowhere to go and therefore go to the mental hospital. As far as we have been able to ascertain, this has not occurred.

"Today, there are patients admitted who show memory impairment, confusion, disorientation and many of the signs of senile mental involvement.

"Nevertheless, many of these patients are harmless, and with proper supervision could be cared for outside of an institution."

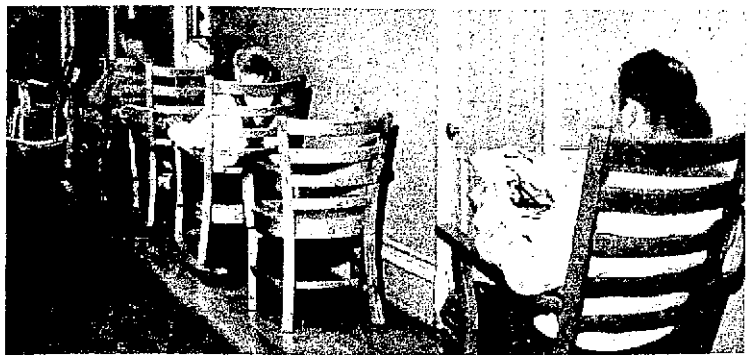

Dr. Hoch, however, is opposed to sending aged persons who need psychiatric supervision out of the hospital to receive custodial care only. He concludes: "To what extent myriad mentally or emotionally sick aged persons can be treated in nursing homes, in general hospitals, in geriatric clinics . . . will have to be studied."

Thus, hot debate in the mental-health field continues about 1) how many patients could be cared for "on the outside" and 2) what constitutes ideal outside facilities.

Aside from the debate, this much is clear: There are old people in hospitals today who do not belong there.

California estimates that the number is one in three. A Cleveland study indicates that the number may be slightly greater. Illinois claims it may be one in two. Massachusetts says it could place 300 aged disturbed patients a year in facilities other than mental hospitals. (That state and some others are setting up special geriatric facilities.) Connecticut and Virginia say aged "mental DPs" comprise only a small percentage of overall patient loads.

In any case, the aged are just one of many "lost" groups in our mental hospitals. Among the others who don't belong are alcoholics, epileptics — and mentally retarded patients.

ROCKING in single file, patients in a Milwaukee hospital make a depressing but typical picture. Because of staff shortages, many patients spend days just sitting.

Despite the fact that many states have special facilities for the mentally retarded, an estimated 40,000 or more of these persons are patients in state mental hospitals.

Here again, hospital authorities pull no punches. Says one: "Schools and homes for the mentally retarded are terribly overcrowded. So many spill over to the hospital. We cannot provide them the special training which might result in release."

Sometimes retarded persons are said to be psychotic (suffering from a serious mental ailment) — and thus are sent to mental hospitals. Many doctors label this as one of the "big lies" of institutional buck-passing.

Says one at Terrell State Hospital, near Ft. Worth: "They don't belong here. We cannot do much for them. We write the family, but get no response. Sometimes, these poor people are in here for life."

And from another hospital: "We give them the best we can, but it's haphazard. Usually, we wind up giving these patients work assignments — the lawn, the garden, the farm, the laundry . . ."

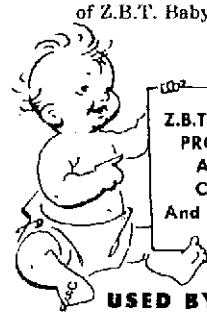

PARADE found many hospitals in which the mentally retarded are used as workers — for no pay or "insult" wages of 50c a week. But, says Dr. John T. Petersik of Winnebago State Hospital (Wis.) in a typical comment: "I am not going to delude myself that as it stands, work is therapy for the patient. Therapeutic benefit occurs by accident — if at all. It doesn't even make sense from a dollars and cents standpoint. Most patient labor is uneconomic."

REYNOLDS WRAP

The Original Pure Aluminum Foil!

Here's the tested Reynolds Wrap higher-heat method. Lay the trussed turkey, breast up, on a long sheet of Reynolds Wrap (use the 18" wide Heavy Duty or join two 12" widths together by double-folding edges). Put small folds of foil over wing tips and ends of legs to prevent puncturing. Now bring foil up, overlapping edges 3" and molding to shape of bird. Place in shallow pan in a hot (450°) oven, preheated. Following are approximate roasting times:

(Ready-to-cook weight before stuffing)
6-9 lbs....2¼ to 2½ hrs.
10-13 lbs....2¾ to 3 hrs.
14-17 lbs....3 to 3¼ hrs.
18-21 lbs....3¼ to 3½ hrs.
22-24 lbs....3½ to 3¾ hrs.

Now open the foil and admire your plump, golden turkey. If you want it browner, roast 15 minutes more—foil open. Make gravy your usual way—and bow to the praise!

Just follow this quicker way to more flavor and more meat!

Wrap your turkey in Reynolds Wrap and you have a custom-fitted aluminum "roaster" that turns out the plumpest, juiciest bird ever! No oven-watching, either...no basting. You can visit with your guests and still rate tops as a turkey cook. Stock up on Reynolds Wrap for the holidays!

How young lives are wasted in mental hospitals

In institutions solely for the retarded, treatment has come a long way in the past 20 years. No longer are such persons universally considered "nature's rejects."

At Southern Wisconsin Colony, for example, an expanded social-service department has stepped up the discharge rate markedly. Ex-patients who have been educated to their capacity — fourth-grade level or higher — can live near-normal lives on the outside and even hold down jobs.

Still the Colony and many comparable institutions are terribly short-staffed. They have tasted success of treatment, yet cannot broaden that success. Says SWC superintendent John Garstecki flatly: "We're not even approaching the job we should be doing."

RETARDED children, many far from hopeless, play a simple game at Southern Wisconsin Colony near Racine. About one in three SWC patients can be taught to be self-sufficient.

Far out of proportion to their numbers is the tragedy of emotionally disturbed or mentally retarded children who often live side by side with the adult mentally ill. There are an estimated 5,000 or more of these youngsters in state hospitals. Many of them should be out, or in another type of facility geared especially to their needs.

At a California hospital, staff members put it this way: "We can offer a family $70 per month to take a child on family care, but families want older, more settled patients. That means we often have to delay discharges until the children grow older — and perhaps can go out to work."

And from Dr. Norbert I. Rieger, of Camarillo State Hospital (Calif.): "Right now I could probably discharge 12 to 15 children — maybe more — if we had proper home placements and supervision for them.

"What a terrible waste of human life to have to send a young child to a mental hospital, then compound the waste by keeping him in even when he's ready to be released."

Often, parents want their children home as soon as possible. But not always. As an example of the depths to which parental callousness can plummet, one doctor tells this story:

A 12-year-old was ready for a short home leave when his mother called the hospital. "Doctor," she asked, "could you keep Billy there for a few more days? We're having company over the week end."

'Night Cough' robbing you of sleep?

World-famed herb medicine relieves coughs of colds so you breathe easy—sleep easy.

When "Night Coughs" keep you awake, get this one outstanding herbal action relief—PERTUSSIN. Then you breathe easy — sleep easy—naturally. It's different from new, unproved formulas. Contains no habit forming codeine. That's why so many doctors prescribe PERTUSSIN for young and old. Safe even for small children. Tastes good, too! Commended by Parents' Magazine. Insist on PERTUSSIN.

Sally's BLUE PERIODIC PAIN

Midol acts three ways to bring relief from menstrual suffering. It relieves cramps, eases headache and it chases the "blues." Sally now takes Midol at the first sign of menstrual distress.

Sally's GAY WITH MIDOL

LAUNDRY WORK occupies this patient more than eight hours a day in a Texas hospital. It may save money — but, experts ask, is it therapy?

Our counties and states battle about 'dumping'—of human beings

Mental-hospital stays — especially for the aged — at times are prolonged by behind-the-scenes battles between communities, counties and states. Typically, state hospitals claim county homes refuse to admit patients who do not belong in state facilities; county officials claim state hospitals "dump" patients on their already crowded institutions. Result: Patients are pushed back and forth — or remain in state hospitals.

In California, state hospitals have fought for years what they call "county unloading" of aged patients. But the war goes on virtually coast-to-coast.

PARADE ran typical county-state battlelines in Posey County, Indiana. There an outspoken judge, Francis E. Knowles, tells of a patient who could have been released from a state hospital in September, 1955, to a county infirmary. He said county officials object to the transfer because, they claim, the former mental patient might disturb fellow infirmary patients. In addition, the judge said, county officials say such transfers will cost taxpayers more money.

"I've tried to appeal to them on a humane basis," says Judge Knowles, "but it hasn't made any impression. When people become mentally sick, local authorities want to put them away and forget about them."

Adds Dr. Milton H. Anderson, superintendent of Evansville State Hospital, which receives Posey County patients: "I may get my head knocked off for this, but . . .

"It does not cost the county money when the patient is in a state hospital. They know it and they know we can't do much about it.

"The county homes are run by small-town politicians anxious to save their community a buck. We try to convince the counties that it costs them more in the long run in state taxes to keep these patients here.

"We almost have to trade patients. We tell them we won't take any more of theirs unless they take back some of ours."

In all this, who wins? Certainly not the patients who shouldn't be in at all. ■

SUMMING UP the county-state dispute in his area over mental patients, Judge Francis E. Knowles contends: "Money is the real issue."

NEXT WEEK What is the answer to the problem of the forgotten mental patients? PARADE shows how some states are breaking the bottleneck of delayed discharges.

HAPPY PEOPLE EVERYWHERE HAVE FOUND IT—WHY NOT YOU?

HEALTHFUL WAY TO BREAK THE LAXATIVE DRUG HABIT

ALL-BRAN AND MILK—NATURE'S GREAT FOOD COMBINATION

For relief from irregularity due to insufficient bulk

Delicious, appetizing—solid nutritional benefits

Is the laxative drug habit becoming an increasingly annoying and unpleasant problem with you, as it has with so many adults?

Then here is a simple fact that may come as welcome news to you: Millions of grown men and women like yourself have found the answer to their irregularity problem without resorting to harsh purgatives that drain the system—without the use of habit-forming drugs. They have simply changed to an appetizing and nourishing breakfast serving of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk.

How is it that Kellogg's All-Bran can succeed in so many cases where drugs and chemicals fail? For this one reason. Such preparations, intended only for relief of temporary stoppage, contain no bulk. Yet, lack of bulk is one of the common causes of constipation. So, because All-Bran provides all the good food bulk you need daily, it brings gentle, lasting relief from irregularity.

The Flavor Best Liked by Millions. You may be interested to know, too, that All-Bran is one of the most nutritious breakfast foods you can eat. And so very tempting, many prefer it to other cereals on taste alone.

W. K. Kellogg, who originated All-Bran over 40 years ago, made certain of this. Mr. Kellogg discovered that the outer layers of the whole wheat grain were not only a fine natural laxative food but rich in nutritive value as well. He found, too, a special way of milling so as to improve the flavor of the whole grain without losing any of its natural laxative effectiveness or nutrition.

Little wonder that Kellogg's All-Bran, the original, has grown to be the most widely accepted and used of all bran cereals. So why don't you try it? Eat a half cup of Kellogg's All-Bran every morning for 10 days. Get back on schedule the gentle, natural way.

If All-Bran does not satisfy you in every way, return empty carton and get double your money back. That's a promise from Kellogg's of Battle Creek, Michigan.

TERRIFYING witch Rangda embodies the spirit of Evil. Her white cloth can be her weapon or render her "invisible," depending on how she holds it.

DANCE IN A TRANCE

The rhythmic ritual on these pages, rarely if ever photographed before by a white man, was captured on film in the Indonesian island of Bali by PARADE's Richard Harrington. This is the climax of a Balinese ceremony called the Barong, or trance dance.

The dancers, in a hypnotic frenzy, vainly turn razor-sharp knives against their own bodies. When they finally fall exhausted — but unharmed — they are revived by a priest with incense and holy water.

STRUGGLE begins as Rangda faces Barong, the spirit of Good, mimed by two expert dancers. Although Barong sides with humans against Rangda, he is finally defeated.

New kind of cough syrup

REACHES EVERY COUGH

Without Fail!

Works directly on cough-torn throat... through the system, too. Brings fast, long-lasting relief!

Think of it! Every last kind of cough due to a cold reached without fail. Now . . . quicker, more complete relief . . . night or day!

The first spoonful of this new, completely different cough syrup . . . Vicks Medi-trating Cough Syrup... goes right to work. Stops stubborn throat tickle, bathes your throat with relief that lasts for hours.

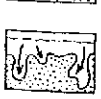

Vicks® Medi-trating® Cough Syrup does all this because it contains Cetamium,® the new Vick penetrating ingredient that carries soothing medicine to raw, irritated throat membranes other remedies often do not reach. Works internally, too; helps loosen congestion, breaks up cough.

And it tastes so good. Children love its wild-cherry flavor. Safe—won't upset stomach. So get a bottle today. Vicks Medi-trating Cough Syrup . . . reaches every cough without fail!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

Magnified section of tiny throat crevices. Cough syrups that miss them bring only partial relief.

New Vicks Cough Syrup penetrates deep into crevices to work directly on cough-irritated membranes. Gives more relief.

VICKS MEDI-TRATING COUGH SYRUP

Medicates as it Penetrates

DEFENDERS of Barong, in self-induced trance, attack the witch. Waving cloth, she stops their advance with a spell.

UNDER spell, dancer tries to plunge knife into body. Balinese believe Barong's magic makes flesh too hard for blade.

SORROWFUL worshipers hear priest say Barong's defeat means the gods are not satisfied with village offerings.

TEEN-AGE TOPICS

Boys and girls in their pre-teens often write me letters. Here are some of the recent ones:

Q. If a boy walks you home and you haven't been on a date with him, should you invite him in? How would you entertain him? — L.C., St. Johnsbury, Vt.

A. Yes, you may invite him in, if your mother or another adult member of the family is at home.

Depending upon the time of day and the circumstances, you might make a snack together, play records, watch television or just sit and talk.

Q. How would you politely tell company that it is time to leave? — C.C.M., Detroit, Mich.

A. You would have to offer an adequate explanation, such as, "I wonder if you'll excuse me now, I have to get cleaned up for dinner. But perhaps you'll come over some other time."

Q. I am nearly 13 years old and my mother still has a lady come in and watch me. My girl friends my age baby-sit, but I can't. What do you think of this situation? — J.R., Anaheim, Calif.

A. In a city apartment, in a good neighborhood, where there is a doorman, parents might well leave a 13-year-old girl alone at night, if they are coming home at an early hour. In a small town, where there are neighbors adjacent who could be told that such a girl was alone, this might be possible, too. But if you live in an isolated spot and have no older brothers and sisters in the house, your parents are wise in giving you this protection that a boy of the same age would not need.

Q. I am 12 years old. My best girl friend is coming to spend a few days with me. I, of course, want to show her a good time. My boy friend and I go to the show every Friday. When she is here, would it be all right to have him get a date for her? How should I go about asking him? Also, do you think this is too young to date? — D.I., Little Rock, Ark.

A. First of all, it is very young to date at night. The parents of your friend may not approve of her dating unless you change your arrangements and go to an afternoon show on Saturday or Sunday, or, if you are accompanied by an adult, on Friday night. Bearing all this in mind, if you do ask your boy friend to get another boy, merely state the circumstances simply.

Q. I am a girl of 11. I have a sister, 13. When she does something wrong, I always get the punishment. She is always tormenting me. What can I do about this? —J.H., Godfrey, Ill.

A. All sisters have these problems and they are something you will have to work out between yourselves. The situation may improve once you enter the teens.

Q. When a girl has a date with a boy, who should suggest they leave for their date after he has talked with her parents? — J.A., Fort Worth, Tex.

A. It is always the girl who makes the first move to leave. A boy must never seem anxious to leave the family of the girl he is escorting unless there is some valid reason for his rushing off.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Miss Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

Grandma's pumpkin pie

From the leaves of an old cookbook comes the perfect pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

For years we have searched for the perfect pumpkin pie — the kind Grandma used to make without a recipe. We tested, tasted and rejected until, at long last, we found what we were looking for in a faded 19th-century cookbook. Here it is, slightly modified for today's taste. We think it is perfect; you will too!

GRANDMA'S PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 large can (1 lb. 13 oz.) pumpkin
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup white sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- Unbaked pie shell in deep 10" pan or 2 9" pans

Combine first 8 ingredients; mix well. Combine evaporated milk and cream; heat to scalding point; add; mix well. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 350° F. 1½ hours for deep 10" pie, about 1 hour for 9" pies. Pie is done when knife inserted near rim comes out clean. Garnish with cheddar-cheese-spread "pumpkins."

Quick Cooked

Our "Mr. 5 x 5" can (it's as wide as it's tall) tells you this corn is vacuum packed. Every kernel stays crisp. You get as many servings as in taller liquid-packed cans. And you don't pour vitamins and minerals down the drain.*

Quick! That's the way cookbooks say to cook vegetables. That's how you keep the flavor, color and vitamins the sun and good earth put into them.

And now quick-cooked corn is here. Niblets Brand corn.

A revolutionary new pressure cooker does it. The corn is whirled through the cooker under high heat and pressure. Zing! It's cooked.

No can of corn ever brought you such flavor before. Such crispness. Such color. It's like eating kernels from an ear fresh out of the garden.

You try it and see. New quick-cooked Niblets. All you do is heat and serve.

1. Frank Sinatra and Franchot Tone are caught by the artist during a one-sided conversation. Written on one of them is the name Nina.

2. Marlene Dietrich muses alone — except for Hirschfeld's Nina.

CAN YOU FIND NINA?

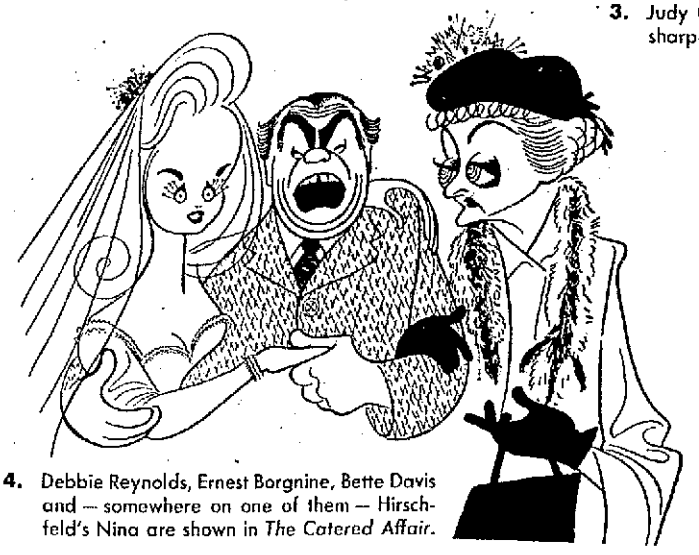

The Hirschfelds and Nina.

Ever since his daughter was born, 11 years ago, caricaturist Albert Hirschfeld has paid her a unique tribute: in sketching stage, screen and TV personalities for newspapers and magazines, he has nearly always managed to put her name — Nina — somewhere in the drawing. On this page are five Hirschfeld sketches of well-known faces in the entertainment world. Look carefully and try to spot the name "Nina" printed on each. Answers below.

3. Judy Garland sings at New York's Palace for the sharp-eyed Hirschfeld and his omnipresent Nina.

4. Debbie Reynolds, Ernest Borgnine, Bette Davis and — somewhere on one of them — Hirschfeld's Nina are shown in The Catered Affair.

5. Arlene Francis of TV fame shows off an award to her fans — and Nina too.

HERE'S WHERE TO FIND NINA

1. "Nina" is written on Frank's right coat sleeve. To see it better, look from the opposite page.
2. See it now on top of Marlene's fur jacket?
3. It's written clear as a bell in the folds of Judy's shirt bosom.
4. The trick here is to ignore Debbie and Ernest, take a long hard peek at the decorations atop Bette's hat.
5. Look right under the badge proclaiming Arlene "Father's Favorite Female."

Let's Be Realistic About CD

By Stella George

A smart housewife will buy a few extra cans of food each time she does her marketing, thus gradually building up a reserve supply of staples for emergencies.

AT THE VERY MOMENT you are reading this article, how prepared are you for an emergency? Suppose right now an earthquake occurred — or a bomb exploded 30 miles away — what would you do? Do you have an adequate food and water supply on hand? Would you (housewives included) be able to turn off the main gas valve for your house? Could you find a flashlight in the pitch-black of night, and would it work? Do you have medicine for that asthmatic youngster, in case he developed a sudden attack in the midst of confusion? In short, are you prepared for the worst in case it should happen suddenly?

Actually, the need for preparedness is a vital one which exists every moment of every day, and one which requires the full support and consideration of every adult, regardless of age or position. As one woman who had lived through the last war in London said:

"We were asleep because we said, 'It can't happen here.' Heaven help the people in America if they are asleep, too."

AS EVERYONE KNOWS (or should know), the Long Beach-Los Angeles area could be a prime target for destruction. A calm and relaxed attitude on the part of local residents could result in panic and chaos in the event of an emergency. People who lived in Long Beach when the 1933 earthquake shook the city from its foundations will remember the distress and confusion suffered by those who were routed temporarily from their comfortable homes.

We can and should do something about Civil Defense (which, of course, means preparation for other emergencies such as earthquakes, fires and floods as well as hydrogen bombs) by giving the subject a lot of thought and a little effort. The average housewife can easily provide for the material needs of her family at such a time. And with these physical needs taken care of, many psychological problems will be eliminated also. Here are some specifics:

1—FAMILY ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION — At the earliest possible time have a family round-table discussion about emergencies. Point out that while we don't look for things to happen, they can and often do occur when we least expect them. If the discussion is presented in a matter-of-fact way, the children will accept the possibility of an emergency as part of daily living, just as they accept air-raid and fire drills at school and treat them as a matter of course.

2—KNOW YOUR HOME — Right now, today, look at each utility valve. Find out if you would need a special wrench to turn off the gas and water. Learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker or replace a fuse in the dark. Know how to make use of the water in the water heater for drinking purposes.

3—BASIC EQUIPMENT FOR EMERGENCIES — Keep basic equipment for emergencies in one place, and keep it there at all times. This should include a flashlight with reserve batteries; medicine, including any special prescription needed by a certain member of the family; first-aid supplies for minor cuts and scratches, and the most recent pamphlets obtainable from Civil Defense headquarters for quick reference. A portable or battery-operated radio and a small camp-type gasoline stove are highly desirable to have on hand.

4—FOOD AND WATER SUPPLY — Check your food and water supply. Have an adequate food and water supply on hand at all times. Every family should have a survival food kit in the home where it will be readily accessible in case of evacuation. It should be remembered that these survival food kits are designed for basic menu needs, and would, of course, be supplemented with other food on hand in case of emergency.

Many families make a practice of once-a-week shopping at the market, and thus, at the end of the week, the kitchen shelves are nearly bare (with the exception of staples). It would be an excellent idea to buy for 10 days instead of a week, and keep in reserve the extra three-days' supply of food. This reserve can be built up gradually if, at each marketing-time, an extra can of tuna or beans is added to the shopping list. The reserve will not stay built up if, when company comes and a minor emergency arises, the extra can of tuna is used and not replaced. A well-stocked pantry shelf plus a survival food kit will ensure adequate menus — a "must" for any emergency.

As many gallons of bottled water as can be conveniently stored away should be kept with the reserve food supply. Because of possible breakage, half-gallon bottles are desirable. The importance of extra water cannot be over-emphasized, as parents of small children especially will understand.

It's a good idea to keep a small stock of hard candy and gum on hand for between-meal snacks — and moral uplift. And those who smoke should by all means keep an unused and unopened carton of cigarettes for the time when they cannot run to the drug store.

5—CARE OF PETS — The care of pets in time of an emergency is an important issue to be considered. Those who own animals owe it both to the animals and themselves to keep extra cans of pet food stored away. A crazed, half-starved animal roaming the streets in search of food would be a menace to the community as a whole. It is the responsibility of pet owners to take care of the animals' physical needs during an emergency, in the same way that it is expected at other times.

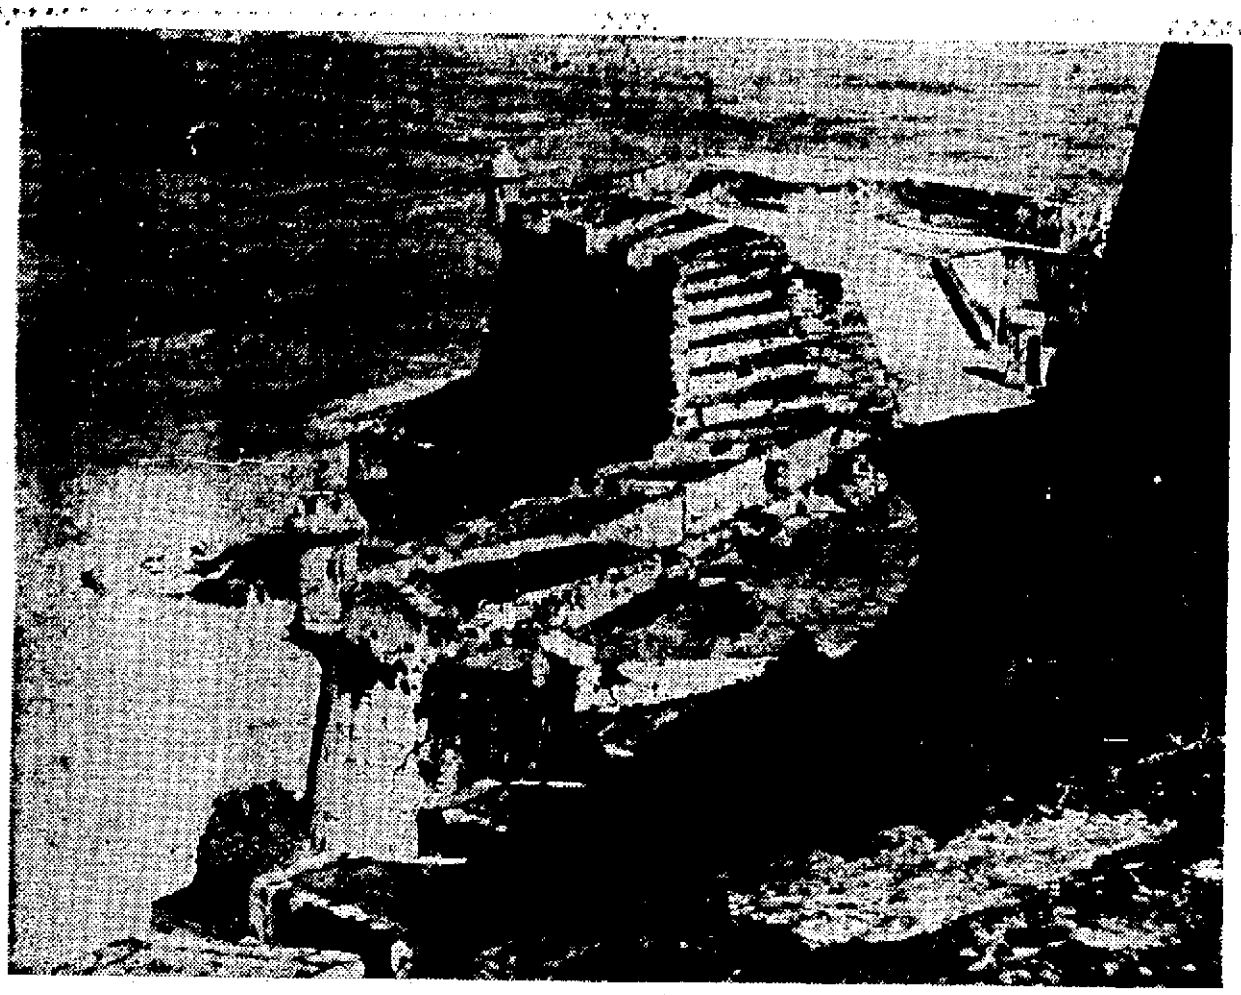

THOSE WHO FEEL and act realistic about civil defense emergencies should encourage their neighbors to do likewise. Civil Defense authorities would have almost more work than they could handle at the actual time of an emergency. Their heavy load can be lightened if each householder does his part in home preparation. The time to prepare for an emergency is when no emergency exists, in the same way that an insurance policy is taken out before an accident occurs. For those who have a realistic and wide-awake outlook of their own and their families' future, that time is NOW!

The housewife should learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker before an emergency occurs. And she should also know how to turn off the gas and water.

El Morro, famed fortress that guarded San Juan, Puerto Rico, juts out in the sea. Navy training party found time to visit this ancient landmark.

SHADES OF BUCCANEERS!

Flight to El Morro

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Independent, Press-Telegram staff reporter James A. Allen accompanied a Naval Reserve crew on a 7,000-mile training flight from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station to Miami, Fla.; Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone; San Juan, Puerto Rico, and return. This is his story of that flight.)

By James A. Allen

THE BIG NAVY four-engine transport plane rolled down the runway at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and took off into the night.

The lights of Long Beach fell astern as the pilot set his course for Miami, first leg of a flight to the nation's outposts in the Caribbean.

Aboard the plane were members of VR771, a Naval Reserve air transport squadron based at Los Alamitos, participating in their annual two-week training period.

They were simulating the squadron's war mission—to deliver supplies or personnel to scattered points throughout the world.

In this role, the squadron during the two weeks traveled 61,272 miles in three R5Ds (the Navy designation for the Douglas DC4), making two flights to the Caribbean, three to Honolulu, two to New York, one to Washington, five to Phoenix and two to Alameda.

THE SQUADRON'S PILOTS averaged 86.5 hours of flying time in the two weeks—more than the average for airline pilots in a month.

The plane commander for this Caribbean flight was Lt. Cmdr. Robert H. Hippe, 2661 Crestview Dr., Newport Beach, a partner in the architectural firm of Ramberg, Hippe and Lowrey, Santa Ana.

Lt. Cmdr. William J. McGillivray, Westwood, a pilot for Trans American Airlines, was navigator. He supervised navigational training on the flight.

Co-pilots were Lt. Cmdr. Gerald B. Wilson, Altadena, assistant superintendent of building for the City of Pasadena, and Lt. Cmdr. Levi Bowman Brookshire, Westchester, a designer for Northrop Aircraft.

Crewmen were AD1 Douglas A. Wignall, 5750 Scrivener St.; AT1 Clarence E. Doxstater, 9752 Russell St., Garden Grove, and AD1 Elwood W. Milson, all Naval Reserve stationkeepers at Los Alamitos NAS; AD1 Lee Joseph Braem, San Bernardino, an aircraft inspector at Norton Air Force Base; AD1 Clarence A. Poulson, Phoenix, ad room foreman for the Phoenix Gazette and Arizona Republic; AD2 Charles E. Joiner, Palm City, a journeyman aviation machinist at the Naval Air Station, North Island, San Diego, and AA Jerry D. Stark, San Diego, a jig and fixture builder for Convair.

JOC LEWIS B. REED, Temple City, of Wing Staff 77, and a power sales engineer for the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power, co-ordinated news coverage on the trip.

The plane flew airways to Galveston, then headed across the Gulf of Mexico on the flight to Miami. The pilots had ample opportunity to brush up on celestial navigation on the long overwater hop.

The group landed at the Marine Corps Air Station, Miami, at 10:50 a. m. Tuesday after a nonstop flight of 13 hours. After arranging for refueling and servicing of the plane, squadron members enjoyed a little relaxation at Miami Beach, noted for its miles of plush hotels and assorted night clubs.

THE PARTY DEPARTED Miami at 9:10 a. m. Wednesday for the Naval Air Station, Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone. In a short time the plane passed over Cuba, then was over water until Pt. San Blas was sighted, northeast of the Panama Canal. The plane flew in over dense, humid jungles and landed at Coco Solo at 3:40 p. m.

The landing strip at Coco Solo has been hewed out of the jungles. At the far end, a taxi strip led to the Naval Air Station. As the plane taxied along, it appeared that the trees nearly touched the wingtips on either side. Near the station, the strip crossed the highway. A police officer and traffic signals held back the cars while the plane passed.

The officers and crew took advantage of the variety of exotic items offered in the ship's service at the base, then headed for the port of Colon, a few miles distant at the Caribbean side of the Panama Canal.

Plaza at San Juan is point of interest. Modern San Juan is the center of Puerto Rico's bid for both tourist business and development of industry.

Junior Coeds Look the Most

By design and not by accident are the girls in the local junior high schools well groomed, tastefully attired teensters. In their first days at junior high these 12, 13 and 14-year-olds learn that blouses and skirts, sweaters and shirts or sport type dresses are the only acceptable items in milady's school wardrobe. Low necklines, midriffs and backless or shoulderless garments get the thumbs-down treatment. Also unacceptable for school wear are play clothes such as slacks, pedal pushers or shorts. Definitely out are head coverings, curlers or pin curls. Excessive jewelry and makeup are not considered appropriate. Personal grooming, such as hair combing, applying makeup and manicuring in the classrooms is a violation of good manners. Shown here are DeMille Junior High School girls in typical, appropriate and approved school wear.

Girls are invited to discuss dress and activities with faculty advisers, as group above is doing with Mrs. Georgia Hambly, DeMille dean of girls.

A sweater set and skirt are worn by Joann Platz (left), while Linda Lewis appears well dressed and completely at ease in shortie jacket and skirt.

Easy to keep up, dressy and comfortable are skirt and blouse separates worn on campus by Jackie Uhlenhop.

How Big's Your Thanksgiving Table?

Spread for the bountiful feast that is imminent, this Thanksgiving table is a symbol of national rejoicing.

By Barbara V. Myers

LINKED to the rich heritage that is ours, no holiday can surpass Thanksgiving in national significance to Americans. Whether we trace our forebears to an early sailing vessel or an immigrant ship of recent years it is easy for all of us to identify ourselves with the reverent crowd who gathered to hear Gov. Bradford proclaim the first Thanksgiving on Nov. 29, 1623, and to thrill, as did those pioneers, at the goodness and greatness of this, our America.

Family gatherings about well-laden tables at Thanksgiving have become a favorite American tradition. All over the land in the weeks before the holiday great preparations are made. Homes are cleaned and decorated, silver polished, and a menu planned that will surpass all previous occasions.

Yet, if we are true to our heritage, we will remember that there is a deeper preparation called for in this season than that which satisfies our physical appetites alone. It is the preparation of a grateful heart. Attempts to express our gratitude in three different ways may help get our hearts ready for the real feast of Thanksgiving.

THE FIRST, of course, would be, in the words of Gov. Bradford, "to render thanksgiving to Almighty God for all His blessings." Mrs. Grover Emmons, a Long Beach author, has included a poem by Corlandt Sayres in her book, "The Mature Heart." The poem rescribes a dream in which the writer receives a bill from Life. On it were listed the dawns and the sunsets, the flowers, the sea and the stars, his friends, his love—all the blessings of his life. Seeing this abundance in one magnificent picture his heart filled to overflowing and he burst forth:

"I wondered when I waked at day,
How—how in God's name — I could pay."

Who has not felt like this? "Though our mouths were full of song as the sea," says a prayer from the Hebrew morning service, "and our tongues of exaltation as the multitude of its waves . . . we should still be unable to thank Thee . . . O Lord, our God . . . for one ten thousandth part of the bounties which Thou hast bestowed upon our fathers and upon us."

BEING THANKFUL for our blessings is a fairly easy exercise, but along comes St. Paul and complicates things. It is easy enough, says he, to be grateful for just the good things. Our need is "to give thanks in everything." This is much more difficult. A modern parable tells of two men who were riding in a train whose roadbed was extremely rough. One man cursed and complained everytime they hit a bump and alighted from the train cross and physically exhausted. The other man sang "Hallelujah" each time the train hit a rough spot. He reached his destination calm in spirit and nearly fresh as when he had started. By journeying the entire trip with praise on his lips

(The author is a noted wildlife and time-lapse photographer who has contributed many fascinating scenes of animal and plant life to Walt Disney's nature films. He has spent years in close camera study of bees, and here tells of his adventure in filming the bee sequence on wilderness location for "Secrets of Life." His home is in Garden Grove.)

By Stuart Jewell

MY MOST exciting adventure as a wildlife photographer was not in the realm of big savage beasts but in the separate world of the insects—among the wild bee colonies of the California foothill country.

It was not only the most fascinating, but one of the most difficult and dangerous as well.

My assignment for Walt Disney's most searching nature picture, "Secrets of Life," can be as deadly as a rattlesnake. The honey bee can sting a man quickly to death.

It was with caution that I approached these disarmingly beautiful creatures on the strangest of all motion picture locations.

I SET UP my camera in an aged oak within a couple of yards of a very populous bee castle in the hooded hollow of a tree. One afternoon I noticed a sudden strange commotion about the entrance of the hive.

A regal looking creature, golden and glistening, had emerged from the castle port and paused there in the sunlight. At once hundreds of little workers began gathering about her with folded wings as if awaiting some signal. I knew I was about to witness one of the supreme and ceremonious events of apian society—the change of reigning queens in the dynastic successions of a million years.

Inside a young princess would be ascending the throne. On the threshold, the old matriarch, surrounded by her loyal retainers, was taking her peaceable and ordained departure.

IN A MOMENT they rose in a great golden swarm, following their queen to some new home the scouts had indicated. Through my "head mask" I heard the hum of their myriad wings.

Carefully, I opened a section of the hive to expose the interior for my spying movie cameras and waited for the inevitable attack upon my armor-clad person to subside. I had interrupted the violent procedure by which the new queen would establish her reign. The deadly business had not yet been completed.

The regal succession is determined by duel—by battle royal.

The ensuing battle was witnessed by my close range camera with the magnifying lens.

From special cells in the waxen compartments four newborn candidates for the throne emerged in as many minutes. An instinctive rage, a blind jealous hatred for their princess sisters was born with them.

THEY PAIRED OFF in grappling duels, their lethal stilettos probing and stabbing for the death thrust. One after another they lost their brief lives until only the two finalists were left. These then closed in the last furious embrace, with one groggy survivor entitled to the crown.

Apian society is a matriarchate. Every instinct and act is shaped to the benefit of the pampered queen who is the preserver and propagator of her race. She is a prodigious egg layer, incredibly fecund from one impregnation. The only sexed female of the hive, she is the mother of swarming generations until in turn displaced by a new monarch.

The queen bee is the product of one of nature's chemical marvels—the transformation of a neuter embryo into a highly potent female by specially administered vitamins known as royal jelly. This is a mystery to laboratory scientists.

AS SOON AS the surviving princess has recovered from the wounds of battle, she prepares for her wedding flight.

The one-time marriage of the queen bee is an irresistible compulsion. Waiting for the event, and sensing the time, a group of drones or sexed males, present themselves as competitive mates. One of them, the boldest and the swiftest, will become the actual bridegroom. His conquest will cost him his life.

The camera watches the young queen and her courtiers take off in the fateful flight. No man has seen the actual moment of mating. But within the hour the impregnated matron returns to the hive and her paramour will have fallen from the high rendezvous.

From this time on the queen will be a captive in her own castle, endlessly depositing eggs in the nursery cells.

The drones who have returned in chagrined defeat from the amorous chase now face a crucial day.

FROM BIRTH THESE dandies have been petted and pampered by attentive workers and hive nurses. They do not work, merely eat and loll at ease, preening themselves. But now they are no longer needed, even as standby paramours.

Inglorious, they are cast from the castle in the oak, to perish of hunger and neglect.

Bees are especially susceptible and sensitive to smells. Odors guide them to their sources of food supply. Nectars seduce them to the heart of flowers where they help perform the germinating rite that supplies the precious pollen for bee bread. Odors identify friend from enemy.

Even the human breath will excite and antagonize them. In working close to a bee colony, wild or domestic, I always sprinkle myself with floral perfume and disguise my breath.

A DEFENSIVE creature, not a belligerent warrior, given to minding its own business, the honey bee has needed its potent venom to survive down the long ages of animal competition. Slow to anger, its fury, once aroused by peril to his hive and the precious queen, is matched by few living things. Their attack is suicidal, for the very act of stinging eviscerates them.

I have discovered by painful experience that it takes from 20 to 30 successive stings during an interval of several weeks to become immunized. Half that many stinging in a brief period can cause serious illness and might prove fatal in some cases.

Naturalist-photographer Stuart Jewell of Garden Grove films humming bird at closeup. Bees also were pictured for Walt Disney's "Secrets of Life."

Classics in Yuletide Cards

"Christmas on the Railroad," by John Rogers.

LAVISH as always in the wealth of originality and gaiety they offer, the Designers & Illustrators, this year, have added a series of "Engraved Classics" that show, for the first time, just how glamorous a formal Christmas card can be!

Choice examples of the engraver's art are enriched by high-lustered "jewel-strewn" backgrounds and other contemporary elegancies.

Among the well-known Designers & Illustrators whose new cards tell charming, gay and entertaining stories of life at Christmas time are Mary Blair, Roger Duvoisin, Fred Eng, Oscar Fabres, Isabella Howland, Ervine Metzl, Art Seiden and Elli Zappert.

Mircea Vasiliu, author of a best-selling fabulous autobiography and illustrator of many other books, shows his own festive living room, complete with a tree that actually sparkles. Other designs that radiate cordiality are gaily decked doorways by Hall Byther of the West Coast.

John Rogers contributes an exhilarating view of a railway caboose—which he titles "Christmas on the Railroad," with its gala Christmas tree aboard

Amusing new Designers & Illustrators Christmas cards, some of which show Santa as a major performer, reflect many popular interests: Photography, television, golf, weight-reducing—even "parlor magic"! In more serious vein are designs that ingeniously combine today's universal hope for peace and good will with various individual interests.

There'll Always Be an O'Brien

By Terry Vernon

Independent, Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

First of 14 Long Beach O'Briens to win a place in the entertainment field is Erin (above), who sings on TV.

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE an O'Brien in the entertainment field and just to be sure they come from Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs .Vicnent P. O'Brien of 1400 Hellman St., have 14 of them coming along.

Of course, two of them have already achieved some fame in the world of show business and both are extremely beautiful colleens, which doesn't hurt a bit.

Erin, now 21, is back in New York where she stayed after her sister, Sheila, 19, introduced her on Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" (CBS). Erin won with ease and got her week of work with the Godfrey daytime show. This led to bigger and better things and she is now a "discovery" of Steve Allen, who should have known her when he was deejaying on KNX.

ERIN BEGAN her career several years ago on the Al Jarvis show and this taste of show business imbued her with the top. Jarvis is still ecstatic about her and calls her one of the best singers he has ever heard.

She stayed with Jarvis on his afternoon show until she fell in love, was married to singer Jimmy Fitzgerald and had a baby. She retired temporarily when the stork arrived but show business was in her blood.

Now Erin is well on the high road to success so let's take a look at her sister's future.

SHEILA IS ALSO a singer but spends her working days at the General Telephone Company here where she is a Miss Information . . . not prone to giving mis-information.

She has won the junior and senior division award presented by the Long Beach Women's Music Club and has studied under Louise Agal, Long Beach voice teacher. She is a member of Phi Beta, a national women's fraternity of art, music and speech. She went to St. Anthony High School and Long Beach State.

Her most recent TV appearance was as a panel member on the now defunct "Johnny Carson Show" (CBS). Her job was to answer questions and "gripes" thrown at her by the studio audience.

JOHNNY ASKED the first question, probably the one uppermost in the minds of all men who saw the show, "Do you have men asking for dates when they call information?"

"Yes, I have," replied Sheila.

"Well," asked Johnny, "did you accept any dates?"

"No," was her reply and she added, "If any of them got too persistent, I would refer them to the supervisor."

Immediately Johnny wanted to know "would the supervisor accept the dates?"

Sheila hasn't yet cracked into the entertainment field with her vocal abilities but she is studying and readying herself for the day when she can take her place in the limelight along with Erin.

Then after she gets going good there are still 12 good Irish O'Briens ready, willing and able to step into the spotlight.

Beautiful Sheila, Erin's sister, hasn't made a permanent place in show business, but is ready as a singer.

The Magic Wand of Music

Long Beach adores the majorettes who march in city's annual All-Western Band Review. Above, Barbara Webb.

By Martha Johnson

ALL LONG BEACH—all the world, in fact—loves a pretty girl. All the world likes vibrant music. Put them together, add a swirly skirt, sky-stepping boots and shining, fast-spining baton and the result is the main ingredient for this city's All Western Band Review, spectacular annual parade which goes into its 16th presentation next Saturday.

But, suppose that in front of the band, instead of this lithe-legged lovely, marched a gangling man, carrying a tremendously long spear with hammered brass washers dangling on the shaft. The washers are jingling to the rhythm of many tomtoms and the man twists his body accompanyingly. At the same time the spear clangs noisily up and down his arms, shoulders and back.

Strange? Well, not if the scene was in Siam decades ago. For there was baton twirling in its earliest traceable stage.

WHEN THE energetic youth of today throws a flaming baton into the air, he or she is using the same kind of trick employed long ago by the natives of the Samoan Islands. Instead of fire, Samoans used a cane knife, razor-sharp, attached to a long rattan-bound handle. This was done in unison at many celebrations.

American baton twirling began its rise to popularity along with the first crinolines and has increased in interest and enthusiasm, until today it has become a mathematical art requiring top skill and physical endurance.

For many years men held top priority in the field of the animated peppermint stick. Musical groups were called upon to participate in community celebrations and a capable young man would march alongside the unit carrying an object that aroused more curiosity than the strange "clinkers" of the band. It resembled a jug, with a small sphere-shaped bottom and a long stem jutting out from the top. For a while, the necessity of this queer object was kept secret, but the secret gradually leaked out and soon everyone knew the strange ornament contained wine, which went along with the group as a "pick-me-up."

DESPITE THIS FACT, the urn-like musicians' companion continued to go along with parade bands. Exuberant young men began to take advantage of the situation, perhaps to attract more attention, and twist the urn about with as much a degree of grace and rhythm as the liquid contents would allow. This touch of showmanship soon paid off for the questionable adornment was soon promoted to the very front of the musical unit. This led to the liquid being removed and the urn being remodeled into a crude-looking stick with a long shaft, resembling the present day signal baton.

In the early 1900s the "juggling drum majors," as they had labeled themselves, began to outdo themselves with new twists, turns and extreme rhythms. Because of the difficulty in maneuvering the long, heavy baton, the athletic wand was shortened and evolved into a stick about the size of today's large twirling baton. At this time, the art became officially known as "baton spinning" and the juggling majors guarded their tricks and movements with zealous secrecy, refusing to teach anyone their professional secrets.

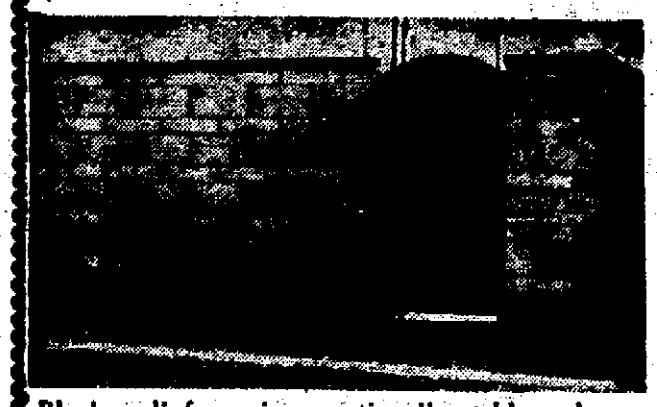

IN THE SECOND quarter of the 1900s, the "hand that rocks the cradle" moved in. Several women were called upon to head musical units solely to display their graceful movements and appearance. This seemed to please the general public. At first their beauty and boldness in accompanying the bands held the public interest but as their presence more and more became an accepted fact, the gals searched for a different means to maintain their popularity.

A lighter and shorter baton was designed for feminine use and, one by one, girls began to take over the decorated stick. As the year 1940 approached, women twirlers numbered in the thousands and men began bowing out to their more comely competitors.

By 1950 many high schools and universities had begun adapting baton twirling for use in their musical and physical education programs.

Today, wherever the smiling nimble-fingered majors or majorettes appear, they capture the audience and the cameras, still, movie and TV. American baton twirlers are the most famous in the world. They are living evidence of the poise, gracefulness, ambidexterity and self-confidence required to master an ageless art.

The Log of a Fighting Lady

Will an A-ship be named for Long Beach? Once before a proud warship bore the city's name—a frigate (above) —launched in 1943 and battle-tried in World War II.

By Fred Bolinger

NAVY SECRETARY Charles S. Thomas announced recently that "careful consideration" is being given the proposal to name an atomic-powered cruiser for Long Beach.

That turned back memories to the night—yes, night, it was wartime, if you remember!—of May 5, 1943, when the USS Long Beach, a frigate, was launched in the Wilmington yard of the Consolidated Steel Corp.

What became of that doughty ship, named for Long Beach, home port of the Pacific fleet?

Toughness must have been built into the frigate's steel plates for within a brief time after her shakedown cruise, she started to gather battle stars.

Manned by a Coast Guard crew of youngsters, the ship was rushed across the Pacific to join Adm. Halsey's famous 7th Fleet.

Sleek and fast, the frigate slugged at the Japs with her 3-inch and 50-caliber guns. She'd knife in near the shore and support LCI's as they rammed onto the terrible beaches of the South Pacific.

Her machine guns covered troops as they fought for their slender beachheads among the Admiralty Islands and in the Bismarck Archipelago.

A FIRST BATTLE star was won for those operations.

The frigate was in the spearhead of the surprise landing at Hollandia, in New Guinea, and won another battle star.

Came August 1944. The USS Long Beach really grappled with the foe.

She bombarded Soepiori and Biak Islands, in New Guinea.

Knifing within a few hundred yards of the beach, she fired her guns point-blank at the Japanese, entrenched in fortified caves.

DURING THE ATTACK, an Army reconnaissance party was put ashore. They re-embarked aboard the frigate as she covered them with her blazing guns. Mission accomplished.

In September 1944, the ship was an escort into Morotai, for a convoy towing heavy equipment to outfit a small naval base.

For fighting in the Philippines, at the Leyte landing operations, in November, she won her third battle star.

New Year's Day 1945, found the frigate homeward bound. She sailed to Boston, via the Canal Zone and was drydocked for overhaul.

RECONDITIONED and with new war paint, the frigate returned to the Pacific, arriving in Seattle, in April.

She proceeded on to the Aleutians and was turned over to the Russian Navy along with 100 other naval vessels.

Only July 21, the frigate reached Petropavlovsk, Siberia. The next month, the Soviet Union declared war on Japan.

With the Hammer and Sickle flying from her mainmast, she saw action in the coastal waters off Manchuria and Korea.

The Japanese surrendered September 2.

During the next four years, the frigate was lost behind the Iron Curtain.

QUITE SUDDENLY on Oct. 17, 1949, she was returned to the U. S. Navy at Yokosuka, Japan.

The heroic USS Long Beach appeared somewhat the worse for wear—decks were dirty, were in need of paint and polish. She went into drydock again to be reconditioned by the Navy that first had tested her mettle.

Then in November 1953, the frigate was loaned to the Japanese Navy.

In Costa Rica, the Oglers Get Ogled at La Retreta Time

THE PRETTIEST senoritas, the gayest oxcarts, the best coffee, the most orchids and the retreta — that's Costa Rica.

Ah, the retreta! It is something every member of the National Society of Girl Watchers should know about. It is more dignified but more effective than watching on windy street corners.

The ogler gets ogled in the retreta. Instead of an averted face and embarrassed blush as on windy corners, eye meets eye and boy meets girl in the retreta.

THERE ARE RULES for the delightful custom. It takes place three times weekly at Central Park in San Jose, the highland capital of Costa Rica served by Pan American World Airways.

Boys walk in circles around the park. Girls walk in the opposite direction. Their elders sit on the park's benches to insure decorum is maintained. And everybody watches to his heart's content.

ALL THIS OCCURS in a setting of great natural beauty. San Jose is a city of 90,000, built on the central plateau, a region about 3,700 feet high and ringed by mountains. Its altitude gives a temperate climate and blankets are frequently needed for sleeping comfort. Two of the mountains are dormant volcanoes.

Aside from its senoritas and volcanoes, Costa Rica has the most interesting oxcarts found in the Western Hemisphere. Their two wheels are made of 16 wooden wedges held together by an iron rim. Elaborate geometric designs are applied in bright colors, and the wheels have been compared with stained glass windows of cathedrals.

Orchids grow by the millions in Costa Rica. Bunches of orchids are sold like daisies on city squares, and as cheaply. Enough to decorate a room can be bought for 25 cents. The country's national flower is an orchid — the Guaria Morado (cattleya skinerii).

There are good hotels and the cities are clean, the water supply pure and sanitary facilities equal to those in the United States. Among San Jose's better hotels are the Gran Hotel Costa Rica, the Grand Hotel Europa and the Oriental, with rates averaging $5.50 to $8 single, $9 to $12.50 double without meals. Other good hotels are available, among them a ranch-type hostelry in a mountain coffee plantation.

California sage grouse are doing a comeback after almost becoming extinct due to heavy hunting interest.

California's Sage Grouse

By Mark McMillin

WALK WESTWARD through the back country of Modoc County from the Nevada line to the west side of Lower Klamath Lake, or southward along the east side of the Sierra Nevada as far as Big Pine in Owens Valley, Inyo County, and you will surely scare up several flocks of sage grouse, appropriately dubbed the "Cock of the Plains," though its habitat ranges from an altitude of 3,500 to 12,000 feet.

The largest native upland game bird of California — and also, incidentally, the largest of the American grouse—it is more or less limited in habitat to the semi-arid sagebrush ranges of eastern California and therefore far removed from large population centers. For this reason, it is one of the least known of the game birds, both to the general public and also to the sportsmen of the state.

ONLY THE WILD turkey has a more lavish physique. Measuring from 2 to 2½ feet long, the male grouse weighs from 2 to 8 pounds, and the female from 3 to 5 pounds.

Both have similar plumage—a body of mottled black, grayish brown, gray and yellowish white and a throat of varied black and yellow. The female is chiefly distinguished from the male by her shorter tail. Also, the male has a line of air sacs on the side of his neck, which he inflates during courting season while strutting around in grand style to attract females. While sucking the air in and out of the sacs, he makes a noise very much like a leaking pump.

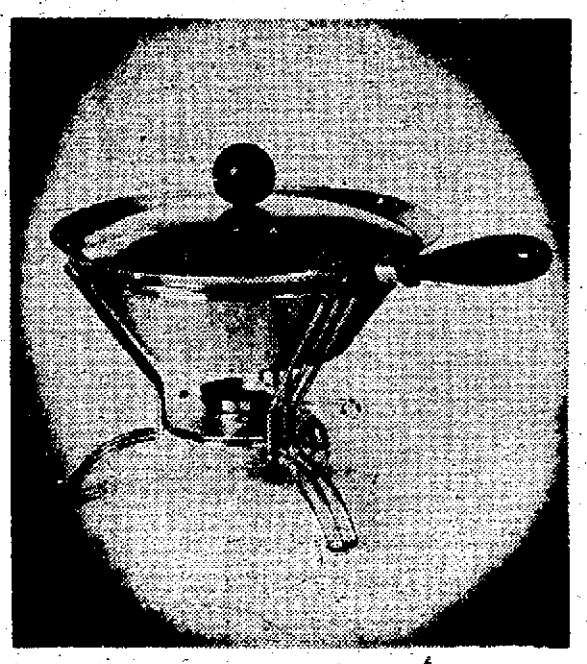

THEY PRODUCE ONLY one brood a year, and like other wildlife they follow a definitely established cycle. In the spring the eggs are laid, usually from 8 to 15, though often coyotes invade the nest and leave a much smaller number. The eggs are heavily colored, greenish gray or olive buff, dotted and spotted with dark brown. While nesting, the hen hides from the cock in a slight ground depression, which is usually canopied with sagebrush and which may or may not be lined with twigs and sage leaves.

The brood is hatched in April or May, and thereafter moves in a covey with the mother and remains under her protection until late autumn, when several small coveys will unite to form a pack. Only then do the males rejoin the flock, which is non-migratory and only mildly nomadic, preferring familiar terrain and waterholes. All winter they shun the more exposed flatlands, and retire to the shelter of heavily wooded valleys.

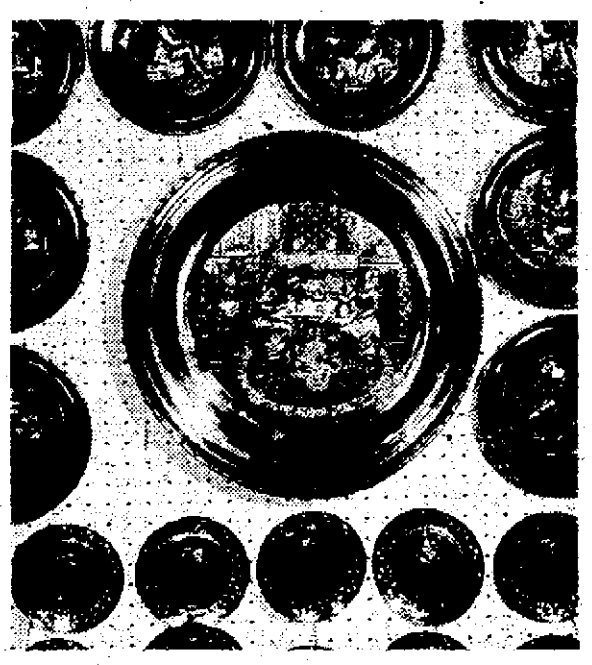

SAGE GROUSE FEED largely on sagebrush leaves and flowers, and to a much lesser

Gloryhole of the Tough Thirties

By Jo Hindman

Millions of dollars in gold came from the fabulously rich Gloryhole mine, entry seen above as it is today.

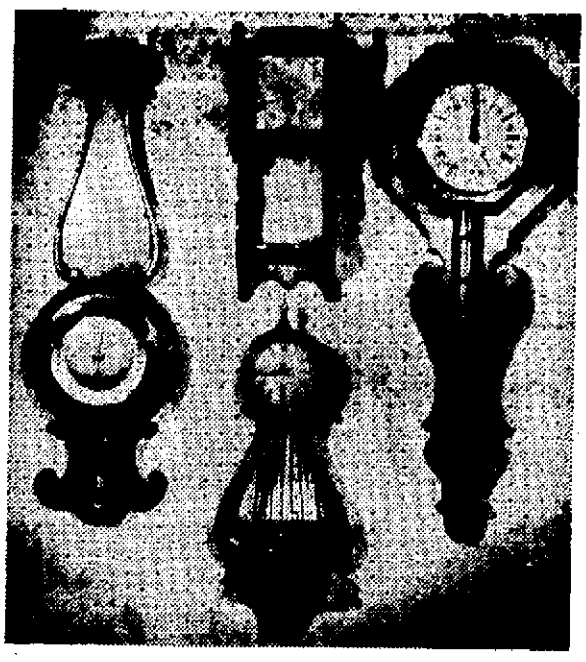

MUCKERS loading ore buckets beneath its groaning timbers called the mine the "Gloryhole." The late William J. Rogers, prospector who discovered the golden heart of it on a manzanita-grown hillside, named the strike after his wife. Thus, the Big Susana came to life.

This was in the depression 1930s. A mining journal reported the Rogers discovery in Neenach Township and a gold rush started. Hundreds of persons swarmed into the western spur of Antelope Valley—prospectors, hard rock miners, card sharks, opportunists, muckers, speculators, tin horn gunmen, cooks, and the merely shiftless. Drawn from nearby mines of Mojave's Soledad mountain, from diggings elsewhere, and from points around the world. The prospectors grubbed for new strikes and found them. Hard rock miners and the muckers asked for work and got it; likewise, the cooks. The shiftless got drunk.

ALL THE DOINGS stemmed from that precise moment when middle-aged Bill Rogers looked into his pan and saw gold. As the story goes, the gaunt, sunbrowned prospector, who even in wealth remained faithful to work clothes and a nondescript hat, told the curious, "I was trying to find water on the place."

"I had shoveled out a damp hole and sat looking out over Antelope Valley to see if it would fill. I noticed a whitish

When the family has had its fill of turkey and all that goes with the main Thanksgiving Day meal, an oldfashioned cranberry pie is a tempting topper.

FOOD

Turkey and All the Trimmings

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

THANKSGIVING DINNER—there is such hominess about cooking it.

Thanksgiving will be celebrated again next Thursday and, of course, the table will be piled high with the best of the season's food. Today the same traditional foods are found on the Thanksgiving table, but prepared in a different way.

To assure the real holiday spirit in your home, have the biggest, brownest turkey your budget affords. Homemakers may now buy frozen, tender, meaty birds, wrapped in glistening transparent coverings in many sizes to suit particular family needs. Remember when buying the turkey, count on at least ½ to ¾ of a pound of ready-to-roast weight per serving. Keep it frozen until ready to thaw, and then thaw according to the directions on the branded label. It may be kept in the refrigerator up to 24 hours until ready to stuff and roast. And just to make it easy for you, schedules for thawing and roasting may be found elsewhere on the page.

Old-Fashioned Cranberry Pie:

2 1-lb. cans whole cranberry sauce
½ cup raisins
3 tblsp. molasses
2 tblsp. cornstarch
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine cranberry sauce, raisins, molasses, cornstarch. Spoon into unbaked pastry shell. Cover with miniature turkeys cut from pie dough. Bake at 425 deg. for 30 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Cool. Serve with or without ice cream.

Turkey Roasting Schedule:

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Approximate Roasting Time for Stuffed Turkey (325 degrees F.)
8 to 10 pounds	3 to 3½ hours
11 to 13 pounds	4 to 4½ hours
14 to 16 pounds	4¾ to 5½ hours
17 to 19 pounds	6 to 7 hours
20 to 24 pounds	7½ to 8½ hours

Thawing Schedule:

Thawing Time Read-to-Cook Weight	Refrigerator 40 F.	Approximate Running Cold Water
4 to 12 pounds	1 to 2 days	4 to 6 hours
12 to 20 pounds	2 to 3 days	6 to 8 hours
20 to 24 pounds	3 to 4 days	8 to 12 hours

Southern Dressing

2 cups rice (uncooked)
2 cups finely chopped onion
2 cups finely chopped celery
1 cup minced bell pepper
Ground or chopped turkey giblets
2 teaspoons salt
5 cups stock or bouillon
Poultry seasoning as desired
2 well beaten eggs
1 cup chopped pecans
1 cup minced parsley.

Add onion, celery, bell pepper, giblets, and salt to stock and bring to a boil. (Five bouillon cubes may be dissolved in 5 cups boiling water.) Stir in rice; cover and cook over low heat for until liquid is absorbed. Remove from heat; fold in seasonings and eggs. Add pecans and parsley; combine well. Stuff turkey and bake.

Sassy Cranberry Horseradish

2 cups (½-lb.) fresh cranberries
2 small beets (or 1 large), skin removed
1 small orange (quartered and seeds removed
½ cup (5 oz. jar) horseradish
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Put cranberries, beets and orange through food chopper (fine blade). Add horseradish, sugar and nutmeg and mix thoroughly. Chill. Makes about 1 pint.

Kitchen Tip:

Baking powder thrown on a small fire will extinguish it.

Imagination Creates a Home

From the stairway of the Walter Crawford home, unusual design of a 28-foot living room sofa becomes apparent. Reflecting wall is a striking feature.

By Eileen Ball

A FEW YEARS AGO a two-story residence was built for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crawford at the corner of Redondo Ave. and Ocean Blvd. that caught the interest and pleased the fancy of passing motorists. The builders utilized Ojai fieldstone—vast amounts of it—to face the exterior up to the second story roofline.

Thousands of tourists and natives alike, driving along the ocean bluff, have had their imaginations captured by this outstanding house and their curiosity sparked with wonder as to what it must be like inside.

The Crawford home relies on an enormity of windows and the flattering effects of tropical planting to open up and soften the lines of the structure. Thus, it avoids—completely and happily—the ponderous "stockade" quality that so often goes with stone structure.

A SMALL GATE opens to a walkway bordered on the left by an abundance of heavy-foliaged tropicals that, in turn, are edged by a low wall of Ojai fieldstone.

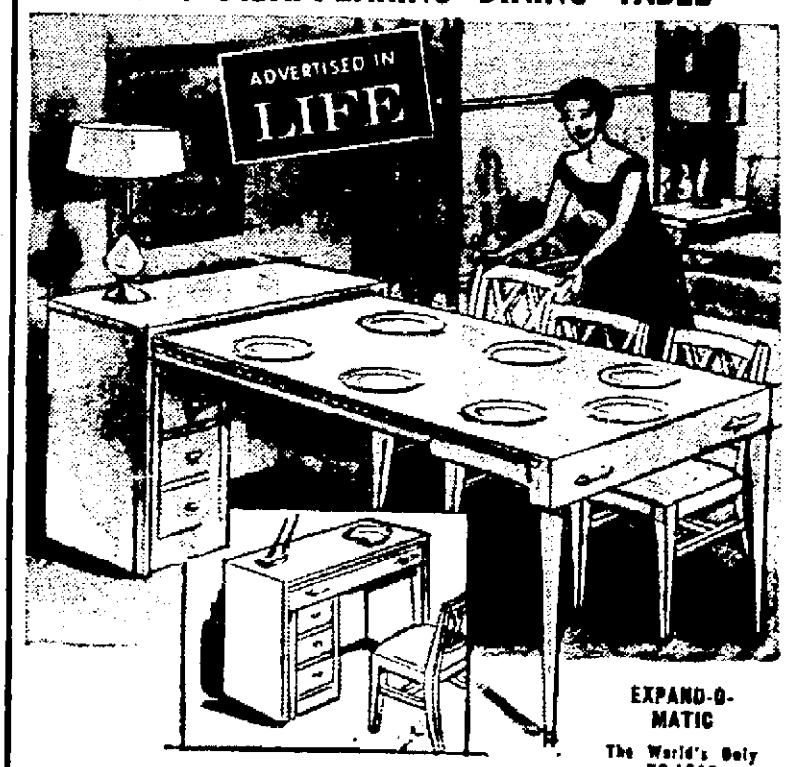

The front door opens, not to an entry hall per se, but into an alcove that is part of the living room. From the front door one sees the majestic sweep of a mahogany paneled staircase that is, without doubt, the most outstanding feature of the interior. The staircase spirals up in a gentle curve, with a solid bannister-height panel of Philippine mahogany that follows the contour of the stairs like a fluid, honey-colored ribbon. Fixed panels of fluted, obscure glass have been set into the wall as it curves with the staircase, flooding the steps with highly effective light patterns.

To the left lies the living room, a large and tastefully furnished area. Through an open arch one gets a glimpse of the dining room which, by means of its furniture and its decor, is an uninterrupted reflection of the living room. Immediately one is impressed with a simple sort of elegance. Greatly responsible for a feeling of serenity is a soft, completely neutral monochomatic background. The carpet is of wool in a soft facepowder color that is just a blush off beige. Of the same tone are the painted plaster walls.

THERE HAS BEEN no attempt to "startle" or spark the room through the use of vibrant color splashes. Mrs. Crawford likes colors in the purple to lilac range—she wears them well and likes to live with them. This, coupled with the fact that these colors are also pleasing to her husband and sons, prompted the choice of an unusual grape-colored fabric interwoven with small block motifs in metallic gold for the upholstery.

2900 E. ANAHEIM ST.

View is the feature of the Crawfords' upstairs family room, which is furnished in rugged leather appointments. Room is well-fitted as a fun area.

Ojai fieldstone, copiously used, gives a dramatic accent to exterior. Plantings soften stone's austerity.

stery of a gigantic 28-foot sofa that was designed with three attractions in mind: conversation, a fireside and a view. These considerations dictated the ultimate form of the button-back sofa that curves around a huge cocktail table in an intimate conversational arrangement, that extends down to the fireplace and then with a back-to-back sort of arrangement—doubles around to face the front view window.

A fireplace faced with black-and-gold veined Italian marble is set into a wall of plate mirror that serves to reflect and seemingly magnify the size of the living room.

THE COCKTAIL TABLE and occasional tables throughout the room were custom-finished in a mar-proof baked lacquer that is impregnated with gold leaf. The soft gold luster of the tables has the admirable quality of being both durable and elegant at once. A perfect contribution to this scheme are candy dishes and smoking accessories in exactly matching grape-colored ceramic edged with gold. Lamps with ceramic bases of dull gold are topped with rose-pink silk shades that give a most flattering blush-toned light.

The dining room is separate from the living room. Its ceiling-high, open arch is flanked on either side with stationary panels of fluted, obscure glass. The dining set was custom made, as were the living room tables, and is finished with the same baked gold lacquer. The upholstered dining chairs are covered in ashes of roses upholstery.

One wall of the dining room is composed entirely of glass with a pair of glass doors that open to a small and completely secluded courtyard defined by a wall of fieldstone and planted with tropicals. They grow against the glass almost as if they were inside the room. This illusion is further heightened with application to the wall opposite of a ceiling-high philodendron motif.

THE KITCHEN is large and is planned for efficiency and ease in its share of the housework. The color scheme is sunny yellow and apple red.

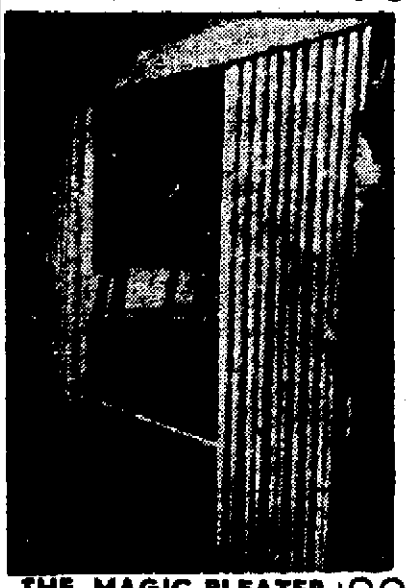

The downstairs den is dramatic with its stark black and white decor. Hand-blocked Egyptian print in black and white was used for the boxed day bed spreads and for the identically matched wallpaper. Geometric plastic-topped tables in black and white are perfect accessories for this room.

The bath is sage green and yellow. Its stall shower is handy for bathers who can come in through the service area, the back door and down a short hallway to the bath. Back-to-back with the downstairs bath is a very attractive guest powder room. Copiously mirrored, it features a color scheme of black and turquoise that has been carried out in fixtures, accessories and French wallpaper. A dressing table draped in gold satin adds appropriate elegance.

At the head of the stairs is a large open area designated as the family room. It features tremendous floor-to-ceiling

THIS PANAMANIAN CITY is a dirty but entirely fascinating hodge-podge of historic buildings, shops, cabarets and slums.

The plane took off at 10:13 a.m. Thursday, bound for the high spot of the trip, fabulous San Juan, Puerto Rico. Fabulous is an overworked word, but it doesn't seem so when applied to Puerto Rico.

The plane approached from the west side of the island and flew along the northern coast to San Juan. Rain clouds scudded across the plane, but they could not dim the lush beauty of this Caribbean paradise.

THE CLOUDS CLOSED IN completely about the plane as it made the approach for the landing at Isla Grande Airport. At about 1,500 feet, the craft hurtled out of the clouds and the newcomers aboard were startled to see they were practically in the middle of San Juan.

The walled city known today as "Old San Juan" is situated on a tiny islet just across San Antonio Channel from the airport and adjacent Navy Base on the main island.

The business section of Old San Juan and most points of interest are jammed into a small area about six blocks square. Narrow streets, built centuries ago, provide a fascinating atmosphere but make automobile traffic difficult. Visitors make better progress on foot.

San Juan, capital of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, is one of the oldest cities in the Western Hemisphere. Old San Juan was settled in 1523 after being moved from the original site across the bay in Caparra where it was founded in 1508.

THE SUBURB of Santurce, just across the channel, in the past two decades grew to meet the town of Rio Piedras, 7½ miles away. San Juan incorporated Rio Piedras and the outlying suburbs in 1952.

Modern San Juan is the center of what the Puerto Ricans call "a testing ground to see if an underdeveloped country can raise its standard of living in terms of democracy, contrary to communist claims."

In a dramatic bid, the commonwealth government has offered a completely tax-free period of 10 years to U. S. manufacturers who set up new plants in Puerto Rico.

This, a labor reservoir of 650,000 men and women who have been given training in the commonwealth's vocational schools and a wonderful climate, have resulted in the establishment of 400 new plants there.

THE VISITORS wound up their stay in San Juan with a tour Friday morning of El Morro, the fortress which guarded the city for centuries.

The fortress was started in 1539 and completed in 1591. It was unsuccessfully attacked by Sir Francis Drake in 1595 and taken in 1598 by the Earl of Cumberland. However, he later had to abandon Puerto Rico when his troops contracted dysentery. It successfully withstood all further attacks.

One of the strangest golf courses in the world is situated within the walls of the old fort. Two holes actually are played within the filled-in moat of the fortification. On another, the player shoots out of the moat over a 30-foot wall. The greens are of packed sand. A guide explained that if bent grass were used, the coarse tropical grass of the fairways soon would overrun the greens.

AFTER THE BEAUTIES of Puerto Rico the return flight to Los Alamitos was dull. The party left San Juan at 1:12 p.m. Friday and arrived at Dallas at 10:45 a.m., then took off at 8:15 a.m. Saturday and landed home at 12:54 p.m.

The squadron members had covered more than 7,000 miles and had gained valuable training which will be of untold benefit to the nation in the event of national emergency.

plate glass windows that make a real "command performance" of the magnificent ocean view. for cozier atmosphere, draperies of burnt orange pull across the windows, adding brilliance to the room furnished with leather upholstered furniture in tones of parchment and terra cotta. A piano, a pool table and a series of built-in compartments for hi-fi, records and books contribute to the room's "fun" qualities.

THE TWO CRAWFORD sons have rooms that have sufficient wardrobe storage to accommodate clothing, hobby and sports equipment. Each room has a built-in desk across windows that feature beautiful views.

The master bedroom is a large room that achieves an elegant richness with its grape and mulberry color scheme, its lavish use of slipper satin for dressing tables, bedspread and ornately styled curved headboard. Pale pink boucle glass curtains cover huge windows with a gossamer blush.

The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha

By Owen Rhodes

Illustrated by Diane Demack

PARAPLEGICS were already out in force taking the Southern California sun when Chaplain Hoag walked across the grounds of Veterans Hospital. Some were in wheelchairs. Others, looking for all the world like fabled centaurs, rode the low-slung gurneys.

"Hey, parson!" a voice called as he turned in at Wing 17. It was Boxcar Smith, idling his wheelchair along the foot of the ramp. "You goin' in to see Johnny Hawkins?"

"He is very ill," the chaplain replied.

BOXCAR RELAXED in his wheelchair. "Saturday night I took Johnny out on the town. In my Cad. When we got back it was raining and he wanted to walk in—"

"Why, he is a quadriplegic," the chaplain said. "He can't even—"

"—Can't even twiddle his toes," Boxcar said with a fine air of contempt, wiggling his own toes to show how it was done. "He got wet and caught cold."

The chaplain started to edge away. Then, "They said something over the phone about a brass box—"

"The one Johnny keeps all those love letters in." Boxcar inched his wheelchair forward confidentially. "The boys won't sleep in the ward with it any more. Parson, something jumps around in that box!"

THE CHAPLAIN stiffened. "Nonsense, Boxcar! Your own religious teaching should tell you so."

Boxcar winked mysteriously. "You're a good Joe, parson. Let me give you a tip. Don't lend Johnny your scarf pin!"

Chaplain Hoag was still fiddling with his black onyx pin when he entered Nurse Vestry's small office. She lifted a metal casket from a shelf and slammed it onto the corner of her desk.

"You know what?" she demanded. "You're to read him his five hundred love letters. Take this thing out of here and don't bring it back."

CHAPLAIN HOAG picked up the brass box and held it to the morning light. It was ornate and very old and carried a nameless air of authenticity. Molded on the cover was a sleek, smiling Buddha, its tapered hands pressed against its sides. A break in the stylized perfection caught his eye. The right index finger was missing.

"Tai-Nam Ha!" he exclaimed. "The Healing Buddha!"

"I don't care what it is," the nurse began, "I—"

The chaplain coughed delicately. "I am somewhat of an authority on these things, Miss Vestry. This casket has been missing for hundreds of years. It is worth a king's ransom!"

"I wouldn't have it around for all the gold in Fort Knox," Miss Vestry stormed. "There's something alive inside!"

THE CHAPLAIN tucked the box under his arm and sidled toward the door of the private room. "Johnny—how long?" he asked.

"Better see him while you can." The nurse dropped into her chair and, surprisingly, began to cry. "This is just not my day," she confessed. "That horrid box. And a quadriplegic with five hundred love letters. . . ."

Johnny Hawkins lay on the tilted hospital bed. His face was thin and flushed, his fair hair combed back from his forehead. A sly smile was etched about his lips. He was very young. The chaplain touched one of the slender, unresponsive hands.

"It's Chaplain Hoag, Johnny," he said gently.

JOHNNY CHUCKLED. "Played a big joke on everybody. Got a scarf pin, chaplain?"

The other's hand flew protectively to his onyx pin.

"Need it to open the box," Johnny grinned. "Just fits the hole in the finger stub."

"Do you know the story of this box?" the chaplain asked. "How the Buddha stood on a cliff near Seoul? How, to the afflicted who visited it at midnight, it held out a hand to touch and heal? How—"

JOHNNY LAUGHED. "—How a chiselin' thief cut off the Buddha's finger and carried it away in the box. Tryin' to practice medicine without a license. How the idol shook up the land and threw itself into the sea—"

"The Finger is supposed to heal—" the chaplain began.

"Sure it heals," Johnny chuckled. "Made to heal. Reg'lar Chinaman's trick. Still mad. It heals for an hour, then blooey! Blow's everything sky high!"

"It's worth a fortune, Johnny. Did you—"

"Steal it?" Johnny grinned. "Old geezer at the temple gave it to me. Scared. Thought it started the Korean War. Open the box, chaplain!"

THE CHAPLAIN shifted the box from hand to hand. "You shouldn't have put your letters in here, Johnny," he temporized.

There was a gay raillery in Johnny's voice. "You afraid somethin' will crawl out and bite you, chaplain?"

The chaplain removed his pin and attacked the box with grim determination. The lock yielded with a tiny snick of sound. Ex-

And because Mary wanted it that way . . . he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Redrup in marriage.

outcropping and decomposed quartz nearby. I mused on the possibilities of the quartz carrying gold. I got my mortar and pan from the car. I pounded up some rock, put it in the pan, dipped from the new water hole and began panning. I finished, and there was a complete circle of free gold!"

That was on Monday, New Year's Day, 1934, and Rogers had owned the property but 13 days.

GLORYHOLE was reamed out of the area's typically firm, decomposed granite into a large room-sized cavern by the square-set, slot-and-pillar type of mining that left chunky pillars of the conglomerate standing to support the cavern ceiling. Stout shorings were set to brace the gopherholing as the fabulously rich gold pocket began raying underground. In all directions Gloryhole was explored, picks and shovels knocked down gold or scooped it up.

For untold years, storekeepers in desert outposts had been accepting gold nuggets presented by the Indians in trade for their simple needs. George Bowers' discovery in 1894 near the present town of Mojave brought mining to the area; in 1934, the Gloryhole pitched gold fever on the desert to a new high.

The tough-muscled, hard-fisted Neenach mining population was centered in a hootin', tar-paper and tent "boom town" that mushroomed in Rivera Canyon over the ridge from Gloryhole. Beer sudsed night and day within the sprawling frame of the "Oasis," the eating house and bar that trembled from the tread of boots walking up and down. Slot machines and a battered piano tinkled crazily.

THE DRINKING, carousing, shootings, romancing, thievery and tomfoolery were punctuated intermittenly by the boom and shudder of dynamiting as Gloryhole's three shifts worked around the clock. Fuses were lighted after each shift checked out, charges exploded and air pumps worked to clear the mine interior before the fresh manpower entered.

In spite of inevitable accidents, Gloryhole claimed no human life, although Fritz Mollinet, a stalwart mucker, came close to losing his at one of the mine's lower levels. Water and mud from a pocket overhead became tapped accidentally. Tons of mud forced the chute gate, poured down in a stifling flood. The ore car that Fritz was using filled, overflowed, and disappeared under the rising tide of mud.

Above in the shaft, Fritz's helper was frantically trying to replace the gate. "Go on—leave!" Fritz shouted, feeling sticky mud trapping him at armpit level.

The mucker grimly remained, straining, fighting and pushing at the crude planking. The timber groaned into place. The mud stopped rising, just inches short of snuffing out Mollinet's life. By then, he was buried to his chin.

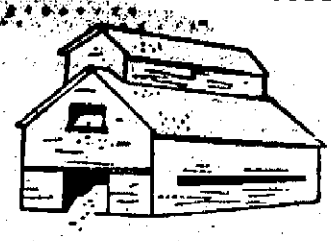

THE NEENACH mining boom continued through 1935 and 1936, lesser mines producing along with Gloryhole. Then the richness petered out. Poorer mines found operations unprofitable and closed. Miners folded their tents and the shanty town vanished from the canyon. Bill Rogers moved to Bakersfield; Gloryhole changed hands, settled down to commercial operations of a less colorful sort. A miner and his family set up housekeeping in the ghost town's former "Oasis."

During the two decades following, the ball mill situated a few yards down-canyon from Gloryhole's entrance accepted the mine's later day ore, pulverizing, stirring it into the acid bath diluted by water flowing from the original springs that led Bill Rogers to discover the precious mineral. Tailing piles have inched higher and higher with the years until today, the conical mounds of light colored rock stand almost higher than the looming canyon walls.

At length, even Gloryhole's golden shafts were scraped to poorness. The mine was shut down in the fall of 1955. Abandoned pathways, twisted tracks, rusting ore cars and a padlocked gate guard the silent labyrinth hidden below.

The glory is gone from the Gloryhole.

cept for a folded rectangle of paper the box appeared empty.

"Fooled everybody," Johnny giggled. "No love letters. Never had a girl, except— Read the paper. It'll slay you!"

CHAPLAIN HOAG spread out the deeply creased document. It was an unexecuted license for Johnny Hawkins and one Mary Reagan to wed.

"Joke was on us," Johnny said. "Shipped out too fast to get married. This happened to me and I pulled a hot one on Mary. Faked a wire—missing in action! Bet you can't guess what else is in the box."

The chaplain peeped in with some foreboding. There it was! A slender, gleaming length of bronze lying recessed in the bottom of the box. The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha! He closed the casket and heard with relief the snap of the hidden lock. He stood up.

"I MUST GO NOW," he said. "I will be back soon."

"Sure!" Johnny grinned. "Come any time. Come at midnight. Put the Finger on me and watch the fun."

"Johnny, that's not amusing!"

Of a sudden the boy's face was a tragic mask. "You think bein' just a brain, a voice and a digestive tract is funny, chaplain? I want to live that hour!" Then the passion drained away and he smiled again. "Just thought of somethin'. Mary's still waiting. I've checked. Joke's too good to keep. Go tell her not to wait any longer."

JOHNNY'S EYES closed and he seemed to sleep. Then his lips moved and the chaplain bent over him to listen. He heard him say, "—just to wiggle my toes like Boxcar Smith can do—"

Chaplain Hoag drove through the hospital gate a little later and did not return until eleven o'clock that night. There rode in with him a slender, plain girl whom he addressed as Mary Reagan.

And because Mary wanted it that way, at a quarter to twelve he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Reagan in marriage, with Boxcar Smith and a hastily summoned Miss Vestry as witnesses. And just before he left the two alone, in answer to Johnny's pleading eyes and an urge he could not define, he placed his onyx pin on the night stand beside the brass box.

A local temblor struck Wing 17 at precisely one a.m. Gas lines under the structure broke in several places and in seconds the whole building was ablaze. Heads-up work cleared the wards with just instants to spare.

Chaplain Hoag hurried up, spied Boxcar Smith in the forefront of the gathering crowd.

"All out, Boxcar?" he asked.

"Johnny's still in there, parson," Boxcar said.

"Look!" It was Nurse Vestry pointing toward the blazing structure.

JUST INSIDE A FLAME-enshrouded window stood Johnny, a blanketed form in his arms. Unhurriedly, he shifted its weight to his left arm and raised the sash. He lifted a foot and kicked out the screen and lowered the burden gently over the sill.

"Johnny! Johnny!" the chaplain shouted.

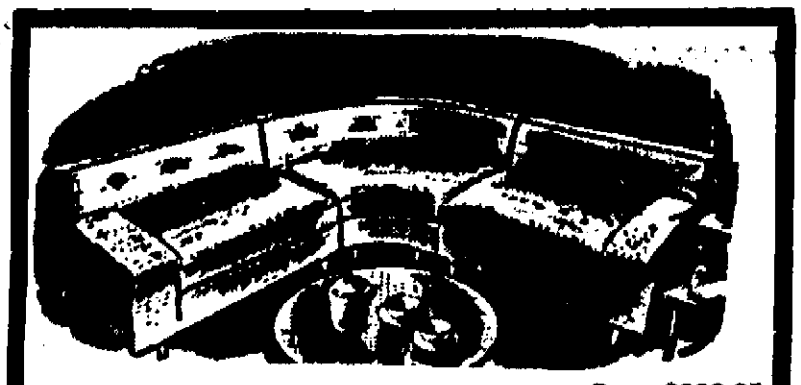

Johnny heard him. He grinned and brought up his hand in the GI's gloating symbol. Then the roof caved in over his head.

BACK FROM THE searing heat, they unwrapped the blanketed figure. Mary was unharmed. The brass box lay in a crook of her arm.

"Funny thing," Boxcar Smith said. "Not another building damaged. What you think happened, parson?"

The lowering flames of Wing 17 reflected the thoughts back of Chaplain Hoag's eyes. He removed his hat.

"Why, an act of God, Boxcar!" he said.

Be Thankful There Are Cameras

By the Shutterbug

THANKSGIVING is one of our most beloved holidays . . . it is a time for looking back, for remembering and giving thanks. It is a time when families are close together . . . when reminiscences are the order of the day's conversation.

It's a day for looking back through the family album, for viewing of slides and movies that bring pleasant memories of other days.

IT IS ALSO a day of taking pictures, for creating the snapshots that will come into their own on future days of family reunion, for adding today's pleasures to the record.

Flash photography makes such indoor picture taking very easy, when you're taking still pictures. And the bar lights now available for movie cameras make the type of shooting equally simple. With these kinds of artificial light available, you can take the picture wherever it is happening.

You can take a pre-dinner look into the kitchen, for a close-up of mother and grandmother testing the doneness of the big bird or swirling the decorative touches of whipped cream atop the spicy pumpkin pies.

YOU CAN LOOK into the living room where other members of the family are talking together in small groups. The flash attachment on your camera allows you to carry the light source right with you, so you can picture these people in the natural groups which they formed about a mutually interesting topic of conversation.

You can then move into the dining room with your camera and light when the anticipated

In the Manner of the Holy Land

Glimpsed through this archway is part of the Biblical garden of St. Luke's Church. The olive tree in center is linked closely to Holy Land and history of mankind.

Ivy of this kind was used in Holy Land rites, festivals. Markers link present plants to Biblical times.

By Walter Finch

CITYWIDE attention is being directed toward the courtyard garden of St. Luke's Episcopal Church because of the unusual theme employed in the landscaping.

Plants for the sheltered garden of the church have been restricted to those mentioned in the Bible and accredited by botanists to have been growing in the Holy Land during or before the life of Christ. Funds for the trees and shrubs were donated by members of the church.

THE PLAN, as above described, sounds deceptively simple. However, Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrill, originator of the Biblical garden, has done an unbelievable amount of research on the subject which offers plenty of scope for debate. One factor that tends to complicate the issue is that many plants referred to in the Bible bear names that have been replaced by newer nomenclature. For example, the "gourd" mentioned in the Book of Job is what we know as the casterbean; the green bay tree referred to by David is known to us as the laurel.

To further confuse the issue, the Holy Land that once was verdant and productive is, today, virtually a barren wasteland. Historians blame the barrenness of Palestine, Syria and Transjordania on two factors: first, the cutting down of natural timbers and leaving exposed land to be eroded and swept away; second, neglect of the ancient terrace-type cultivation. These countries stand today as grim testimony of some of the world's most devastating soil erosion.

Unaware of the change that has evolved since the 7th century, some artists are given to portraying Christ walking in deserts amidst cactus which botanists feel sure was not present in the Holy Land during his life.

OF ADDED INTEREST is the fact that a garden to the Palestinians and Syrians meant, literally, a grove of trees (usually olives) surrounded by walls of stone or briars. The latter was to discourage marauders both animal and human. In the center of these gardens was a mound of earth of rock that afforded the owner of the garden a view of the surrounding—and threatening—countryside.

This garden bears little resemblance to the riotously-colored, heady-smelling rose arbor-pansy bed sort of thing we associate with the name today. Shrubs and trees were cultivated in the Holy Land for purely practical purposes--food, fuel, building material, fodder, medicants and for drink. The business of survival was such a big enough job that there was no time left for the cultivation of prettiness for any save the richest men.

And so the garden at St. Luke's Church may never be known for lush prettiness. But for historical correctness and dignity it is distinctive.

The courtyard of this English-style church is surrounded on three sides by the parish house, the guild hall and the church itself. Across the front of the garden is the covered ambulatory connecting the parish hall with the church.

BEYOND THE OPEN arches of the walkway lies the garden. The enormous and handsome olive tree that spreads its sheltering branches over the southeast corner of the courtyard was transplanted to this site two years ago. A hedge of myrtle borders the garden across the east side, screening the street within the open walkway.

A margin of color and fragrance is offered by a bed of narcissus and tulips that grow in front of the myrtle hedge. Both flowers were referred to as "roses" in the Bible. Covering the beds bordering the north and south sides of the garden is glossy ivy that is referred to by that name in the Bible. Growing in the north section, which avoids the hot afternoon sun, are the acacia tree, almond tree and the fir. The latter specimen was actually brought here recently from the Holy Land. Brought to the garden at the same time was a small pine tree that, like the olive, grows within the center plot.

The walkway leads past a mass of other incidental plants and shrubs that have been identified by small metal markers as to name and to the section of the Bible wherein they are mentioned.

ACROSS THE BACK of the garden is a boxwood hedge, known Biblically as the "box". In front of the hedge grow the lilies. The anemone was known as the lily of the field, the hyacinth as the lily of the valley, the Madonna lily as the Easter lily and the yellow iris as the lily of the stream. These latter two are impractical to grow in the garden and so are merely set out in pots during specific times of the year.

Also growing in this section are herbs which were purchased by money donated by children of the church school. Growing side by side with the fragrant and lovely hyacinth is garlic, onion, mustard, coriander, mint, endive and rue.

On the south side of the garden is a shaded plot that features an old and rustic bench that invites visitors to stop and meditate. The bench is sheltered by a carob tree on the right, a fig tree on the left and is banked in back by willowy bulrushes that wave their feathery foliage in the breeze.

Pleasure Tour of West--1843

By Katharine B. Moore

IT'S A LONG WAY from Perthshire, Scotland, and the 19th century to Southern California and 1956! A Henry Inman portrait of Sir William Drummond Stewart has traveled that distance, to be a part of the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Porter of Santa Ana. To this couple—formerly of Kansis City, Mo., Taos, N. M.—western history has been a pastime and a supplementary career.

Mrs. Porter (Mae Reed Porter), who collaborated with Bernard de Voto in "Across the Wide Missouri" (Houghton Mifflin), found this portrait under unusual circumstances while doing research in New York. It is one of their many priceless mementoes of the dashing, high-tempered Scotch playboy of well over a century ago. In America, Sir William is chiefly known as the organizer of probably the first conducted pleasure tour to the West—in 1843—after his preliminary treks in 1833 and 1837.

HIS RIGHT-HAND man was Col. William Sublette, hunter, fur trader and explorer. The colonel, an enthusiastic guide, was an associate of such famous mountain men as Joseph Reddeford Walker, discoverer of Yosemite, and Walker's Pass, in the vicinity of Bakersfield.

It is not unusual for present-day sportsmen to travel 2,200 miles to fish in the Pacific or hunt in the High Sierra. In 1843 such a trip was hazardous. Sir William had no air lines or vista dome trains by which to route his clients, but his organization methods were strictly modern. Preparatory publicity consisted of a personal trip to New Orleans, and one to St. Louis by Sublette, to enlist "tourists." The nobleman's previous years in the West made him an ardent advance agent. For an expedition in 1837 he had employed a talented young Baltimore artist — Alfred Jacob Miller — to record the adventure in pictures. As it was not until 1838 that Louis Daguerre invented photography, Miller's tools were water colors, brushes, paper, and a background of European art technique. Ninety-six of his original water color sketches bearing penciled notations are among the treasures of Mr. and Mrs. Porter. Through lectures, illustrated with colored slides made from these paintings, Mrs. Porter has stimulated interest in this once almost forgotten craftsman. A group of the sketches, many perfectly reproduced in color, illustrate "Across the Wide Missouri."

MRS. CLYDE PORTER
Collector of Americana

THE SIR WILLIAM-Sublette guided tour took place in an era of excitement and restlessness. In Southern California the fabulous Yankee Dons, Abel Stearns and Juan Temple, were making plans for fandangos, barbecues, bull fights and horse races on their newly acquired ranchos where Long Beach now carries out its industrial and recreational programs. In Westport and Independence — the east-west links—serious minded emigrants were preparing to launch forth to populate the Oregon country. They looked on in amazement at the elaborate equipment of Sir William's gay crowd.

In May his party of 93 started. It included health seekers, doctors, lawyers, botanists and (according to Sublette's journal) "bug ketchers," besides a large crew of hired men. Their goal was the Scotchman's favorite lake in the Wind River Mountains, just east of the Continental Divide. There they fished from collapsible India-rubber boats. They had on their menus canned delicacies, imported cheeses, and wines. Like many a modern vacationer they thrilled to the scenery of the Grand Tetons. With Joe Pourier and Antoine Clement to lead them, they hunted buffalo. The trails over which echoed the voices and rifle shots of this spirited, heterogeneous cavalcade were new and lonely ones. It was not until six years later tnat searchers for Sutter's gold streamed across and beyond them.

SIR WILLIAM'S wilderness party was his last fling in America. Managing his ancestral estate, he dreamed of the freedom of the plains. On the walls of Murthly Castle were dramatic reminders of the new world—oil paintings done by Alfred Miller from the water color sketches of 1837.

In a philosophical mood, Mrs. Porter looked at the Inman portrait of a regal and formal Sir William above the mantel in her living room.

"I like to think that Sir William is very happy to be back in America—and the West," she said.

The Porters' home on secluded Tropic Lane is a reflection of true art connoisseurs. Their hobby of researching has yielded many unforgettable experiences, as well as tangible souvenirs. Among them is an equisite miniature of Lt. George Frederick Ruxton, a contemporary of Sir William, gained while delving for facts in England. These energetic historians have co-authored "Ruxton of the Rockies" and have re-issued Ruxton's own book, "Life in the Far West"—both through the University of Oklanoma Press.

"YOU MIGHT SAY Ruxton was a world-traveler," said Porter, as he displayed some formidable appearing horns and other trophies of the daring man's African and Canadian exploits. "And we also have his medals won during the Carlist Wars in Spain in 1937."

The latest achievement of this Western Americana team is a compilation of the reactions of Matthew Field, the ex-actor who "covered" Sir William's 1843 tour for the New Orleans Picayune. This will be released in January 1957 by the University of Oklanoma Press.

Strange spectacle—for 1843—was the conducted tour of the West led by Sir William Drummond Stewart (above).

HOW BIG IS YOUR THANKSGIVING TABLE?

the bumps had turned into blessings!

The second exercise is just pure fun. It is the expression of our gratitude to others. When grateful thoughts come to us about a person during these days let us speak them. It will not only bring them great joy, but will encourage them to release more of this same quality for which we were originally grateful.

WE ARE SOMETIMES slower with gratitude to members of our own family than we mean to be. Al Vermeer's delightful little cartoon character "Priscilla's Pop," appearing daily in the Independent, Press Telegram, expresses the true spirit of family thanksgiving when, after her "pop has granted some girlish desire, she ecstatically exclaims: "Gee, I'm glad we married him!" Pop's chest swells a little bigger, and we can almost feel the love grow between them everytime there is an occasion for a hearty thank-you.

One local family has put gratitude into their Thanksgiving celebration by annually writing letters to two or three people who have meant a great deal to them throughout the year.

THE THIRD EXERCISE in gratitude is its tangible expression through gifts and service. Mrs. A. V. Jacoubowsky, dynamic Long Beach worker for the U.N., once quoted a relief worker in a foreign country who was shocked at what he saw and wrote: "I ask myself this noontime how is it I was the one chosen to eat this food and my neighbor to starve? I do not know nor shall I ever know. But this I do know. It must be paid for by humility and service which springs from a sense of responsibility or else this world makes little sense." Whether it be a basket of food to a local needy family, a CARE package for a neighbor overseas, or an invitation to dinner for the lonely person down the street, ours own Thanksgiving feast will taste better for our act of sharing.

California's Sage Grouse

degree on clover, rush, snowberry, prickly lettuce, wooly sunflower, dandelion and rabbitbrush. They also eat ants, grasshoppers, moths and butterflies as well as some seeds. When near wheat fields, they eat the grain, perhaps because it is so easily available.

The grouse of California are undoubtedly the descendants of the great flocks whose original range extended over much of the western states as far east as Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, and northward to southwestern Canada — the region known as the "sagebrush country." The birds were first protected in California in 1901, when a closed season was enacted, making it unlawful to possess them between Feb. 1 and Oct. 1. The same law prohibited the sale of wild sage grouse, and also prohibited the shipment of more than 25 birds in one day by one person. But these restrictions were still too liberal, and in 1903 the closed season extended to the period from Feb. 15 to Sept. 1.

THE OPEN SEASON on grouse was still further reduced from 1903 to 1918, yet by 1921 the birds were virtually extinct in several counties, notably Modoc and Inyo. In that year, grouse shooting was prohibited throughout the state. In 1925, all counties were again opened for grouse shooting from Aug. 1 to 15. In 1928, the State Legislature set aside a game refuge in Lassen County as a sage grouse and antelope refuge, and relaxed the hunting regulations. Soon, however, grouse were facing extinction, and a closed season was enforced from 1944 to 1950 throughout the state.

In 1950 and 1951, the season was opened in Mono County, but only for two days, Sept. 1 and 2, and with a two-bird season bag limit. In 1952, a one-day season, Sept. 1, was opened with a three-bird bag limit in Modoc and Lassen Counties.

CHECKING STATIONS set up during the 1950, 1951 and 1952 season revealed that hunting pressure is increasing and that fewer hunters are successful in bagging the grouse. For the year 1955, therefore, grouse hunting was permitted in Modoc and Lassen Counties for two days—Sept. 3 and 4—with a bag and possession limit of two birds per season.

BOOK REVIEWS

A New Adam and a New Eve

IS THE BIBLE accurate in its account of the creation of the world? Did Biblical characters such as Adam and Eve, and Noah, actually exist? Did David really slay the giant, Goliath?

Greatly expanded, the most-read and best-loved stories to come from the lips of mankind for thousands of years about these figures from the mists of ancient times — are reverently retold by Louis Ginzberg, the noted Talmudic scholar, in "Legends of the Bible" (Simon and Schuster, $5). In what may well become the most significant religious work of the decade, Mr. Ginzberg gives new dimensional values to the oldest and most renowned people in all literature and brings fresh and vibrant appreciation of the Scriptures.

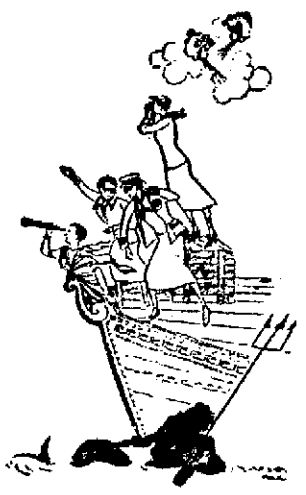

For, instead of leaving fragments of pictures of these legendary figures as we have known them, Mr. Ginzberg calls upon all reliable sources extant to piece together the complete stories of their lives. The result is that Adam and Eve, and Noah, and others emerge as if a veil were lifted from the time they walked the paths of the earth.

Clearing the way for the reader, Schalom Spiegel, another scholar of Jewish history, explains in the introduction that "legend may be taken to imply whatever will come to be read by successive ages into an event or record of the past: the ever-new and ever-changing rereading of old sources by new generations of man. Great events and great books have a posthumous story of their own. Each following period pours its inner self into the patient and pliant texts of old."

Of the legends in the Bible, Spiegel writes: "Devout centuries wove endless fantasies around the characters and occurrences depicted in the holy Writ. Both folk imagination and scholar's wit coaxed and forced from its pages a multitude of tales and a host of fancies unforeseen and unsuspected by the writers of the Bible. . . . Its stories, even before they were written down, had moved the minds and hearts of men for centuries."

Of how these stories came to be included in the Bible, Mr. Spiegel continues: "Even when the legends were assembled in special books, the principle of their arrangement was purely mechanical: they were strung to the passages of Scripture which they employed or elaborated. This method gave them the false appearance of being a running commentary of sections or selections of the Writ . . ."

But believers will find Mr. Ginzberg's mountainous effort tremendously rewarding.—R.J.B.

She had forgotten her alphas and betas, sure, but Emily Kimbrough had reasons of her very own to visit Greece. So visit Greece she did, and also the Aegeans, and such en route spots as Paris and London. The excursion, with its delights, surprises, mishaps and curiosities, seemed to call for another of her inimitable books, so she put it all down in "Water, Water Everywhere" (Harper, $3.75). The result, naturally, is a revealing and witty voyage for the armchair traveler; in fact, he never had it so good.

DR. ROY A. BURKHART, now director of the National Council of Community Churches, shows the way to attainment of four vital freedoms for healthier and happy living in "The Freedom to Become Yourself" (Prentice-Hall, $4.95). Dr. Burkhart believes that most of us go through life knowing only half of ourselves, that great areas of our strength lie hidden, making us strangers to our own souls. He seeks, through ancient teachings and modern psychology, to put us on more intimate terms with our great potentials for happier living.

THE CREAM of the crop of outstanding Yuletide tales, as told by some of the world's greatest writers, illustrators and cartoonists of the last 50 years — comes in "A Merry, Merry Christmas Book" (Prentice-Hall, $2.95). Editor Erie Posselt includes such authors as Robert Benchley, Max Beerbohm, Damon Runyon, Christopher Morley, Roark Bradford and many others, and an array of artists that includes Bill O'Malley, Carl Rose and O. Soglow.

SCHOLARLY Francis H. Buffum's soft-cover book "America at the Crossroads" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $1.25) is something which should be read by all Americans who seek understanding of the basic differences between our country and Russia. It traces the history of the two countries and the factors that led to their growths in world prestige. It compares the ideologies of democracy and communism.

AN INSIDE LOOK at executive-level greed and corruption is given in the first novel of John G. Burnett, "Company Man," (Harpers, $3.50), when Robert Franklin leaves his own agency to join the staff of Farnsworth Airlines as advertising manager. Working with Sidney Starkle, public relations boss, and Peter Lafferty, agency representative, Franklin struggles to maintain personal dignity, yet still conform enough to be accepted into the inner circle.

"THE MAINSTREAM of America" has become a series of books for which the readers of American history await with eagerness and anticipation of a solid delight. Now Irving Stone presents his "Men to Match My Mountains" (Doubleday, $5.95) and the volume is one of the best of the series. You name a hero or a rascal whose feet trod the early western land, and he is here. Just what drew men and women into the roughness and insecurity of the early west is a question, but perhaps it was restlessness or a general contempt for peaceful surroundings. And from 1840 until 1900, brashness, brawn and raw courage had their places beside greed and hatred. Here is how a continent was settled and made secure, and the doing is going to live forever in the hearts of Americans, due in most part to authors like Irving Stone who write proudly and sincerely of great and daring men who walked the land.

WHAT A MAN DOES, thinks, and feels, when told by doctors that he has cirrhosis of the liver, is no doubt the theme behind "The Crossing" by Jean Reverzy (Pantheon $3.50). But the theme obscures and becomes tiresome amid endless, many-syllabled words describing the South Seas, numerous flashbacks, and "pretty prose." If it is a gripping sharply-cut yarn you want—then this is not your cup of tea. This novel is a so-whater.

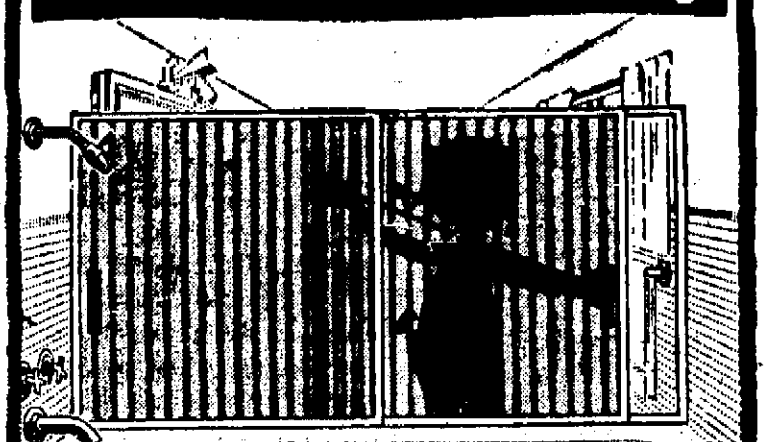

A STORY of the decline in power of the Indian in Washington Territory, and particularly of the Wanapums held to their own ancient ways long after the intrusion of the White Man by a medicine man called Smowhala, the Dreamer, is "Drummers and Dreamers" by Click Relander (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $6). This is a scholarly work which seems to fill several gaps in the history of the settling of the Northwest. Smowhala, the Prophet, and his nephew, Puck Hyah Toot, the last Prophet of the nearly extinct River People, the Wanapums, make intriguing reading for Westerners of the modern day.

ONLY THE SIMPLEST costumes and props, and no special lighting or scenery, are needed to produce in church, school or elsewhere the classical religious plays contained in "Great Christian Plays" (Seabury Press, $7.50). Ecellent editing is done by Theodore M. Switz and Robert A. Johnston. The plays are translated into modern English acting versions, and represent the best extant medieval dramas, including the ageless "Everyman." The text of each play is accompanied by an introduction to the background and characters, notes on props and staging, costume sketches and appropriate music. This book would seem appropriate for the library of any Christian church.

LITTLE REAL knowledge of the Japanese geisha has reached the western world. But the true position of the dedicated woman is demonstrated in "Three Geishas" by Kikou Yamata (Day, $3.50). Okichi is the first geisha and she was chosen to be a companion to the first American consul. She was soon scorned by her own people, but she later earned her place in history. Okoi married a fine actor, but she turned to a prime minister to further her country's cause. The last geisha still lives, and her great but tragic story is touching. So the "persons of art" are brought forward and presented with sympathy and drama.

WHAT TO DO with river-loving Grandpa Binkley when the new bridge does away with need for the services of his "faithful ferry" is the problem facing Andy in "Binkley's Bottleneck" — a children's story written and illustrated by Stella F. Rapaport (Putnam's, $2.50).

Mile-Deep City

By Bettie Payne Welles

A CASUAL visitor in Butte, Montana's famous copper camp, no doubt may think it is just like any other western city spreading under vast blue skies. Late model cars are parked at the curb, people walk casually along the sidewalks and shop in the stores. Life is normal.

But stop any citizen and ask him about Butte. He will offer a broad friendly smile and tell of his town's many attractions. He will relate that this metropolis is known as the "mile-deep" city. Underground mine levels and raises form a network of more than 2,200 miles, and there are over 5,000 miles of stope workings. For the uninformed, a stope working is an excavation underground for the removal of ore formed by mining from a block of ground.

At the western city limits is the Montana School of Mines. This school is part of the University of Montana, and has a museum with one of the finest mineral collections in the United States. The museum is open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. At the approach to the campus of the School of Mines is a statue of Marcus Daly made by the American sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens. To know the story of Marcus Daly is to know the history of Butte.

It was in the early 1870s that young and brilliant Marcus came from Virginia City, Nev., to manage the Alice Mine for a group of Salt Lake City bankers. He came in time to see the bonanza silver mining days of Butte on the wane, for the silver ore mined was of low grade. Every one in the camp was discouraged, and one by one families were leaving for better "diggin's." For a few years it looked as if Butte was destined to be another ghost town.

COPPER WAS discovered, but very little was known of this metal at that time. Its production was very expensive. It was shipped by sailing vessels around the Horn to the Atlantic Coast to the smelter. This took many months.

But the faith and courage of Marcus Daly saved the camp. He borrowed money and sank mine shafts. He blocked out ore when people said it could not be done. He persevered, refusing to admit defeat. Today he is credited with founding the vast copper industry in Montana, and making Butte the world's leading copper city.

In the years that followed, history records that great wealth poured into Butte from all corners of the earth. It became a city of contrasts. Fabulous fortunes were made and lost overnight. There were bitter quarrels and murders to settle disputes over mining claims. Court calendars of that era were filled for years with mining claims to control the bodies of ore underground and on the surface. All this is different today. The mines are consolidated and operated by the Anaconda Mining Company. Underground mines are connected for safety, drainage and ventilation. These factors give good up-to-date mining operations.

Butte serves her country in times of peace as well as in times of war. For example, her yearly production of copper, zinc, lead, and manganese reaches well into the hundreds of millions of pounds.

IN THE COURSE of conversation with Butte residents one may be told that a visit to a copper mine may be arranged. The Leonard Mine is usually the one used for guided tours for visitors during the day. It is located next to Meaderville, a lively little Italian settlement on the outskirts of the city on U. S. Hwy. 91.

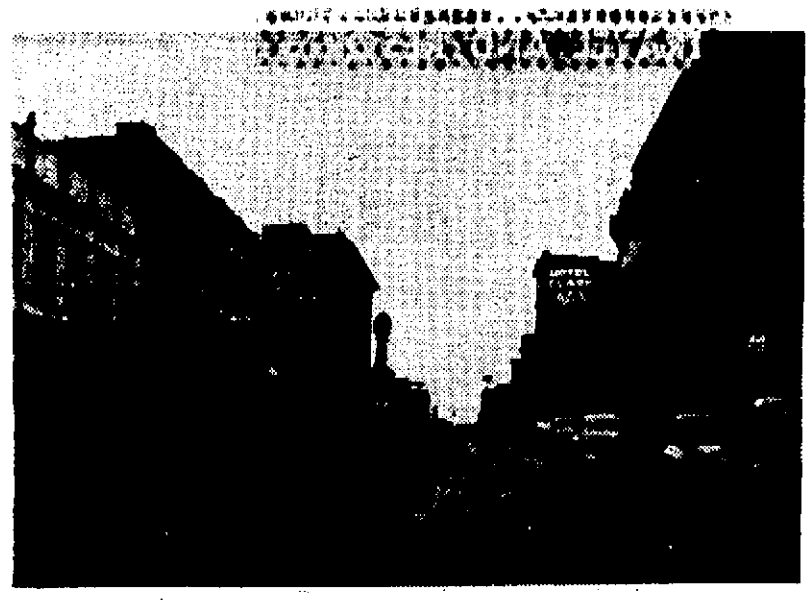

From the parking area of the Leonard, the view is dominated by copper mining. There are large flumes and launders, locally known as "copper tanks." They carry the mine water which is pumped from the high ore shaft on the hill. Years ago it was discovered that iron left in the water was replaced by copper precipitates, and today copper tanks yield 6,000,000 pounds of copper a year.

On the right are the Rarus, the Berkley and the Tramway mines, properties made famous in the rowdy early days of Butte's gaudy mining history. To the east are McQueen and East Butte, settlements made up of Central European people who have brought their language and their customs with them. Below these settlements are slag dumps from smeltering operations years ago when copper was "heap-roasted" in the open by igniting sulphur. All vegetation for miles around was killed by this method of smelting.

BREAKING THE SKYLINE to the west is the giant Anaconda stock. Marcus Daly selected Anaconda as a sight for this smelter because of the favorable water supply and the nearness to limestone sources. This is another trip of interest to add to the list of things to see in Butte.

ANOTHER COMMUNITY outside of the city limits of Butte is Centerville, a Cornish settlement where generations of Cornish miners have lived with their families. A common joke among local people is that in by-gone days on St. Patrick's Day the Cousin Jack Band used to lead the parade for the Irish because every Irishman insisted on being the bandleader.

One with extra time to spend in Butte will enjoy a trip to the Columbia Gardens, a popular recreation spot two miles east of the city and located at the foot of the Continental Divide.

This is Butte's Park St., looking west. The city is called "the copper capital"; mines support economy.

Tour of Europe

Norway, Sweden and Denmark will be three of the 14 countries visited by Lindskog's Annual Friendly Spring Tour of Europe when it departs next May 19 for 57 days. Sixteen days will be spent in these three countries during the midsummer eve season when there is no darkness, when flowers and trees are in bloom and the Scandinavians are celebrating the coming of summer.

The tour will feature the best in sightseeing, including magnificent drives by private motor coach along the Amalfi, Riviera, through Swiss Alps, the Dolomites, and along Sweden's Lakes Vattern and Vanern. There will be steamer trips down the Sogne Fjord in Norway. Other spots to be visited include Lake Lucern, the baron castles along the Rhine, and London Bridge, Heidelberg Castle, Four Musicians of Bremen Statue, Stoke Poges and Zeiderzee Dyk will bring back childhood memories. There will be gondola rides in Venice, the jaunting car rides around the Lakes of Killarney. Entertainment will include the Holland Music Festival, opera in Paris, Midsummer Eve festivities in Stockholm, Folies-Bergere in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf E. Lindskog, 15764 E. Lindskog Dr., Whittier, will accompany the group.

. . . Should we buy foreign money before we leave the United States or should we wait until we get to Europe?

MONEY is stiffening up all over the world in relation to the dollar. Even the asthmatic French franc doesn't gasp into the high exchange brackets any more. And those seedy street peddlers around the American Express and the Boulevard des Capucines in Paris have almost disappeared.

Geneva, Lisbon, Tangier are money markets. They deal in money like groceries. They are close to the European sources. They buy at the best price and sell competitively. You can't do better anywhere than buying in Switzerland.

However, many people don't go to Switzerland first. If you don't, buy at one of the American exchange houses. Nearly any bank will get you foreign exchange. But they won't cut the price quite as close as an exchange house.

Can you suggest some places in Honolulu for cocktails . . .

THE QUEEN'S SURF, the Surf Room at the Royal Hawaiian and the top deck of the Princess Kaiulani. The best drink is a Mai Tai as made at the Surf Room. Best music—Bill Akamuhou at the Royal Hawaiian and Alfred Apaka at the Hawaiian Village.

. . . and dinner?

THE WILLOWS beside a pond of carp. The Queen's Surf is excellent. Canlis is good. The Broiler is elegant and has very good food. Prices are about Stateside.

Local boys touted me on a place called "The Embers" as good and inexpensive. They don't serve liquor and local custom is to pick up a bottle of wine before you go and have it with the steak. The management expects it.

We know woolens are a good buy in London. What else would you buy there? Where?

TRY SIMPSON in Picadilly, Fortnum & Mason nearby, the Army & Navy Store, Liberty House in Regent Street for silks and woolens. Dunhill has a good shop for pipes. Daks skirts and Daks slacks are good at Simpson's. Burberry and Aquascutum are both good for topcoats, men's and women's. And Locke's is the fashionable place for men's hats.

For antique and modern silver, the silver vaults. Try Mall Deposit and Forwarding Company, Ltd., 10 St. Alban's Street, S. W. 1, or Chancery Lane Safe Deposit and Offices Company at 65 Chancery Lane, W. C. 2. These are show places worth a visit if you don't want to buy.

Nearly all stores have the "export scheme." Means you can buy without the heavy British purchase tax and have the things delivered to your plane or boat.

PET PARADE

Monkeys Are Fun

By Eleanor Avery Price

MONKEYS and their antics are fascinating, as any crowd watching simian antics will attest, and this fascination is the basis for the almost-obsession some people have for owning a monkey.

Often the start is made with a marmoset (which is not a true monkey but is a dainty and interesting little fellow nevertheless) and graduates up to the gibbon apes and chimpanzees.

A monkey is usually easy to train providing the pet has complete confidence in his owner and providing the owner remembers constantly that the monkey, in spite of the fact that he resembles a little person, is not human. Be patient at all times, scolding only when necessary and never teasing.

A monkey can be lots of fun to own and watch if loved and well cared for.

IT IS ALSO important that the monkey be rewarded with tidbits when he does things that please, but do not stuff him with peanuts as they will constipate him if consumed in too large quantities. Don't go overboard on the fruit, either.

The monkey's diet should consist mostly of bananas, nuts, whole wheat bread spread with a special liquid vitamin, white and sweet potatoes, carrots and leafy vegetables. Poached eggs, pablum, and milk are often relished. Watch his diet carefully so he will be odorless and easy to keep clean.

If you wish, you can dress the monkey in diapers and rubber pants with or without outer garments. Usually monkeys resent delicate, silky, stiff, or fluffy clothes but will submit to soft knitted outfits.

A monkey should have his own quarters, a sling to swing in, and a tree branch or two to clamber on. He needs to play games with his owner and be talked to by him.

AS WINTER APPROACHES and you think of your own comfort, pause a moment. Have you thought also to "winterize" your pet?

Have a comfortable shelter available for the cat or dog, one with a warm bed out of drafts and shielded from damp weather. Even a turtle needs a nice warm spot in which to snooze!

Step up the richness of the food in your pet's diet, and that includes birds. Be certain the right vitamins are given to help see your pet safely through cooler months without his developing some illness peculiar to this period. Fresh water must always be available, and it should be cool, not icy and not heated. Extreme temperatures in foods should be avoided.

Don't make any pet an "in-and-outer" in cold weather. Radical changes of staying outside for a few days, inside for another period and then outside again will have harmful efects. So plan now just where your pet is to spend most of his time during the next few months.

DON'T USE DDT on a cat for ticks. Dip a cotton-tipped applicator in turpentine and touch the tick's head where it enters the skin. The tick will release its hold and can be picked off with tweezers and dropped into turpentine or burned.

A CAT NEEDS its teeth cleaned twice a year to prevent pyorrhea, abcesses, loss of teeth. Even chronic stomach inflammation and kidney diseases have been traced to bad teeth.

HOW TO Cover a Cabinet Top with Linoleum, With Installation for Backsplash

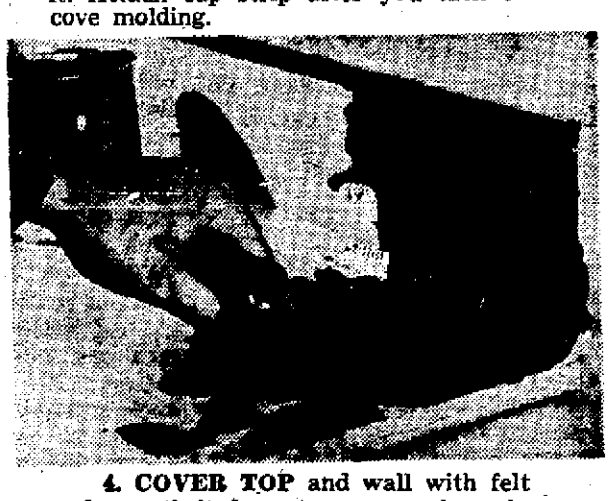

1. INSTALL COVE molding next to wall, if you'll have backsplash of linoleum, pictured here.

2. PREFIT FELT and linoleum to match dimensions of top and where it forms backsplash. Sharp jackknife or hawknosed linoleum knife cuts material quickly and easily. Felt should come just to bottom of cap strip—not over it. Attach cap strip after you tack on cove molding.

3. SPREAD LINOLEUM paste onto wall, molding, and top. A notched applicator, you can buy, distributes adhesive evenly. Work from back of the cabinet toward the front. This keeps your arms and your clothing from dragging through the fresh linoleum paste—easy to remove before it hardens.

4. COVER TOP and wall with felt and smooth it down to remove air pockets. After paste has set, apply second coat on felt, and place the linoleum. Slide material against wall, and seat top edge under edge of cap strip. Firm down rest of material, removing air-pockets. Weight till dry.

5. METAL EDGING strip goes on last. Fasten it along one end. When you come to a corner, preform metal by bending it with your hands. Be careful not to kink it. Special fittings are available for square corners, or you can miter this edging for a snug fit at square corners.

6. WITH A WOODEN block, finish molding metal around corners and fasten it to edges.

Survivor of age of reptiles, ginkgo is a stately tree. Leaves resemble those of the Maidenhair fern (inset).

Tree of a Lost World

By Gladys Diesing

LONG YEARS AGO in the age of the reptiles the ginkgo tree was a widely distributed tree in both the eastern and western hemispheres. The ice of the glacial epochs destroyed all of these trees except in China. There it survived and has been carried down to modern times through garden culture — it no longer is found growing wild even in China.

The unique fan-like shape of the leaves resembling the little leaflets of a maidenhair fern have given rise to the ginkgo's common name of Maidenhair tree. The tree itself, however, is not fern-like. Young trees often have the branches radiating in clusters, tier above tier, giving it a spirelike outline. When mature it is a stately tree whose shape is loosely pyramidal. The tree often is rather slow-growing, its rate of growth varying with its location, but will eventually reach a height of 70-80 feet or more. It is deciduous and in the autumn the leaves turn a golden yellow, persisting on the tree for a considerable time before falling to make a golden carpet upon the ground.

One should be sure to obtain a male tree for planting as the fruit of the female tree when it falls has a very disagreeable odor. It is from this fruit that the silver nuts of China and Japan are obtained, being the pure white kernel after the offensive pulp has been removed. The gingko tree is not particular as to soil and is practically pest free. Like other deciduous trees, the gingko is best planted when bare root during the winter.

Harvest Vegetables With Care

By Bob Gilmore

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that so many vegetable crops are ruined by improper handling at harvest time. Garden books usually devote whole chapters to planting, cultivating, spraying, irrigating and feeding, but are strangely silent on how and when to harvest.

The manner of harvesting lettuce is often determined by the variety or type. A head lettuce should be allowed to attain maximum size to guarantee the formation of a solid head. On the other hand, loose-leafed varieties such as the Simpson may be harvested as soon as the foliage becomes large enough. To insure maximum crispness, it is best to harvest just before serving. Don't remove the heads when wet.

SUMMER SQUASH grows very rapidly, and the bushes should be checked daily as they reach maturity. A zucchini squash seems to grow faster than almost any other comparable crop. Pick the individual squashes before the rind has a chance to harden. But the winter varieties, on the other hand, should not be harvested until the shell is quite hard. Harvest muskmelons when fully mature, but before the fruits separate from the vines. The mushy texture of melons results from their being left on the vines for too long a time.

Snap beans should be harvested before the pods have reached maximum size and while the seeds are still relatively small. Maturity of the seeds is usually accompanied by a tough and stringy texture of the pods. Lima beans should be gathered before the pods turn yellow and, as with snap beans, before the seeds reach their greatest size.

GENERALLY speaking, most vegetables will be more tender if picked when comparatively young. The methods utilized by commercial growers may prove quite distinct from what you practice at home. That is because farmers must ship their crops a long distance to market; the home grower, however, probably eats the crop immediately after harvesting it.

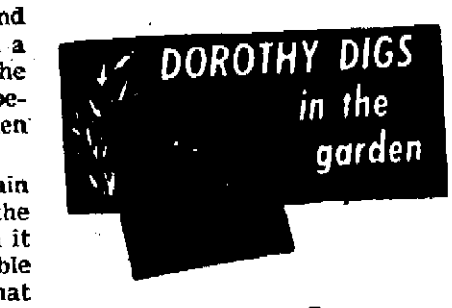

Radishes may be pulled sooner than any other vegetable because they grow so much faster. You can enjoy mature radishes just three weeks after planting. It is advisable to delay harvesting until the crop has attained the ideal size, and this may be determined by consulting a reliable seed catalog. Radishes turn pithy quite soon after reaching maturity.

GREEN ONIONS may also be pulled when quite small. Dry onions, on the other hand, should not be dug until the tops have died down. After picking them, they should be dried in the sun. Line the bulbs up so that the tops of one row cover those in each succeeding row. This prevents sunburn.

When cutting celery, make the cut below the surface, thus leaving a section of the root attached. An extremely sharp knife is required for proper harvesting of celery. After washing the celery, it should immediately be placed in a refrigerator. This crop is extremely susceptible to decay unless stored at low temperatures.

Correct harvesting procedures preserve flavor and nutrition in vegetables.

By Dorothy Jonson

Wooly aphis is a cottony substance sometimes found in the crotches of plants such as pyracantha and it is really an enemy with two armies. (1) The "aerial" force, which is seen on the plant, and (2) the "subterranean" force, which you find around the roots.

When spraying the plant for wooly aphis, use considerable force to break the cottony protective covering. But eradicating it from the plant itself will not do too much good unless you eliminate it from the roots also by distinfecting the soil with an ether product.

Long ago, wood ashes were recommended as a control for wooly aphis. Regardless of new and modern products, if you have a fireplace where you burn logs, I suggest that you save the ashes and scatter them occasionally throughout the winter and early spring months in the root growing area around your fruit trees. Wood ashes constitute a simple, natural control for these subterranean enemies in the soil.

Nemesis of Gophers

—Author's Photo

A sweetly scented flower proved to be fatal undoing of this gopher. The flower lured the animal into the trap.

By Grace Killam

THE CALIFORNIA pocket gopher is just as big a pest in Long Beach as it is proportionately in the whole state of California. He works like the little bulldozer that he is, taking every bit of vegetation above his underground labyrinths, regardless of what a gardener may have paid for a prize plant.

Each gopher burrows out a small system of dry tunnels for its home. The twisting runways are dug with a ceiling to be just a fit for one gopher. Only one gopher lives in one labyrinthian unit at a time, but the young stay on with mother gopher until they are able to go out on their own. If by luck one of these prospectors finds an unoccupied subway, it immediately takes it over for an apartment to start a family of its own.

THE BROOD NEST is just a wide place in the lowest spot below ground level. Each brood consists of from two to 13 new little pests. They multiply as rapidly as guinea pigs.

Trapping is the most approved method of ridding a place of gophers, in the long run. Occasionally, one can be flooded out of its dry canal by running a garden hose into an open hole and turning the water on full blast. When the gopher comes out burbling for breath, he can be killed. Another method is to attach a hose to the exhaust pipe of the family car and insert the other end into the gopher hole, then race the engine at full speed. Monoxide gas does the trick.

SEVERAL TYPES of gopher traps are on the market and are probably more efficient, less costly and less wasteful of water and gasoline than the hose or car. Gopher runways must be opened to accommodate the trap, which must be matched to the hole, and sacking or shrubbery should be used for covering, allowing only a tiny aperture for light to draw the gopher into the trap. Gophers are good housekeepers and stray soil should be removed if it falls into the runway. They also are possessed of a keen sense of smell and no trace of human scent should be permitted on either trap or bait. A bit of fresh carrot or a scented flower can be used to tempt the little marauder into the trap.

Should the scent of the trapper's hands alarm the gopher, the animal will carefully push dirt into the trap, packing it tightly, and the quarry will fill a section of runway and withdraw to safety.

POISONED BAITS are also available at nurseries but must be placed in the runways carefully to prevent human scent from alarming the gopher. Covering should be placed, leaving only a tiny ray of light to bring the gopher to inquire about the open door to the burrow.

The pocket gopher is named for the fur lined pockets in its cheeks. The animal eats around the circumference of each runway, packs the surplus into its cheeks to be carried underground for later eating or feeding to the young. When the food harvest has been completed, the opening is filled to prevent the entry of enemies.

Tips on Gardening

TIPS FOR THIS WEEK . . . If you have dark spots in your garden that require highlighting, then plant one of the following: Cyclamen, cinerarias, primulas and bedding begonias. The latter bloom intermittently throughout the entire year.

New crop gladiolus bulbs or corms should be planted. Bulbs planted last spring or early this summer should be ready for digging. They should not be replanted immediately, but should be given a rest period.

Begonia tubers may now be lifted as the tops have probably died down fairly completely. Store them in a cool place until planting time next February.

Discarded beads, costume jewelry are decorations for perfume, cologne bottles in hands of Mrs. Verl Onken.

Gems on Her Bottles

By Ellen Saunders

SOME WOMEN can discard a few loose beads, a broken brooch or a solitary earring without a moment's regret. But Mrs. Verl Onken, 1740 Erie St., prefers to use her old jewelry to transform ordinary perfume or cologne bottles into shimmering bits of golden glitter.

"It's an ideal hobby," says Mrs. Onken.

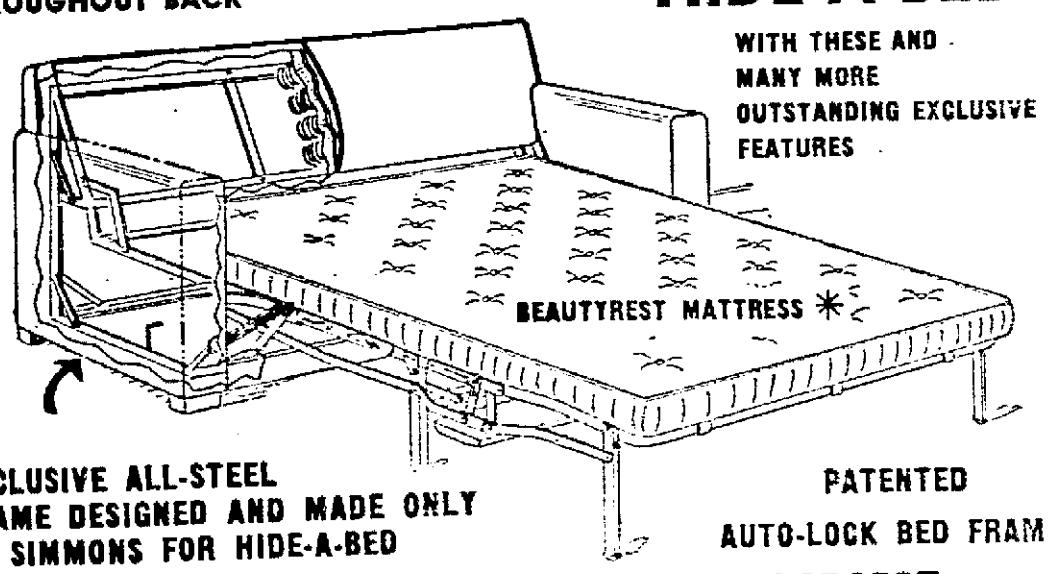

Decorating bottles with jewels is by no means a new art. What makes Mrs. Onken's hobby different is that she utilizes whole pieces of jewelry as well as individual stones.

A SMALL BROOCH, a cameo, a large jeweled button or a clasp earring, the back of which has been clipped off, is cemented to the bottle and becomes the focal point of interest around which the decorative design is planned.

To decorate more than 200 bottles without duplicating any design calls for imaginative use of color and materials. Beads of every size and shape, rhinestones, sequins and even seashells are utilized.

Stamp Meet Set

A LAVISH LUAU—featuring cuisine and entertainment authentic enough to delight the most discriminating Hawaiian royalty — will be held Tuesday night at The Hawaiian, 4645 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., a restaurant dedicated to bringing the romance of the islands to Long Beach.

Approximately 350 persons will attend the feast, sitting on the floor in true island fashion and eating exotic foods with their fingers. As an additional fillip, the colorful proceedings will be televised by a Los Angeles station. (We can't mention the time or identify the station because it's a secret.)

The evening will start with a cocktail hour at 6 o'clock. As each guest arrives, he will be given a flower lei and a glass of tropical punch. The feasting will start about 8, and will include the following delicacies: Hawaiian luau pork (barbecued); chicken and long rice, kona yam, baked Hawaiian bananas with coconut chips; lomi salmon (marinated) and poi; banana bread and haupia (frozen coconut pudding). In addition, the long low tables will contain platters of fresh pineapple and papaya.

ENTERTAINMENT will be provided by the Al McIntire Trio. The show, which will start at 9, will be Polynesian in theme and will feature performances by five singers and dancers.

The price will be $7.50 per person. The event will be open to the public, but by reservation only.

Plans for the elaborate affair were worked out in detail by the late Al Mack, owner of The Hawaiian, who opened the beautiful restaurant in July, 1955. His plans have been carried to completion by his wife, Thelma; Bob San Jose, restaurant manager and greeter, and Wally Miller, assistant to Mrs. Mack.

The Hawaiian is open daily, serving American and Cantonese dinners and tropical drinks. Buffet luncheons are served Monday through Friday starting at 11:30 a.m.—TEDD THOMEY

FUMES OVERCOME 15 AT FIRE

$170,000 Damage in 2 Blazes

Fourteen firemen and one police officer were overcome by chemical fumes while fighting an industrial fire in Vernon Saturday afternoon.

Physicians at St. Francis Hospital, Lynwood, said the condition of the men ranged from fair to good. The victims, many of whom reside in communities near Long Beach, were to be held in the hospital overnight for observation.

• • • •

THE FIRE occurred at the Pacific Vegetable Oil Corp., 3135 E. 26th St., Vernon. Flames destroyed the plant's main laboratory and damaged inter-connecting structures.

Damage was estimated at 20 thousand dollars. Origin of the blaze was not known.

Firemen hospitalized included Eugene Henry, 39, of 13601 Klondyke, Paramount; Finnie Terry, 30, of 12507 Maldstone, Norwalk; Donald Curran, 23, of 10502 Cheddar, Norwalk; Nick Jurovick, 29, of 7230 Hannon St., Downey; Lloyd Graham, 30, of 14707 Starpath, Whittier; James Stanley, 23, of 4714 Declane, Torrance.

Jay Chapanar, 27, of 8048 San Juan St., South Gate; Thomas J. Lara, 42, of 5361 Aldrich Rd., South Gate; Jack Looper, 41, of Huntington Park; Joseph W. Blaut, 27, of Huntington Park; Thomas Garner, 31, of Huntington Park; Donald Collette, 40, of Los Angeles; Jack Anderson, 24, of Los Angeles; and Donald Melker, 26, of Los Angeles.

Also hospitalized was Vernon police officer Orbrey Duke, 26, of 8110B Commercial Pl., South Gate.

• • • •

VERNON FIRE CHIEF L. C. Husted, of Maywood, although not overcome by fumes at the scene, went to St. Francis Hospital Saturday evening for observation.

The chemical fumes were from "acids and bases" used by the company in the routine analysis of their products, Don Jordan, a salesman for the firm, said.

Jordan said a list of all the chemicals that were in the lab had been given to hospital physicians.

The fire was the second major blaze in the Vernon community within an hour. Firemen were on their way back to the station after extinguishing flames at the H. Levine Cooperage Co., 5400 S. Soto St., when they were redirected to the vegetable oil company.

• • • •

THE EARLIER fire caused an estimated $150,000 damage to a barrel factory.

Company officials said the blaze started when Donald Whitaker of Bell accidentally sprayed a hot light bulb with paint thinner.

U.N. Continues Buildup in Egypt

CAIRO (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold plunged into another round of talks with President Nasser Saturday night on the role of U.N. police in the tense Middle East. There was no hint Egypt was retreating from its stand that the police must keep hands off the Suez Canal and concentrate on guarding the old armistice line between Israel and Egypt.

(Israel reported an Egyptian patrol began probing Israeli positions in the Sinai Desert near the canal Saturday. An Israeli army spokesman said five Egyptians were killed and one wounded in a clash 18 miles east of Ismailia, midpoint on the canal.)

• • • •

BEFORE PREPARING to head back to New York Sunday, Hammarskjold had a long talk with Nasser and later dined with him. He had a three-hour conference with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi earlier.

It appeared a great deal of talking had to be done before complete understanding could be reached on the function of the force.

The Egyptian position, reiterated daily by press and radio, is that the U.N. force is here only to oversee the speedy withdrawal of British, French and Israeli forces from the territory they occupied in the recent attacks.

After that, the Egyptians intend that the U.N. forces take up positions along a line separating Israel from its conquests in the Gaza strip and the Sinai Peninsula.

France and Britain demand that the U.N. police take over the canal as a condition for withdrawal of their armed forces.

Russ Blast Confirmed by AEC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday night it had "detected an explosion in Soviet territory within the range of magnitude of their previous nuclear detonations."

The statement came from AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, apparently confirming the nuclear test reported earlier Saturday by the Russians.

Strauss said the new nuclear test was detected Saturday.

Strauss said there would be no amplification and no further comment from the AEC beyond his brief announcement.

The Soviet government announced the Russians exploded a nuclear weapon successfully in a test at a great altitude within the Soviet Union.

Disclosure of this latest in a series of Soviet test blasts came in a statement issued by the news agency Tass and broadcast by the Moscow Radio:

"On 17th November, 1956, a nuclear weapon test was carried out in the Soviet Union.

"The explosion was carried out at a great altitude.

"The test was successful."

The world was left in the dark as to whether a hydrogen or atom weapon was involved.

The wording of the announcement gave the impression the weapon was dropped from a plane or carried aloft by rocket.

President Calls for Careful Analysis of Bulganin's Message

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower ordered Saturday a careful study of Russia's new disarmament proposals.

The aim is to determine whether they offer any fresh openings for negotiations which could end the East-West arms race and bring the threat of a hydrogen war under the control of a global disarmament program.

The State Department received from Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen in Moscow the text of a declaration disclosed in the Russian capital early Saturday. It was understood to have been accompanied by a message from Premier Bulganin to Eisenhower asking for its consideration here. Moscow reported that similar messages were sent to the prime ministers of Britain, France, India and Communist China.

• • • •

BULGANIN CALLED for a new summit meeting of the Big Four powers plus India, but not including Red China. He offered to discuss Eisenhower's "Open Skies" inspection plan which he had previously rejected as being more likely to produce new dangers of conflict than to promote the disarmament agreement.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that "as soon as the complete text is received, it will be carefully studied." At the time he spoke, the text was being received at the State Department.

• • • •

EISENHOWER discussed the subject with Secretary of State Dulles when he visited Dulles at Walter Reed Hospital. The President's special assistant on disarmament matters, Harold Stassen, called a meeting of State, Defense and other U.S. government experts later in the day to

Fire Wrecks Restaurant at Newport

The Castaways restaurant, famous landmark overlooking Newport Harbor, was destroyed early Saturday morning by fire.

The Newport Beach Fire Dept. said estimated damage was up to $50,000. Four engine companies and volunteers—a total of 44 men—fought the blaze that broke out at 4:39 a. m. Firemen had to roll hose up a steep hill to get to the fire.

Cause of the blaze was unknown. Frank H. Coburn, operator of club, built in 1913, said the whole building seem to explode.

PT&T and Union Still Bargaining

Bargaining between communications union negotiators and representatives of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. continued after midnight Saturday.

A contract extension between the two expired at midnight and there were chances of a general strike which would shut down all but emergency phones. The company serves many communities near Long Beach.

Convict Has Self Shipped Out in Box

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Authorities were looking Saturday for a "hot" package shipped out of the state prison here. It's contents: a freedom-minded prisoner.

Prison officials said Harry Koch, 24, apparently had an accomplice fasten him into a cardboard box that was part of a shipment from the prison's book bindery. The shipment reached the State Schoolbook Commission one box short, and the escape was discovered.

Koch apparently was making good a notation on his record at the prison: "repeated outrageous conduct."

Crisis in Lebanon

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Informed sources here said Saturday Lebanon's President Camille Chamoun is facing unusual difficulties in solving a cabinet crisis.

Calif. May Be Bigger Than N.Y. by 1965

WASHINGTON (AP) — California, the nation's second most populous state, may take over first place from New York by 1965, the Census Bureau said Saturday.

New estimates by the bureau figured that California's population leaped upward by 2,846,000 between 1950 and last July 1. This was 1,481,969 more than the gain of 1,365,000 credited to New York state in that period.

Thus, census said, the gap between these two biggest states has been narrowed from 4,243,969 in 1950 to 2,762,000 on July 1 this year. As of that date California's population was set at 13,433,000 compared with 16,195,000 for New York. In 1950 California had 10,586,223 against New York's 14,830,192.

Census said a projection of gains, based on present factors of increase, indicate California may overtake New York in less than 10 years. California's gain was 26.9 per cent since 1950 against 9.2 per cent for New York.

Although these two led numerically in gains the last six years, both had to bow to Nevada, the smallest state, and to Arizona and Florida in percentage incerases.

Nevada's population jumped from 16,083 in 1950 to an estimated 247,000 last July 1—a gain of 87,000 or 54.6 per cent.

Arizona's gain was 41 per cent with its population growing 308,000 from 749,587 in 1950 to 1,057,000 this year.

Hawkeye President Dr. Hancher Stricken

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Dr. Virgil M. Hancher, 60, president of the State University of Iowa, suffered a mild heart attack after watching the Iowa-Ohio State football game here Saturday.

J. R. Jordan, director of the university's Information Service, said Dr. Hancher's condition was considered to be good Saturday night. He was taken to University Hospital.

THREE KILLED, 3 PLANES BURN

Two B47s Struck by Landing Fighter

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A jet fighter plane, whose pilot apparently mistook a taxiway ramp for the runway which parallels it, rammed into two parked B47 jet bombers at the Lincoln Air Force Base Saturday night.

The fighter pilot and two others were killed, seven airmen were injured and all three aircraft, worth nearly six million dollars, were destroyed.

Jet fuel from the aircraft burst into flames immediately and billowing flames vaulted high into the sky.

The two dead ground crewmen and the seven injured were working around the B47 and apparently refueling them. All suffered burns.

• • • •

TWO WERE reported in serious condition at the Lincoln Veterans' Hospital. Two others were hospitalized at the base with minor burns and three were treated for superficial burns and released.

The F80 fighter pilot killed was identified as 2nd Lt. Robert L. Young of Lincoln, a member of the Nebraska Air National Guard.

All available Lincoln fire fighters joined base personnel in preventing spread of the flames and in less than two hours, the fire was reported totally under control.

The fighter plane, belonging to the Nebraska National Guard, had been shooting landings on a north-south runway and was coming in for a landing when it veered off the runway and struck the bombers, which are valued at about 2½ million dollars apiece.

• • • •

INVESTIGATORS, after checking skid marks, concluded the jet fighter pilot mistook the taxiway ramp for the runway which parallels it, 300 to 400 feet away.

The bombers were the only planes parked on the ramp at the time. The F80 bounced off one, travelled about 100 yards and then hit the second.

The bombers reportedly carried ammunition and fire fighters worked cautiously.

East Tieup May Hit L.B. Port

Thirty-two ships may be tied up in Long Beach-Los Angeles harbors Monday when the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union starts a 24-hour work stoppage on the West Coast.

The stop-work meetings were announced as sessions to discuss current negotiations on the ILWU-Pacific Maritime Assn. contract. However, there were reports from San Francisco that the meetings will determine whether the ILWU will join the strike of longshoremen in the East.

• • • •

MARINE EXCHANGE spokesmen said there were 20 ships in the two harbors Saturday and another 12 are due to arrive today.

Longshoremen Friday began boycotting ships coming from or going to the East or Gulf ports. Seven vessels were hit by the boycott in the L.B.-L.A. harbors.

• • • •

NATE DeBIASI, vice president of the local union, said the ban would not affect the handling of Army or Navy cargoes.

The PMA, organization of shippers declared the boycott was a contract violation. The dispute is scheduled to go before Arbiter Sam Kagel Monday.

Members of the local longshoremen's union will meet at the union hall, 231 W. C St., Wilmington Monday.

CLOSE ONES

Beavers, Iowa Set for Roses

Iowa and Oregon State virtually wrote their tickets to the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day as the Hawkeyes defeated favored Ohio State in a Big Ten game Saturday, 6-0, and the Beavers squeaked past stubborn Idaho, 14-10, in a Pacific Coast Conference game.

Oregon State can make it to the Bowl regardless of its outcome with Oregon next Thursday. Iowa, which has finished its conference schedule with a 6-1 record, is "in" except for the formality of voting.

Upsets again were paramount across the nation. SC fell to Oregon, 7-0, Washington swamped Stanford, 34-13, and Minnesota topped Michigan State, 14-13. Details of these and other games in Sports Section, pages B-1 through B-6.

Reds Defied by 40,000 Hungarians

BUDAPEST (AP) — Nearly 40,000 workers of the huge Csepel iron and steel works defied their leaders Saturday, ignored government appeals to return to their jobs, and continued their strike.

The plant on an island in the Danube was crowded with workmen. They stood around in groups without even changing into their work clothes.

The mood of the workers was desperate, bitter and firm.

"We know our decisions mean misery for us," one said, "but we can't work under the shadow of Russian bayonets.

"We are sticking to our demands 99 per cent and the rest (1 per cent) are working for the AVH (secret police.)"

(Reports in Vienna said the Hungarian government had imposed harsh food and electricity controls to force an end to a paralyzing general strike.

(Budapest broadcasts also said some labor leaders had urged a return to work.)

Members of the plant's workers' council (leaders) were more cautious in their comments.

They said, however, they were embarrassed by Russian deportations of Hungarians.

A council member said the council is investigating all reports of deportations. He added the Russian commander at Csepel has denied they were taking place.

(There have been widespread reports the Russians are shipping youth leaders of the uprising to the Soviet Union in sealed railway cars via Romania.)

Private Eye Arrested in $20,000 Bilk

A Compton private detective has been arrested in Las Vegas, Nev., in connection with a money-order forgery ring that has bilked Bank of America branches in Southern California of more than $20,000.

Simon E. Singley, 25, who, arresting officers said, was a private detective, was booked with two men and two women for investigation of being fugitives.

The others are Wayne C. Stafford, 34; Eleanor Villa, 42, Amos Green, 31, and his wife, Retta, 23.

B. J. Hanlon, chief of detectives of the Las Vegas police department, said he believed the quintet had operated by buying bank money orders and then raising the amounts before cashing.

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said Saturday night the Canadian contingent of the U. N. Middle East force will not sail today as planned.

Smoke Baffles 200 Firemen, Overcomes 24

CLEVELAND (AP) — A basement full of smoke thwarted 200 firemen—overcoming at least 24 of them—and tied up downtown Cleveland for more than three hours Saturday night.

Thousands of Saturday-night theatergoers stood behind fire lines that blocked Euclid Ave. from Public Square to Ninth Street as the firemen tried to reach the source of the smoke in the basement of a women's clothing store.

Moon, Earth Put On Last Show of 1950s

Nature pulled the switch on the moon Saturday night for 1 hour and 19 minutes.

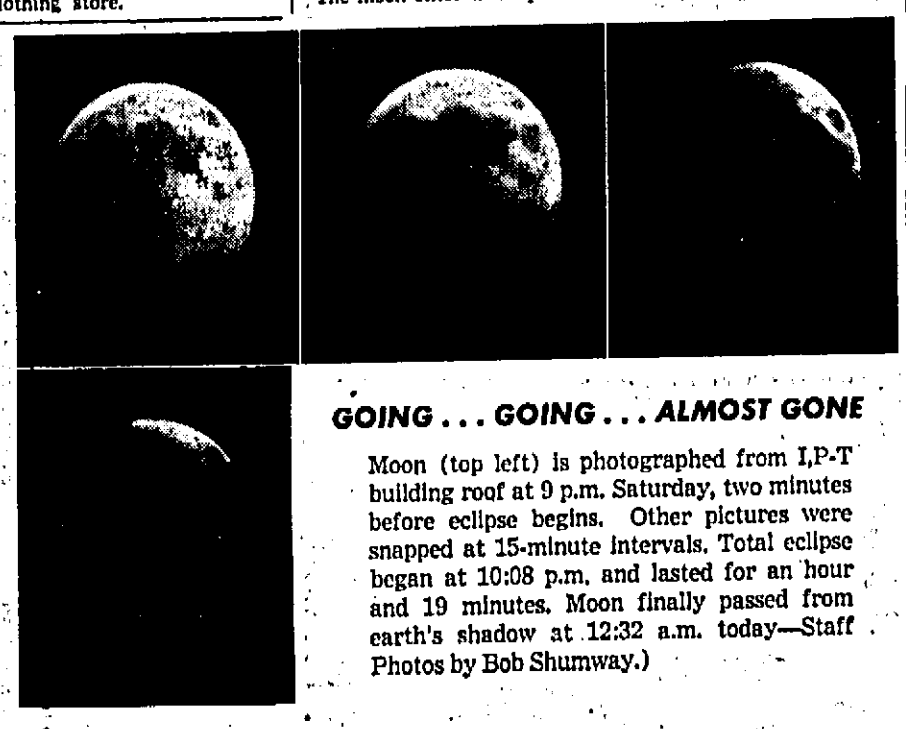

Passing into the earth's shadow, the moon was in total eclipse from 10:08 to 11:27 p.m.

The eclipse was visible throughout the United States as well as many other parts of the world.

The moon entered the penumbra—the earth's faint outer shadow—at 7:59 p.m. It entered the umbra—the complete shadow—at 9:02 p.m., with totality achieved at 10:08 p.m.

At 12:32 a.m. today the moon had passed beyond the earth's shadow.

Another lunar eclipse won't be visible in this country until 1960.

L.A.C. Says: A One-Man Business

A number of books and moving pictures have recently pictured the modern corporation executive as a harassed, neurotic and often confused cog in our free enterprise system. Unfortunately, there is much truth in the picture so vividly drawn in some of these books. In particular is it true of the maneuvering within the executive groups nearing the top of the ladder in individual corporations. As the number of eligible "presidents" is narrowed down to a few vice presidents or department heads the strain becomes intense and sometimes the whole enterprise is endangered by the warring factions.

The book and film, "Executive Suite," tells of how one large manufacturing company had been built into a strong organization through the drive and ability of its president. He had brought about mergers and had become a dominant factor in the entire industry. But at age 56—amid plans for further financing—he dropped dead. He had not announced who should succeed him. There were four vice presidents who immediately started pulling strings in an endeavor to be appointed president.

In the book it all works out well because the natural person was chosen after complete confusion. But in actual practice many corporations and privately owned enterprises are endangered because there has been no individual trained to take over responsibilities if the head of the firm is suddenly taken away. The trouble in such organizations is that one man insists on making all decisions. In many cases he is so bigoted he thinks no one can take his place, so why try a successor? But in other cases it simply means the head man is not capable of training good executives or delegating authority.

This is important to stockholders of a corporation. It is even more important to a family dependent on the income of a family business. Who will be in command if the present commander is dead? The armed forces must be prepared for such emergencies. The result is officers many ranks down the line are prepared to step up in any emergency. But many businessmen seem to think they will never have such an emergency.

Workers who envy those who direct them from upstairs might not be so envious if they realized the tense game played for survival by factions in most large corporations. We recently asked one executive—near the top of a large eastern corporation—if it was true that so much politics existed in companies. His answer was. "You just wouldn't believe all the things that go on in this organization."

It would be wise for investors to know how corporations operate before entrusting their money to them. Most of the older and successful corporations have early retirement ages which means new men are constantly moving up. But where a business is dependent on the personality, ability and health of one man, it would be wise to ask just what happens if he is taken away. A one-man business is a dangerous place to have investments.—L.A.C.

Ike Orders Studies of Russian Offers

begin work on the lengthy document.

The officials sought to determine whether it held new hope of breaking the long deadlock in disarmament negotiations between East and West and producing agreement on some concrete steps for reversing the trend in armament build-up.

It was considered certain that at an early stage of the study the United States would consult with Britain and France and eventually with all its NATO allies on the meaning of the Russian offer.

Initially, officials here were inclined to regard the declaration as being in part a new Soviet maneuver to divert attention from Russia's troubles—the unrest in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe and particularly the ruthless use of Soviet military power to crush the revolution against Communist rule in Hungary.

But none would rule out the possibility that at a time when so much of the world is in turmoil and Russia's own collective leadership is believed to be engaged in bitter internal dispute over high policy, the Moscow government might have opened the way for profitable re-examination of the disarmament issue.

* * * *

AT THE SAME time, there was no apparent tendency here to rush into quick agreement on a summit conference. Only a few days ago President Eisenhower turned down a bid from Switzerland for a meeting of the Big Four powers and India. He said peace efforts were now concentrated in the United Nations which offered the best hope for a solution of current problems. The United States has been backing the U.N. in efforts to deal with both the Middle East and Hungarian crises.

Russia's announcement of a high-altitude, nuclear-weapon explosion Saturday appeared to have no direct relationship to the disclosure of the disarmament declaration a few hours earlier. However, the timing may have been designed to remind the world in a dramatic manner that Russia is an atomic power.

A French spokesman said his delegation must study the text but "we don't think there's much new."

A Nationalist Chinese delegate said "no doubt it's just a propaganda move." He remarked that the Russians were just "repeating the same old ideas."

* * * *

AN AUSTRIAN spokesman suggested that the Soviet Union was bringing out the scheme to divert attention from its action in suppressing the Hungarian revolt.

These new elements were noted in the Russian proposals:

1. An expressed willingness to consider a modification of President Eisenhower's aerial inspection plan. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the U. N. Disarmament Commission last July the plan was aimed to divert public attention from "the real tasks" in disarmament.

2. The final ceiling of 1½ million men each proposed for the armed forces of Russia, the United States and Communist China; Gromyko spoke of 1-1½ million.

3. The final ceiling of 100,000-150,000 men for Britain and France; Gromyko proposed 150,000-200,000.

4. The idea of cutting down British, French and U. S. forces in Germany gradually, with a third of them to go next year; Gromyko said last July that Russia called "now for the withdrawal of all troops from Germany."

The Soviet proposal for a ban on nuclear weapons is an old one.

U.N. Delegates See Little New in Offer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Delegates Saturday professed to see little news in the latest Soviet disarmament plan. Some called it propaganda.

But it gave the U. N. something fresh to work on in its disarmament efforts. Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov was expected to discuss it fully in a policy speech to the General Assembly Tuesday.

A U. S. delegation spokesman referred queries to Washington.

Huge Boulder Falls on Car, Kills Motorist

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A huge boulder crashed onto an automobile which had plunged off an icy stretch of a mountain highway about 54 miles east of here Saturday, killing a Sacramento man.

His wife and two small children watched in horror as the 250-pound rock crushed Robert F. Gray.

Mrs. Jacqualyn Gray and the children, Sharon 4, and Richard 8, suffered only slight bruises. They had just left the car after it hurtled down a 50-foot embankment. Gray was pinned inside and was trying to free himself when the boulder struck.

Leslie Peake, Clackamas County coroner, said Mrs. Gray told him she was driving the car when it started to slide and that her husband reached over and swerved the wheel, causing it to leave Highway 50.

The accident happened about seven miles east of the Mt. Hood ski resort government camp.

Mrs. Gray and the children were brought to a hospital here.

Limit on A-Weapon Development Urged

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas Saturday said there must be "some limitation" on the development of atomic weapons for the nation's economy might be bled white and our defenses unbalanced.

He called on the U.S. to "avoid excess" in building up atomic power because a large nuclear war was not as likely as local conflicts.

In another speech, to the Navy League meeting here, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, indicated the Middle East situation and worldwide commitments call for an expansion of the Navy.

Secretary Thomas said he did not personally feel we would have an atomic war, but admitted the nation must have "adequate capability" to prevent or win such a war.

Burke said that Middle East troubles "may take years to settle." He said that the Navy is America's major instrument of power in the Mediterranean.

With stepped-up Navy commitments in that and other areas, Burke said, the Navy faces a need for more men and more ships in commission.

Both Thomas and Capt. John Sidney McCain, head of the Navy's underwater research, agreed that Russian possession of 400 submarines to this country's 110 is far less important than those figures would indicate.

Dockers, Shippers Far Apart

NEW YORK (UP) — Federal mediators failed Saturday to win a settlement of the $20-million-a-day dock strike that has tied up nearly 200 ships from Maine to Texas. A union spokesman said labor and management were "farther apart than ever before."

A mediation session that lasted only one hour and 25 minutes broke up with Louis Waldman, attorney for the striking International Longshoremen's Association declaring:

"It was the worst session we've had since we began bargaining. As of this moment, the union and employers are farther apart than ever before."

Union President Capt. William V. Bradley said, "We went backwards instead of forward." A spokesman for the shippers said he did not think there could be a settlement by Monday.

* * * *

WALDMAN SAID a wage "package" offered by management was "an insult."

Alexander Chopin, speaking for the employers, charged the union has been insisting on "very unrealistic economic issues" and would continue to do so until a settlement is reached on the question of industry-wide bargaining.

U.N. Continues to Build Up Force in Egypt

French nationals under virtual house arrest and a newspaper demand for war crimes trials and reparations.

The one hopeful sign was the fact that the buildup of U.N. police forces on Egyptian soil was moving ahead.

The fact that Egypt has consented to this buildup and is cooperating with the incoming forces provided some optimism.

• • • •

A U.N. SPOKESMAN at the Capodichino staging area in Italy announced Hammarskjold would take a plane for Rome today and fly on tonight to New York. Among the advisers available in New York for consultation is Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of the police force who is to take over the field command next week.

Western Europe is already feeling the pinch of the canal's closing. With that big artery for the movement of Middle East oil blocked, several governments are cutting back on gasoline consumption. Egypt insists the British and French must get out before anything is done to reopen the canal.

• • • •

YUGOSLAVIA, the first communist nation to send in police troops, also sent Egypt two tons of medical supplies. The Egyptian Middle East News Agency said the supplies would be rushed immediately to Ismailia for shipment to Port Said.

British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden told the House of Commons that the Anglo-French Suez occupation was proper, "however drastic and unpopular."

PORT SAID, Egypt (UP) — More than 300 foreign civilians fled Port Said Saturday while Anglo-French troops tightened security arrangements in this captured city.

Some 250 Italians, 30 Greeks, eight Germans and 24 stateless persons sailed aboard the liner Ascania for Naples.

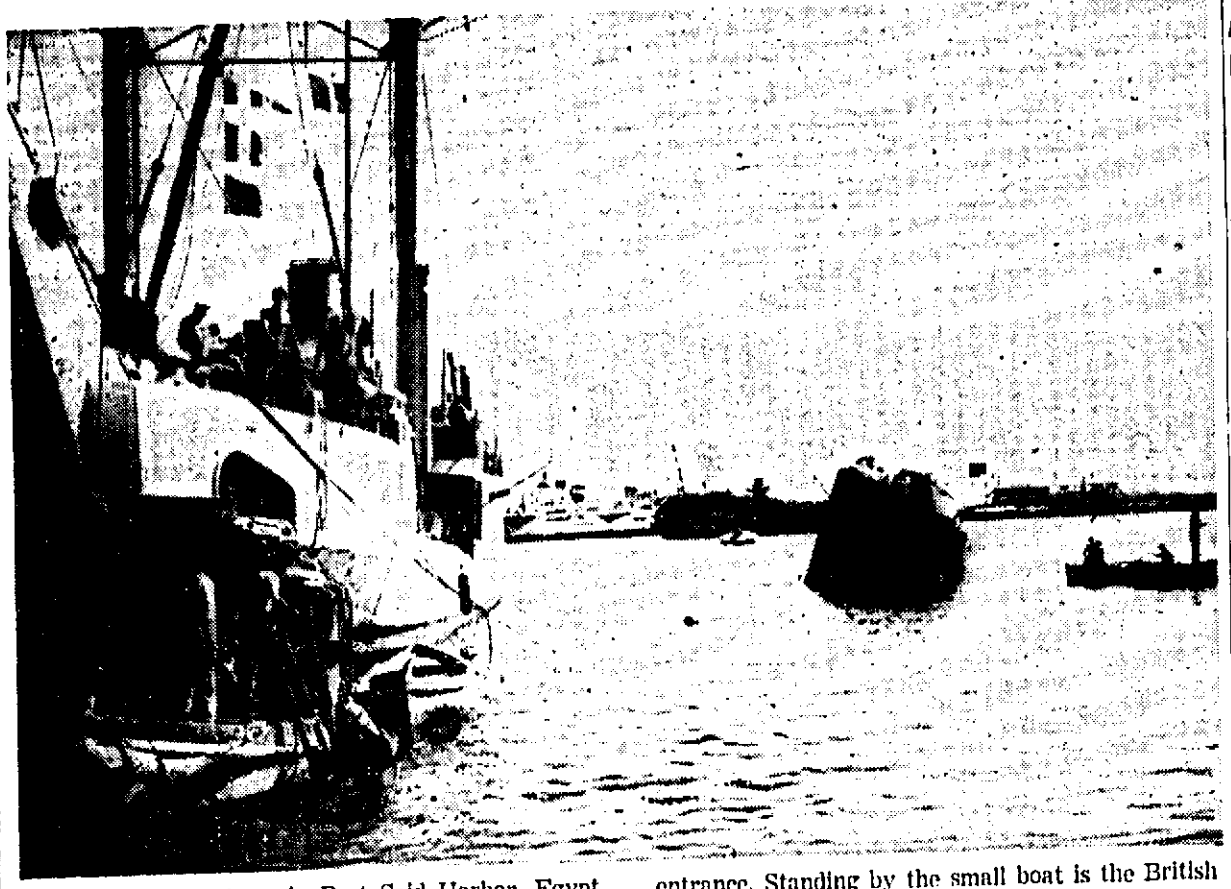

The Italians, all born in Italy, left behind some 1,300 countrymen who either were born in Egypt or had lived here many years and were unwilling to give up their homes.

THE ANGLO-FRENCH authorities here simultaneously announced tighter security regulations in the face of a passive resistance campaign carried on by the natives.

Consternation was aroused among foreign civilians by the official announcement that Port Said's former Egyptian police chief, Col. Hussen Roushdi, had escaped to Cairo. Roushdi had taken over the police command under the Anglo-French authorities.

A British spokesman said it was believd Roushdi set up the organization which has been threatening natives with death if they cooperate with the Anglo-French military authorities.

Press Corps in Vienna Enjoying Excellent Food, Genuine Music

By MARIE and WALTER T. RIDDER
(I.P-T Capital Bureau)

The Hotel Bristol, situated on Vienna's famous Ring has been a kind of informal headquarters for the American press during the Hungarian fracas. It is therefore the fount of more rumors, confirmed or otherwise, than almost any place in town, barring perhaps the nearly next-door Sacher Hotel which is where the British correspondents gather for their gossip sessions.

For those not stuck in Budapest, covering this revolution has been absolutely luxurious. The food in Vienna is excellent, the drinks quite up to American standards, and the supply of both unlimited. The musical standards here are unbelievably high. Almost every restaurant has a pianist entertaining at dinner and the boys can really play the piano. A pity so much talent is being wasted on dining spots and night clubs!

One thing about Vienna we love—you can dial a certain telephone number and hear a true "A" note in order to tune your instrument correctly. We haven't put the service to use yet, but if our ears are accurate, our typewriter is several octaves off key.

A British correspondent was trapped in Budapest and slept on the floor of the British Legation. Tiring of this, he decided to move back to Budapest's Dunalota Hotel where he had been staying before the Soviet attack. In the fighting, the hotel had received three direct shell hits, which put several rooms out of commission. When the British checked in, the clerk inadvertently gave him the key to one of the wrecked rooms. The correspondent, looking forward to a hot bath and a night's sleep in a comfortable bed, opened the door and noted with dismay that the wall overlooking the Danube had been knocked out entirely and that the room's bed dangled precariously over a cavernous hole. With British self-containment, he marched back to the desk and was heard to say politely—"I don't mind my room being a bit airy, but I'm afraid I shall have to insist upon having a floor." He got another room.

There's a kind of "third man" atmosphere around the Hotel Bristol. A bushy-haired, wild-eyed young man of uncertain nationality strolled into the lobby the other day and asked to speak to an American reporter—any reporter. One newsman detached himself from his fellow drinkers and interviewed the youth. The latter told him in hushed whispers that he was going to bomb the Communist newspaper, "Die Volksstimme," at 10:45 that night and he wanted to know if any reporters wished to cover the event. The news broke up the social gathering and the would-be terrorist, replete with accompanying reporters, radio commentators, photographers, and TV cameramen, left the Bristol to meet with his conspirators.

After three hours of consultations, wild automobile rides, whispered conferences, and several unsuccessful decoy maneuvers to lure the police away from the scene, the amateur terrorists gave up their idea at about 2:30 in the morning. Undaunted by their failure, they invited the assembled newsmen to have another go at it with them the next night. The reporters firmly and not very politely refused the invitation.

During the few days of its existence, the Free Hungarian Republic moved with remarkable speed, trying to put things on a pre-war basis. The labor-union organizations, for instance, wasted no time in establishing a trade-union newspaper. In the five days between the cessation of the revolt and the beginning of the Soviet aggression, the unions managed to set up a printing plant and organize a newspaper. Tragically, the paper appeared only once before the Soviets moved back in. One copy of the historic paper is now in the possession of Mrs. Irving Brown, Hungarian-born wife of the AFL-CIO's European representative.

One of the difficulties which beset the ill-fated government of Free Hungary was that too many people wanted to move right back to the prewar pattern far too fast. They couldn't wait, and put tremendous pressure on the regime of the Imre Nagy to establish the old way of life right away. Many of those who in one way or another were calling for a quick restoration of the "good old days" were emigre Hungarian aristocrats who had left Hungary during the Soviet occupation of 1945. As one Viennese lady haughtily, if accurately put it—"The Hungarian aristocracy is rushing to the rescue—out of every night club in Europe."

Europe Feels Anything Can Happen Now

By WALTER RIDDER
(I.P-T Capital Bureau)

MUNICH—A day at Radio Free Europe headquarters confirms a shaky Europe's worries that "anything can happen" in the next few weeks.

To the reporter looking for a story mid-Europe presents a feast of opportunity. In Vienna he can wait anxiously for a visa to Budapest. After two weeks of battle against Russian military might, unarmed, determined Hungarians still are able to keep their country in a state of complete paralysis. Experts differ over whether Russia will install a military occupation, allow a Titoist form of independent government or be forced to an even more liberal regime.

In any case after three weeks of battle, strikes and starvation the population is still defiant. The Hungarian situation is in no way solved.

To the north Poland is awaiting Premier Gomulka's return from Moscow. Observers point out that the next few weeks offer Poland many alternatives ranging from independence to Russian revenge. Most are hopeful that the Poles will restrain their natural ardor, count their blessings slowly and refrain from making so many demands that Russian "face" will have to be saved with Russian armor.

A rhyme current in Warsaw "the Hungarians behaved like Poles, the Poles like Czechs and the Czechs like swine" indicates the high emotional tenor in Poland.

• • • •

MARSHAL TITO to the south has uncovered countless possibilities for trouble with his open support of satellite rights. Declaring "Soviet leaders have erroneous attitudes and defective views regarding Poland, Hungary and other countries," Tito continues with a condemnation of Stalinism.

East Germany carefully tended by 22 Russian divisions is also a hotbed of rumor. Most controlled of the satellite countries—and, haunted by memories of its defeated workers' uprising in 1954—East Germany nevertheless has its student uprisings, and ever increasing flow of dissident refugees to the west, and continued stories of active dissatisfaction.

COLOSSUS OF RHODES . . . Downed in 224 BC.

By Associated Press

That technical wonder of the 19th century, the Suez Canal, is the center of a bitter controversy with Egypt against Britain and France.

Long before the big ditch was dreamed of, Egypt was renowned among the tourists of antiquity for harboring technical marvels. Two of these were classed among the seven wonders of the world.

Only one group of these famed monuments survives—the Pyramids. Here's a chance to test your knowledge of ancient history: Can you name the remaining six wonders of the ancient world?

In case your memory needs jogging, the following paragraphs give some clues.

2. Deals with navigation, and it also stood in Egypt. 3. A botanical showpiece in a city the Bible sometimes speaks ill of. 4. A masterpiece by one of ancient Greece's greatest sculptors. 5. A huge idol on a Mediterranean island. 6. An opulent memorial for a departed king, and 7. A pagan temple in a city which later figured in St. Paul's correspondence.

The answers:

2. The Pharos (Lighthouse) of Alexandria. Reputedly 400 feet high, it stood at the island-entrance to Alexandria and was the prototype of all future lighthouses.

3. The gardens of Queen Semiramis (about 800 B.C.) at Babylon.

4. The enormous ivory and gold statue of Zeus at Olympia, by Pheidias.

5. The Colossus of Rhodes—a huge bronze statue of the sun-god Helios that stood near the island's harbor until earthquake destroyed it in 224 BC.

6. The Mausoleum of Halicarnassus, built for King Mausolus by his widow in 353 BC.

7. The lofty Temple of Artemis (Diana) in the ancient city of Ephesus in Asia Minor.

Lakewood Man, Six Others Die in Crash

A head-on collision of two cars on the San Onofre overpass, seven miles south of San Clemente, killed a City of Lakewood man and six other persons Saturday.

The Lakewood victim was Arthur I. Shankman, 24, of 2948 Allred St., skipper of the sport fishing boat Neleh, which operates from Seal Beach Pier.

• • • •

HE WAS A PASSENGER in a car driven by Bernie Harry Davis, 24, a Douglas Aircraft employe of Los Angeles. Davis also died in the Hwy. 101 mishap.

The impact hurled their car over a 2½-foot guard rail and down a 20-foot embankment.

The other five victims, all Camp Pendleton Marines riding in a convertible, were identified as Sgt. Maron J. Hughes, 22, the driver, of Midland, Tex.; Pfc. Billie D. Gray, 20, of San Bernardino; Cpl. Donald J. LeBlanc, 21, of Roseland, La.; Sgt. Joe S. Delao, 23, of Los Angeles; and Pfc. Jackie C. Bowlin, 19, of Kerville, Tex.

All the victims died instantly.

California Highway Patrolman Lew Hake reported that the Marines' convertible crossed the roadway center line and crashed into the other car. He estimated the convertible was traveling more than 70 miles an hour and the second vehicle about 55.

The convertible, which ground to a stop on the pavement, burst into flames just after the last of the bodies was removed.

Highway officers called it the worst accident in the history of San Diego County.

• • • •

THE CARLOAD of Marines was headed for a weekend in Los Angeles. Davis and Shankman were en route to Ensenada for a weekend of fishing.

Shankman had been skipper of the Neleh for three years. He is survived by his wife, Yvonne, and two children, Harry, 2, and Gary, 10 months.

Bishops Urge Nationwide Peace Prayer

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Catholic bishops of the United States, declaring the world "is poised on the brink of disaster," called Saturday for "a veritable crusade of prayer" for peace.

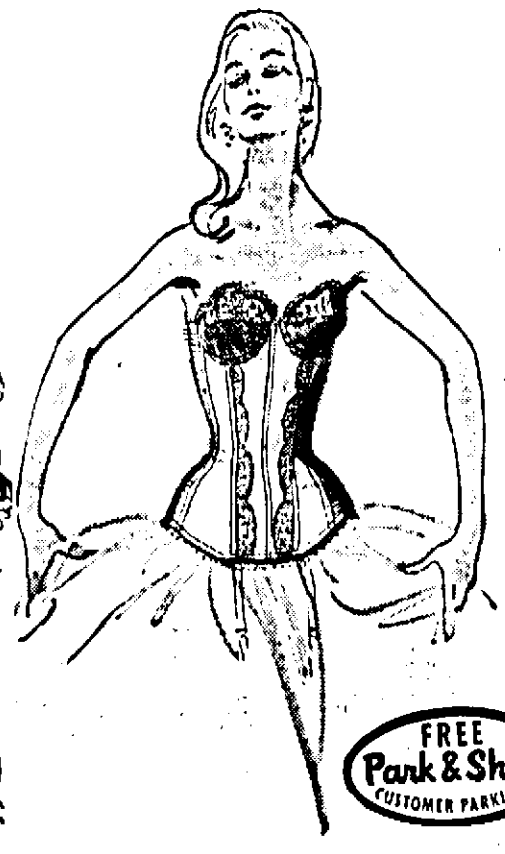

"Let it be for the specific end that international sanity will triumph over war," the 216 prelates said in a statement issued at the end of their annual meeting here—"that justice may be vindicated by the nations united under law."

They also urged the faithful to pray "that our own beloved country, under God, may lead the way to that better hope for all mankind."

The bishops praised President Eisenhower for "setting a pattern of vigorous leadership" in the quest for peace. On the course being followed by the American government, they said:

"Worthy of highest praise are its efforts, rising above considerations of party and politics, to bring the problems before the tribunal of nations, to restore mutual confidence in all those who seek justice, and to counter the threat of anarchy by marshalling the full strength of those forces of law and order which the world commands."

L.B. Area Cars Kill 1, Hurt 5

Five persons were injured in three traffic accidents here and a 57-year-old pedestrian was killed in Wilmington Saturday, police reported.

The pedestrian, Manuel Fernandez, no address given, was killed almost instantly when hit by a taxicab as he walked across Anaheim St. near Watson Ave. Driver of the cab, Harold W. Broock, 46, of 287½ W. 16th St., told officers Fernandez walked in front of his vehicle and he was unable to stop before hitting him.

Craig D. Riebow, 3, of 13512 Mills Rd., Garden Grove, was treated at Community Hospital for body bruises and possible internal injuries when he was hit by a car at Corona Ave. and The Toledo. Barbara Joan Coppage, 1161½ 6th St., Seal Beach, told officers the child ran in front of her car and she was unable to stop before hitting him.

John S. Ryan, 18, of 355 Lakeview Dr., suffered a fractured nose, left collarbone and a vertebra when his car collided with one driven by Loyal G. Perry, 62, of 1035 Belmont Ave., at 7th St. and Termino Ave. Perry suffered severe head lacerations.

James D. Swinun, 34, of 8453½ California Ave., South Gate, and his passenger, Elaine H. Blake, 41, of 3125 E. 4th St. suffered head lacerations when their car crashed into a boxcar being pulled by a Deisel engine at Pico Ave. and Scenic Dr.

Car Rams Into Bellflower Home, Misses Couple and Two Children

BOB BAKER . . . .and unwelcome caller

An unexpected and unwelcome caller tore into the rumpus room at the home of Robert Baker, 9163 E. Rosecrans, Bellflower, Saturday around 5:50 p. m.

Baker, a field deputy for Supervisor Herbert C. Legg, said that he and his wife and two children were in the living room when the vehicle smashed through the east wall of the newly completed family recreation room.

The car, driven by Joyce E. Dalrymple, 32, of 13405 Park Ave., Downey, came to rest against the west wall of the room after smashing a table, chair and television set.

Dalrymple told CHP officers his car went out of control, jumped the curb and smashed into the Baker home.

UC Budget Raised

BERKELEY (UP)—The regents of the University of California increased their annual budget by 8.6 per cent yesterday to prepare for an expected 7.2 per cent increase in enrollment. The regents also moved to seek $78,224,685 from state funds for their 1957-58 fiscal year.

Six-Year-Old L.B. Cancer Victim Dies; Rites Today

Six-year-old Rhonda Guthrie, 2122 Merrimac Ave., cancer victim, died Saturday in Los Angeles Children's Hospital.

Last June numerous Long Beach citizens contributed presents and cash for a combination Birthday-Easter-Christmas party for the child. The presents were sent after the appearance of stories in The Independent and Press-Telegram about the little girl's condition.

Funeral will be today with service in the Groman Mortuary Chapel, 830 W. Washington Blvd., Los Angeles. Interment will be in Hillside Memorial Park.

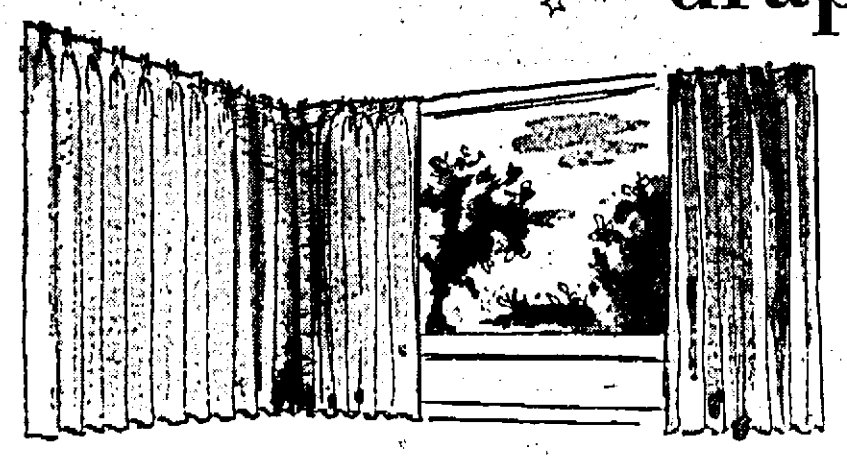

Surviving the youngster are her parents, Naval Aviation Machinist 3 c Don Guthrie and his wife, Shirley, and two sisters, Helene and Cheryl.

Wife Given Divorce From Stan Hack

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Mrs. Stanley Hack, charging that a love affair with a Chicago woman wrecked her 24-year marriage with the former manager of the Chicago Cubs, has been granted an interlocutory divorce decree.

Superior Judge Grover W. Bedeau granted the decree to Mrs. Dorothy Hack of Sacramento, Friday, after she testified Hack twice attempted to break off relations with the other woman but finally asked last September for a divorce.

Hack, named recently as a coach for the St. Louis Cardinals, did not appear in court. The judge approved a property settlement giving Mrs. Hack the family home here and $600 a month alimony.

Million-Ton Russ Wheat Aid to Poles

WARSAW (UP) — Russia has offered Poland a million tons of wheat to keep this country from seeking aid "elsewhere"—presumably meaning from the West, informed sources said Saturday.

The offer has not yet been announced formally—it may be announced in Moscow in the course of Polish leader Wladyslaw Gomulka's current visit there—but the wheat already is arriving, the sources said.

The first shipment was said to have reached the border station of Rzeszow three days ago.

• • • •

POLAND announced some time ago that it needed 1.2 million tons of wheat to tide the nation over until the next harvest. It was reported at the time that the Poles expected to get 800,000 tons from Russia, 200,000 from various satellite countries in Europe, and 200,000 from Canada.

Rumors circulating here said negotiations with Canada for the purchase of wheat on credit already had begun.

Air Academy Uniforms by DeMille OKd

DENVER (AP)—New uniforms for cadets of the U. S. Air Force Academy will go into service next fall, Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles said Saturday.

The designs were developed by movie producer Cecil B. DeMille and his associates, Henry Wilcoxon and John L. Jensen. They worked in close consultation with the Academy's uniform board.

Prototypes of the uniforms were shown recently to Academy cadets. Ninety-eight per cent expressed a preference for them over their present interim uniforms, which are standard Air Force garb.

• • • •

THE APPROVED family of uniforms consists of:

Winter dress—Its cut resembles the standard winter Air Force uniform, but its indigo blue color is more brilliant than the standard blue.

Winter parade dress—Of the same blue as the winter dress uniform, it has a high-necked jacket with rows of buttons which form a V down the front.

• • • •

EVENING DRESS — The elastique of the jacket will be lighter than in other uniforms and it may be worn both in winter and summer. The evening jacket is on the same shade of blue as the other uniforms and has long rolled lapels. It will be worn with a white pleated formal evening shirt, a blue bow tie, and a blue cummerbund.

Summer parade dress — This uniform is of the same style as the winter parade dress but it is of white cotton cloth.

Cap—It will be blue with darker braid. Its black visor has a silver metal brim. A white cap of similar design will be worn in summer.

Decision on insignia have not yet been made.

Russ Admit Frogman Died

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russian navy magazine "Soviet Fleet" said flatly Saturday that British naval frogman Cmdr. Lionel Crabbe died while investigating "underwater installations" on a Soviet cruiser near London last spring.

The publication cited the mysterious case of the frogman as evidence of increased American and British espionage against Russia from the Pacific to Europe.

Crabbe disappeared under circumstances never fully explained while diving in Portsmouth Harbor, England, last April. The Soviet cruiser "Ordjonikidze" was anchored in the harbor at the time.

Rash of Flying Saucer Reports Probed in Minnesota, Dakotas

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities Saturday investigated a rash of "flying saucer" reports in the upper midwest where at least six persons have sighted strange objects streaking through the sky.

The latest report came from near Crookston, Minn., where a man said he saw what looked like a falling star" plunge to about 500 feet from the ground, then stop and "hang motionless in the sky."

Bill Nimens, 33, Crookston, a former state commander of the Disabled American Veterans, said the object he saw Friday night was bright green and issued a white light.

"It resembled a piece of chrome with a brilliant light to it," he said.

Three other persons said they saw fiery objects over Bismarck, N. D., Friday night. Radio announcer Eldon Ray said he saw a "reddish-white ball of flame, trailing blue flame" speed westward. He said it was at an altitude of 1500 to 2,500 feet and seemed to be erupting.

A Frontier Airline pilot passing over the city said he also spotted the object but thought it was a meteorite. His theory was discounted by a Civil Aeronautics Administration representative at the Bismarck airport.

"It didn't act like a meteorite," he said. He described it as being "of a glowing nature . . . bluish green."

Two other persons have reported sighting glowing objects flying about the Minnesota and Dakotas during the past 10 days.

World Language to Make Debut

TORONTO (AP)—A new international scientific language will make its Canadian debut at the International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases next June. Called Interlingua, the language has about 30,000 words and will be used by physicians and scientists in preparing papers for the congress. Experts say almost anything can be translated in written material.

Tupolev, Master of Aircraft Design, Once Doomed to Die

NEW YORK (UP)—The Soviet Union's bid for air supremacy over the free world revolves around a portly, balding little man who was once sentenced to death for treason, an authority on Red aviation said Saturday.

Michael Gladych, aeronautical engineer and former Polish pilot, said the latest aerial creation of Andre Nicolaievich Tupolev, 69, known as the architect of Soviet air power, is a four-jet 180-passenger air liner.

Communist Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev has boasted that the TU-114, believed already in production, will be capable of flying nonstop from Moscow to New York.

Gladych described Tupolev's 45-year career as Russia's top aircraft designer in an article appearing in Flying magazine.

• • • •

GLADYCH SAID that Prof. N. E. Zhukovsky and his brilliant pupil, Tupolev, began laying the foundations of Red air power after the Bolshevik revolution of 1918.

Since then, Gladych said, Tupolev has well exceeded his self-imposed goal of one new plane a year. His aircraft range from a primitive glider built in 1910 to the sleek TU-104, a medium-range, 70-passenger jetliner that stunned the air world when it brought Communist dignitaries to London recently. Another Tupolev creation is the Badger twin-jet, medium-range bomber, unveiled in 1952.

Tupolev, Gladych said, is one of the few men who ever incurred the wrath of Stalin and survived to receive an apology from the late dictator.

• • • •

TUPOLEV HAD reached the top in Soviet hierarchy before the bloody purge trials of 1936. From Stalin, he had received the Order of Lenin, the Order of the Red Banner and the Order of the Red Star. He was vice-president of the Soviet Aircraft Industry Board, which had dictatorial powers over production and design of Red aircraft.

"Tupolev became a frequent visitor at the Kremlin where Stalin no longer dictated to him, but sought his advice," Gladych said. "He had a passport valid for foreign travel without restriction and an unlimited account with the bank of the Soviet Union."

But Stalin's friendship quickly turned to wrath when Tupolev protested the trial of a friend on trumped-up charges of treason. After letters failed, Gladych said, Tupolev went to the Kremlin and personally berated Stalin for the trial of his friend.

Stalin's reply was to order the trial of Tupolev on charges of selling aircraft designs to Germany. Gladych said Tupolev "laughed" at the charge. However, after scores of witnesses "proved" the charge, he was found guilty and sentenced to death.

Stalin commuted the sentence to life imprisonment after the dictator discovered that his top aircraft designers were idled by Tupolev's absence.

• • • •

"HE WAS BROUGHT to Moscow under heavy guard and put to work at his own drawing board," Gladych said. "Watched night and day, he directed the design and construction of his brigades. His decorations had been taken away. He lived in a cell."

But, in 1941, with Russia facing a German attack, Stalin ordered Tupolev's release from prison. Once again a hero, the designer was made a lieutenant general of the Red Air Force. Gladych said Tupolev was summoned to the Kremlin "where Stalin extended his hand in apology." In 1945, he was assigned the job of building long-range bombers in keeping with Soviet plans for world conquest.

Today, Tupolev still puts in a 20-hour day at his drawing board Gladych said—designing the planes that "first broke records—and now threaten the world."

Romania Foe of Reds Stays in Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP) — Argentina has granted political asylum to a chauffeur and his family who fled from the Romanian legation Friday.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Gheorghe Coman, his wife, Maria, and their two sons, one 4 years and the other 11 months old, will be allowed to stay in this country.

He said police have taken them to a hideout as a precaution against Communist reprisal.

A government source said the Comans fled to Argentine police because he was being sent back to Romania to face trial for sedition and anti-Communist sympathies.

The couple broke away when they were entering a car to be driven to the airport. In the confusion of their flight, their younger son was left behind.

Mrs. Coman returned to the legation to claim him, but was held there by Romanian officials. She escaped through a window and Foreign Ministry representatives got the baby while a crowd outside the legation demonstrated against the Romanians.

Interest Raise Studied for Bank Savings

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Federal Reserve Board is making a study to determine whether it should authorize its 6,491 member banks to raise the two and one-half percent interest rate on savings accounts, it was learned Saturday.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which supervises 6,800 state banks, also is weighing the matter.

A source familiar with the board's operations said the problem "has assumed practical importance for the first time since the 1930's." In 1936, when the nation was climbing out of the depression, Congress gave the board discretionary authority to raise or lower the interest rate which has ranged from one to two and one-half per cent.

Millions of savings account depositors would benefit financially if the ceiling were raised. But both the Reserve Board and the FDIC are proceeding cautiously. Many uncertain economic factors are involved.

Radiation Peril Teaching Urged

OTTAWA (AP) — A conference of U. S., British and Canadian scientists recommends that the hazards of radiation be taught as a regular course in all schools.

The conference primarily was concerned with defense against radioactive fallout from nuclear explosions.

U.S. Slashes Price on Atomic Fuel

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower Saturday announced a six-point U.S. program, including a sharp price cut on uranium fuel, to help other nations speed development of atomic power plants.

The effect will be to reduce the cost of building and operating power reactors in countries which are cooperating in the President's "atoms for peace" program.

The proposal also is designed to assure such countries a continuing supply of uranium fuel at a stable price and to guarantee them a U.S. market for the reactor "by-products," sale of which is necessary to make atomic power production economically feasible.

"This nation attaches highest importance to the development of nuclear power abroad," Mr. Eisenhower said in a statement announcing the program. "We are determined that this product of man's inventiveness shall be made available to serve the people of the world."

Navy Birthday Cake Cheers Chinese Girl on Mercy Flight

TOKYO (Sunday) (UP)—A little Chinese girl on her way from Formosa to the United States to undergo a delicate heart operation, received a birthday cake from an American admiral to celebrate her 11th birthday today.

Beth Cho, accompanied by her mother Mrs. Lillian Chu, broke her 10,000-mile journey to Houston, Tex., to receive the cake from Vice Adm. Roscoe F. Good, Far East naval forces commander at the Yokosuka Naval Base near here.

The little Chinese girl is suffering from an "open duct" condition in her heart and has been an invalid since birth.

The child's plight first drew the attention of Navy Lt. George Becker Jr. stationed at Tsoying, Formosa. He wrote Baylor University medical experts in Houston about the girl's condition.

Now she is on her way to Baylor Medical School for an operation.

All three services in the Far East have teamed up for the mercy mission.

After a brief rest here the girl will be flown to San Francisco aboard a Military Air Transport plane.

40-Pound Turkey Given President for Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower, who has been given lots of livestock for his farm, will get some Monday for his table.

He will receive a live 40-pound Thanksgiving turkey in the White House rose garden from representatives of the Poultry and Egg National Board and the National Turkey Federation.

The President spent last Thanksgiving at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm but plans to stay at the White House for this year's holiday.

Fund to Finance Problems Study

NEW YORK (AP)—The Rockefeller Brothers Fund has announced a project to determine and explore problems and opportunities with which this country will be confronted within the next 10 to 15 years.

The project will seek to develop concepts for dealing with these problems and opportunities.

Top Ballerina Collapses

MOSCOW (AP) — Galina Ulanova, prima ballerina of the Bolshoi Theater Ballet, pulled a tendon and collapsed on stage Saturday night while dancing the title role in "Giselle."

Ulanova had just completed a second act solo when she crumpled to the floor.

For 30 seconds the other dancers on stage remained frozen in their positions. Then the curtain was lowered and the house lights turned on.

It was Ulanova's first appearance here in "Giselle" since the Bolshoi troupe's London engagement last month. She is 46 years old.

$1,000,000 Contract for Radio Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Pat Boone who started out two years ago as a $50-a-week entertainer while a college student here, has signed a million-dollar, seven-year movie contract with 20th Century-Fox.

The announcement was made Saturday by Dot Records, Inc., here, which has sold more than a million copies each of Boone's three top recordings.

Boone will co-star with Terry Moore in "Bernadine" which goes before the cameras Feb. 4. The contract calls for Boone to make one movie per year, Dot said.

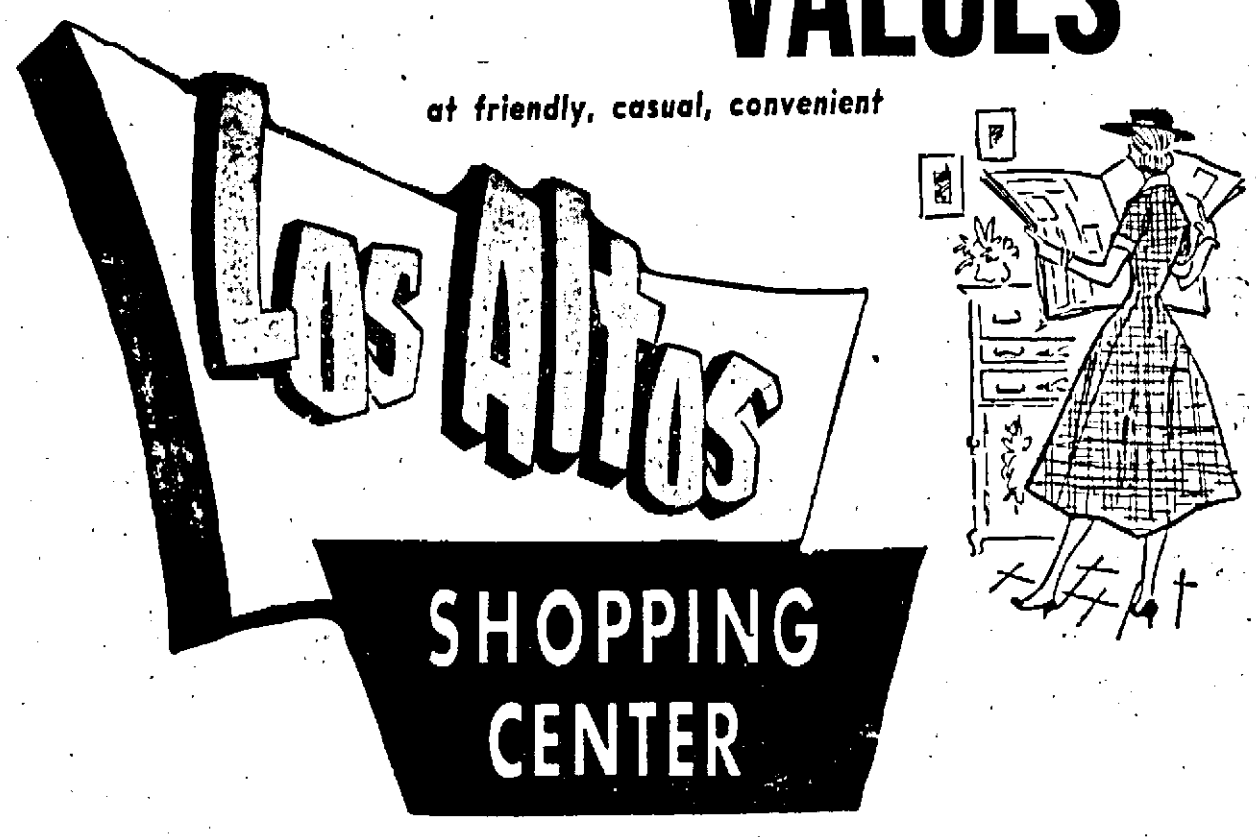

The young singer, a regular on Arthur Godfrey's radio and television shows, is also a student at Columbia University in New York. He is married to the former Shirley Foley, daughter of hillbilly star Red Foley. Boone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Boone, live in Nashville.

Boone's top recordings include "Ain't That a Shame," "I'll Be Home" and "I Almost Lost My Mind."

CAPITAL CAPERS

By ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

The White House last week started putting out denials of any immediate cabinet changes, but this is what the pundits who are recasting the President's official family for him hear may be in the works after Ike's second inauguration—

State — John Foster Dulles doesn't want to leave but may be eased out following recovery from his operation in favor of Tom Dewey, now a New York lawyer; Jack McCloy, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, or another of the many persons being mentioned for the post.

Treasury—George Humphrey wants to leave and Ike may let him go despite heavy White House reliance on the Cleveland former coal and steel man.

Defense—Charlie Wilson also wants to retire from government and the President's inclination is to let him do so. Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, a successful Michigan politician, is the leading replacement choice.

Justice—It's a tossup whether Attorney General Herb Brownell, a top Eisenhower adviser on many governmental and political issues, would want to quit unless an appointment to the Supreme Court awaited him.

Post Office—Arthur Summerfield also is recovering from an operation but there's little speculation about his retirement.

Interior—Fred Seaton, who replaced Doug McKay earlier this year, is expected to continue in the job for some time.

Agriculture—The rumors are flying but Ezra Taft Benson insisted at a press conference last week that he has no intention of resigning.

Commerce — Sinclair Weeks has told friends he may leave the cabinet next year but not until after the end of the first session of the 85th Congress in the summer.

Health, Education and Welfare—Marion B. Folsom, one of the businessmen-on-loan-to-the-government, is expected to achieve his desire to resign.

THE UNITED STATES Chamber of Commerce, always good for a fresh story, has published a handbook listing the special days, weeks and months awaiting the nation in 1947.

Besides the usual holidays, the chamber advises that Old Maids Day is June 4 while Rock 'N' Roll Week and National Sweater Week both start Sept. 16. Also this year, there is Grand Ole Opry Week (May 5-11), followed by Foot Health Week and National Domestic Rabbit Week in that order.

RADIO PRIEST TAMED

Years in Little Flower Shrine Mellow Fiery Father Coughlin

By DWIGHT PITKIN

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) —The years have mellowed the fiery priest of the Shrine of the Little Flower.

At 65, The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin in his pulpit at the Roman Catholic shrine speaks and looks like a philosopher. He gave up his controversial radio career 16 years ago.

No longer is he a Don Quixote tilting with political windmills.

But he still has the eloquence that made his name a household word a generation ago.

Today, instead of denouncing politicians and bankers, he is centering his fire on the Devil.

Except for his parish activities in this thriving suburb of Detroit, Father Coughlin leads almost a cloistered life.

The priest used to hold news conferences and voice off-the-cuff opinions about almost anything. In this campaign year he has given no interviews.

• • • •

HIS SERMONS today reflect sweetness and light. But the old punch is still there when he tees off on the Devil.

He recently warned his parishioners:

"Your adversary is the Devil —a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour."

The priest exhorted the people not to put their trust in material things but in "the sword of truth, which is the word of God."

Father Coughlin's fame reached its peak in the depression days of the 30s as a champion of the poor.

His eclipse as a national political figure began in 1936. That was the year he backed a political loser. And with returning prosperity, radio listeners lost interest in him.

Father Coughlin supported the New Deal in its early years. He turned against Roosevelt in the 1936 campaign and threw his support to a third party candidate, Rep. William Lemke, North Dakota farm congressman and advocate of monetary reforms.

Roosevelt won a second term by the biggest landslide of his four terms.

FATHER COUGHLIN
No Time for Politics

Father Coughlin lost political face. He announced his retirement from radio speaking. He denied there was any compulsion from the church. In the heat of the campaign he had called Roosevelt a "liar and betrayer." This was reported to have caused a painful impression at the Vatican. The priest apologized.

Tired of political warfare, Father Coughlin said he wanted to return to the life of "a simple parish priest."

• • • •

FROM THE START of his radio career in 1926, Father Coughlin had the backing of his superior, Bishop Michael J. Gallagher of Detroit, until the bishop's death early in 1937. The bishop once said:

"Father Coughlin represents the social and economic doctrines of Christianity as gleaned from the scriptures, from the teachings of Christ, from the doctrines of the church, and particularly from the two pontiffs, Leo XIII and Pius XI. He speaks on behalf of millions who are denied their just share of this world's goods."

Father Coughlin stopped broadcasting for a short while after Bishop Gallagher's death, but later in 1937 he started a new series of broadcasts. He soon was in hot water again although his radio speeches were on the mild side.

He was quoted as saying at a news conference that a good Catholic could no more be a member of the CIO than a Mohammedan. His new superior, Archbishop Edward Mooney of Detroit, who later became a cardinal, said the priest was in error. The archbishop said there was no incompatibility between the CIO and the church. Father Coughlin canceled his broadcasts.

• • • •

BACK ON THE AIR in 1938, the priest became subject of bitter controversy again over the position of the church on labor. He also got into a row with Jewish groups over who started the revolution in Russia, but he denied AntiSemitism.

Father Coughlin definitely left the air waves in 1940. He disassociated himself from the magazine Social Justice he had founded to advocate the political and economic views of the national union for social justice.

Abandoning public controversy, the priest devoted his full attention to his parish. When he founded it in 1926, he had a small shingled church and a congregation of 50.

Radio listeners, Protestant and Jewish as well as Catholic who were charmed by the priest's eloquence, poured in gifts that helped build a new church.

The replacement value of the church property, including schools and convents, is estimated at more than 13 million dollars. More than 8,000 persons attend Sunday masses.

Tallest Tower Yet Rises in New Mexico

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — The tallest man-made structure in the world this week started knifing up into the sky 43 miles east of here as construction got under way on a 1,610-foot TV tower.

The tower, being built by KSWS-TV of Roswell, will surpass in height a 1,572-foot television tower in Oklahoma, the 1,472-foot Empire State Building and the 984-foot Eiffel Tower in Paris.

• • • •

IT'S A LAND where bigness reigns. The tower will have as its geographic companion the Bottomless Lakes a few miles to the east, depths of which have never been successfully plumbed, and the largest water well in the world.

Its construction will defy the Texas tradition for the prodigious, inasmuch as the new structure will exceed by 89 feet a television tower at Dallas.

Appropriately, the tower will be located near the oil field where the television station's owner, John Barnett, made his first strike in 1947 and began collecting the fortune that enabled him to plunge into television and radio three years ago.

The tower itself will be symbolic of the meteoric rise of Barnett, who quit a government job in 1947 as a taciturn geologist with only $3,000 in the bank, to play a hunch.

• • • •

THE "GIANT", as it has been dubbed, will carry the station's signal with 316,000 watts over a vast area of cities and small towns in southeastern New Mexico and West Texas to what station operators estimate is a half-billion dollar market. It will cover weak spots of the station's present pattern, and replace the present 790-foot tower.

To Barnett the new tower is an expression of his faith that a predominantely rural area can support quality television.

GOP Hoping for Control of Senate

WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican senators were told Saturday that control of the Senate in the new Congress "was not definitely decided" by the November election.

This statement was contained in an election review prepared by the staff of the Senate GOP Policy Committee. It noted that the Democrats had retained their 49-47 majority in the Senate but said "the local situation" in Ohio, New York and Texas "could affect the outcome."

After some initial uncertainty, Senate Democratic leaders have been making plans on the assumption that they will retain control of the Senate and organize it on Jan. 3.

• • • •

THE GOP MEMORANDUM first cited Ohio, where Gov. Frank J. Lausche, the Democratic senator-elect, has announced he will not take his seat until after his term as governor expires Jan. 14.

"Furthermore, there is no certainty with which party he would vote on the organization issue," the memo said.

It also pointed out that Jacob K. Javits, GOP senator-elect from New York, plans to stay in his job as state attorney general until after Jan. 9 and that Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.) will become governor of his state Jan. 15.

• • • •

IF DANIEL vacated his seat earlier, the memorandum said, it is "conceivable" that Gov. Allan Shivers might name a temporary appointee who would vote with the GOP to organize the Senate.

Daniel and Shivers have been engaged in a dispute over when the senator should resign. Daniel submitted his resignation in September, effective Jan. 15 or whenever his replacement is chosen in a special session. Shivers, who supported the reelection of President Eisenhower, has demanded that Daniel resign immediately.

The Texas senator issued another statement Saturday asserting that a Texas law permits Shivers to call a special election on 20 days notice before the Senate seat is actually vacant. Shivers' position is based on a different statute, requiring 60 days notice and assuming a vacancy exists before the election can be called.

Daniel criticized Shivers for failing to seek an opinion from the state attorney general. He urged all Texas lawyers to read the statute which he has cited.

• • • •

"THE PEOPLE ARE entitled to know the law from someone other than a governor whose 47-day delay and present demands could result only in denying the people a vote before Jan. 3 and his appointment of a senator on that date," Daniel said.

He said he would have changed the date of his resignation if Shivers had announced his position in time for an election to be held before Jan. 3.

"However, it is significant that Gov. Shivers delayed announcement of his decision until it was too late for the election to be called under his statute before the opening of Congress and until any change on my part would assure him of the appointment of a senator who would help organize the United States Senate for the Republicans on Jan. 3," Daniel said.

CALL A CHICKEN DUMB

Pigs Is Smarties Jasper Contends

By STERLING BEMIS

All those folks who have been telling you, "Don't be a pig" don't rightly know what they're talking about.

Pigs is the smartest animals there is and Jasper Cole has seen enough of them to know.

On his daddy's farm that was homesteaded by his grand-daddy back in the Ozarks, Jasper met up with his first pig almost 60 years ago and he's been a steady admirer since.

Jasper helps train some of the educated animals that perform at Old MacDonald's Farm at Knott's Berry Farm. There are chickens that ring bells, rabbits that ride, pigs that slide, goats that butt the whey out of a mock hired man. Give him his choice of a smarty and Jasper will take a pig every time.

"A PIG IS TUCK from his mother when he is about 3 weeks old and you put him right on the bottle. You can learn him his trick in 10 or 12 days. . . .

"A goat takes three weeks to learn, a rabbit six weeks and a chicken six to nine weeks. You'd have to call a chicken dumb. I helped train two of them to ring a bell. One of them learned good. Other one wasn't no good. He was all right when he was alone but when we brung in the public he wouldn't do a thing."

ALTHOUGH HE retired from farming a year ago, Cole still owns the place which has been in the Cole family three generations. It's 18 miles from Salem, Mo.—60 acres of good bottom land penned in by 170 acres of hills "not good for much but pasture."

You have to have a pretty big piece of land to have enough worth farming in that part of the Ozarks, Jasper opines.

You can find his place on Pigeon Creek at the head of Current River right by the fish hatchery.

Those Ozarks are a mixed up lot of mountains. "Arkansas laps into Missouri and Missouri laps into Arkansas and for a hundred miles you're in the laps of both of 'em."

JASPER COLE was asked if the trained beasts at Old MacDonald's Farm were smarter than the ones back on the farm. He took that as an insult to Ozark animal life.

"Pigs on the farm is just as smart as the pigs that has been educated. Why, we had one here that was trained in Arkansas and just as smart as any of 'em here."

He interrupted his interview to start the century-old, mule-powered merry-go-round.

As the jenny got into full swing, Jasper Cole shouted from the driver's seat:

"Well, I got her started. Now I'll have to worry about stopping her."

JASPER COLE AND FRIEND . . . A Goat's Smart, a Pig Smarter

Italians Report S.F. Man in Line for Luce's Post

ROME (AP)—The Italia News Agency, which has close connections with the Italian Government, said Saturday night Washington has asked Italian approval of James D. Zellerbach, San Francisco industrialist, as U.S. ambassador to Italy.

He would replace Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce, who has made it clear she is resigning.

The Italian Foreign Office declined to confirm or deny the Italia report. Zellerbach called at the White House in Washington Friday but declined to confirm or deny reports he might succeed Mrs. Luce.

96-FOOTER PAYS VISIT

Diesel Yacht Puts New Marina Unit in Business---Temporarily

By BOB WHEARLEK

The Alamitos Bay Marina was in business last week—briefly, but in a big way.

Construction work halted and traffic on the marina's perimeter road slowed to a crawl as the 96-foot Diesel yacht Canim, out of Newport Beach, tied up at the still-unfinished gasoline dock.

On hand to greet the sleek, white ship were Lawrence McDowell, recently-appointed director of the City Marine Dept., and three representatives of the Chamber of Commerce's Shoreline Development Committee—acting chairman Douglas Benwell, Lou Francis and Mrs. Grace Carriker, committee secretary.

• • • •

ARRIVAL OF the Canim was a wide-screen preview of the scheduled January opening of the marina's Basin No. 1, which will accommodate 342 small craft. When the entire $14 million project is completed by early 1959, it will have berthing space for 1,863 boats.

If Marina operations run as smoothly in the future as they did when the Canim arrived, the city has nothing to worry about.

With owner George Gaudin, a Las Vegas auto dealer, at the wheel, the yacht nudged into its makeshift berth with nary a jolt.

• • • • •

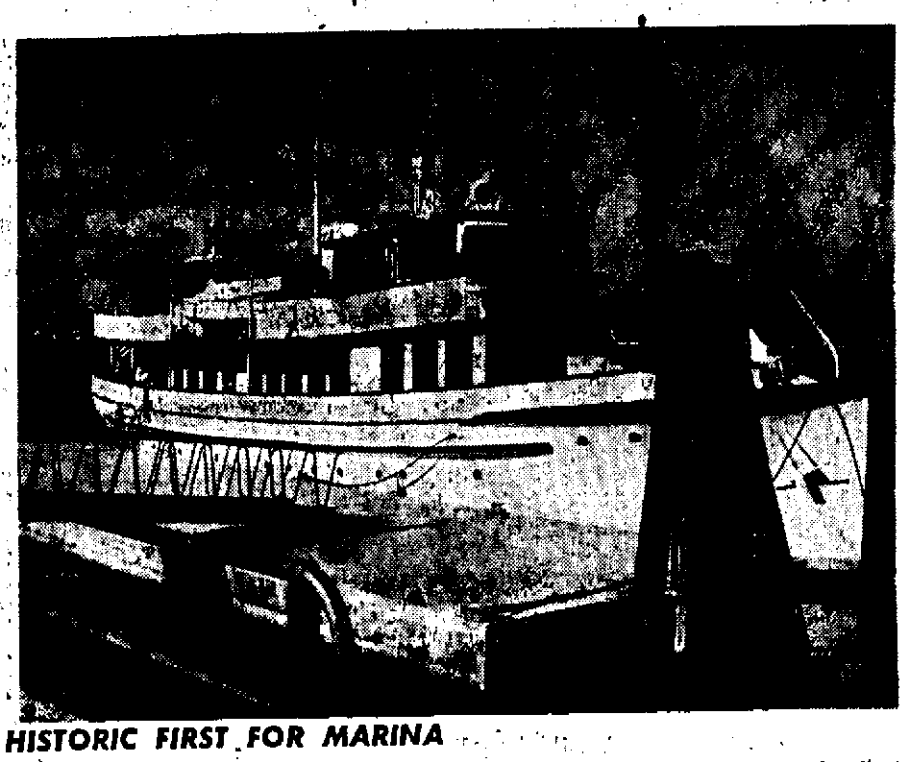

SKIPPER BILL McKAY secured the lines to the dock and allowed as how the new basin would be a considerable improvement over Newport Harbor—where many Long Beach area yachtsmen now moor their craft.

"Here, you've got a clear shot into the ocean through the entrance channel," he explained. "But at Newport, it's at least a 30-minute trip from the channel mouth to the mooring area.

"I imagine that might be a big item for people who have only a limited amount of time to spend on their boats."

McDowell and the chamber committee group later boarded the Canim for a cruise to Balboa Bay.

The Canim's airhorn sounded just the least bit sorrowful as it backed away from the gasoline dock. It was as if she had found a home and didn't want to leave it.

HISTORIC FIRST FOR MARINA

The 96-foot yacht Canim, out of Newport Beach, this week became the first large craft to tie up at the new Alamitos Bay Marina. It was just a temporary berthing, though—the marina won't be officially open until January.— (Staff photo.)

Knox Antique Sold for $5,500

NEW YORK (AP)—A secretary-cabinet once owned by Gen. Henry Knox, secretary of war under President George Washington, was sold for $5,500 at an antique auction.

The cabinet, of Chippendale design, was purchased by Israel Sack, a New York antique dealer.

Albums Express Pupils' Gratitude

MADRID (AP)—Spanish school children have presented 50 albums illustrated by hand to U.S. Ambassador John Davis Lodge to acknowledge a free lunch program in Spanish schools conducted with donations from the United States.

Lodge will forward the albums to the governors of the 48 states and officials of the District of Columbia.

City Advertises Bids for Three Highway Projects

The City of Lakewood has authorized advertising for bids on three road improvement projects to cost an estimated $61,000.

The projects are: Resurface Carson St. from the Union Pacific right of way to the eastern city limits, estimated cost, $36,000; install concrete curbs and gutters along the south side of Del Amo Blvd. from Lakewood Blvd. to Coke Ave., $12,000; and improve a 28-foot-wide middle strip on Candlewood St. from Paramount Blvd. to the Union Pacific right-of-way, $13,000.

Bids for all three projects will be opened at 2 p.m. Dec. 19 in Lakewood City Hall. The city council will act on the bids Dec. 26.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Envoys Walk Out on Nikita Tirade

MOSCOW (UP)—Western ambassadors walked out of a Soviet reception for Poland's new leaders Saturday night after Soviet Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev denounced western "imperialism."

The reception for Polish Party Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka and Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz was the first the western ambassadors had attended since Russia intervened to suppress the Hungarian rebellion, Nov. 4.

Khrushchev launched into a bitter attack on western policy, charging that "the imperialists are making hopeless efforts to recover lost positions." At this point, the American, British, French and other NATO ambassadors and the Israeli ambassador decided to leave.

Huge Oil Well Capped

TEHRAN, Iran (UP)—Nature Saturday sealed what is believed to be the world's biggest oil well, a task which man only partially succeeded in doing.

The mammoth gusher at Qum, 85 miles south of Tehran, was blocked off by a cave-in which hurled tons of rock into the well borehole. It finally sealed off the well, which when brought in poured out 100,000 barrels of oil every 24 hours.

Find Motive in Slaying

DENVER (AP)—The husband of a 17-year-old Negro girl stabbed to death at Manual High School told police Saturday they had argued over attentions she had been paying other men.

Mrs. Daisy Lee Furlough Price Friday had been helping 75 other students decorate for a homecoming dance when she was attacked.

The husband, Samuel Robert Price, 24, told police he and his wife were alone in a hallway outside the gymnasium during the argument. He said he pulled a knife and "swung it" but refused to say he hit his wife with it. He is being held by police but no charges have been filed.

Back Yard Air Crash

ATLANTA (AP)—A twin-engine Navy training plane from Key West, Fla., crashed into the back yard of an Atlanta home in a rainstorm early Saturday.

Six men aboard were taken to Grady Hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and other miscellaneous injuries. None was critically hurt.

600 Girls Flee Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Six hundred girl students evacuated from two dormitory halls at Ohio State University early Saturday when fire broke out in a room occupied by three students.

No one was injured in the blaze, although two of the room's occupants were reported by firemen to be in a hysterical condition and under a nurse's care. The fire was confined to the one room.

Austria Hits Arm Charge

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Austria's Chancellor Julius Raab protested to Russia Saturday against charges published in the Soviet press that Austria spirited weapons and men to the Hungarian anti-Communist rebels for their revolution.

MT. HOLLY, N. C. (UP)—Three teenagers were killed here Saturday when a Seaboard freight train hit their car at a grade crossing in a driving rain. A funeral director identified the youths as Larry Ray Culp, Lyndon Sherrill and Melvin Clarence Lewis, 17 years old. The boys, all neighbors, lived in a rural area.

Campus Girls Copy Little Boys, Big Boys

Today's campus girls are borrowing fashion ideas from almost everybody—haircuts from little boys, striped shirts from big boys, old-style long dresses from Grandma. The wide variety of inspirations proves once again that Miss Coed still knows a good thing when she sees it and with her usual flair manages to express her individuality. (Staff Photo by H. S. Melvyn)

LITTLE BOY HAIRCUT blends with feminine lines of sweater for smiling Gerry Searey of Poly High. Necklace supports lucky one's initials.

CAR COAT inspired by polar bear hunter is worn by Carol Williams, left, at Poly while Gwen Newton reverses sweater in approved "Bermuda style."

STRIPED SHIRTS of Ivy League males have been brazenly adopted and adapted by coeds at Long Beach State College. Margie Getz, left, and Aggie Krunic roll up sleeves for another busy day on the campus.

AT STATE, Sharon Estrobridge wears pioneer dress, ballet slippers.

Zoo Humanizes

BARCELONA, Spain (UP) — The city has begun a $1,500,000 overhaul of its zoo. Top attractions of the "new look" zoo will be a harmonica-playing elephant and a gallant monkey who kisses the hands of his women visitors.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Indian army, the Defense Ministry announced Saturday night. He is former chairman of the U.N. Repatriation Commission in Korea.

Granddaughter of Revolutionary War General Dies

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—The granddaughter of a Revolutionary War general died here Friday night at the age of 106. She was Mrs. Julia Presson Patrick, widow of John H. Patrick who served with the 32nd Virginia Regiment in the Civil War.

Her grandfather was Gen. John Custis for whom Fort Custis was named. Mrs. Patrick was born March 24, 1850, in York County, Va. She is survived by two daughters, seven grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Ingrid Recovering From Operation

PARIS (UP) — Actress Ingrid Bergman was reported in "satisfactory" condition Saturday from an emergency appendicitis operation she underwent Thursday at the American hospital in suburban Neuilly.

A hospital spokesman said, however, that no date has been set for discharge of the 41-year-old, Swedish-born star.

New Opera Set

Let's Finish This Job the Right Way

THE UNITED NEIGHBORS Community Chest campaign is drawing to a close.

As so often before in these drives, our area has fallen short. This time we are short of the modest $925,000 goal by over $150,000.

Are we going to close out the campaign that way?

Surely we cannot be satisfied with such a showing.

THE GOAL which has been set is a minimum goal. It is the amount considered absolutely essential to support the 31 health, welfare and youth agencies which serve 400,000 persons in the four communities—Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, and Dominguez—of our Community Chest area.

Since last year's campaign, there has been a 50 per cent increase in demands for welfare services to families and children. Fifty per cent more young people have used Community Chest youth programs. The influx of new residents from other parts of the country has continued apace. More and more of our youngsters have come of age to require Community Chest youth services. Meantime, per capita income has shot to an all time high and business is in good shape.

Everything seems to be going ahead steadily except contributions to the Chest drive. Something is wrong.

OF 257 INDUSTRIAL firms in the area, 78 have never contributed to a Chest campaign. Nor have their employes. Forty other firms make contributions, but their employes give nothing. All of these businesses and their employes make money from this community, stand to benefit from Community Chest services, and ought to share this civic responsibility.

AFTER ALL, 6,500 persons have volunteered their time and effort without charge to the task of visiting stores, firms, and homes to collect contributions. Usually these workers also make money contributions of their own. If they can perform a double service, the rest of us ought to be able to perform one.

Tomorrow the United Neighbors Community Chest volunteers go out hoping to finish the job successfully for 1956.

Let each of us help them do it.

Ike Ably Answers Hostile Questions

WASHINGTON—Sometimes they come belatedly, but there is no gainsaying the effective rebuttals made by President Eisenhower in his press conferences as he faces a barrage of questions—many of them at times as hostile as if an opposition party spokesman had expressed them.

FOR MONTHS NOW the cliches and bromides of the Democrats have set forth these propositions:

First, that the administration has been "drifting" in the Middle East and has had no "policies" to prevent the situation there from developing as it has.

Second, that the "liberation" policy of the administration has not come to the rescue of nations in Eastern Europe.

Third, that the President has not exercised "leadership" inside his own party and that there really is a serious cleavage as between "Old Guard" and "New Republicans."

With the unmistakable force that his sincerity gives to his public statements, President Eisenhower has refuted every one of these criticisms.

THE PRESIDENT made it clear that never has United States policy advocated the use of our military force to secure the "liberation" of the peoples of Eastern Europe. It is the critics who are hypocritical about this, because they know very well the American people will not sanction the sending of American troops to Hungary to decide a civil war there. Not a single spokesman for the opposition has ever had the temerity to advocate such a course, yet constantly there are barbs of sarcasm thrust at the administration for its failure to enforce "liberation." As the President says, the spirit of liberty and freedom is constantly encouraged by his administration. He might have added that it is discouraged only when anti-administration spokesmen like George Kennan say in speeches that the "status quo" in Eastern Europe has to be accepted with a certain sort of "finality."

One thing is clear—American military power will not be used to settle local wars or to "go it alone." It will be used only in defense against attack where our treaty obligations, as in NATO, require it or it will be used to back up the United Nations where the issue is clearly one that in the long run may endanger our own safety.

It is primarily America's willingness to support the United Nations police force in the Suez area today which gives strength to that expedition, even though United States troops aren't involved.

SIMILARLY, it is America's readiness to thwart the sending of Soviet "volunteers" to Egypt which stays the hand of the aggressors and the would-be aggressors in the Middle East. This is a policy of deterrence based on moral force plus military preparedness. The President traced the policy back for many months and rightly absolved the American government of any responsibility for Soviet plotting and Nasser's acceptance of Communist influence.

As for party politics, the President at his Wednesday press conference gave a definition of "Modern Republicanism" which the critics have tried to twist into something that implies a cleavage inside his own party. Yet nobody can cite more than two or even three Republicans out of the 47 elected to the Senate either in 1952 or 1954 or 1956 who have been or are at variance with the definition of "Modern Republicanism" expressed by the President this week.

Some Republicans, of course, have differed on certain aspects of foreign policy, and so have some Democrats deviated from party concepts. But "Modern Republicanism" was espoused by the Dewey-Bricker ticket in 1948 in almost precisely the language used by the President on Wednesday. Spending huge sums for social welfare is approved in principle but, as the President says, it has to be done within the limits of "integrity in the fiscal operations of the government" and a "sound dollar." It also has to be within the limits of free enterprise except in emergencies.

FOR MONTHS THE DEMOCRATS and their allies in the press have been trying to promote discord inside the Republican party by crying out that the President doesn't exercise "strong leadership." It's another one of those vague phrases like "new ideas in foreign policy" which never are defined or made concrete. Mr. Eisenhower said frankly he doesn't believe in a type of "leadership" that tries to knock heads together. He declared:

"I am not one of the desk-pounding type that likes to stick out his jaw and look like he is bossing the show."

Instead, Mr. Eisenhower likes to try persuasion and reason. He has thus given an effective answer to those who forget that there are still 48 states and that the people in those states decide what kind of Republicans or Democrats they wanted to represent them in Washington.

WALTER LIPPMANN

U. S. Policy Shunning Force, Backing U. N., Is Unique Among Big Countries

FOR THE U.N., which finds itself attempting to deal with the two great crises in Hungary and in the Middle East, the critical fact is this: the United States is acting wholly within the legal system of the United Nations whereas the Soviet Union is in the main acting outside that system. The heart of the difference is that the Kremlin is using military force as the instrument of Soviet national policy. The United States, on the other hand, has gone further than any great power has ever gone before to renounce the use of military force except as it might be called for and authorized by a majority of the United Nations.

LIPPMANN

In both crises the course of events is being shaped by this novel, this wholly unprecedented difference in the military philosophies of the two dominant military powers.

• • • •

THUS, the United Nations, or at least a substantial majority of them, have called upon the Soviet Union to desist in Hungary. But as it was certain that they would not oppose the Red Army, the Kremlin has used the Red Army to achieve the Soviet objective. The Red Army, we have seen, is not subject to any of the limitations which the U.N. has wished to impose.

In the Middle East the United Nations have called upon Britain, France, and Israel to desist. They are desisting and they are acknowledging the authority of the U.N. But here again the Soviet is using its military power outside the U.N. It has made threats of military intervention which have never been considered, much less authorized, by the U.N., and it is, unless the available reports are wrong, building up a military bridgehead of its own in the Middle East. The U.N. is being passed by.

• • • •

THE FIRST conclusion to be drawn from all this is not that the United States should decide for a free hand, should in its turn cast off the United Nations, and proceed in its own way to use the influence which its military power can exert. Our first business is to explain to the United Nations this fundamental problem — the problem of the Soviet Union's unilateral use of force as the instrument of its national policy. This should be done, if necessary to give it proper emphasis, by the President in person. For if this problem is not understood by the governments of the world, and its grave potentialities taken to heart, we may all find ourselves on a slippery slope where events are out of control.

Summit Meeting

In adhering to a United Nations policy, we must realize clearly that there are two very different ways of acting on such a policy. One is the way the administration first took, then modified somewhat, but has never seriously reconstructed. This was in essence to treat Britain, France, and Israel as aggressors, to treat Egypt as the innocent victim, and to commit the whole United States influence to the single issue of the withdrawal of military forces.

The other way, which in view of Nasser's record should have been the original way, is to commit our influence in the U.N. insistently and decisively to a solution of the problems which caused the explosion. The U.N. is now being put to its severest test. It it being tested at its weakest point. Its inherent weakness is that it is not, or at least that it has never been, an agency for making peace. It has been only an agency for the making and keeping of truces.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

U. S. Voter Wins His Degree in College of Political Science

IN THIS Presidential election year, the first time since 1848 that a winning candidate didn't carry at least one house of Congress, it became evident that the American voter has won his degree in the college of political science.

No longer does he give either party his undivided loyalty. He has learned, through a long process of education, that no one party, nor its candidates, can rightly lay claim to all of the cardinal virtues.

He now has the basis, through the information he derives from newspapers, magazines, radio, television and other forms of communication, on which to make an intelligent choice at the polls.

And this schooling, if you like, as distinguished from the days when unyielding partisanship was in vogue, has given the voter an independent and selective turn of mind.

Thus, he is able to cast an enthusiastic vote of approval for President Eisenhower and, at the same time, reject the Benders, the McKays, the Langlies and the Thorntons who had Ike's hearty endorsement.

KNIGHT

This significant change in voting habits will be deplored by those of staunch party persuasions. They will say and are saying that the end result will be a breakdown in party responsibility and the two-party system.

Quite frankly, I do not share these fears. On the contrary, it seems to me that the voters' growing independence and selectivity will demand instead a higher calibre of candidates on both sides.

In the future, realistic party leaders will be well advised not to underestimate the public's intelligence. No longer, except in areas where a ward, a congressional district or a state is preponderently Democratic or Republican, can they foist upon the public an array of bumbling party hacks whose only distinction is a long record of party loyalty.

This is a huge gain for America, one of the few nations in the world where unrestricted freedom of expression has given our nation an informed electorate and protected "the people's right to know."

OF FAR MORE CONSEQUENCE than the recent election are the crises in Middle Europe and the Middle East.

The early and hopeful view that followed the uprisings in Hungary has now been dimmed by the brutal and ruthless reprisals of the Russians.

Still, there is much encouragement for the future. The passion for liberty has not been crushed and other stout patriots will rise again to challenge their oppressors.

Furthermore, the free world has witnessed a demonstration of Soviet brutality that will not be soon forgotten. It should be clear at last to all doubting nations that Soviet policy rests upon force, and force alone.

These incredible acts of stupidity by the Russians can only advance the time when the satellite nations must inevitably regain their freedom.

JOHN COWLES, EDITOR and publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, predicted more than a year ago that war in the Middle East was inevitable unless stern measures were taken immediately to prevent it.

But not even the prophetic Mr. Cowles could have foreseen that two of our leading allies, Great Britain and France, would have conspired with Israel to violate the United Nations charter and become aggressor nations.

No amount of emotional rationalization can alter the facts of aggression, nor give the Israeli strike into Egypt any designation other than as an act of "preventive war."

To be sure, the Israelis had many provocations for their full scale retaliation against the Arabs. Years of bloody border clashes produced mounting and almost unbearable tensions while Col. Nasser, the "little dictator of the Nile," scornfully refused to negotiate with the Israelis.

But whatever one's personal view of the Middle East crisis may be, the inescapable fact remains that the United States is facing possible involvement in "another oKrea."

IF PRESIDENT EISENHOWER read the election returns correctly, as I suspect he did, this is exactly what the American people do not want.

They believe he is proceeding properly in assigning the task of peace to the United Nations, rather than recommending unilateral action by the United States.

What a tragedy it is that the United Nations did not implement its charter by forming years ago an elite force of 250,000 men to act promptly in situations such as the one with which we are now confronted in Egypt.

The task before us is complicated by the illness of Secretary Dulles and the lack of adequate replacement from existing State Department personnel. Mr. Dulles, who ran a spectacular "one man show," was never noted for his ability to build a continuing organization.

But we can be grateful that we have a President who is not given to the reckless "off the cuff" decisions that lead to war.

EVER SINCE THE ELECTION, a good many political tears have been shed because the President failed to get a Republican Congress.

In my humble opinion, there is no occasion for sorrow. Since 1954, President Eisenhower has worked well with Democratic majorities in both houses.

LOOKING AHEAD, I SHOULD THINK that the Republican party will be gradually reshaped in the mold of Mr. Eisenhower's "modern Republicanism" which is so amorphous that you simply can't rebel against it.

The Presidential candidate in 1960 will be of the Eisenhower mold, "an economic conservative" and a "humanitarian liberal."

In the next four years, you will see a bitter struggle for control of the Democratic party with the younger senatorial group headed by majority leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas pitted against the forces of Walter Reuther, Gov. Williams of Michigan and other extreme liberal elements.

The feeling is growing in the South and the West that the Democrats cannot win as a radical party in an era when people are becoming more conservative in their economic thinking.

DREW PEARSON

Three Key Issues Hurt Republicans: Farms, Small Business, Public Power

WASHINGTON— Republicans who are frank about the election returns admit that they will have to do something about three key issues: 1, the farm problem; 2, small business; 3, public power. They attribute the gross failure of the Republican party as a party, compared with its leader, to these three issues.

PEARSON

Of the three, the one on which the Republicans took the most clearcut and decisive beating was public power. Almost every candidate who championed the Eisenhower partnership policy with the private utilities was defeated. Here is the roll call of their political disaster:

OREGON — The Democrats swept the state. They elected a Governor, grabbed control of the state legislature for the first time in years, and sent two new congressmen to Washington. In addition, Ike's hand-picked candidate for the Senate, Doug McKay, a former member of the cabinet, was defeated.

• • • •

MONTANA — Rep. Orvin Fjare, Republican, was defeated by L. H. Anderson, Democrat, after Fjare supported Ike's veto of the Yellowtail Dam and reservoir project. Simultaneously Dep. Lee Metcalf, Democrat, who opposed Ike's power policies, was re-elected by a wide margin.

• • • •

IDAHO—Sen. Herman Welker, Republican, was defeated by a young Democratic lawyer, Frank Church, even though Church faced a split Democratic ticket. Welker had been a vociferous buttonholer for the Idaho Power Co. in its battle for Hells Canyon. It did its best to re-elect him, but failed. Congresswoman Gracie Pfost, Democrat, who fought against Idaho Power and for Hells Canyon was re-elected by a big majority.

• • • •

WASHINGTON — Gov. Arthur Langlie, handpicked by the White House to defeat Sen. Warren Magnuson, was defeated. He was made the GOP keynote speaker at the San Francisco convention in order to help him. Ike went all the way to Seattle to speak for him. He lost.

CALIFORNIA—Rep. Leroy Johnson, Republican, was defeated, after 14 years in Congress, by John J. McFall, Democrat. Johnson was an ardent admirer and booster of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. They in turn boosted him. But when the San Joaquin Valley flooded his district and his record against public power was revealed in this column, he was defeated.

• • • •

COLORADO—Ex-Gov. Dan Thornton, close friend and golfing partner of President Eisenhower, was defeated for the Senate by ex-Congressman John Carroll, Democrat. Thornton was head of the GOP Farm Committee, got all kinds of support from GOP leaders. Various factors contributed to his defeat, but one was administratoin lukewarmness toward the Arkansas-Frying Pan Project.

TOWN MEETING

GOP 'Hucksters' Still 'Bleating'

TO THE EDITOR:

I see the bleat of the Republican hucksters remains the same. They cannot stand even the remotest hint of criticism, yet they feel they have the God-given right to condemn, falsely accuse, and self-righteously set themselves up as judges, that they may find all guilty of disloyalty to our country who do not agree with them politically.

• • • • •

WOULD THEY have us believe that the only real Christians and the only real Americans are predominately Republican. Fooey! The maligning of the Democrats, especially as individuals, will stand as a monument to what despicable lengths they will go to gain their own ends. I await the day when this type of creeping sickness is judged for what it is, a malignant growth, able to devour the freedoms this country was founded on.

• • • •

YOUR FAVORITE columnist, David Lawrence, typifies a trait common to all dedicated Republicans in that he repeatedly changes the facts of history and even current events to better suit his prejudices. (Editor's Note: Mr. Lawrence is a long-time Democrat).

It would seem also that all who do not hail Ike as the "Prince of Peace" will indeed be numbered amongst the goats and not the sheep when the division of the heavenly flock is at hand. If this be true, those who set the editorial policy of this paper will slide through the pearly gates with all due speed.

Demagoguery Kicked in Shins

TO THE EDITOR:

American voters turned out in great numbers to give demagoguery a well deserved kick in the shins. There should have been no doubt before the election as to what would happen. The thesis that Mr. Eisenhower, upon reaching the presidency, had allowed himself to become the weak-kneed puppet of politicians and monopolists was even too preposterous for most Democrats to swallow.

ALTHOUGH both houses are Democrat controlled, the overall tone is one of moderation. There are few, if any, New Dealers left, and this indicates that the American people have rejected the pattern of paternalism and centralization set up during the Roosevelt-Truman eras. This return to Jeffersonian concepts is healthy for the Democratic party and for the nation.

• • • •

AMERICA'S growth stems from human initiative, drive, and self confidence. Four years of freedom from government meddling and coddling spelled the death knell to the insidious drift toward socialism. It also brought about a political phenomena where millions crossed party lines to elect a leader of proven ability—a man who they knew could lead them through the perilous times of an uneasy world.

Why Do We Sit Calmly by?

TO THE EDITOR:

Why do we calmly sit by and allow the wholesale slaughter in Hungary? Why do we not help those whose only crime is hunger for freedom?

Make no mistake, it is not the Hungarians' battle alone. If they lose, we lose. We helped encourage these people and then stand by and do nothing when they cry for help. Will this not discourage other Communist satellites from rebellion?

It makes one wonder if all our high-sounded phrases about freedom is only empty hypocrisy. As for me, I'm beginning to lose a little faith in my country. How can we expect the people of the world to look to us for leadership when we remain completely passive in their time of need?

Of course, we do not want another war, but let's face it, sooner or later we shall have one. There can be no such thing as co-existence. One force or the other must triumph. Shall we serenely chalk up another victory to the Communists? No! the time has come to act.

Red Quiz to Call Hawaii Governor

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee said Saturday Gov. Samuel Wilder King of Hawaii will be the first witness at hearings expected to begin Nov. 30 in Honolulu.

The subcommittee is inquiring generally into Soviet activities on United States soil and Communist activities on the waterfront.

Chief Counsel Robert Morris said about 40 witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Holes in Tax Law Studied for Plugging

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House subcommittee next week will begin studying proposals for plugging some tax "loopholes" now open to oilmen, bachelor playboys with mistresses, police officials, bond dealers and others.

The others include some broadcasting concerns, buyers of life insurance, employes of tax-exempt institutions, individuals in high tax brackets and corporations that engage in involved stock-market transactions to avoid or defer payment of income taxes.

A House Ways and Means subcommittee after two weeks of public hearings, starting Monday, will decide whether to recommend changes in the tax laws in the next session of Congress.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), an expert on taxes who believes that Congress can be persuaded over the next several years to make tax law much simpler and more fair. He regards the hearings as only the first step in that direction.

• • • •

IN ADDITION to studying "unintended benefits" now provided for certain taxpayers, the subcommittee will take a look at any "unintended hardships" brought to its attention.

Affected taxpayers have been invited to step forward and testify. But the congressional group doesn't expect to hear any public defense of the tax "loophole" now accorded bachelors with mistresses.

The unconventional type who sets up housekeeping with a woman without marrying her can, under present law, claim a $600 tax exemption by classifying her as a member of his "household."

It seems a safe bet that this incentive to live in sin will be eliminated. Other proposed revisions would affect:

Oil property owners who now can reduce their federal taxes by selling for a flat sum their right to the property's oil, either for a limited time or for a set quantity. Such sales now are taxed at the lower capital-gains-tax rate, rather than the regular income rate.

State and local police officials who can exclude from taxable income as much as $5 a day for subsistence allowances to cover traveling expenses. Some are designating as "subsistence" part of their regular police salary.

Bond dealers — The subcommittee will consider refusing them the right to deduct in certain cases as a loss from other income the premium paid on tax-exempt bonds.

• • • •

BROADCASTING concerns—The subcommittee will consider writing into law a new rule by Federal Communications Commission clamping down on tax deferment on gains realized from sales of stations ordered by FCC.

Expatriates—All U. S. citizens abroad would be required to report back all income earned in other countries to avoid confusion over whether they are validly exempt from U. S. income taxes.

Employes of tax-exempt institutions—some educational organizations are paying some employes all, or almost all, of their compensation in the form of an annuity, which automatically defers income tax on it.

Stock purchases by corporations — Tax rules would be changed to make it more risky for corporations to attempt to reduce their taxes by trading in the stock of other corporations.

Individual stock market profits—Taxpayers would be prohibited from putting off stock-market profits from one tax year to another through use of legal, but fictional, "short-sales."

Corporation executives—New restrictive conditions would be imposed on capital gains treatment of cornered options allowing employes to buy stock at variable prices.

Life insurance—The staff suggested that certain portions of life insurance policies be included in a dead person's estate even though he gave up ownership of the policies before death.

HAWKS SHATTER BUCKEYE STREAK

Oregon State, Iowa in Rose Bowl

'Do-It-Yourself Kit' Turned Trick for Jubilant Hawkeyes

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Rose Bowl bound Hawkeyes returned to a rose-strewn dressing room Saturday and tossed their coach, Forest Evashevski, into the shower after their 6-0 triumph over Ohio State.

Evashevski, grinning happily, was soaking wet before his players would let him emerge.

"I'm extremely proud of the men on the Iowa team," Evashevski said. "I have never seen so few do so much with so little. I want to express my thanks to all my coaching staff. They have done a wonderful job.

"We weren't sure Michigan State could turn the trick against Minnesota, so we went out and got ourselves a do-it-yourself kit," he laughed.

"Our defense was designed to make Ohio State do what they didn't want to do. That was pass. We expected to pass more, but you'll have to ask Kenny Ploen why we didn't. He ran the ball club."

Evashevski said he used a seven diamond defense to block Ohio's passing offense, adding it was much too complicated to explain.

"We weren't sure at any time in the ball game that we had Ohio State beaten. They're a rough, well coached ball team, but our men played them man for man and proved to be stronger," he added.

Coach Woody Hayes imposed a blackout on Ohio State dressing room activity.

He met with newsmen outside the dressing room and refused to let them talk with any of his team.

"Our offense beat us, and their defense was very good. Iowa was just six points better. That's all there is to it," said Hayes.

"Evy hadn't used a seven diamond defense all year. He was gambling. Any time you change, you're gambling. Iowa played good ball, but is not as tough defensively as Penn State was." Penn State beat Ohio State, 7-6.

Hayes later scuffled with a TV cameraman in the Buckeye dressing room. L. W. Ward of station KCRG said he had finished shooting dressing room pictures and was leaving when Hayes grabbed him by both shoulders and demanded the film. Ward, who had a pass to enter the dressing room, said Hayes tossed him onto a pile of equipment but did not get the film.

Vandals Nipped by OSC

By RUSSELL NIELSEN

MOSCOW, Idaho (UP)—Oregon State's Beavers, played off their feet all day, came from behind in the closing seconds Saturday to defeat little Idaho, 14-10, and clinch the Pacific Coast Conference title and Rose Bowl bid.

Oregon State was hopelessly bottled up by the determined Idaho crew, but a blocked goal-line pass and long pass-run late in the game pulled the victory out of the fire and gave OSC its first conference crown and Rose Bowl bid since 1941.

The winning touchdown came on the strength of a 51-yard pass-run from halfback Paul Lowe to halfback Earnel Durden who was spilled on the Idaho three. On fourth down, Lowe ran right end to score with just two minutes left to play.

Until that moment, however, an almost unbelievable upset seemed probable. Oregon State had been able to move into Idaho territory only three times. The deepest penetration was to the 25.

• • • •

IDAHO'S BRUISING line, which mulled vaunted Oregon State's single wing attack constantly, set up the first score when end Lonnie Parks recovered Durden's fumble on Oregon State's 35. Seven plays later halfback Larry Norby plunged four yards for the score and Jerry Kramer converted.

Norby was a demon on offense, ripping through the OSC line time after time for yardage which enabled Idaho to maintain possession of the ball most of the game.

Oregon State, which didn't collect a first down in the first half, earned a big break in the second period. Center Buzz Randall crashed through to block Howard Willis' fourth down pass and Oregon State took over on the Idaho one. Fullback Bob Berry plunged over on the next play and John Clarke converted. The score stood 7-7 halftime.

• • • •

OREGON STATE drove to the Vandal 25 midway through the third period but Idaho took over when a fourth down pass failed. The tide turned in Idaho's favor again early in the fourth period when Durden fumbled a fake punt and the Vandals recovered on State's 35. Idaho moved to the 19 before Kramer angled a 35-yard field goal through the uprights with 2:30 played as the small crowd of about 4,000 dad's day fans roared in anticipation of an upset.

Moments later an Oregon State punt into the wind was downed on the OSC 7, but the Beavers recovered a fumbled lateral on their 15. With time ticking, the desperate Beavers gave the ball to Durden on a fourth and sixth situation on the OSC 28. He picked up the vital first down. A penalty moved OSC back to its 31. Two plays later Lowe stepped back and threw to Durden who caught it on the Idaho 34 and rambled to the Idaho three, setting up the winning score.

• • • •

THUS, OREGON STATE will meet Iowa at Pasadena on New Year's Day in the first Rose Bowl rematch in history. Iowa licked the Beavers last month at Iowa City, 14-13.

Ohio St. Tumbled on Pass

By ED STAINSBURY

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UP)—Iowa bought its passport west to the Rose Bowl Saturday, upsetting Ohio State, 6-0, to break the Buckeyes' 17-game Big Ten winning streak and give the Hawkeyes at least a share of the conference title for the first time in 34 years.

The win, before 57,732 fans, closed Iowa's Big Ten season with five wins and one defeat, a record that Ohio State could equal by beating Michigan next Saturday.

But customarily the Big Ten selects for the Rose Bowl the highest eligible team in the standings and thus Iowa is a cinch for the chance as neither the Buckeyes nor Michigan State can play in the post-season match this year. Never before has Iowa appeared in a bowl game.

No single player stood out in Iowa's victory over the Big Ten's top offensive club which last week set a conference record for rushing against Indiana, Saturday that rushing game broke down completely on Iowa's rugged defense, seventh best in the nation, and Ohio State's deepest penetration into Hawkeye territory was only to the 32.

• • • •

INSTEAD, Hawkeye fans had to salute quarterback Ken Ploen, halfbacks Don Dobrino and Bill Happel, fullback Fred Harris, and such line standouts as Jim Gibbons, Frank Gilliam, Alex Karras, Don Suchy and Dick Klein.

Ploen, calling signals astutely, combined with Gibbons on a 17-yard pass for the only touchdown of the contest. Earlier a pass interference penalty on Ohio State cost 15 yards and put the ball on the 20 to set up the scoring toss. The touchdown climaxed an Iowa spurt from its 37 and the second half kickoff.

Bob Prescott missed the conversion attempt and Iowa fans groaned, but as the Hawkeyes grew stronger their dismay disappeared.

• • • •

IOWA IN THE FINAL period was stronger than in any other session, advancing to Ohio State's 15 before Prescott missed a field goal attempt. And when the Buckeyes began to march from their 20, the Hawkeyes threw them back to the four to take possession and threatened to score again in the final minute.

Statistically there was little to choose between the teams, Ohio State netted 147 yards rushing and Iowa 176. Iowa, with Ploen connecting on 5 to 9 attempts, gained 63 yards in the air and Ohio State netted 18 with two completions in 11 tries.

Hawkeye fans erupted from the stands to carry players and coach Forest Evashevski off the field before the game was over.

Iowa had possession of the ball inside the 5 with time for one more play, which the Hawkeyes declined to take because of the crowd.

Tab Bears Over L.A. in TV Tilt

CHICAGO — (Special) — The Chicago Bears, leading the National Football League in nearly every offensive department, go after their seventh straight win today when they meet the five-times beaten Los Angeles Rams before a sellout crowd of more than 49,000 fans at Wrigley Field.

The Bears, who share the NFL's Western Division lead with Detroit, clipped the Rams, 35-24, in Los Angeles two weeks ago and are favored by 13 points to repeat today. The game will be televised to Southern California over KNXT (2) beginning at 11 a.m.

Both clubs have lost key performers since their last meeting. Perry Jeter, the Bears' tricky rookie breakaway runner, broke his ankle in last week's 38-14 rout of Green Bay and will be sidelined about six weeks. Bobby Watkins, however, has recovered from an early-season injury and is ready to step into Jeter's shoes.

The Rams will be without the services of linebacker Larry Morris, who suffered a knee injury as the Rams broke a five-game losing streak against the 49ers last week. Another doubtful performer for the Rams is Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch, the clubs' leading pass catcher.

LAUD IDAHO LINEMEN

OSC Lucky to Get Out Alive--Prothro

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—"Man, we feel lucky to get out of this one alive," said Oregon State Coach Tommy Prothro after he had seen Idaho almost unravel the ribbon from the Beavers' Rose Bowl package.

"They must have had us awfully well scouted," said a weary Prothro in the dressing room after OSC had scored in the last three minutes to squeak by Idaho 14-10.

"They must have been as sky-high for us as we were for the Stanford game, and spirit can go a long way. I'd say this was a good team we played today. I can see why they've won their last few games.

"I'd much prefer to give Idaho credit for this one—they certainly were ready for it and apparently wanted to win it more than we did."

Prothro said the Beavers would now be thinking only as far as the season windup against traditional foe Oregon.

"We have to get ready now for Oregon and I do believe our kids might get a little more fired up for that one."

Idaho coach Skip Stahley, obviously upset by the Oregon State victory after his valiant Vandals had dominated the game, had little to say in the dressing room.

Later he praised the work of the Idaho linemen.

"Our defense kept (Earnel) Durden and (Paul) Lowe from running on the wide stuff," Stahley said.

He said the Vandals had "kicked" the Beavers around.

"Too bad we couldn't beat them."

UCLA Spills Kansas, 13-0

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—UCLA's Bruins converted two second-half Kansas fumbles into touchdowns here Saturday for a 13-0 victory over the Jayhawkers from the Big Seven in a dull but fiercely-contested defensive struggle before the smallest crowd of the season, a slim gathering of only 21,913 fans.

The Bruins struck for the lead touchdown in the third period after recovering a fumble on the Kansas 13-yard line; then staved off two Jayhawk threats with brilliant defensive play before striking again with only 2:45 left after grabbing another enemy fumble on the 24. Tailback Kirk Wilson scored both UCLA touchdowns.

The intersectional win was the Bruins' seventh triumph of the season against but two losses, while Kansas was sent reeling to its fifth setback against three victories and one tie.

The Bruin victory was achieved in much the same manner that UCLA has posted its key wins this season . . . sensational kicking coupled with aggressive defensive play while waiting for the breaks that were bound to come.

Wilson, the nation's leading collegiate kicker, and Don Shinnick set the stage for UCLA to capitalize on the breaks by keeping the Jayhawkers backed up deep in their own territory most of the afternoon with their towering kicks.

Wilson set a new single-game punting record by netting 232 yards on four tremendous kicks—one a 71-yard beauty that actually traveled 81 yards through the air from the point he kicked it five yards inside the end zone. He averaged 58 yards on the four kicks. Meanwhile, Shinnick netted 238 yards with six punts to give UCLA an overall 47-yard average on 10 kicks.

After the Bruins muffed one scoring opportunity in the sec-

Ducks Outfight SC, 7-0

PORTLAND (UP)—A fighting University of Oregon football team outfought Southern California for an upset 7-0 Pacific Coast Conference victory in muddy Multnomah Stadium Saturday before 14,480 fans.

It was only the second loss of the season for the Trojans, who were battled off their feet by the outweighed Oregon line.

The smooth quarterbacking of Tom Crabtree and a lightning-like 50-yard drive in the second period gave Oregon its touchdown. Charlie Tourville, 167-pound sophomore halfback from Martinez, Cal., carried six times on 10 plays on the touchdown drive for 39 of the 50 yards. He packed the ball over from the three and fullback Jack Morris added his 21st straight conversion.

Southern Cal never got inside the Oregon 30 in the first half. In the second half the Trojans penetrated to the Oregon 13 and 14.

The slippery going obviously bothered the Trojans and their star fullback, C. R. Roberts, although it didn't rain during the game.

End Phil McHugh and two fighting 189-pound guards, Spike Hillstrom and Harry Mondale, were standouts in the Oregon line.

Southern Cal's biggest threat came from passing. Late in the first half quarterback Jim Conroy overthrew halfback Ernie Zampese who was in the clear for what would have been a touchdown.

The Trojans finally solved Oregon's ground attack but they couldn't overcome the spirited line play of Coach Len Casanova's Webfoots.

SC threatened seriously in the final quarter with a spirited and varied attack that moved swiftly from its own 33 to the Duck 13. Runs by Conroy and Zampese, plus an 11-yard pass, Conroy to end Hilliard Hill, kept the drive going, but then Oregon stiffened.

After the Webfoots were forced to punt, SC started right back up the field with halfbacks Tony Ortega and Don Hickman and a Conroy to Roberts lateral whipping them to the Oregon 14. Then Duck halfback Jack Brown intercepted a pass in the end zone.

U.S., RUSSIA RENEW GIANT BATTLE FOR TEAM TITLE

Olympic Games Begin Thursday

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP)—The Melbourne Olympic Games, born on a note of internal discord and rocked by international crisis, open next Thursday in this placid tree-lined city with interest again unavoidably focused on the giant team battle between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Bitter tensions and controversies are comparable to those of 1936 at Berlin when Hitler's goose-stepping legions were lighting the fuse of the Second World War, but the stubborn, hard-working Aussies are determined to make these Games "the most memorable in Olympic history."

The words are those of Wilfred Kent-Hughes, chairman of the Olympic organizing committee who adds, "The Olympic spirit transcends all national boundaries and all national differences."

Sir William Bridgeford, executive officer of the games, says "only a world-wide confragration can stop us. We intend to make this the greatest sports festival of all time."

This determination is reflected in the magnificent sports stage set for some 4,700 athletes from 68 countries assembled here to vie for gold, silver and bronze medals in 16 sports.

The sprawling Melbourne Cricket Ground, scene of featured track and field events as well as the opening ceremony, looks like a painting with its newly constructed brick red track and bright green infield.

Its 104,000 seats and standing space are sold out for the first and final days and both Saturdays of the athletic competition.

Seats in the modern covered swimming pool at nearby Olympic Park have been sold out for months and are being scalped like choice tickets to Broadway's "My Fair Lady."

Originally 75 nations, 6 more than the record list in 1952 at Helsinki, entered the competition but seven withdrawals have left the number at 68.

Those who pulled out of the Games for various reasons were Communist China, Holland, Spain, Switzerland, Egypt, Iraq and Lebanon.

Communist China objected to the admission of Nationalist China forces from Formosa. Egypt, Iraq and Lebanon pulled out as a result of the trouble in the Near East. Holland, Spain and Switzerland stayed out in protest at Russian aggression in Hungary.

The Hungarian team, winner of 16 gold medals at Helsinki and third behind the United States and Russia in the unofficial point standings, is fielding another potent squad headed by Istvan Rozsavolgyi, world record holder at 1,500 meters; Laszlo Tabori, outstanding middle distance man; hammer thrower Jozsef Csermak and two-time boxing champion Laszlo Papp.

The United States and Russia have the strongest delegations in the games — each close to 350 competitors — and they are expected to renew the rivalry started at Helsinki where the United States won unofficial team honors of 614 points to 553½ for Russia.

Uncle Sam picked up 41 gold medals, 19 silver and 17 bronze compared with Russia's 23 gold, 29 silver and 18½ bronze.

This time America again should dominate the men's track and field, winning at least 12 gold medals with star sprinters, hurdlers, 7-foot high jumper Charley Dumas, world record holder in the shotput Parry O'Brien and excellent men in the middle distance.

Russia's hopes lie with distance aces headed by Vladimir Kuts, hop - step - and - jumper Leonid Scherbakov and listed world's record-holder in the hammer throw, Mikhail Krivonosov.

• • • •

KENNETH (TUG) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, calls the American team "over all the best we ever have carried to the Olympics. We will compete in every event and we will be tough to beat in most of them," he said.

The Americans figure strong in men's and women's swimming, diving, rowing, particularly with Yale's 8-oar crew, weightlifting, boxing and basketball.

Russia's main strength lies with its sturdily built women track and field stars, wrestlers and gymnasts, the latter an event in which the Soviet piled up most of its points in 1952.

Some of the world's greatest names either are out of competition or figure to be disappointments, because of the loss of lustre.

Emil Zatopek, whose victories in the 5,000 and 10,000 meter and marathon at Helsinki made him the outstanding individual performer, is here to run for Czechoslovakia but he says he is a tired old man of 34 who will run only in the marathon.

• • • •

JOHN LANDY, Australia's record holder in mile who has been troubled by pulled tendons, said "I don't have it any more," after finishing 120 yards behind England's Chris Brasher in Geelong meet last Wednesday night.

Landy still insists, however, he will run the 1,500 and 5,000 meters.

Sandor Iharos, who set seven world distance marks in the space of two months, is reported ill and is not with the Hungarian team.

Roger Moens, Belgium's world record holder in 800 meters, is out with a groin injury.

The opening ceremony is scheduled for 3 p.m. Thursday (9 p.m. Wednesday, PST) at the Cricket Ground, where the teams will pass in review and the Olympic torch will be lighted in the traditional ceremony.

On Friday the championships will be decided in the 400-meter hurdles, women's discus and 10,000-meter run and competition gets under way on virtually all fronts. First week's schedule:

THURSDAY
Afternoon—Opening ceremony.
Night—Basketball.

FRIDAY
Morning—Fencing (team foils), modern pentathlon (riding), rowing (heats), field hockey, soccer, track and field (high jump trials).
Afternoon — Basketball, weightlifting, fencing (team foils), rowing (heats), field hockey, soccer, track and field (400-meter hurdles 1st round, high-jump final, 100-meter 1st round, 800-meter 1st round, 10-meter 2nd round, 400-meter hurdles 2nd round, 10,000 meters final).

SATURDAY
Morning—Modern pentathlon (fencing), basketball, fencing (team foils), rowing (repechages), field hockey, soccer, track and field (qualifying trials in pole vault, hammer throw and broad jump).
Afternoon — Weightlifting, basketball, boxing, fencing (team foils), soccer, field hockey, rowing (semi-finals), track and field (400-meter hurdles semifinal, hammer throw final, 100-meter semifinal, broad jump final, 800-meter semifinal, 400-meter hurdles final, 100-meter final).
Night—Fencing (team foils), boxing, basketball, weightlifting.

SUNDAY, NOV. 25
No competition.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

U.S. track and field athletes have long considered several events in the Olympics as strictly their own . . . namely the pole vault, high hurdles, shotput and the 400-meter relay.

The Americans, in particular, have always been proud of their supremacy in the sprint relay. After losing to England in 1912, the U.S. has won the event in the last seven Games.

This year at Melbourne we have perhaps the greatest relay team yet formed in Bobby Morrow, Ira Murchison, Thane Baker and Leamon King. Thus, it would be quite a feather in the cups of any foursome that upset the American sprinters.

And reports reveal that Russia is engaged in an all-out campaign to "steal" the relay race from the U.S.

"Stealing" a race in track, of course, does not mean by some unfair tactics, but rather through a successful gamble to score an upset victory.

And the Russians intend to gamble with a new technique in passing the baton in defeat the favored American quartet.

The rapid development of the Russian athletes, of course, has been greatly speeded up by copying through the use of motion pictures of American performers the techniques it has taken U.S. athletes a half-century and longer to develop.

After thoroughly studying the various styles of the athletes in the pictures, the Russians decided on one particular type of form to be used in each event.

Thus, while the styles of the individual American athletes differ greatly in some cases, that of the Russians is stereotyped.

The Russians are always on the look for a way to produce better performances and they have come up with their baton-passing strategy which will figure in the 400-meter relay at Melbourne.

They hope to nullify the Americans' superior speed with the baton pass. The race, of course, is roughly a quarter of a mile around one lap with two of the three baton passes being made on curves.

DON CANHAM, highly-respected track coach at the University of Michigan whose Wolverine teams have won the last four Big Ten championships, recently return from a state department mission to Africa with the inside story of how the Russians plan to "steal" the relay race at Melbourne.

Returning from Africa, Canham stopped off at Rome to watch the Italian Olympic trials and there he met an old friend, Georgi Oberweger, the Italian Olympic coach.

Oberweger had just seen the Russians in a meet in Romania and he revealed that the Russians had mastered a way to pass the baton faster.

In this country, of course, it is conventional for the runner to accept the baton in his right hand. Before he passes it to the next man, he transfers the baton to the left hand while running. U.S. coaches contend this is the most accurate way of handling the baton.

The Russians, however, have become proficient with the "inside pass," using the left hand all the way. This has the advantage of turning the runners toward the pole of the track rather than away from it.

Furthermore, the Russians are using a crouch start instead of the standing start on the baton exchanges. This really is the key to their strategy. When the gun sends the field from the marks, the second man assumes the crouch. He places his left hand on his left thigh so he can glance back under his left shoulder.

CANHAM REPORTS that the Italian coach estimates the Russians can pick up at least two-tenths of a second on each exchange with this innovation because the outgoing men can start faster from the crouch.

"With this method, the Russians figure they have four good sprinters who can beat the four great sprinters of the U.S. by picking up six-tenths of a second with their faster baton changes," Canham says.

In workouts for the Olympics in Melbourne, it is reported that the Russians are coming close to the world record of 39.8 seconds achieved in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin with a team led by the great Jesse Owens.

Meanwhile, Dean Cromwell, former Trojan spike mentor who was head coach of the 1948 American Olympic team, is not concerned about the Russian threat, though.

"The same situation existed at Berlin in 1936," Dean tells us. "I was an assistant coach of the American squad that year and as such was put in charge of the sprint relay team.

"We kept hearing that the Germans had devised a new type of baton pass as well as other bits of strategy that would beat us. In fact, I must admit that many American officials were concerned over this threat by the German sprint team.

"But I was confident all along that we would win, and the American sprinters finally met the German challenge by scoring a sensational victory and setting a world record that still stands.

"And I think the American sprinters will do the same again this time at Melbourne!"

49ERS WIN 3RD IN ROW, 5-3 FOR YEAR

State Blanks Cal Aggies in Finale, 10-0

By JIM MANGAN

A stout defense and some timely punting bottled up the heralded Cal Aggies of Davis, and Long Beach State College rolled to a 10-0 victory in its season finale before 2,300 at Veterans Stadium Saturday night.

It was the third straight win for the 49ers and gave them a season mark of five victories and three losses. The defeat for Davis was only its second in nine games.

Long Beach actually clinched the contest in the second quarter when Stan Guzy blocked Jim Trainor's punt and Jerry Sullivan fell on the ball in the end zone. Harlow Richardson converted.

Just for a safety measure, Richardson added a 10-yard field goal in the third period. It was set up when Joe Rancatore recovered a fumble on the Aggie 31, Ivan Seaton and Richardson then alternated thrusts in moving the ball into position for the try.

• • • •

DAVIS THREATENED only once in the game. A Trainor to Myrel Moore pass for 35 yards and a 10-yard run by John Barovetto gave the visitors a first-down on the State one. But four successive cracks at the mighty Long Beach defensive wall went for naught the ball ending up on the three yard line.

Davis never had a chance after that and only once did it penetrate past its own 40. The hard-charging 49ers' defense—spearheaded by seniors Ron Albertson, Bob Keller, Rancatore, Gene Ashwill and Tom Baldwin and ably assisted by Guzy and Frank Woodhouse—caused the Aggies to fumble nine times.

Aggie coach Will Lotter said after the game that State put so much pressure on his boys they never could get set. He opined that the State defense was as good as Davis had met all year.

Mike DeLotto, 49er coach, stated that it was Long Beach's best game of the year. He was pleased—as were all Long Beach fans—by the punting of Bob Smith. He punted seven times and averaged better than 40 yards to keep Davis in the hole.

JONES NEARS JC BOWL BID

LAUREL, Miss. (AP)—Jones County Junior College swamped East Central at Ellisville, 46 - 15, Saturday night and may have thereby won the East bid to the National Junior College football bowl at Los Angeles, Dec. 15.

Jones, defending champion in the Mississippi JC Conference, wound up in second place behind Pearl River, which completed its season last week undefeated.

Either Coffeyville, Kan., or Joplin, Mo., is expected to be the western representative.

Stevens Nine, Rockets in Park Finale

It's farewell today to the tired wrinkles of Recreation Park's skin diamond and rickety wooden stands.

Next summer a new 3,500-seat steel and concrete grandstand and a grass infield will await local semipro and school teams as well as PCL clubs who plan to schedule more exhibition games here.

But today old Recreation Park will how out feeling some of the same cleats that used its hard and wind-swept clay as a stepping stone to major or minor league stardom.

Chuck Stevens' Long Beach All-Stars will tangle with Bill Feistner's Long Beach Rockets in the finale, scheduled to start at 2:15 p. m.

Feistner has invited all local players who got their start at Recreation Park to participate in the swan song.

Long Beach major leaguers Bob Lemon of the Indians, Lou Berberet of the Senators and Rocky Bridges of the Redlegs will be there, but are prohibited from playing. They cannot play in exhibitions 30 days after the World Series, so they'll probably serve as coaches.

The Rockets, who have a 25-10 record in semipro play this year, will field their usual lineup with Pete Cassidy on the mound.

Stevens, who will play first base for his club, has corralled some topnotch talent, including Eddie Bockman, Jack Graham, Hank Edwards, Clint Conatser and Bobby Sturgeon.

Stevens All-Stars roster: Chuck Stevens, Clint Conatser, Harry Minot, Hank Edwards, Eddie Bockman, Jack Graham, Whitey Thompson, Al Reynolds, Vern Hughes, Bobby Sturgeon, Kenny White, Tom Lloyd, Al Zigelman, Bill Skeeher, Tom Skeeher, Hip Wilson, Dave Rush, Jim George, Tad Herder, Bill Macauley, John Munko, Lee Smith, Vance Thurston.

Rockets roster: Pete Cassidy, Bob Campbell, Clyde Sylvester, Bob Carter, Danny Adams, Ky Peterson, Bill Osterhoudt, Red Negatz, Dennis Cormack, Carbonaro, Smith, Gordon Frank Estes.

Gibson Defeats Fry for Aussie Net Title

SYDNEY (AP)—Althea Gibson of New York, who lost to Shirley Fry in the Wimbledon and U. S. championships, beat her fellow American, 10-8, 6-2, Saturday to win the New South Wales women's tennis title.

Althea then teamed with Neale Fraser of Victoria to beat Shirley and Bob Howe of Australia, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, in the finals of the mixed doubles. Ken Rosewall defeated Fraser for the men's singles title, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Ram Cagers Down Avalon

By JIM HANCHETT

Stan Anderson scored 34 points to lead Millikan High to a 60-50 victory over Avalon High in the Rams' Basketball debut at Avalon Saturday night.

Anderson, a 6-2 junior who starred for the Wilson High Bees last year, connected on 17 of 18 free throws and with Stacy Higgins helped give Millikan control of the backboards. Bob Evans was high-point man for the losers with 16.

In the preliminary, the Avalon Bees defeated Millikan 43-40.

Cowboys Nip Tigers, 20-19

STOCKTON (AP) — Hardin-Simmons' fired-up Cowboys battled College of the Pacific to a standstill Saturday night and added a decisive extra point for a 20-19 upset victory.

Undaunted by a heavier Pacific line, Hardin-Simmons uncorked a powerful running game that caught the favored Tigers off guard. Halfback Dewey Bohling rammed in two touchdowns on the ground to supplement a two-yard scoring pass.

COP quarterback Tom Flores matched Bohling with two touchdowns, one a 15-yard gallop, on the final play of the game. The Tigers got their third tally on a three-yard plunge by halfback Jack Larscheid.

Hardin-Simmons scoring: Touchdowns—Berry 42, pass from Sauer); Bohling 2 (15, run; 1, plunge). Conversions—Money cuff; Bohling.
COP scoring: Touchdowns, Flores 2 (1, plunge; 15, run); Larscheid 13, plunge). Conversion—Allerdice.

Nittany Lions Trip N. Carolina St., 14-7

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Pennsylvania State University defeated North Carolina State, 14-7, Saturday in a bruising ground battle that see-sawed from goal to goal before erupting in a scoring spree with less than four minutes left in the game during which all 21 points were scored.

San Jose St. Wins, 35-28

SAN JOSE (AP) — Sophomore fullback George Cobbs raced 36 yards to break a 28-28 deadlock and give San Jose State a 35-28 victory over Cal of San Luis Obispo Saturday night.

The Spartans scored 21 points in the second period in a contest in which the score was tied four times.

San Jose State quarterback Bob Reinhart, the nation's second ranking passer, threw two touchdown tosses, both to end Bob Dunlvant for 16 and 56 yards, respectively.

CC Lead Lost in Last Period

By BILL CAMPBELL

The Bakersfield College Renegades clinched the 1956 Metropolitan Conference title by turning back spirited Long Beach City College, 14-12, at Bakersfield Saturday night.

Bakersfield, which went into the game in a three-way tie for the league lead with El Camino and Long Beach, took the undisputed title as El Camino was upset by Santa Monica, 7-0. The new Metro champs closed out their conference slate with a 5-2 record.

In finishing on top of the conference grid scramble for the first time since their Junior Rose Bowl championship club turned the trick in 1953, the Renegades became an almost sure bet for a bid to the Potato Bowl in Bakersfield, Dec. 1.

• • • •

IT WAS RENEGADE fullback Charles (Booster) Ellis, leading his team's ground attack when it counted, who plunged over from one yard out in the final period with the decider.

The Vikings, who were protecting a 12-7 lead entering the fourth quarter, had the ball deep in their own territory when disaster struck. Renegade halfback Jim Lester picked off Viking quarterback O'Jay Bourgeois' pass on the LBCC 19 and returned it two yards.

After three plays brought the ball to the seven, Ellis drove to the one, then bulled into the end zone with three minutes gone in the period to put Bakersfield on top. Bill Hill booted his second conversion to end the scoring.

After trailing 7-0 at halftime, Long Beach suddenly came to life. Gausepohl ran back the second half kickoff 31 yards to the LBCC 41. Gausepohl and Dan Wasnick did the carrying as Long Beach drove in six plays to the Renegade 30.

• • • •

WASNICK, WHO gained 71 yards in 11 carries for a 6.4 average, then took a pitchout from Bourgeois and rambled 26 yards to the four. Fullback Dick Romo then scored the first of his two touchdowns on a slant over right tackle to leave the Vikings only a point behind at 7-6. When Bourgeois' PAT attempt hit the crosshar and bounced back it was grim irony for LBCC.

The Vikings held Bakersfield on the Renegades' next series of downs, and with substitute quarterback Tom Klosterman at the controls, LBCC marched 84 yards in six plays for the go-ahead score. Wasnick kept the offensive fire burning on the Vikes' first play from scrimmage as he burst 12 yards to the 28. Gausephol then sprinted for 21 and 33 yards on successive carries. Wasnick followed by churning three yards to the 15 and Romo, on the next play went 15 yards to paydirt around right end to put his club into the lead at 12-7. Bourgeois' attempted conversion was blocked by Renegade guard Biff Musick.

• • • •

AFTER GOING 34 yards in seven plays to the LBCC 22, the Renegades relinquished the ball on downs and the Vikes took over at the outset of the fourth quarter.

However, Lester picked off the fatal Bourgeois pass and Ellis sealed the LBCC doom with his one-yard TD plunge.

Bakersfield took a 7-0 lead with 14:01 remaining in the second quarter driving 73 yards in nine plays with halfback Ned Permenter scoring from the 10.

TIBBS TIRES

Salas Wins Split Nod

Veteran Lauro Salas slugged out a split decision over tiring Tommy Tibbs of Boston Saturday night in a 10-round lightweight bout at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Tibbs built up an early lead on points but faded in the hot and heavy final rounds.

Judge Tommy Hart scored the bout 98-95 for Salas, Judge John Thomas gave it to Tibbs 94-96, and Referee Russ Bradford carded it 98-94 for Salas.

Tartars Win, 15-12

Two touchdowns midway through the second half erased a surprising 12-0 Cameron, Okla., lead and propelled Compton College to a 15-12 victory at Ramsaur Stadium Saturday night.

After a dismal first-half showing, Compton came alive to roll up its ninth straight triumph of the year and move to within one game of a perfect season.

Compton got its touchdowns on a 60-yard drive capped by Tom Beardman's one-yard plunge and a minute later a blocked punt that was turned into the winning margin four plays later. Mike Black kicked an all-important conversion after the first touchdown. Compton added a safety late in the game.

Parsons Seeks Second Straight Grand Prix Title

Johnnie Parsons, 1950 Indianapolis winner from Van Nuys, will be seeking his second 150-lap USAC Grand Prix midget auto race victory over a star-studded field including many "500" veterans and rookies, Thanksgiving night, at Gardena Stadium.

Parsons, 1949 national driving champion, knocked 51 seconds off Dempsey Wilson's old track record in winning last year's traditional midget classic.

More than 30 powerful Offenhausers will try to make the program which will see only the fastest 18 cars in the 150-lap main event. There will be a 15-lap semi-main and a 3-lap trophy dash for the four fastest qualifiers.

Among the Indianapolis veterans set for a crack at the purse of $2500 against 40% of the gate are Johnnie Tolan, 1952 national midget champion from Norwalk; Ray Crawford, 1954 Mexican Road Race winner from Pasadena; Rodger Ward, 1951 national stock car champion from Los Angeles and Johnny Boyd of Fresno.

Arizona State Humbles Wildcats

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona State College ended a four-year drouth in its heated intra-state rivalry with the University of Arizona with a coldly efficient 20-0 victory over the Wildcats Saturday night.

State scored in the first, second and third periods, Bobby Mulgado ran 18 yards over left guard, Dave Graybill plunged one yard and Gene Mitchum caught a 36-yard aerial in the end zone from Graybill.

American Athletes Still Top Prelims

MELBOURNE (AP) — Late Saturday results from the Olympics warmup track and field meet at Bendigo, Australia showed that the Americans were still dominant.

Bobby Morrow, who had been weakened by a virus ailment, set a new Aussie mark of 20.9 seconds in winning the 220-yard dash and then teamed with Ira Murchison, Leamon King and Andy Stanfield to set a new Australian mark of 41.5 seconds in winning the 440-yard relay.

Josh Culbreath won the 880-yard run in 30.5 and Tom Courtney captured the 440-yard event in 47.3.

In a warmup meet between the Australian and United States women's teams at Melbourne, Earlene Brown of Los Angeles won both the discus and shotput. Mrs. Brown's heave of 154 feet was a new Aussie mark in the discus as was her 48-11¼ effort in the shotput. Pamela Kurrell of San Francisco was second in the discus with a toss of 142 feet.

Russia's Olympic basketball team, favored to go to the finals against the U.S., thrashed a Melbourne Victorian squad, 124-37, while Russia's giant seven-foot plus player, Janis Krumish, sat out the game.

Bob Richards cleared the bar in his first try at 14-9 while practicing his pole vault specialty.

Meanwhile, Kenneth L. Tug Wilson, U. S. Olympic Committee president, backed the Swiss in appealing to President Eisenhower for a transport to get the Swiss team to the Olympics. The Swiss are stranded since that country's airlines are occupied with ferrying United Nations soldiers to the Suez Canal Zone.

Michigan Rips Hoosiers

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP)—Halfback Terry Barr proved that his often-injured ankle was finally healed Saturday by racing for three touchdowns to lead Michigan to a 49-26 Big Ten victory over Indiana.

Barr scored on a one-yard plunge and on runs of 16 and 28 yards. He also completed a 39-yard pass to end Ron Kramer, was on the receiving end of 38-yard aerial and returned a punt 17 yards.

Ed Shannon, second string right halfback behind Barr, accounted for two of Michigan's touchdowns. Thus, all but two of the Wolverines' scores came from the right halfback position.

Sophomore fullback John Hernstein plunged a yard to give Michigan a first period lead after Indiana had fumbled on its own eight.

Barr set up Michigan's second touchdown by returning a punt 17 yards, and then grabbing a 38-yard pass from Jim Pace. He finally scored the touchdown with a one-yard plunge.

Shannon scored the next two touchdowns, both on five-yard runs around end, and Bob Ptacek passed 20 yards to Mike Shatusky for another score to push Michigan's lead to 35-0 at halftime.

Indiana fought back gamely with a three-touchdown outburst in the third period. Jim Yore plunged for two of the scores and Dave Whitsell grabbed a 13-yard pass from quarterback Tom McDonald for the other.

But Michigan scored once in the period on Barr's 16-yard run and Barr came back for another score in the fourth period on a 26-yard end sweep.

The Hoosiers scored in the closing minutes when Norm Mackin, a fourth-string quarterback, connected with John Aveni on a 50-yard pass.

A&M Downs Owls, 21-7

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Undefeated Texas A&M, the center of a boiling controversy with the NCAA for allegedly bad recruiting practices, clinched at least a tie for the Southwest Conference championship Saturday by beating Rice 21-7.

The Aggies struck for three touchdowns in the first half under the inspiration of a fleet of hard-running backs headed by halfbacks Loyd Taylor and John Crow and fullback Jack Pardee.

Rice scored its lone touchdown midway in the third period when quarterback King Hill plunged over from the one to climax a 57-yard march.

Pardee plunged over from the four to score early in the opening period, capping a 63-yard drive which took 11 plays, for A&M's first score.

The hard-driving, 198-pound Pardee scored again early in the second quarter, jumping over center for the final yard.

Center Lloyd Hale set the stage for A&M's third touchdown when he recovered a fumble by Rice halfback Ken Williams on the Rice 35. Taylor circled his left end and sprinted 22 yards for the score.

Cougars Jolt Cal in Grudge Battle

BERKELEY (UP)—Aerial minded Washington State, led by the passing arm of sophomore Bob Newman, upset California, 14-13, Saturday before 34,000 fans and dumped the hapless Bears into the Pacific Coast Conference cellar.

California saw its chance for at least a tie fizzle in the last three minutes of play on a fumbled high pass from center on Cal's second conversion attempt.

It was a grudge battle in as much as Coach Jim Sutherland of the Cougars, fired by Cal Coach Pappy Waldorf two seasons ago in a dispute centering on the fabled Ronnie Knox, came to Berkeley wanting nothing more than a victory over the Bears.

• • • •

WASHINGTON STATE scored in the first period on a five-yard pass from Newman to end Lewis Turner. Cal tied it at 7-7 in the second quarter on a 54-yard drive capped by Jack Hart's four-yard end run.

The Cougars went ahead in the final period on a 43-yard march, Ed Stevens going over from the four, only to have the Bears grind out 61 yards with the return kickoff, Jerry Drew scoring from the one.

Wildcats Nip Purdue, 14-0

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP)—Northwestern guard Al Viola recovered four of seven Purdue fumbles Saturday, all of them deep in Boilermaker territory, and the Wildcats took advantage of the breaks to chalk up a 14-0 upset victory.

Purdue never penetrated beyond Northwestern's 33, and they couldn't get there until the game's last play. In desperation, the Boilermakers called injured Len Dawson off the bench. But the star quarterback favored his bad arm and avoided contact, fumbling twice.

HOPPER QUITS

Unexpected Resignation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clay Hopper resigned Saturday as manager of the Hollywood Stars and indicated he may end his baseball career.

Hopper, who was Jackie Robinson's first manager in organized baseball, sent a telegram of resignation. President Bob Cobb of the Stars said he accepted the resignation "with reluctance."

Hopper gave no reason for his decision and club officials said the resignation was unexpected.

Cadets Bow to Panthers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Quarterback Corny Salvaterra scored one touchdown and figured in two others Saturday as Pitt's bowl-minded Panthers defeated a speedy Army team, 20-7.

Salvaterra scored on a 14-yard run with a minute and 59 seconds remaining in the second quarter. He engineered a 47-yard drive, which he climaxed with a nine-yard pitchout to Dick Bowen in the third period.

• • • •

PITT'S THIRD touchdown, which came after a 50-yard sustained drive, was a seven-yard pass from Salvaterra to Dick Scherer.

Bob Kyasky, Army's speedy fullback, scored the Cadets' only touchdown on a 14-yard run in the second period.

RATTLED SMU GOBBLED BY RAZORBACKS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Arkansas found a hidden lode of southack talent Saturday and shook four different ballcarriers loose for long gains to beat Southern Methodist, 27-13, before a crowd of 34,000.

Still rattled by the 33-7 walloping they took from Texas A&M last week, the Mustangs were unable to get an effective attack under way.

Quarterback Don Christian went 30 yards for the first Arkansas score. Halfback Ronnie Underwood scored on a 43-yard run, Donnie Stone tallied on another 43-yard run, and James Monroe scored from four yards out after setting up the touchdown with a 26-yard sneak up the middle.

Sooners Roll to 67-14 Win

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — Top-ranked Oklahoma beat Missouri, 67-14, Saturday to win its 38th consecutive victory and ninth straight Big Seven Conference Championship.

Missouri's debacle ruined the Orange Bowl hopes for Don Faurot's squad and assured Colorado of a bid to the Miami extravaganza Jan. 1. Oklahoma cannot repeat in the Orange Bowl.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners, rolling at more than a point a minute, didn't allow Missouri to score until the final quarter when Wilkinson sent his third and fourth units into the game.

All-America candidate Tommy McDonald, playing less than half the game, led the Oklahoma ground drive with 136 yards in 11 carries. The Albuquerque, N.M., halfback raced 58 and 23 yards for two touchdowns, passed for another and intercepted two Missouri passes. He was the favorite of the 57,000 who saw the game.

His scoring twin, right halfback Clendon Thomas, got two touchdowns also. Missouri fourth string quarterback Kenneth Clemensen passed to right half Fred Henger for one Missouri touchdown and to left end George Boucher for the other.

Hornung One-Mans Tarheels

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP) — Paul Hornung scored all Notre Dame points Saturday, plunging for the winning touchdown with a minute and 16 seconds to go in leading the Irish to a 21-14 victory over North Carolina and breaking a five-game losing streak.

His first pass completion of the game sailed 58 yards to Jim Morse and opened the way for the first touchdown with Hornung taking it over from the three. Center Ed Sullivan intercepted a pass shortly afterward to get the Irish on the way for another score.

Aubrey Lewis scampered 78 yards along the right sidelines, putting the ball on the 15. Four plays later Hornung went over from the three.

Notre Dame took over on its own 37 with less than four minutes to play and moved it to the 13. Hornung and Jim Milota pounded the Tarheel line for 11 yards in four plays and Hornung went over for the winning touchdown.

Yale Routs Princeton

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Once-beaten Yale, a sputtering but successful football machine this season, rose to its greatest heights Saturday, unfolding a striking display of running and passing power to knock Princeton from the unbeaten ranks, 42-20, before a crowd of 67,000 in Yale bowl.

Striking for five touchdowns in the first half and adding a sixth in the third period, the Eli satisfied their most ardent admirers with a brilliantly-executed offensive game, rolling up 271 yards on the ground and 176 in the air.

It was the highest score run up against Princeton in 13 years and the second highest score by Yale in the 83-year series.

McDONALD SCORES FOR SOONERS

Oklahoma all-America halfback Tommy McDonald spurts into end zone from 23 yards out, leaving would-be Missouri tackler on ground. McDonald ran 57 yards to another TD and also passed to Clendon Thomas for an Oklahoma score in 67-14 rout. —(AP Wirephoto.)

Rebs Ruined by Vols, 27-7

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fullback Carl Smith scored the touchdowns as Tennessee rolled past Mississippi, 27-7, Saturday to remain unbeaten and untied.

A throng of 42,000 saw the Vols yield a touchdown to the fired-up Rebels on the opening kickoff and strike back viciously for their sixth straight victory of the season.

Smith, 190-pound sophomore reserve, supplied the momentum as the Vols ripped apart Mississippi's defenses for 383 yards rushing and passing.

• • • •

MISSISSIPPI had gone into the game with the best defense, statistically, of any college football team in the country. In previous contests, the Rebels had yielded only 163.6 yards a game.

Tennessee got its single wing powerhouse rolling in the second period with Smith plunging from the one.

The Vols added two more in the third period on a 52-yard runback of an intercepted pass by fullback Tommy Bronson and a 31-yard run by Smith.

Smith put the frosting on the cake with a 12-yard touchdown gallop late in the fourth quarter.

Mississippi moved 69 yards with the opening kickoff for its score, quarterback Ray Brown sneaking around right end from the two. Brown's passing was Mississippi's only weapon.

Navy Wins Mud Bath

BALTIMORE (AP)—Navy got the better of a game of swap with a slippery football Saturday and substitute halfback Chet Burchett slithered for three touchdowns to give the Middies a 34-7 victory over Virginia during a steady downpour at Memorial Stadium.

The game abounded in fumbles and pass interceptions.

Both teams still passed frequently with two by Virginia backfiring into touchdowns on interceptions. Although Virginia stole three passes, it was the timely aerial work by quarterback Tom Forrestal that carried Navy to two of its scores.

Swink Finally Roars, 46-0

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Christian's all-America Jim Swink ran wild in Amon Carter Stadium Saturday to score four touchdowns and smash the University of Texas, 46-0. He shattered the all-time Southwest Conference ground rushing record in doing it.

It was a brilliant form reversal for the climax racer, who, until Saturday, had shown none of his old sparkle this season. In seven previous games, he had scored only two touchdowns and two extra points for a total of 14.

Swink scored once on a lightning-like run of 72 yards the first time he got the ball. He scored again from the six-inch line, and twice on passes from Charles Curtis for 32 and 25 yards.

SHOFNER STARS

Bears Speed By Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—Halfback Delbert Shofner scored on touchdown runs of 91 and 17 yards Saturday to lead the speedy Baylor Bears past Nebraska, 20-7.

Shofner, a 180-pound speedster, steered his way 91 yards behind expert blocking at the start of the fourth period after fielding a kick on his own nine. The scoring run put the Bears in front, 19-7, at that point, and Nebraska's determined but outnumbered squad never mounted another threat.

Gophers Outlast Spartans

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Defiant Minnesota, firing one last supreme bid for a Rose Bowl trip that was snatched from them by Iowa's victory over Ohio State, slashed 70 yards in an all-or-nothing drive that upset Michigan State, 14-13, Saturday and knocked the Spartans out of the Big Ten title running.

Quarterback Dick Larson, taking over for the heroic Bobby Cox in the fourth period, fused a Minnesota comeback which climaxed with fullback Bob Blakeley's 27-yard touchdown run.

Dick Borstad kicked the game-winning extra point.

• • • •

THE GOPHERS rolled back one final Michigan State passing offensive in the dying minutes before a chilled crowd of 62,478.

For three quarters, Cox, almost alone as a Minnesota offensive threat, held off the manpower-rich Spartans. Twice he intercepted passes to either start Minnesota goalward or blunt the Spartan onslaught. Cox ran for 128 yards in 24 carries.

Cox sent the Gophers into the lead with 28 seconds remaining in the first half with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Dave Lindblom. Borstad's first try for the conversion missed, but a Spartan penalty gave him a second chance. His next try was perfect.

• • • •

MICHIGAN STATE, the third-ranked team in the land, rolled 78 yards after the second half kickoff to tie the score. Quarterback Pat Wilson hammered over from the three on the 12th play.

The Spartans in the fourth period paraded 86 yards in 19 plays with Wilson going over on fourth down from the one foot line, Mike Panitch missed the extra point.

New Contract

The Minnesota Board of Regents offered football coach Murray Warmath a new 5-year contract Saturday even though his present 4-year pact still has a year to run. Warmath immediately accepted the new contract.

Tide Nemesis Sparks Tech to 27-0 Win

ATLANTA (UP) — Halfback Jimmy Thompson, a 148-pounder who likes to beat Alabama, tore the heart of a fighting Crimson Tide team Saturday when he turned a faulty signal into a 48-yard touchdown gallop that sparked a 27-0 Georgia Tech victory before 38,500.

Trailing 7-0, Alabama was making a fight out of it late in the third period when halfback Paul Rotenberry nearly fumbled, then pitched to Thompson.

The little Bessemer, Ala., speedster streaked 48 yards down the sidelines behind savage blocking for the score.

Thompson, who scored two touchdowns to beat Alabama in 1954 and scored on a long pass interception against the Tide last year, was not the only Tech standout Saturday, but it was his run that broke open a tight defensive struggle.

Toppy Vann, Tech's overworked second string quarterback, connected on 13 of 19 passes for 159 yards and a touchdown.

Huskies Sink Fumbling Tribe

PALO ALTO (UP) — Washington's Huskies, a team which had been laughed at all season for its fumbling, jammed two of them down Stanford's throat Saturday and outplayed the Indians to score a 34-13 upset victory before a stunned crowd of 21,000. In all, Stanford lost the ball five times on fumbles.

Three of Washington's tallies came on sustained drives of 66, 84 and 49 yards while two others were the result of Indian bobbles. Quarterback Al Ferguson had a five-for-five passing record good for 141 yards and one TD.

Don McCumby, a 235-pound Washington tackle, gave an indication of what was in store when he grabbed an airline bobble by halfback Gordy Young and lumbered 70 yards for the first Husky touchdown.

The Indians squared things three minutes later by marching 80 yards in eight plays with Lou Valli going over from the eight.

Washington scored twice more in the second period as halfback Dean Derby tallied from three yards out and Mike McCluskey boomed over from two yards away.

John Brodie hit six passes for 56 yards to start the second half with an 84-yard scoring drive that Doug Dick climaxed with a three-yard run, but Washington added two more TDs on Ferguson's 38-yard pass play to Luther Carr and Credell Green's three-yard plunge.

Washington's massive line, led by tackle George Strugar, guard Whitey Core and center Ben Hammond, ran Brodie ragged, yet he was able to complete 20 of 26 passes for 173 yards to become the school's all-time aerial yardage leader.

In This Corner
with DICK ZEHMS

Random reporting . . .

ALL TIDIED UP. Buddy Daley, the crafty young Long Beach lefthander, must be living the perfect life in Cuba this winter. He should be devoid of regrets, unless the balmy weather has made his mind conjure up a new one or two.

When Buddy was ready to report to the Cleveland Indian spring training camp late last February, he confided to This Corner that his one regret was the fact that he had never played on a first division or championship team in six years of professional duty.

This thought alone made him anticipate the wonders of the future, for the Indians most surely would be a first-division American League finisher—providing he was still around to enjoy the rare experience.

He wasn't. Al Lopez sent him down to Indianapolis July 1. He took the demotion in style, which is characteristic of Buddy's fighting spirit. Thereupon, he went to work. He helped pitch the Little Indians to the American Association pennant with an 11-1 season and a 2.31 earned run average, best percentage and lowest ERA in the circuit.

Buddy added victories in the AA playoffs and Junior World Series, finishing 13-1. This was his finest season — two championships. Thus the regret vanished—for $1,637.10 in playoff loot, Daley collected $400.75 for his share of the pennant pot, $230.47 for the playoffs and $1,005.88 for the little series.

Now he is spending the winter pitching for Cienfuegos in the Cuban League. He has plenty of time to reminisce in tropical surroundings. He has lived the rags-to-riches story.

If I know Buddy rightly, this taste of success will only whet his appetite for more of the same . . . with the Cleveland club in 1957. A 13-1 record and 2.31 ERA should be his passport to a full season in the big leagues.

TRIBUTE. More than 100 reservations have been made by former Polyites for the dinner Monday night at Mike Dimas' Coast Inn honoring Walter W. Bell, who will bow out of the local prep physical education picture next June after 30 years of honorable service.

As boys' physical education director at Poly, Walter has guided many a youngster down the path to athletic success. He has spent 29 years on the Poly job. The old guard will be out in force to say thanks.

DIPLOMAT. Buck Shaw and the members of his Air Force Academy football team were guests of the Los Angeles Rams at the Coliseum last Sunday. Buck's old alma mater, the San Francisco 49ers, provided the opposition.

Several radio and television broadcasters invited Buck to appear on their programs at halftime. Buck begged off.

All of which once again emphasizes the greatness of the man who was so indelicately fired by the 49ers owners, Tony and Vic Morabito, a few years ago after nine seasons at the 49er helm.

ACME. Don Shinnick has been kicked around from pillar to post at UCLA in his varsity career. He always seemed to be playing behind somebody who was a shade the better.

Firm of mind, however, Don stuck it out to scale the heights of a hero in UCLA's 14-13 victory over Stanford. Don, you see, was the crasher who blocked the second Indian extra point try—the margin of victory. Of him Bruin coach Henry Sanders said the other day:

"Shinnick would have been the first man I would have picked for the West team in the Shrine game had I been the coach this year.

Fitting balm, indeed, for the trying days of the past.

THE LONG ONE. Don Larsen's perfect game in the last World Series was a longer shot than some people suspect. A figure filbert analyzed it this way:

Charley Robertson pitched the last perfect game in 1922. The two leagues play about 1,232 games annually. This figure, multiplied by the intervening 34 years, amounts to 41,888 games. Toss in 34 World Series, and the figures soar to 42,000.

Therefore, the odds against a perfecto are at least 42,000-1.

FINALE. The Lynn Waldorf era at California should come to an end next Saturday when Stanford and the Golden Bears play their "big game."

Reports persist that Pappy is finished at Berkley—something of his own doing. Look for the genial cigar-smoker to wind up in an athletic director's chair far from these Pacific shores.

CUTE TRICK AND CUTE CHIC

Cute Trick, one of the top horses on the grounds, is led by lovely Rosemarie Bush, in preparation for 23-day all-quarter horse meeting beginning Tuesday at Los Alamitos Race Course. Cute Trick won the Pomona Fututrity at L. A. County Fair.

SEASON STARTS TUESDAY

Card Top Stake at Los Alamitos

Sensational Go Man Go, quarter horse racing's answer to jet propulsion, Saturday headed a field of 11 starters named through the entry box for Tuesday's opening day feature at Los Alamitos Race Course, the $5,000 Clabbertown G. Stakes.

The Clabbertown G., a 350-yard test for 3-year-olds and up, also drew the overnight entry of two other outstanding 3-year-olds in Bob's Folly and Sure Now.

Bob's Folly is the world record holder for 440 yards, having established a new mark of 21.9 seconds for the distance in his last start, while Sure Now is the colt who handed Go Man Go the only defeat of his juvenile year.

• • • •

THE OTHERS named for the Clabbertown G. were Red Josette, Dividend, Vanetta Dee, Diamond Mac, Bobbie Leo, Pokey Vandy, Rocket Bar and Clabber Juan. The latter will start only in the event one of the others is scratched.

• • • •

Go Man Go, Bob's Folly and Sure Now will carry 120 pounds each under the allowance conditions of the race, Clabber Juan 116 and the others 122.

• • • •

FULL FIELDS were named for all eight races on the program, the best opening day card in the eight seasons the friendly Orange County course has been in operation, but not even Racing Secretary Edward Burke anticipated that the Clabbertown G., which was designed as a tuneup for the bigger stakes later in the season, would draw the entry of almost every top quarter horse in the land.

Go Man Go's entry had been anticipated, but Sure Now and Bob's Folly were expected to duck him and go instead in Thursday's $5,000 Thanksgiving Day Stakes for 3-year-olds.

Shift Franchise?

OMAHA (AP) — Des Moines, Iowa, appeared to be in the driver's seat Saturday as American Assn. directors met to discuss a possible replacement for the debt-ridden Louisville baseball club.

Bob Kelley Says---

CHICAGO—Planing out here on Friday, there was as much conversation about the NFL draft a week from Monday as the game with the Bears in Wrigley Field. Somehow, would you believe it, someone mentioned the Knoxes.

"Ronnie Knox may go in the first round, and then again he may not," Tex Schramm said in reply to my query. "He's quite a football player, everyone knows that. But you've got three other good quarterbacks—Hornung, Brodie and Dawson—and they don't have Canadian contracts or stepfathers."

I asked Tex if the Rams would draft Ronnie, an he said: "You never know." However, Sid Gillman was not quite as cagey as he cut in to say:

"We are pretty well off at quarterback. I doubt very much if we will make any effort to land Knox. After all, I'm busy enough during the football season without having to handle a coach up in the stands, too."

Wonder who he meant by that? Sid went on to hint further, as he added: "I'm no egotist; I don't think I could handle the old man."

Patting Gillman on the shoulder blades, I told him: "I've got news for you. There isn't a coach or an owner in football who can handle Harvey . . . Paul Brown included."

Speculation among the Ram higher echelon is that Brown is the best bet to take Ronnie as a high choice, maybe even in the first round. Of course, with Cleveland's poor record at the moment, they might be among the top teams choosing in the first round. There is an outside chance either John Brodie or Len Dawson will still be available; Hornung, I think, will go as the bonus pick to either the Cardinals or Green Bay.

Should either Brodie or Dawson be up for grabs when Cleveland's turn comes, and it isn't too likely, even Brown would shy away from Harve and pick the boy from Purdue or the one from Stanford.

If they're gone, however, don't be surprised if the supreme ego of P.E.B. asserts itself, and he boldly implies he can handle Harvey by taking Ronnie as Cleveland's first choice. Should the Browns pass him up, most insiders don't think Ronnie will go before the second or third rounds.

Now, I get along splendidly with Harve myself—maybe because I am not a football coach. But, to be honest, Ronnie would be a cinch first round choice were it not for papa. Coaches around the NFL figure they are under enough pressure without asking for more.

I know for a fact that most of the owners in the league are hot for their teams to draft Ronnie—not only for his ability, but the attendant gate attraction he and Harvey would be. As I said, the coaches look at it a little differently.

And except for the case of George Preston Marshall at Washington, most of the coaches are in a position to veto the owners' wishes.

THIS COLUMN is being written late Saturday afternoon, so I can't say for sure, but I'm willing to bet one of the most nervous players on the Ram squad before the game with the Bears will be Elroy Hirsch. Not that Elroy is especially frightened by the Bears; he's that way before every game.

On the plane ride out here, I sat down next to Hirsch and the subject of pre-game jitters came up. "Kel," he said, "I'm as bad this season as I was before my first game in high school, and that's pretty close to 20 years ago.

"From the time I get up on Sunday morning till the kickoff, my stomach is tied in knots." I told Hirsch it didn't show, and he grinned:

"It DOESN'T? Well, I guess I should be an actor then. However, everything's all right when the game starts. You forget all about it and play ball. I'd much rather be belted right in the middle of the back by a 220-pound linebacker than spend those last couple of hours before a game."

I didn't want to embarrass Elroy by saying it then, but this pre-game apprehension is what has made him such a great player for so many seasons. Where others grow blase and indifferent after a couple of years in the league, Hirsch still effuses the eagerness of a high school kid. He still loves to win.

Wish we had a few more like him.

RACING ROUNDUP

Favorites Win as Sulkies End Meet

Jean Laird and Time's Square, runners-up in the American Classics, proved again Saturday they could handle 'em all but the champions, when they shared honors by winning the getaway day features as Western Harness Racing Association closed out its 33-day fall season.

The meeting proved to be one of the best in WHRA annals for, besides drawing the greatest collection of horses and drivers in the organization's history the daily average attendance was up 1.3 per cent over last fall and the daily mutuel handle also showed an increase of 1.2 per cent over 1955.

Jean Laird, who ended Scott Frost's sensational win streak at 17 straight in winning the second leg of the Trotting Classic but bowed to Saul Camp's champion in the other two dashes, was an easy winner in the $7,500 Sunset Trot. Eddie Cobb piloted him to a length and a quarter win over Scotch Valley in 2.00 3/5.

A half-hour later Cobb came back with his crack pacer, Time's Square, to grab a thrilling nose victory in 2:01 3/5 from Dale Frost in the $10,000 Consolation Pace which was open to all American Pacing Classic starters But Dottie's Pick, winner from Time's Square in both heats.

The only mar on the day's racing was a first race spill. Most seriously injured was Joe O'Brien, the grand circuit driving king, who suffered fractures of both ankles. Driver Ed Shaw suffered a concussion and a badly cut lip.

Cobb wound up the meeting as the leading reinsman, bringing home 19 winners in 89 starts. Joe Lighthill and Clarence Hansen followed with 13 and 12 respectively. Scott Frost was named horse of the meet for the second straight year. Dottie' Pick got all the votes as the best pacing filly or mare and was voted the best pacer among both sexes.

SAN MATEO (UP) — Count Chic defeated the Argentinian horse Holandes 2nd by a head in the $15,000 Villa Handicap at Bay Meadows as the 1-5 favorite Bobby Brocato ran fourth. The latter's stablemate, Lover Boy, was third.

PLENTY OF TIME, BLOCKING FINE, BUT WILSON-TO-WALLEN PASS GOES FOR NAUGHT

The sequence camera shows (1) UCLA's Kirk Wilson fading back to his right behind bevy of blockers (2) who erase Kansas linemen. 'Bruins Wait, Then Strike'

By DICK ZEIMS

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—"It's the same old story. Give UCLA a fumble inside the 20, and you get beat."

Personable Chuck Mathers, coach of the Kansas Jayhawks, was doing the talking in the Kansas dressing room here Saturday after his Big Seven Conference club had suffered a 13-0 pasting at the hands of the Bruins.

"We know that UCLA doesn't treat us like it does a team in its own conference," he went on, "but they always seem to be just a little better than their opponents.

"They're not the same as Oklahoma, of course. They play a different type of game. The Bruins are opportunists. They have great poise. They simply wait for the breaks to come. Then they strike. It takes great discipline to play that way and not get erratic or excited. They execute this style better than any team I've ever seen.

• • • •

"UCLA HAS THE best inexperienced team I have seen. I wish we could get some inexperienced boys like Coach (Henry) Sanders has. We play only three seniors on each of our first two units, but I didn't see much of a parallel out there today."

The former Massilon High School, Ohio, coach, now finishing his third season with the Kansans, paid Kirk Wilson, Bruin tailback who set a new Pacific Coast Conference punting record, the supreme compliment.

"Wilson ran well in scoring territory," he said, "and I was even more disturbed by his punting. We knew he was No. 1 in the country. Still, my boys didn't play back far enough."

What about the heat? "Yes, the heat bothered us," Chuck replied. "The boys were pretty dead in the last half. They kept complaining about no energy."

The chief instrument of defeat for the Kansans was, as has been the case all season for the Bruins, the fine UCLA line.

• • • •

"THE COMPLETE defensive line of the Bruins impressed me," said Mathers. "You don't fail to make it on third and one, then fumble, on fourth and one, and expect to win against UCLA."

As usual, Sanders was humble in victory.

"We didn't play a very good first half," he began, "and then we performed creditably in the last half. I imagine we'll have to play a lot better against SC next Saturday.

"We're hurting personnel-wise. When we lose men like Penner, Griffin and Long, we don't have much depth.

"Of course, we are pleased with any win. I can't find anything really wrong out there today. However, we can't play a high-spirited game every week.

"I don't have to see the pictures to tell you about Esker Harris. He was tremendous. That Harris! I don't know how any guard can play any better. He is the deadliest pass rusher I have seen. When he goes after the passer, he's a dead bird. Jim Salsbury could do some things better than Harris, but Esker is the better man all over the field."

• • • •

THIS WAS RED'S salute to the Negro guard who has been supreme in his line play this season. Then he hailed the work of Wilson, his tailback.

"The ball seems to get new life about 40 yards out when Wilson kicks it," he said. "I think Kirk's punts are jet-propelled. You know, he doesn't kick that well in practice. Wilson had a fine game, except for his signal-calling. I'm glad he's around."

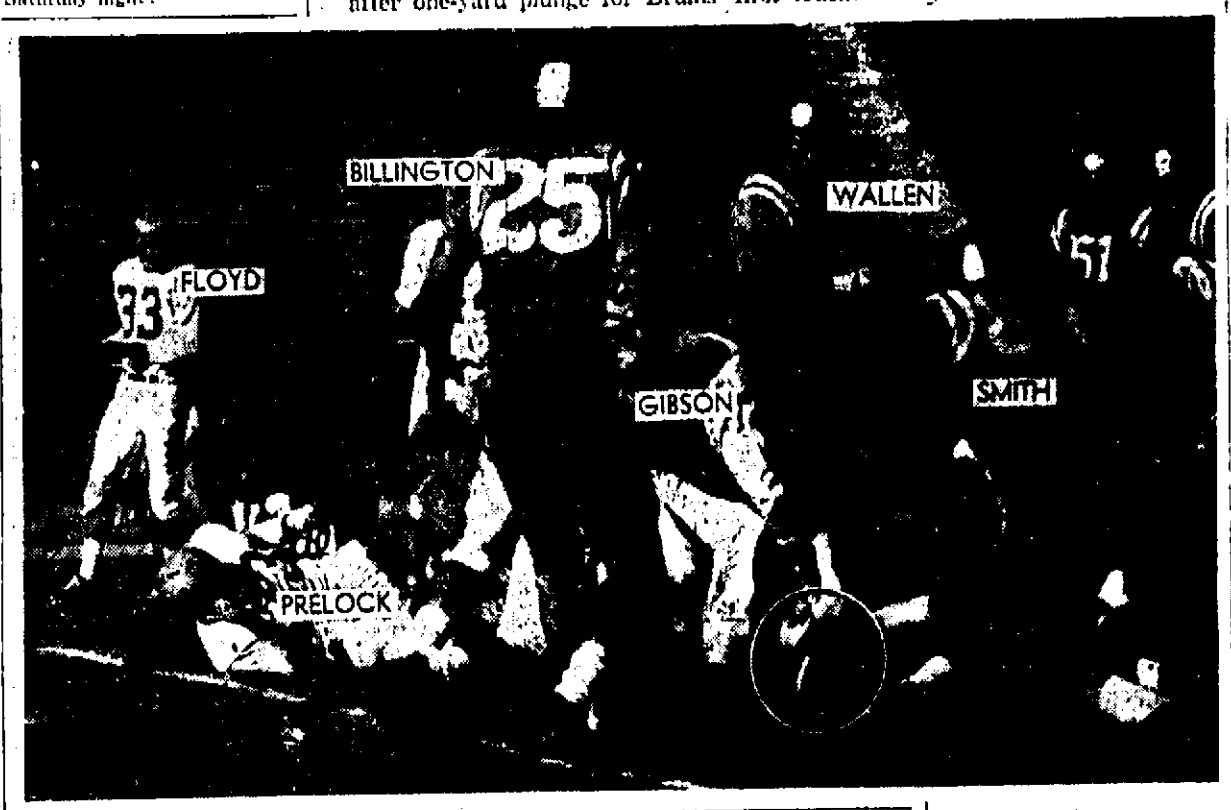

Kirk boomed one punt 81 yards from five yards back in the end zone. The Bruins also had Don Shinnick doing some punting chores because, as Sanders put it, "Don kicks the better squib."

Wilson got the game ball. Wonder who will get it next Saturday night?

43 POINTS BY BROWN: 61-7

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Halfback Jim Brown scored 43 points to lead Syracuse to a 61-7 win over Colgate before 39,701 fans Saturday.

Brown rolled up 197 yards rushing in scoring six touchdowns in his final appearance for the Orange. The all-America candidate, who converted seven out of eight times, also broke the school's all-time rushing record with 986 yards in eight games.

Syracuse	20	7	21	13	—61
Colgate	7	0	0	0	— 7

Syracuse scoring: Touchdowns—Brown 6 (1, plunge; 18, run; 50, run; 8, run; 10, run; 1, plunge); Zimmerman (1, plunge); Kosala (1, plunge); Clavo (2, plunge). Conversions—Brown 7.

Colgate scoring: Touchdowns—Jamieson (10, pass from Martin). Conversion, Martin.

UCLA Spills Kansas, 13-0

ond quarter following recovery of a fumble on the Kansas 34, they made good the next time they grabbed a Jayhawk bobble midway in the third period.

Left end Dick Wallen set the stage for the TD when he dove on fullback Homer Floyd's fumble on the Kansas 13 . . . and six plays later Wilson pounded over from the one for the score at 8:27. Don Duncan's kick made it 7-0.

Kansas immediately retaliated with its first real threat of the day when quarterback Walter Strauch passed 45-yards to halfback Bobby Robinson on the UCLA 32 . . . but two plays later found the Bruins threatening again on the Kansas 36.

• • • •

ON THE FIRST play after the long pass, Esker Harris spilled Strauch for a 17-yard loss on the 49 . . . and on the next play Shinnick and tackle Jim Dawson subjected Strauch, fading to pass, to a big rush that drove the Jayhawk quarterback clear back to his 36. There, when he attempted to get rid of the ball, Dawson tipped it into the air and then grabbed it for an interception.

However, the Bruins lost the ball on downs four plays later when they failed to make a first down on the 26 by less than six inches.

Twice Kansas was poised in threatening positions in the fourth quarter, but UCLA's defensive line rose to great heights to stop fourth-and-one stabs at the middle to hold for downs both times and squelch any hopes of a Jayhawk rally.

Kansas reeled off the longest sustained drive of the game at the outset of the fourth quarter, rolling from its own 18 to the UCLA 16 on a 66-yard charge highlighted by Lloyd's drives of 15 and 19-yards up the middle before being stopped less than six inches from a first down.

• • • •

AFTER THE BRUINS had kicked out to the Kansas 46, the Jayhawkers tried to sustain another drive by once again going for the yardage on a fourth-and-one situation on the UCLA 44, but Harris stopped the play cold and the Bruins took over.

Moments later, Shinnick backed the Jayhawkers into a hole on their 18 with another great kick and on the first play halfback Johnny Francisco fumbled the ball into the arms of Dave Peterson and Shinnick on the 24.

Wilson promptly racked up his second touchdown of the day with a 12-yard sweep around left end for the TD at 12:13. He also attempted the conversion, but the kick was wide.

UCLA boomed into Kansas territory twice in the opening quarter . . . rolling to the Jayhawk 33 after the kickoff before an interception broke up the advance, and then moving into position again on the invaders' 34 when Jim Matheny intercepted Strauch's aerial. However, a holding penalty crushed this opportunity as the Bruins were shoved back to the 48 and forced to kick.

Kansas finally crossed the midfield stripe for the first and only time in the first half at this point when the Jayhawks put together three straight first downs to reach the UCLA 44, before being hurled back to their own 43 when Strauch was nailed for a 13-yard loss attempting to pass.

• • • •

EARLY IN the second quarter, Francisco's fumble was picked up by tackle Bill Leeka on the Kansas 34 from where the Bruins rolled to the five. Wilson then boomed to the one-yard line, but a holding penalty on the play pushed the Bruins back to the 17 from where they finally decided to go for a field goal.

However, a bad pass from center broke up the kick. Duncan picked up the ball and attempted to run it, but was dropped on the 24 where Kansas took over.

In all, the Bruins recovered three Kansas fumbles and intercepted three passes as their defense once again outshined the offense and paved the way for the victory.

RAMS---

Hirsch is still battling the flu bug and will be replaced at left end by the speedy Bob Boyd.

Billy Wade again gets Coach Sid Gillman's nod to guide the Rams at quarterback. Since the Rams' rushing attack ground out 276 yards against the 49ers last week, Wade will probably try to call another ball-control ground game. It may be wise, too, considering that the Bears intercepted five Rams' passes in their last meeting.

Chicago quarterback Ed Brown and Wade rank 1-2 in NFL passing, while Bears' fullback Rick Casares leads the league in rushing and is second in scoring.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

The fireworks expected over the either-sex deer season didn't develop at Thursday's meeting of the California Fish and Game Commission, but the memory lingers on. Presentation of the Department of Fish and Game report on both the coastal and inland seasons didn't ease the pains of northern and central California sportsmen.

What irked — and that's a mild word — the sportsmen were several facts:

1—Does and fawns left crippled or dead in the forest.

2—Fawns disposed of in garbage cans and rubbish dumps.

3—Hunters who were so trigger-happy they would have shot poodles had there been any within miles.

The commission's president, Andy Kelly, limited testimony to the eye-witness type and there were few persons who volunteered to say anything about what they had termed "the awful slaughter."

The hearing did afford the DF&G a chance to present all the facts it had prior to the meeting, and there's a definite chance that more pressure will be exerted by sportsmen's organizations before the F&GC sets dates for the 1957 season.

• • • •

THERE'S NO DOUBT that the California deer population, particularly the female part of it, needs thinning on occasions. Other states have discovered that if this is not done, the deer multiply until they become pests.

Heretofore, California has done its thinning in controlled shoots, issuing a certain number of permits to kill does, but never fawns. It seems to this columnist that those controlled shoots still are the solution to the problem. If too many does still survive, increase the number for the next season.

It also seems to me that certain regulations should be followed wherein hunters must take care of the deer they kill and never leave them crippled or dead in the forests.

There's a certain amount of sentiment harbored by many persons about deer. I know that I for one feel that way. I am not a deer hunter and, unless faced with absolute necessity for meat, I don't intend to become one. That doesn't mean that I am against killing deer. Others can do as they please as long as they conduct themselves legally and in a sportsmanlike manner.

That sentiment of which I write aroused the emotions of certain groups so much that they held mass meetings to protest the DF&G policy of either-sex shooting. What happens next depends mostly on the sportsmen themselves.

THANKSGIVING is just days away and yet, fishermen are still catching yellowtail, bonito, bluefin tuna and even albacore. San Diego landings continue to run a few boats on the 3 a.m. schedule, making the runs to the Coronado Islands, where fresh mackerel baits are attracting big yellows. Two 33-pounders were among the bags there last week. K. B. Walker, Lawndale, caught one of those.

The marlin total at San Diego neared the 450 mark for one of the greatest seasons in history. Mrs. Nell Bowen, San Diego, landed a 242-pound marlin, and Mrs. S. Howard Minor, San Diego, caught her fifth of the season, a 146-pound fish.

If you are still looking for trout, try these spots planted late last week by the DF&G:

LOS ANGELES COUNTY — Crystal Lake, Little Rock Reservoir, East and West Forks of the San Gabriel River. RIVERSIDE—Palmer Lake. SAN BERNARDINO — Arrowhead, Green Valley and Gregory Lakes, Middle and North Forks of Lytle Creek. VENTURA—Matilija Reservoir.

WOULD YOU KNOW what to do if you were hopelessly lost in the mountains, with no shelter, food, proper clothing? In nine cases out of 10, the victims would not know what to do.

So, it was with that thought in mind that Bradford Angier wrote "Living Off the Country" ($5. The Stackpole Co., Telegraph Press Bldg., Harrisburg, Pa.)

Even if you are never lost or stranded under such circumstances as already mentioned, you'll enjoy Angier's book.

Angier's theory is that life is free for those who want to survive; that food and water are everywhere just for the seeking. And he doesn't mean that you have to become a tramp to get them.

Angier provides adequate solutions to such problems as lighting fires under all adverse conditions, finding shelter and clothing.

The book is made more interesting with dozens of illustrations sketched by his wife.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The Compton Hunting and Fishing Club, following up its recent successful crow shoot, is planning a turkey shoot for Sunday, Dec. 2, at the Dominguez Gun Club, on Artesia blvd between Alameda and Central. This is one of the largest turkey shoots in California with 200 turkeys, hams and other prizes. It is open to the public. If you wish further information, call Will E. Sprott, club president, at NE 3-5131.

Anticipating good fishing for perhaps weeks to come, Eddie McEwen, skipper of the Fisherman (Pacific Landing) will start daily 2 a.m. runs to Catalina Island Monday. On a test run last week, Eddie and four passengers found a school of barracuda, some white sea bass and plenty of kelp bass.

Mrs. Nola Halpin, of Morrison's Fishing Lodge, Merlin, Ore., writes that steelhead fishing on the Rogue River is the hottest ever. The season ends Nov. 30. Nola says that her guests filled the storage boxes every day last week with 10- and 12-pounders. Guides expect the fishing to continue that way until bad weather stops it.

There are many vacancies for duck hunters at the Hazard-Winter and Finney-Hamner public shooting grounds in Imperial Valley. You may make reservations through the Department of Fish and Game, State Bldg., Los Angeles, or just travel to the units and take your chances on a first-come, first-served basis. Vacancies this week are for Wednesday and Thursday.

GOLF BOOM AT LOS ALAMITOS

Plan Two New Courses

By JERRY WYNN

One new nine-hole public course and the possibility of a new 18-hole private course, both in the Los Alamitos district, are in prospect for Long Beach area golfers.

The public course, situated directly west of the Los Alamitos Race Course, is already under construction. It is owned and will be operated by track president Frank Vessels.

The status of the proposed country club private course is still uncertain. However, several parties have shown extreme interest in its development and preliminary plans have been sketched. The property is located south of Los Alamitos Naval Air Station bordering on Garden Grove Blvd.

Vessels' course will be 3,100 yards long with a regulation par of 36 and will be ready for play by late summer or early fall of 1957.

According to architect Billy Bell, it will be "a pleasant course with characteristic contour. Because of the flatness of the land, it will have many devices to toughen it such as elevated tees and greens and sand traps."

Original plans were to have part of the course in the track infield but that would have necessitated halting golf during race meetings. There is room available, however, for another nine holes if expansion is desired.

• • • •

ANOTHER NEW Orange County course under construction is the Fullerton Country Club owned by the Jones Bros. Corp. of Long Beach.

It is located on the 900-acre Emery Ranch north east of Buena Park and will measure 6,450 yards from the middle tees and from 6,900 to 7,000 yards from championship ones. Seeding is under way and the course should be ready for play by the middle of next summer.

Two syndicates are reported interested in developing the private course at Los Alamitos. Bell and George Lake, head pro at Recreation Park, made a preliminary survey of the land at the request of one of the potential developers.

According to Bell, there is ample room for two 18-hole courses. He said that the land, owned by the Bixby family, has been specifically set aside for the construction of a course.

Millikan vs. Brawley in Grid Playoff

Long Beach's newest school, Millikan High, travels to Brawley Friday night in a small schools football playoff game to headline this week's dwindling local athletic schedule.

Millikan, coached by Gordon Dooley, played a freelance schedule and was unbeaten and untied. Brawley is kingpin of the Imperial Valley League.

Long Beach City College and L.B. State basketball teams open their schedules against all-star alumni teams Tuesday night.

MONDAY

JV Football—Jordan at Poly, Wilson at Excelsior, 3 p.m.

TUESDAY

College Basketball—L.B. State vs. Alumni, 8 p.m.; LBCC vs. Alumni, 8 p.m.

Turkey Day Sail at Alamitos Today

By BOB RUSKAUFF

At least 35 individual sailing races among some 15 fleets—that will be the picture on bay and ocean today as Alamitos Bay Yacht Club presents its traditional Turkey Day series.

At 11 a.m., says Race Chairman Bob Hoffman, some 10 bay classes will launch the first of three races each. Larger classes, starting over a line one-half mile to seaward and westward of the jetty entrance, will sail one race per each class, the first getting away at 12:30.

Custom decrees the winners get edible awards — turkey, chicken, fruit cake—to help the Thursday Thanksgiving board a mite.

. . . Next weekend will witness a triple array of events:

Cabrillo Beach and Santa Monica YCs will jointly sponsor the annual all-class Thanksgiving series, Saturday and Sunday. Coronado YC hosts the 10th annual Lightning series.

Bidding to prove top feature, Newport Harbor YC will on both days present the traditional Fall Gold Cup series, an invitational fixture for 14 one-design classes.

• • • •

ANNUAL BIG closing party of the Long Beach Yacht Club, plus its election to choose flag officers and members of the board of directors for 1957, will be conducted Tuesday evening at Vivian Laird's.

Commodore Stanley Wiedrick, who has guided LBYC through a highly successful year, is expected to greet more than 125 member Corinthians and their ladies.

• • • •

TWO WESTERNERS (Dr. Wayne Ingalls, Bell, chosen vice president and Jack Colcock, Seattle, secretary) are on the list of flag officers and council of the American Power Boat Assn. for 1957. The 47th APBA annual conclave closes today in Chicago.

Three veteran inboard hydroplane drivers will head Southern California Speedboat Club, the "club of champions," for 1957—Keith Black of Lynwood as commodore, succeeding Kent Hitchcock, Newport; Kenny Sprow, Huntington Park, vice cmdr.; Kenny Harman, Rosemead, rear cmdr.

L.A. Man Held

WASHINGTON (UP) — Police Saturday arrested a dapper, well-groomed confidence man after he had cashed 14 bad checks on an 11-hour "shopping spree." The police identified him as Robert Weiss of Los Angeles.

Elva Horning Gets Lead in Next Play

Even a serious drama has its lighter moments and Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy," the forthcoming production of the Lakewood Players, is no exception. This controversial drama of life in a boys' school changes pace with the entrance of Lily Sears, the giddy factulty wife. Director Al Rashkow of the Players has obtained Elva Horning for the role.

Miss Horning, who comes fresh from a local appearance in "State of the Union," is a Downey resident and no stranger to local theaters.

Elva, who claims Anaheim as her home town, studied at Fullerton Junior College and USC.

Elva's Lily Sears is one of the only two feminine roles in this play. The other is that of Laura Reynolds. Charlotte Watson of Long Beach has this role.

The play begins Nov. 23 at McArthur Auditorium, Centralia and Woodruff Ave. in Lakewood.

Radford to Lead Inauguration Parade

WASHINGTON (AP)—The inaugural parade Jan. 21 will run just two hours and will be led by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was disclosed Saturday.

LANDS ROLE

Jean Ruth, a Thespian leading a double professional life, left here Sunday to play a role in the San Francisco production of "Desk Set." She rehearsed for the play while holding down the job of directing "Picnic" which is now playing at The Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave. Miss Ruth will appear with Shirley Booth in "Desk Set" which opens next month in San Francisco.

SAD SHEREE

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Sheree North—the girl who was picked to fill Marilyn Monroe's sweaters—is not the happiest girl in Hollywood.

"I thought at first to get that check every week would be great, but really, it's not that great," Sheree told me in a remarkable moment of candor when she visited New York recently.

"I usually get put in a picture when somebody else doesn't want to do it," the ash-blond Sheree added as she looked across a table at me at a television rehearsal.

"Oh, come on, you're doing very well!" I protested — for I could remember only three years ago when she came to Broadway a complete unknown in a show called "Hazel Flagg."

SHEREE NORTH

"I don't mean they haven't been wonderful . . . but I'd like to work more . . . I suppose everybody would," she shrugged.

"But I don't want to be a big dramatic actress.

"I mean those movies where they're always having babies in the rain — or stabbing their grandmother. Very Studio One. Well, I leave that to the better actresses.

"And I don't fit into 'South Pacific' or 'The King and I'—I guess I'm at the awkward age," Sheree said with a sad little smile.

"You know I was signed at the time they weren't sure Marilyn Monroe was coming back," she reminded me.

"My feelings were and still are that nobody's going to replace Marilyn Monroe — especially not me. And now they've got another voluptuous blonde, Jayne Mansfield.

"But you're blonde and also voluptuous," I mentioned.

Sheree, her hair tousled and wearing some unglamorous rehearsal togs at the Perry Como headquarters, said, "No, I'm going to leave that to the fat people."

"Fat people?" I said. "You mean Marilyn and Jayne aren't voluptuous . . . they're just fat?"

"That's what my doctor says," smiled Sheree. "He says all that's just a lot of fatty tissue."

So she has done three films since she went to Hollywood three years ago, she's got married, and she's changed her hair to black—and back to blonde.

"Why did you change it to black?" I asked Sheree whose platinum blondness was her trade mark on B'way before Hollywood.

"I just wanted to see what it would look like," Sheree said, "in its real color."

THE WEEK-END WINDUP—"Don't Print That!" A famous Hollywood film-maker pays a NY book publishing company editor $25,000-a-year to help him get a look at good book ahead of rival studios. It's legal and ethical, too; sort of "enterprisingly sneaky."

On learning that some nude pix of her had been cut from "God Created Woman," French actress Brigitte Bardot groaned, "What a pity. And I was so beautiful!" . . .

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Two Boston women, sightseeing in California, thought it was hotter there than in Boston; then one said: "You have to remember, too, that out here we are 3,000 miles from the ocean."

When a play ends happily, it may only be that you're happy it ended. . . That's earl, brother.

New City for Florida?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UP)—Gov. Leroy Collins says one of the nation's biggest manufacturing firms is planning to build an entire city in Florida which would have a factory partly manned by the company's semi-retired workers. The governor didn't name the company.

60 Bands Will March in Review

HOST BAND READY TO MARCH

Massed behind their drum major, senior Terry Leroux, bandsmen of Wilson High School are ready to march in the huge All-Western Band Review here next Saturday. As the host band representing Long Beach, Wilson's corps of musicians will not be eligible to compete for prizes.—(Staff photo.)

Batons Toss Glitter Into Huge Parade

By BOB HOUSER

The flashing glitter of 520 batons—twirling, tossed and cadence-keeping — is the fancy dressing on Long Beach's All-Western Band Review Saturday.

But the gaudy sticks represent only a fraction of the worth of equipment which will be on parade along Ocean Blvd. at this 16th annual event starting at noon.

Anthony F. Gill, executive director of the review, estimates the batons flourished by teenagers from 60 competing high school bands are worth about $7,500. But adding to this the worth of instruments, uniforms and equipment for the 5,500 marchers, the total "money walking down the street" is $2,013,400.

Gill stressed, however, that it's the enthusiasm of the high school directors and musicians and the keen competition for honors which makes this city-sponsored review "the world's largest musical parade."

• • • •

THE MAYOR'S TROPHY is the sweepstakes award, top prize for a band and may be won by any school, regardless of which of the six size classes it competes in.

Col. Ralph Selby is chief judge of a staff from the All American Judges Assn. Judges will watch the review from their stand at Elm Ave. on Ocean Blvd. They will score school bands on the basis of showmanship, color, uniform, equipment, musicianship, interpretation, precision, files, ranks, among other items.

Majorettes will be judged while marching on dexterity, grace, posture, strutting and personality. Military drum majors will be judged on leadership, control of group and precision.

Local host band for the review is the 70-member Woodrow Wilson High School Band directed by Nicolas Furjanick. Honor guest band is the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Band directed by Robert M. Fleury. It will be the lead-off band.

High school bands which will be in the competition for the first time are Hanford, West Covina, McFarland and Capuchino High School of San Bruno.

• • • •

MISS WELCOME to Long Beach, Sybil Smith, will be a parade attraction. Mayor George M. Vermillion will ride in the official city car and will make the awards at the Municipal Auditorium awards program and dance which starts at 7 p.m.

The awards program will include a concert by the Long Beach Municipal Band directed by Charles Payne; baton artistry by Bob Roberts, of Los Angeles, a national baton champion and director of baton instruction at Pepperdine College, and the Fred C. Nelles School for Boys Wrigley Drill Team in precision drills under direction of Frank O'Connell.

Dance music will be provided through the courtesy of AFL Musician's Local 353, through the Musicians' Performance Trust Fund.

Awards will be announced at about 8:45 p.m., Nov. 24, and will be broadcast over station KFOX, Long Beach.

The band which wins the Mayor's Trophy will be invited to take part in the half-time show at the Los Angeles Rams-Baltimore Colts professional football game Dec. 9, in Los Angeles Coliseum.

'Louisiana Story' Film Scheduled

The movie, "Louisiana Story," Robert Flaherty's story of a young Cajun boy, will be shown at the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., Friday at 7:30 and 9 p.m. The public is invited.

The program is one of a series on "Film, a Universal Art," being presented by the Public Library, photographed by Richard Leacock with music by Virgil Thomson.

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

(Malcolm Epley is on vacation. His "Beach Combing" will appear on his return.)

Churches Set Thanksgiving Union Rites

Union Thanksgiving Services will be sponsored by the Long Beach Council of Churches in seven different areas of the city.

Services in the Los Altos-Lakewood area will be held Thursday at 9:30 a. m. in the Woodruff Community Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Lakewood Village Community Church.

North Long Beach services will be at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Community Presbyterian Church. In Wrigley Heights, the Westminster Community Church will join in with the First Church of the Brethren Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

• • • •

THE WESTSIDE Church of Christ will hold services Thursday at 10 a. m. for the west side of the city.

Churches in the northeast section of the city will unite in the Burns Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Services in the Grace Methodist Church will be at 9:30 a. m. Thursday for the East Long Beach area.

• • • •

THE ATLANTIC AVE. area will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Nazarene Church. Union services will be held for the downtown area Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

4 Destroyers Due at 10 a.m.

Four ships of Destroyer Division 231 are scheduled to tie up at the Net Pier of the Long Beach Naval Station today at 10 a.m. after six months in the Western Pacific.

They are the USS Picking, USS Potter, USS Preston and USS Fechtler.

Two other Navy ships will hold open house today. The attack transport USS Talladega will welcome visitors from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the foot of Pico St. The submarine USS Sawfish will be open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Navy Base.

Women have been advised by Sawfish officers to wear slacks. No cameras will be allowed.

Adm. Phillips Takes Command of Destroyer Flotilla 3 Monday

Rear Adm. Richard H. Phillips, decorated veteran of naval actions in World War II and the Korean conflict, is scheduled to arrive here today from Washington to take command of Destroyer Flotilla 3.

Formal change-of-command ceremonies will be held Monday aboard the admiral's flag ship, the Long Beach-based destroyer tender, USS Bryce Canyon.

• • • •

ADM. PHILLIPS will have administrative command of all Long Beach-based destroyers while they are operating from their home port and, in certain instances, in other West Coast areas.

Adm. Phillips reports to his command from duty in the Defense Department, where he was secretary to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

• • • •

THE PREVIOUS commander of Destroyer Flotilla 3 was Rear Adm. Charles K. Bergin, who was ordered to new duty last month.

Temporarily in command of the flotilla since then has been Capt. L. D. McGregor, whose regular duty is commanding Destroyer Division 9.

• • • •

ADM. PHILLIPS won the Navy Cross while commanding a destroyer division in an attack against the Japanese in the Battle of Surigao Straits in 1944 and was awarded the Bronze Star for action in the invasions of New Britain and the Mariana Islands in World War II. He was awarded the Legion of Merit while commanding the cruiser USS Rochester during the Korean conflict.

Public Aid Asked on Chest Goal

Public cooperation in helping the 160 United Neighbors Community Chest agency board members put the goal "over the top" was asked Saturday by L. H. Brewer, campaign chairman.

"Agency board members anxious to have a successful campaign and finish it before Thanksgiving are going to make calls during the next three days on those who have not contributed," Brewer explained.

• • • •

AS THE WEEK starts today, $150,000 remains to be raised of the $925,000 goal requested by the Chest budget committee.

Checks may be mailed directly to the Chest at 1213 Cedar Ave., Brewer said.

Special recognition has been given to Orville Wostenberg, chairman of the Dutch Village business solicitation, for reaching 116 per cent of the quota during the past week.

Former Postmaster H. K. Goodwin Dies

Howard K. Goodwin, postmaster of the Long Beach office for 18 years before his retirement in 1953, died Saturday morning at Seaside Hospital.

The former postmaster, who was 65, had been in the hospital a week.

• • • •

GOODWIN'S term of office saw the organization grow from a four-branch office with 254 employes in 1935 to a 14-branch system employing more than 900 persons in 1952.

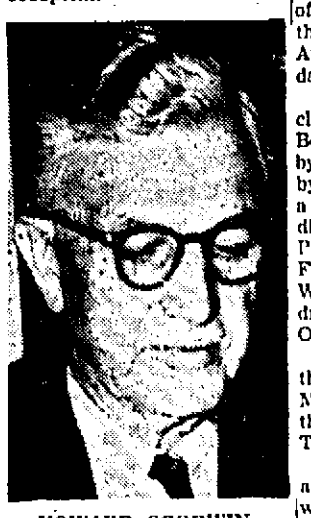

Postal receipts during that period jumped from $581,000 to more than $3,400,000.

• • • •

HE WAS BORN in Antigo, Wis. He and his father operated a lumber business in Washington before coming to Long Beach in 1930.

He was a veteran of World War I, having served three years overseas with the Canadian forces.

He operated a furniture store on American Ave. for several years before he was appointed postmaster.

Lectures on Africa Scheduled by College

Dr. Giles T. Brown will be presented by the City College General Adult Division in a new public lecture series on "Africa—the Emerging Giant" beginning at 7 p.m. Monday in Room 202 of Poly High School.

Topic of the opening lecture will be "People and Policies in Congoland." Three additional lectures will cover Tanganyika, Kenya, Zanzibar, Uganda and the Union of South Africa. All will be illustrated by color slides.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the social science division at Orange Coast College, made a 30,000-mile trip to Africa last summer and interviewed many government leaders on such questions as the Mau Mau rebellion in Kenya and the tensions brought on by segregation policies in South Africa. He also gained audience with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

Additional public lectures and forums scheduled for the week:

TUESDAY

Guide to Nutrition—Dr. Gladys Stevenson, "Feeding the Entire Family From One Menu," 7:30 p.m., Franklin Junior High School auditorium.

WEDNESDAY

Health for Senior Citizens—Dr. George Ainlay, "The Modern Answer to Arthritis, Neuritis and Rheumatism," 2 p.m., Dewey auditorium.

Investments — Jess Grundy, "When to Buy and Sell," 7:30 p.m., Room 418, Wilson Adult Center, Park Ave. near 7th St.

Toy and Equipment Workshop —"Puppets for Children," 7:30 p.m., Child Development Center, Lakewood campus (Clark Ave. between Carson St. and Harvey Way).

L.B. Heart Assn. Asks Volunteer Fund Solicitors

Volunteers to solicit their neighborhoods are being sought by the Long Beach Heart Assn.

"More than 1,000 residents of the Long Beach area already have signed up to serve as 1957 Heart Fund volunteers on the evening of Heart Monday, Feb. 25, between 4 and 8 p.m.," reported Mrs. Gerie Searcy, coordinator for the door-to-door appeal.

"However, we must have a total of 4,200 to contact every home in the area," she added.

Prospective volunteers are asked to contact Heart Fund headquarters at 921 Pacific Ave.

Hospital Has Fire

An electrical short circuit caused a minor fire in the therapy room at Seaside Hospital Saturday afternoon. City firemen extinguished the blaze, which caused minor smoke damage to the walls of the room.

Security Dealers Elect H. T. Booth

Howard T. Booth has been elected president of the Long Beach Security Dealers Assn., officials reported Saturday. Booth is associated with the firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Other new officers include Keith Davis, E. F. Hutton and Co., vice president; Mottel Peak, Dean Witter and Co., secretary-treasurer, and directors Samuel Isenberg, Floyd Mason, Wilbur Wood and Bill Schoof.

Bandsman Held as Drunk Driver

WEST LOS ANGELES (UP)—Rocks Rockwell, 33, singer and trumpet player with Lawrence Welk's band, was arrested on a misdemeanor drunk driving charge Saturday on Sepulveda Blvd.

Officers Dave Oswat and R. E. Stephens said Rockwell was driving very slowly and erratically.

Leadership Said Scouts' Challenge

"The number one challenge of the Boy Scout movement is to secure and hold top quality volunteer and professional leadership," the national president of the Boy Scouts of America told more than 400 leaders of Region 12, BSA, Saturday night.

Kenneth K. Bechtel of San Francisco, speaking at the closing session of the two-day meeting in the Wilton Hotel, explained that the challenge comes because the scout movement is growing much faster than the population, particularly in the Southwest.

Three regional leaders received the Silver Antelope award, highest honor bestowed scouters in the region. They are: J. Leo Flynn of San Fernando Valley Council; Dr. William J. Matousek, Verdugo Hills Council, Glendale, and Gerald C. Thomas, San Diego County Council.

Milo Bekins of Beverly Hills was installed regional chairman to succeed George Harding of Palo Alto.

Drunk Suspect Battles Police

A 202-pound suspect gave two Long Beach officers "a bad time" early Saturday when they attempted to arrest him as he chased a woman across the street in the 1300 block of Lewis Ave.

The suspect, Alfred Tennyson Lee, 24, of 1425 California Ave., assertedly fought with Insps. W. R. Decker and Frank A. Shaw, but they finally subdued him. Decker suffered a bruised elbow and Shaw suffered a sprained hand and wrist.

Lee was booked in City Jail on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Junior Chamber Reveals Wings Over Nation Plan

Plans for the 18th annual Wings Over the Nation, three-day aviation tribute event, were disclosed Saturday by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The aviation fete is scheduled for Dec. 7-9. It is staged annually by Jaycees to focus public attention on the importance of the aviation industry to the City of Long Beach.

• • • •

INCLUDED IN the 1956 Wings Over the Nation presentation will be displays of commercial and military aircraft, exhibits of aviational equipment and hosting of stewardesses from national and foreign airline companies. Don Granger is chairman of the project.

Participants will include Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach Air Force Base, commercial carriers, and the aviation department of the City of Long Beach.

Library Adds McDonnell Water Colors

Latest additions to the framed picture collection in the Long Beach Public Library are two water colors by the late Angela MacDonnell, graduate of the Chicago Art Institute and formerly of Galveston and New Orleans. They were presented by a friend of the artist.

Miss MacDonnell did the water colors in Spain in the thirties. One depicts a street in Fuenterrabia, an old Basque town. The second is of the coastline of Sitges along the Mediterranean. Both pictures are bright with the sunshine of Spain and in the clear vivid colors characteristic of the medium.

The pictures will be on display in the Art Department of the main library through December. Following that, they may be borrowed singly or as a pair for a two-month loan on a regular library card.

New Records AT CITY LIBRARY

Rare vocal treats are offered by the Long Beach Public Library, in the new record listing of unusual LPs. For epicurean diets try these samplings:

Bach, "Cantata No. 211" (Coffee Cantata); "Elizabethan and Jacobean Music" (Alfred Deller counter-tenor, with lute, harpsichord and viols); Handel, "Semele" (sololsts with St. Anthony Singers); Kodaly, "Te Deum"; Orff, "Trionfo di Afrodite" and Weill, "Der Jasager" (opera based on an ancient Japanese Noh Play).

French Celebrate 200th Birthday of Mayonnaise

PARIS (AP) — Brass bands blared patriotic tunes and dignified chefs paraded near the Porte de Versailles Saturday.

The chefs were out to parade their sauces and win prizes.

France was celebrating the 200th anniversary of mayonnaise. The sauce was invented by the cook of the Duke de Richelieu, who commanded the French army at the siege of Port Mahon in 1756.

Red Chinese Ratify Agreement on Tibet

HONG KONG (AP)—The standing committee of Red China's National People's Congress has ratified an agreement with Nepal confirming Chinese control of Tibet. The agreement particularly affects movement of traders between Nepal and Tibet and their exchange of ambassadors and consuls.

LUNCHEON AND SERVICE CLUBS

Clubmen Will Mark Day of Thanksgiving

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Bachman, minister of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, will bring the annual Thanksgiving message to Kiwanis Club of Long Beach Tuesday noon in the Lafayette Hotel.

The Rev. Dr. Bachman was graduated from Kansas State Teachers College, Pittsburg, in 1937 and from McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, in 1940. He has served pastorates in Missouri, Minnesota and North Dakota. During World War II he was a Navy chaplain.

Weckford Morgan will be chairman of the day, and President Stedman C. Gould will preside.

The Rev. Milton Gabrielson, minister of Bay Shore Congregational Church, will talk on "Religion vs. Morality" at a Thanksgiving program of Long Beach Exchange Club Wednesday noon in the Lafayette Hotel. Charles Brannigham will be chairman, and President Orland L. Ford will preside.

Another Thanksgiving program will be that of Long Beach Shrine Club and Long Beach Masonic Club, meeting jointly Tuesday noon in the Wilton Hotel. The Rev. Dr. Raymond I. Lindquist, minister of First Presbyterian Church of Hollywood, will talk on "How to Live at Your Best." Rolla Alford will sing.

DOWNTOWN 20-30 CLUB — Wednesday 7:30 p. m., Coast Inn. Joel Dionne, chairman; Harold Hunsaker, presiding. Speaker: Bob Hoffmaster, assistant harbor engineer.

UPTOWN OPTIMIST CLUB — Monday noon, Lakewood Country Club. Harvey Tuttle, chairman; Howard Rogers presiding. Film, "Flight to Germany," from TWA.

LONG BEACH ROTARY CLUB—Wednesday noon, Lafayette Hotel. Raymond H. Green, chairman; Valle G. Young, presiding. Speaker: Rilea W. Doe, vice president of Safeway Stores, Inc., Oakland.

CD Lessons Urged

WASHINGTON (UP) — The U.S. Office of Education urged the nation's schools Saturday to give their students lessons in civil defense and set up standby emergency programs.

FACE AND VASE

Pretty Jan Harrison holds an ancient Chinese vase which is one of the rarities to be displayed Nov. 29-Dec. 2 in Long Beach Antique Show in Municipal Auditorium. Show hours are 1 to 11 p. m. daily.

Corn Pest Worse Than Borer Found

WASHINGTON (UP)—A parasite more destructive than the European corn borer has been discovered in a few corn fields of the Carolinas. The pest is so new to this country that agriculture department scientists have not yet worked out control measures.

The common name of the pest is "witchweed." Botanists call it "Striga Lutea," or "Striga Asiatica."

$5 Million Antiques to Be in Show

Nearly five million dollars worth of rare and historical antiques will be shown by 75 exhibitors at Long Beach Antique Show in Municipal Auditorium Nov. 29 through Dec. 2.

Hy Ginsberg, general manager for the show, said growing shortages of old English, French, Italian and Oriental antique furnishings have heightened interest in the show.

A record turnout is expected, he said.

• • • •

SHORTAGES RESULT from current restrictions on trade with China and the fact that American tourists have bought up most of the available valuable items from European estates and castles in recent years, Ginsberg explained.

Show hours for the four days will be from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Exhibitors are from all parts of the West, Ginsberg said.

Chief Russ Engineer Drowns in India

BOMBAY (AP)—The chief Soviet engineer working on India's Bhilai steel plant drowned Saturday night.

The engineer, N. G. Krantenko, drowned on a duck hunting trip at Malodn, about four miles from Bhilai. He came to India in May, 1954 to help set up the Russian-assisted Bhilai project.

Roster of Ballet Books Displays Broad Variety

With the growing interest in ballet, there is a steady demand at Long Beach Public Library for books on the subject, according to Lelia H. Seward, head of the art, philosophy and music department.

For the young student interested in fundamentals there are such books as Kay Ambrose's "Ballet Student's Primer," Nancy Draper's "Ballet for Beginners," Felicity Gray's "Ballet for Beginners," and W. W. English's "Basic Ballet."

Biographies include "Ballet Biographies," by Gladys Davidson; "Dance to the Piper," by Agnes DeMille; "Pavlova," by Arthur Franks, and the true story of two ballet dancers who escaped from occupied Europe, called "Leap Through the Curtain," by George Mikes.

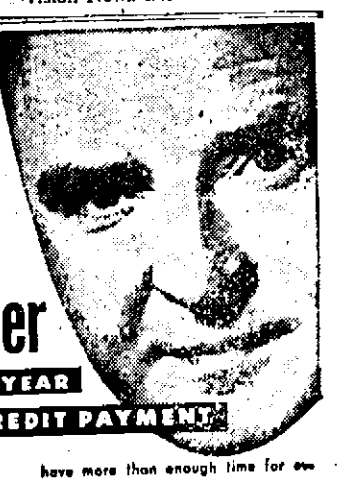

Inviting to seasoned balletomanes are, "S. Hurok Presents the World of Ballet," Maurice Seymour's "Ballet Portraits," and "Theatre Street," by Tamara Karsavina.

For ballet-lovers planning to attend performances who may wish to familiarize themselves with the story of the ballets, the library has books such as "Ballet Carnival," by Margaret Crosland; "Victor Book of Ballets and Ballet Music," by Robert Lawrence; "Twentieth Century Ballet," by Arthur Franks; and "Ballet of Today," by Cyril W. Beaumont.

Gets News Award

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Hugh B. Terry, president and general manager of stations KLZ and KLZ-TV, Denver, Colo., Saturday night was presented with the first annual Paul White memorial award by the Radio-Television News Directors Assn.

DR. F.E. CAMPBELL DENTIST

ANNUAL YEAR-END denture offer

WAIT UNTIL NEXT YEAR TO MAKE FIRST CREDIT PAYMENT

HERE'S WHY:

It's better to get new dentures now for two reasons.

FIRST, we are less busy during the holiday season than any other time of the year. Although we try to spend as much time as is needed on any case during the whole year, now we have more than enough time for everyone.

SECOND, to encourage you to get new dentures now instead of waiting until next year, we are extra liberal on credit. Save your cash for holiday fun and expenses. If you need it you may have two full years to pay.

Civil Service Class
Starts on Nov. 19
First Session Free
For the first time in this area, a thorough Civil Service and Job Improvement Course will be offered in Evening Classes at the Monroe Institute.
The first session is free and everyone interested in qualifying for Civil Service Employment is invited to attend on Mon., Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. Thereafter the class will meet on Mon. evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for eight weeks.
This will not be just another home-study type of course where students are given a book and told to go home and study. In addition to complete text material furnished with the course, four highly experienced instructors will cover the majority of the subjects and questions most often asked on Civil Service Examinations. A few of the subjects in the course are: Filing, Arithmetic, Vocabulary, Reasoning and Judgment, Address Checking, Spelling, Grammar and Word Usage, Aptitude and Trade Tests, Cube and Figure Turning and I.Q. Tests.
The purpose of the course is to prepare men and women to pass examinations for practically every type of position offered by City, County, State, U.S. Government or Private Employment. The training will also be extremely valuable to those already employed who wish to prepare for examinations for higher ratings or jobs with greater pay.
Everyone interested in Civil Service or Job Improvement is invited by the Monroe Institute to attend the first session Mon., Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m., WITHOUT COST OR OBLIGATION AND RECEIVE A FREE I.Q. TEST.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

This is a "loaded" day for viewers with a lot of good shows from which to select so let's start out with a rundown of the changes taking place on (5) then pick up the loose ends later on.

"The 1956 Olympic Games" debuts on (5) at 5 p.m., in COLOR, showing films flown in from Australia and the Games. Hereafter black and white films will be shown each day at 6:45 p.m. with a repeat later on at night. Opener shows the lighting of the Olympic torch in Greece on Nov. 3 and the beginning of its journey.

Dick Sinclair brings his "Polka Parade" to (5) at 6:30 p.m. for a full-hour. This show was highly rated on (13) and the personal appearances of the troupe brought out huge crowds. Good musical show with a fine emcee, . . . Larry Finley opens up his "Strictly Informal" at 9:30 p.m. with 30-minutes of music-interviews-etc. Sarah Vaughn is the first guest and Larry has a contest for home viewers.

Then there are such items as "See It Now" on (2), "LaBoheme" in color on (4) and Bob Hope on (4) at 9 p.m.

DAYTIME DATA

Sophocles' classical tragedy "Antigone" starring Jacqueline Brooks and Robert Goodier is seen on "Look Up and Live" (2) at 8:30 a.m. . . . "Let's Take A Trip" goes below the Hudson River to see how the third tunnel of the new turnpike is coming along on (2) at 9 a.m. . . . Gil Stratton takes viewers on a tour of the press box over (2) at 10:45 a.m. and at 11 the Rams-Bears game comes from Chicago. . . . Ruth Hussey and Jeffrey Lynn co-star in a Family Theatre Thanksgiving film on (4) at 11:30 a.m. It is the story of the blind beggar, Bartimeus, whose sight is restored by Jesus. . . . NBC-TV's "Opera Theatre" opens its season on (4) at 2 p.m. for a two-hour colorcast of "La-Boheme" with Dorothy Coulter, Jan McArt, John Alexander and Richard Torigi singing the leading roles. . . . Carolos Arruza, one of the greatest matadors in history, has written his autobiography and it is discussed on "Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 3:30 p.m. . . . Martha Raye tries out her newly designed personality when she headlines Ray Bolger's "Washington Square" on (4) at 4 p.m.

4:30 P.M.

The atomic-age has brought many changes to the armed forces of our nation and Edward R. Murrow explores the "Revolution In the Navy" as an hour-long "See It Now" on (2). You'll dive in the atom-powered sub Nautilus as a camera, mounted on the conning tower, sees the water come up and over. You will be aboard Navy ships that launch guided missiles and jet planes, all types of Navy craft and armament will be explored, tested and discussed. This should be extremely interesting to all Americans.

"Medical Horizons" (4) makes its first visit to the West and will stop at the California Medical Center in San Francisco for a "live" program featuring the research and medical horizon for the Adrenals.

5 P.M.

Lomita's Narbonne High School and Wilmington's Banning get the star treatment with students from the schools appearing on "Spotlight on Youth" over (11). Alex Cooper is host.

5:30 P.M.

Ricky Vera is featured as a Mexican youth who discovers the guidance he needs in the person of a priest, played by Harry Bartell, in the "Telephone Time" story by John Nesbitt on (2).

COLOR—"Long John Silver" (5) has trouble with polluted drinking water.

6 P.M.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and Walter Cronkite co-narrate a humorous backward look at aviation in its early stages of development during "Airpower" on (2).

Russia's Nikolai Khokhlov, an intelligence officer for 13 years before his escape to America, will "Meet the Press" on (4).

6:30 P.M.

When local streams dry up, "Lassie," the Miller family and friends work with the Fish and Game Commission to move fish to the Miller lake but crooks also have ideas. Lassie solves the whole problem with dynamite.

7 P.M.

Tragedy strikes the "Jack Benny" home when his ancient Maxwell is stolen during his outing on (2).

An Indian sergeant in the "77th Bengal Lancers" (4) must choose between the honor of the regiment and loyalty to his rebel father in a tense tale.

"You Asked For It" visits a reindeer farm on (7) in a trip to Oregon.

7:30 P.M.

William Bendix takes a seat on the panel of "What's My Line" (2).

A retired circus performer saves his employer's 12-year-old daughter from a killer horse and regains respect and admiration during "Circus Boy" (4).

8 P.M.

"Ed Sullivan Show" (2) has scenes from Elvis Presley's new movie "Love Me Tender," and on-stage Ed will have Fats Domino, Guy Mitchell, Don Rondo, Ben Blue, Mitzi Green, Lou Nelson, Elsa and Waldo and comedians Conn and Mann.

Olsen and Johnson drop in on "The Steve Allen Show" (4) along with Gene Nelson, Erin O'Brien (see Southland Magazine), Duke Ellington, Betty Walker George Hamilton IV and a couple of female boxers.

8:30 P.M.

The question of an immigrant quota for California is discussed during "The Dan Lundberg Show" on (13).

9 P.M.

Bob Hope's "Chevy Show" (4) offers Joan Davis, Julie London, Dinah Shore, Perry Como, John Cameron Swayze and some "special guests" in a hour of mirth and melody.

Another in the recent repeat plays featuring the late James Dean is seen on "G.E. Theatre" over (2). He portrays a youth of 19 who tells a foolish lie to his first love, Natalie Wood. Commentator is Eddie Albert.

"Omnibus" on (7) for 90 minutes, stars Siobhan McKenna in scenes from great Irish plays.

9:30 P.M.

Two genteel, birdlike spinsters discuss the delicate problem of getting rid of a body during "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on (2). Each also has laid some tender plans to kill the other. Nice girls!

Home Builders Institute Elects Pardee President

George M. Pardee Jr. will become the 15th president of the Home Builders Institute, succeeding R. Reese Myers, it was announced yesterday by the HBI, trade association of Los Angeles-Orange County large-scale builders.

Elected to take office with Pardee at the January meeting of the HBI are Milton J. Brock Jr., first vice president; Ben C. Deane, second vice president; John D. Griffith, secretary, and Ray K. Cherry, treasurer. George O. Prussell will continue as executive vice president.

A member of a family which has been in the home building business in Southern California for two generations, Pardee sees a continued growth of population and an undiminished demand for new homes.

• • • •

BEHIND THE CONTINUED need for new homes, he said, is heavy in-migration, a rising rate of new family formations and the desire and need for better homes by established families.

Said Pardee, "The trade area served by the HBI ranks second nationally in home building. The wide scope of home building here is making a major contribution to the entire economy, creating employment in all industries at all levels."

The new HBI president-elect is a partner with his two brothers, Hoyt S. and J. Douglas Pardee in the Pardee Construction Co., which his late father founded in 1921. The Pardee brothers are also partners with Gifford Phillips in the Pardee-Phillips Construction Co.

'Story Book' Home Sales Are Soaring

Features that equal or surpass those found in far more expensive homes are standard qualities of the moderately priced 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes of Chapman Woods in Garden Grove.

According to a spokesman for the "Story Book" dwellings, buyers appreciate the spaciousness of the homes as well as the features and rapid sales in the development reflect this appraisal. Immediate possession is still being offered, it was noted, and families may expect to be completely settled in their new homes by the holidays.

With built-in breakfast bars, food pulverizers, General Electric washer-dryer combinations, Armstrong linoleum, and birch cabinetry, kitchens are almost completely equipped. Other features winning strong approval are Pullman lavatories, colored bath fixtures, tiled stall showers, central hall planning and cathedral ceilings.

Sliding "Horizon" window walls, free-standing fireplaces, cove lighting, backyard incinerators, Royal Jet forced air heat with summer ventilation, insulation and weatherstripping, oak flooring with raised foundations, Telejack-TV outlets, washable interior walls and two-car garages are more of the many qualities that make Chapman Woods "Story Book" homes such extraordinary values.

Located within easy access of major transportation to the industrial areas of Long Beach, Santa Ana and Los Angeles, Chapman Woods homes are close to major shopping centers, fine schools, churches and community activities. Such wholesome recreation areas as Disneyland, beaches, parks, resorts and mountains are all nearby or within short driving distance.

Priced from $13,850 to $14,950, Chapman Woods homes are available for only $95 cash required. Furnished models are reached by driving out Garden Grove Blvd. (Seventh St.) to Hwy. 39, turning north to Chapman Ave. and east to 9th St.

NEW REALTY OFFICE

Doris and Gordan Hoffdahl have opened a new Lakewood real estate office known as D. Dahl Realty, 5439 South St. They have been in real estate in the Lakewood area over three years and have resided in Lakewood five years.

HAWAII CALLS

Miss Barbara Moss, head of the Barbara Moss Real Estate College, Carson St. and Orange Ave., will leave Wednesday for Honolulu to conduct a five-day conference with Realtors of the Island. Last year she was called by the Honolulu Real Estate Board to set up multiple listing service. This year the conference will deal with problems of a broker. Miss Moss will fly to Honolulu and return in about 10 days.

To Discuss Plane Costs

The monthly meeting of the Long Beach Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, will be held Wednesday at 6:30 p.m., at the Lafayette Hotel. The meeting will be presided over by John C. C. Byrne, chapter president and assistant secretary and assistant controller, Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co., Grayson Di-Beach.

J. E. BIBY

John E. Biby Jr., Long Beach plant controller, Douglas Aircraft Co., will speak on "Cost Problems of the Aircraft Industry."

Biby attended the University of Washington, University of Stanford, and UCLA and graduated with a major in the school of Business Administration. He joined Douglas in 1935, and he has been serving as a plant controller for the last 12 years.

The fall education forum of the chapter was held Wednesday at the Lafayette Hotel.

"A Re-examination of Cost Accounting Objectives and Methods" was the topic.

Speakers were Jack Townsend, IBM representative; Fred Mill, assistant secretary and division controller of National Supply, Torrance; Paul Kircher, associate professor of accounting at UCLA, and Robert Rothschild, CPA.

George Martin, Robertshaw-Fulton Company, was moderator.

Fred Rose Opens Los Altos Office

Fred Rose, former sales manager for seven years with the Charles E. Wright Agency in Lakewood Village announced the opening of Fred Rose Realty at 2155 Bellflower Blvd., Los Altos. Rose has been an active real estate broker in this area for the past 10 years. He is a member of the board of directors of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, charter member and past chairman of the Lakewood-Los Altos Real Estate Assn., a member of the Lakewood Masonic Lodge and El Bekal Shrine of Long Beach.

Buckingham Square Homes Offered Vets, Non-Vets

Homes for the Royal Family—King, Queen, Jack and Jill—are being offered in West Anaheim where Buckingham Square homes stand amid the orange groves.

Spacious 3 and 4-bedroom residences priced from $13,490 are now offered to both veterans and non-vets on VA and FHA terms.

The "King" of the family will appreciate the fine workmanship of Buckingham Square homes, reports Walker and Lee, sales agents. There is genuine plaster throughout, quality hardwood floors and sliding glass doors opening onto huge patios.

A "Queen's Kitchen" has been decorated in soft colors and wall-coverings designed by color consultant Marilyn Price. There are such built-in features as O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, Westinghouse disposal and custom cabinets. The floors are comfortable, easily-cleaned rubber tile.

Young royalty gets special treatment at Buckingham Square with three all-day schools within walking distance, and fine parks, shaded quiet streets and play areas.

To reach Buckingham Square from Long Beach, take Carson St. (Lincoln Blvd.) to Brookhurst, turn right to Orange St., and left to the furnished models.

Two Midwood-Signature Developments Attracting

Plans for new schools, shopping centers and other key facilities in the fast-growing Garden Grove area have helped to focus additional attention on Midwood-Signature Homes' new twin communities of traditionally styled residences in two classic concepts and two separate price ranges.

Midwood spokesmen Saturday reported thousands of visitors at furnished model homes which typify the new properties in two locations, open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Four furnished model homes at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves. represent the "First Edition" luxury residences, which are priced from $15,800 and offer a choice of 3 bedrooms and family room, or 4 bedrooms, all with two spacious baths.

Three furnished homes on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave. typify the "Special Edition" series, featuring top quality conventional construction with raised foundations, hardwood floors and cedar shingle roofs, yet priced from only $11,700.

• • • •

SALES MANAGER James H. Waters announced that VA and FHA terms are available in both series. The larger "First Edition" homes, from $316 down, plus costs and impounds, have monthly payments from $66.42 for principal and interest, while the "Special Edition" homes, from $234 down, plus costs and impounds, require from $52.50 for principal and interest.

Waters announced a wide selection of traditional stylings at both locations, with some modern designs also available.

Among the many luxury features of the spacious "First Edition" homes are color-styled O'Keefe & Merritt built-in gas ranges and double gas ovens with large look-in doors, automatic timing and exclusive rotisseries. Also included are heavy shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces, "cathedral" ceilings, colored bath fixtures, ceramic tile throughout, tile Pullman tops and forced air heating.

IN THE "Special Edition" series, conventional construction features select hardwood floors and cedar shingle roofs, meeting high standards for modest budgets, officials explained.

Visitors may follow the Santa Ana Freeway from downtown Los Angeles, turn right on Magnolia Ave. three miles to the "First Edition" models at Cerritos Ave. For the "Special Edition" display, turn right off Magnolia Ave. on Ball Rd., then left on Dale St. to the models.

From Long Beach, visitors may drive east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Magnolia, then left three miles to models at Cerritos; or they may follow Carson (Lincoln Ave.) to Magnolia and turn right on Magnolia one mile to Cerritos, to the "First Edition" homes. From here, go north on Magnolia to Ball, left on Ball to Dale, and left on Dale to the "special Edition" display.

ATTRACTIVE MODEL HOME The above typifies Midwood-Signature Homes' "First Edition" series at Magnolia and Cerritos Ave., Garden Grove. "Special Edition" models are also on view on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos.

Bank Group Shows Gains

With a membership of nearly 1,000 bank men and woman, half of whom were enrolled in educational classes in banking during the fall semester, another banner year for the Harbor District Chapter of the American Institute of Banking is underway, according to Donald Sparks, assistant cashier of the Bank of America's Viking Way Branch, this year's chapter president.

The occasion for his remarks was the annual dinner forum attended by over 200 banker members of the chapter held in the Cavalier Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Principal speaker at this dinner-forum was Robert Kohler, special representative of the International Business Machine's Banking Department whose topic was "Electronics in Banking." Part of Kohler's presentation included a 20 minute film, "Direct Line to Decision" that showed the lightening calculating speed of modern electronic computers.

Excelsior Village Home Buyer's Move In Quickly

Veterans in need of quick occupancy of a new home may just do that with the convenient no down terms at Excelsior Village. All he needs to move in now is just costs and impounds required by the VA. FHA buyers are also able to have immediate occupancy.

This is a community where there are schools for grammer students right across the street. Mom or Dad will not have to run a shuttle service back-and-forth to carry the children to school. This gives Mom more time to enjoy the easy aids that are built right into Excelsior Village Homes kitchen. Built-in ranges and ovens, built-in washer - dryer combination, plenty of extra-space natural finish cabinets of hardwood, along with the wonderful American-Standard fixtures that add just the right touch.

Dad will enjoy the large 2-car garages, safe paved streets and sidewalks along with the extra spacious, pool-size, landscaped lots.

The whole family will like the convenience of many nearby churches, shopping centers as well as the nearness of urban stores. A 42-acre shopping center will be right across the street along with many fine facilities. Drive out 7th St. from Garden Grove to Brookhurst (Wright St.) and turn right to the models, or from Santa Ana come straight out Westminster Ave. (17th) to Wright St. and the models.

LUXURY HOME

Pictured is one of many home stylings now displayed at Signature Estates in the Sunny Hills area of Fullerton, on El Dorado Dr. just north of Del Monte West, off the Santa Ana Freeway.

Custom Styling in Signature Estates

Custom-styled homes with entries and porches with flagstone floors and with all-electric kitchens are attracting large crowds to the fashionable new community of Signature Estates in the exclusive Sunny Hills section of Fullerton, it was reported yesterday by James H. Waters, sales manager.

Two beautiful furnished model residences, with decor by Lloyd's of Long Beach, comprise the center of interest for visitors to the property on El Dorado Dr., just north of Del Monte West, off the Santa Ana Freeway.

A planned community of winding streets and individually terraced lots, Signature Homes adjoins an area of $30,000 to $50,000 homes, Waiters pointed out.

• • • • •

FEATURED in the model homes are colorful all-electric kitchens of turquoise green, woodtone brown, petal pink and canary yellow with color-matched appliances which include wall-hung refrigerators, built-in ranges and ovens, automatic dishwashers and automatic washers and dryers.

Rising on sites fully 80 feet wide, the homes offer buyers a choice between 4-bedroom plans and 3 bedrooms with family room, and all have two spacious baths. They are priced from $22,080, with VA, FHA and conventional terms, from $460 down plus costs and impounds and from $91.86 a month for principal and interest.

Among the many special luxury features are wood-burning fireplaces of flagstone, Texas white stone and used brick; entries and porches with flagstone floors; sliding aluminum windows and huge walls of sliding glass leading to paved patios.

Offers Home Near Beach at Low Cost

Near the ocean on 6,000 square foot lots, requiring a low down payment of only $295, Costa Mesa Sunshine Beach Homes, according to builder, Richard Hunsaker, are being purchased by local residents who are aware of value offered.

Sunshine Beach Homes, at Wilson & Placentia, are located in a high rental resort area, close to Orange Coast College and within 5 minutes of the beach. Three bedrooms are provided, 2 full baths and 2-car garages. Yet, monthly payments are said to be less than rent.

Homes are of attractive contemporary design with colorful rock roofs. Interiors are easy-to-maintain with cork tile flooring in living room and bedrooms and confetti tile in kitchens. Also, kitchens feature natural birch cabinets and extra space for family snack area. All homes have 40-gallon water heaters and plenty of closet space.

Model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

OFFERED IN FINAL SALE

Last chance is offered to buy a home at Homestead Gardens, typified above, where early sellout is predicted. Location is Verano St. just north of Westminster Ave., near Santa Ana Freeway.

Refreshments for Homestead Gardens Visitors

Free refreshments and free rides for youngsters will be part of the big "Homestead Sale" of remaining quality-built homes at Homestead Gardens Sunday in Garden Grove, where vets and non-vets can move into a new residence for only $50.

This was announced yesterday by Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the property, which is showing a display of furnished model homes, with decor by Aaron Schultz, on Verano St., just north of Westminster Ave., near the Santa Ana Freeway, in Garden Grove.

"The great demand for possession of homes before the Christmas holidays," a spokesman said, "has resulted in our program to offer these homes at once on terms of move-in for $50, to vets and non-vets."

• • • •

THE HOMES are built on big lots of 7,200 square feet, with thermostat-controlled heating, big wardrobe closets, steel casement windows, fibre-glass insulation, acoustic type ceilings, lath and plaster walls, stall showers with big glass doors and big garages with extra storage space.

Also included are garbage disposers, wide driveways, weatherstripping on doors, 40 to 50-gallon automatic water heaters, gutters, downspouts and wide overhangs, while some homes have Modernfold doors to give flexibility to living arrangements.

The property is near fine shopping centers, within a half mile of schools, a few blocks from business districts and within a 15-minute drive of key industrial and employment centers.

"With such low terms, luxury features and desirable location," a spokesman said, "we anticipate an early sellout of the remaining homes, which still are available in a wide choice of stylings."

'Hearts Desire' Contest Winners Are Announced

Twenty-eight prizes valued at $25,000 have been won by 28 Southland residents who visited model homes during five weeks ending Oct. 7 and wrote what their "Heart's Desire" in a new home is.

Names of the winners were released yesterday by the Suppliers' Council of the Home Builders' Institute, sponsors of the contest, which was designed to dramatize local observance of National Home Month and to furnish builders with information as to public preferences in architecture and home features.

Winner of the sweepstake prize, an all-gas kitchen and laundry valued at $5,525 was Albert G. Lazar, 11229 Hollyhock, Norwalk. The prize, which will be designed to the winner's specifications by the Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Co.s' Kitchen Planning Bureau, gives him his choice from among seven famous makes of built-in gas ranges.

Winner of the grand prize, given by California Kitchens, Inc., a complete kitchen valued at $3,417.25, is Mrs. James N. Cochran, 1902 E. Rowland Ave.

FIRST PRIZE WINNER was Mrs. Theresa C. Kelton, 206 E. 185th St., Gardena, who will receive a General Electric kitchen center valued at $1,810.

Special Award winner, who has won a flight for two to Honolulu and a week's stay at the Hawaiian Village Hotel on the beach at Waikiki is Mrs. J. W. Atherton, 17235 Woodcroft St., Azusa.

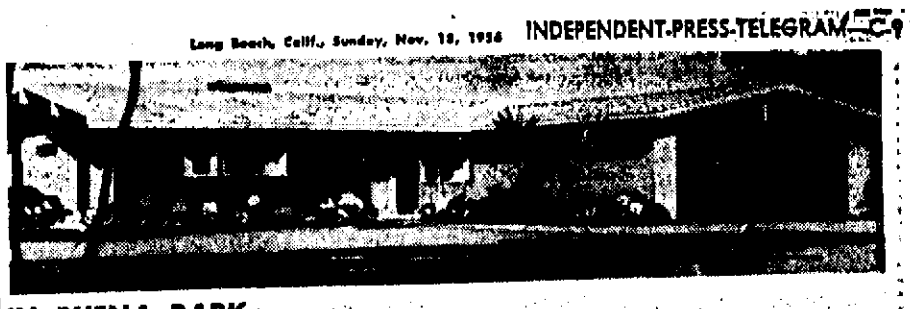

Other prize winners include Mrs. G. J. Davelaar, Temple City, kitchen cabinets and pullman; and Mrs. Golda Neely, West Covina, a freezer.

Gas ranges were won by Mrs. James Perry, Pomona; Mrs. Emmett Ingram Jr., Compton; Mrs. Vergil Brooks, Pomona, and Mrs. Anna L. Dunkelberger, Lennox. Mrs. D. A. Silverii, Sunland, won a furnace, and Mrs. Barbara B Conant, Culver City, a dishwasher.

Water heaters were won by Mrs. Marion Maddox, and Mrs. Elinor Gale, both of Los Angeles, while Mrs. Jayne Shanault, Azusa, won a blower, hood and fans. Marie Moore, of San Marino, also won a large water heater.

Winners of ventilating hoods were: Mrs. Wesley E. Eberle, Sepulveda; William Irwin, Gardena; Mrs. Barbara M. Lutes, Long Beach, and Mrs. Marjorie H. Woodside, Pomona.

Mrs. John B. Girdler, Duarte, won a 10-piece kitchenware set, and electric clocks were won by Joann Danch, Ventura; Clarence H. West, Ontario; A. G. Erickson, Pasadena; Mrs. C. D. Edison, Pasadena; Richard Chandler, Los Angeles, and Mrs. D. C. Hamilton, Tarzana.

IN BUENA PARK

Luxurious three-bedroom, two-bath home with den-dining area and spacious kitchen, shown here, is in Town and Country Square in Buena Park. Built by Larwin Co., winners of national award, they stress quality construction.

Homes Designed for Ease

Homes that emphasize the good taste of their owners and add to the pride of ownership, are what spokesmen for the Larwin Co. announce they have created at Town and Country Square in Buena Park.

From entrance grounds, through the large homes themselves, to the corners of each garden, the prize-winning builders believe that the quality of these suburban residences is immediately apparent to every visitor.

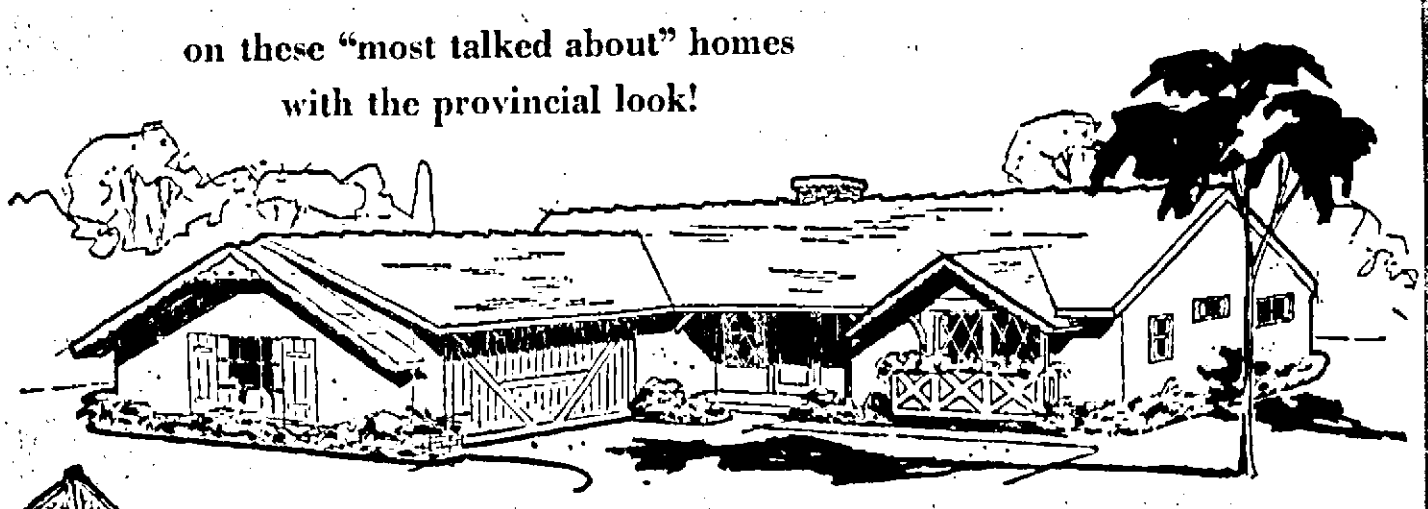

The design of the huge brick fireplaces, the diagonal shape of the concrete patio terraces with their built-in luau barbecues, the sliding glass walls, the enclosed dens and large bedrooms with roomy wardrobes, the richly appointed baths, Jack-and-Jill room, and generous linen closets all show that these homes were made for lasting comfort and satisfaction, the builders point out, rather than merely for quick sales.

Especially delightful are the spacious New Freedom gas kitchens with Western Holly oven set into a wall of aged brick, with built-in range top surrounded by genuine quarry tile.

Located only 10 minutes from Long Beach, in Buena Park, Town and Country Square is easily reached by driving east on Carson St. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.) and turning north on Miller to the model homes furnished by W. & J. Sloane.

A ROSSMOOR MODEL

Rossmoor, new $200,000,000 suburb ofLong Beach, opens today, with four furnished model homes. A view in one is shown above. It is under way a mile east of the new Long Beach State College.

Cortese Opens New L.B. Suburb of Rossmoor Just East of City

Developer Ross W. Cortese's fashionable Rossmoor, new $200,000,000 suburb of Long Beach and itself a planned complete modern city will focus national attention upon the Southland homebuilding industry at its colorful grand opening here today.

The introduction of Rossmoor, comprising one of the largest community development programs in the history of Southern California, will place on display daily, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., 4 estate-class luxury model residences, completed and furnished as forerunners of 4000 homes to be built in the area.

Conceived "in the tradition of Westwood and Berkeley," according to developer Cortese, the new city is under construction on a 1200-acre portion of the historic Rancho Los Alamitos a mile east of Long Beach State College.

"Rossmoor has been planned," Cortese said, "as an ideal suburban California community, well within a major campus environment and so situated that children from kindergarten through college.

"ROSSMOOR IS CLOSE to the Marina, only minutes away from the Municipal Golf Course and within access of the growing Long Beach City Park network, providing every type of recreational and sporting activity."

Built by Cortese's associates, Frematic Homes, Inc., of Anaheim, Rossmoor is bounded by Katella Ave. on the north, 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) on the south, Los Alamitos Blvd. on the east, and on the west by the route of the projected San Gabriel Freeway and San Gabriel River. It is accessible from Los Angeles by the Santa Ana Freeway via the Norwalk Blvd. turnoff to the south.

The four furnished model residences, with attractive decor in varying motifs by the Davis Furniture Co. of Long Beach, include "The Salem" and "The New Englander," both with model swimming pools, and "The Plymouth" and "The Farmhouse."

Offering a choice of three bedrooms or three bedrooms and family room, all with two complete baths, the Rossmoor homes are priced from $17,500, according to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, and are available on FHA-guaranteed 30-year loans from $2800 down, plus impounds, as well as on VA terms.

New Whaley Homes Styled to Please

Emphasizing the provincial style of home design, the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at Crescent Estates are fulfilling the demands of present day homebuyers, declared Dave Davenport, sales manager for the new L. S. Whaley home development in Buena Park.

"The provincial treatment does not stop with only the exterior design but is carried on throughout the interior of the homes as well," Davenport stated.

He pointed out that at Crescent Estates home buyers are offered such features as ceiling height used brick fireplaces, wood paneled living room walls, natural birch cabinets, natural finish ash doors and wall papered entry halls and breakfast nooks.

• • • •

IN THE KITCHEN, the homes have all the labor saving appliances including built-in range and oven in harmonizing color, dishmaster, garbage disposal, range hood with light and exhaust fan and built-in spice racks. Ceramic tile surrounds the range work area and is used throughout other kitchen surface areas.

The provincial exterior theme of the homes which are priced from $15,450 encompasses diamond paned windows, custom millwork and used brick planters in some models. Roofs are of thick shake shingles and gables are peaked permitting slanting eave overhang.

Available to veterans on a no down basis, except for costs and impounds, the homes may also be purchased by non-veterans under several convenient financing plans.

TWO FURNISHED MODELS for the residential development are located at Crescent Ave. and Pierce Dr., and are reached by driving east on Carson St. from Long Beach to Knott Ave. where a right turn is made to Crescent Ave. Signs along Knott Ave. direct buyers to the model home site.

According to Davenport, the model homes will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. throughout the week. He noted that the homes could be viewed on Thanksgiving Day and qualified sales representatives will be on hand to answer any questions.

Realtors to Hear Convention News

The high lights of the state and national conventions for the Realtors, which have just by Realtor representatives at the regular Tuesday morning breakfast at the Lafayette Hotel, Clive Graham, program chairman, announced.

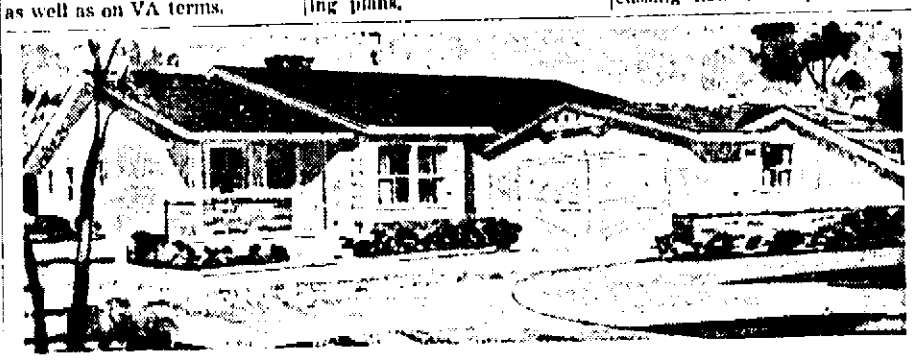

Those taking part in this presentation, which will be a round table, will be Dupuy, Mildred Stanley, Arnold Berg, Barbara Moss, Bill Barbee, Larry Miller, Max Livoni, H. A. Murray, Tenny Moore, Fae Matthews, Art Maspero, Ed Weller, Elmer Roswurm, Jim Burdge, Harvey Miller and Bill Smith. The breakfast meeting will be arranged with eight discussion tables. Realtors, salesmen and guests will be seated at these tables and the entire morning will be spent in discussing new techniques.

Expert to Speak to Appraisers

Thomas F. Mason, past president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Appraisers, and vice president of the American Right-of-Way Association, will address the Long Beach Chapter of the Society of Residential Appraisers at its regular monthly dinner meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at the Lafayette Hotel.

Herb Coffey, appraiser of Westminster, chairman of the program committee, said all appraisers and realtors should appreciate Mason's presentation, "Testimony of an Expert Witness in California Courts." Mason has been retained as an expert appraiser in important litigation involving real estate 30 years.

IN SANTA ANA

Here is "The Coach and Four" model home with two bedrooms and den or third bedroom, in new "Prince Charming" series at Fairview Ranchos, at Bristol and Fairview, in Santa Ana.

Kitchen Outstanding in Fairview

The recently perfected automatic kitchens created by Waste King, and introduced for the first time in America in the new "Prince Charming Series" of homes at Fairview Ranchos, in Santa Ana, are proving something of a seven days wonder, reports Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agents for the D and E Corp.'s picturesque big-family homes at Bristol and Fairview.

According to Chandler, these new kitchens not only have everything, but they have also been designed from the woman's point of view to provide every advantage and convenience that could be longed for.

• • • •

FOR INSTANCE, the built-in Waste King wall oven, with automatic oven-tender timer, is large enough to take a holiday-size turkey easily. It has a full-view window, eye-level control panel, and waist-high broiler. The Waste King built-in range has automatic pilots, new-type "spillover" trays, and burners that are guaranteed for life. All these are gas, and may be had in decorator colors. There is also a new type built-in dishwasher with big, roomy contour racks and revolutionary rinsing and drying action which doesn't steam up walls or windows. Disposer, of course, is the Waste King.

Full price for the 3-bedroom or 2-and-a-den, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes in the "Prince Charming" series of Fairview Ranchos, is only $13,750, with monthly payments of $69.67, which includes principal and interest. There is still no down payments for veterans except impounds and closing costs.

To reach Fairview Ranchos from Long Beach take 7th St. (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol, turn right to the models.

LOCAL BOYS SET RECORD—Two Long Beach men, Danny Eames and Chuck Daigh, figured recently in a coast-to-coast performance record chalked up by a 1957 stock Ford sedan.

The Fairlane was driven by the two local auto men in setting a record of 47 hours and 37 minutes in the ocean-to-ocean run from New York to Los Angeles, a distance of 2,913 miles.

Eames and Daigh observed all speed limits while breaking the previous record set last October in another make car by 9 hours and 21 minutes.

Driving in heavy week-end traffic, the Ford left New York Saturday, Nov. 19, at 4:38 p.m. and arrived in Los Angeles Monday at 1:15 p.m. The Fairlane club sedan is the same Ford that set an all-time endurance record in September at the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats. Eames, Daigh and 12 other drivers alternated at Bonneville in driving the Ford for 50,000 miles in less than 20 days at an average speed of 108.16 mph. No other land vehicle ever had traveled so far in such a short time.

"In addition to proving the Ford is a dependable car," Eames said, "this run demonstrates the tremendous improvement in the highway network of the nation in recent years. Better roads definitely have shrunk the distance between our two coasts."

Completion of the coast-to-coast run added one more national achievement to the list of 458 international and American records which were set in the time trials in Utah.

BUS DRIVING IN AFRICA—If you ever happen to be driving in Darkest Africa and your car or truck develops a thumping or a brake that slips, forget about it, don't get out and get under.

A bus driver over there just a few months back, according to the National Automobile Club, got out and got under to adjust a brake or two. While he was under, along came a hungry lion and a hungrier lioness. The lioness saw the driver under the bus, decided he might make a tasty morsel, charged in after him, and made a mighty snap.

The bus driver, however, had been warned by the screams of his passengers. He made it to safety in his cab and drove off shakily across the veld.

Returning to the spot a little later, he found the lioness dead. Seemed she had impaled herself on some protruding metal spike under the bus. This time the driver drove off triumphantly, with the giant tawny carcass proudly displayed atop his lion-killing bus.

PLYMOUTHS HOT — Plymouth Division of Chrysler Corp. has found it necessary to advertise to car buyers that waiting time for delivery of new Plymouth cars will be kept to a minimum.

"The overwhelming reception afforded the new Plymouth convinced us that some customers might experience a short delay in getting delivery of certain model Plymouths," Jack W. Minor, Plymouth's Vice President in charge of Sales, said. "The demand will be met quickly, and we will maintain our traditional standard of quality. We advertised to explain the situation to the public and to express our appreciation for the public acceptance of our new line of cars."

This advertising was being placed just three days after the public first saw the 1957 cars. At the same time, Minor announced that Plymouth's November production schedule is 71.8 per cent above the number of cars they produced during October.

New shipments of cars are en route to all dealers and production in all Plymouth plants is being increased. Minor estimated that over ten million persons visited Plymouth dealerships the first three days the cars were on display.

OLDSMOBILE'S NEW FIESTA

A brand new note in station wagon styling is being introduced this year in Oldsmobile's Super 88 Fiesta, pictured above. The Fiesta, which may be seen locally at C. Standlee Martin, is of the so-called Holiday hardtop design which eliminates the center post between the two doors. The second seat folds flush with the floor to provide generous cargo space in the rear. The design incorporates the utility of a station wagon and the luxury and convenience of hardtop styling.

His Motor Really Fouled by Fowl

HILLSDALE, Mich. (UP) — Wilbur Duryea was homebound after a visit with a neighboring farmer when he noticed his motor was misfiring. He lifted the hood and found a hen crouched next to the steering post, hanging on for dear life. But the real source of the trouble was an egg laid by the frightened fowl. It had cracked open and fried, shorting two spark plugs.

Pictured is the 1957 Cadillac Coupe De Ville which went on display at Ridings Motors, local Cadillac dealership. The luxurious new Cadillac drew its share of ahhs and ohhs as thousands of auto-minded shoppers thronged Long Beach dealer showrooms last week to view the 1957 cars.

Few Vets Behind on GI Loan

CHICAGO — Veterans are establishing an excellent record of keeping their mortgage loan payments current, with loans three months or more overdue amounting to only .25 of 1 per cent, according to the nationwide delinquency survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America as of Sept. 30.

GI loans delinquent two months were slightly higher, .70 of 1 per cent, and for one month rose to 2.10 per cent. The survey, made quarterly, covers 2,451,284 loans, of which 54,802 were delinquent for a national percentage of 2.23 per cent. Loans surveyed cover one to four-family units.

Mortgage borrowers under the Federal Housing Administration plan showed a slightly better record than veterans, however. FHA loans delinquent three months or more were .13 of 1 per cent, for two months .26 of 1 per cent and for one month 1.61 per cent. Conventional-type mortgages, those without government insurance or guaranty, showed about the same record as FHA loans. Delinquencies of three months or more were also .13 of 1 per cent, for two months .25 of 1 per cent and for one month 1.12 per cent.

Nationally, the 2.23 per cent of delinquent loans from a total of 2,451,284 compares with 2.12 per cent a year ago, 2.33 on Sept. 30, 1954, and 2.35 on Sept. 30, 1953.

Bus Driver Has Real Incentive

NEWARK, N. J. (UP) — Stuart Holzman is driving a bus toward a $4,500,000 payoff.

While the 28-year-old millionaire-to-be enjoys the daily round trips between Paterson and the Port Authority Bus Terminal in New York City, he has an additional incentive to the $125 a week he receives as a driver.

Under the terms of his uncle's will, Holzman, in order to come into an estate valued at $4,500,000, must remain on one job from his 25th to his 35th birthday. In the meantime he receives an allowance from the estate which boosts his temporary income to about $9,200 a month.

you know the difference between silver plate and sterling...

and you'll know Devon's PARKWOOD ROYALE is for you...a home appreciated by people of taste.

Surface appearance is not always the true standard of actual worth. But for people of discernment, the sterling qualities of Parkwood Royale are immediately recognizable. They appreciate the fact that the same painstaking care lavished on "made-to-order" homes has been applied here. Three distinguished architectural firms created these luxurious homes, and the results of their efforts can be sensed the moment you step inside the front door.

There are many quality products to be found in Parkwood Royale homes, but the most important "product" of them all is the built-in Devon quality. Devon's reputation is your guarantee of satisfaction. Subject Parkwood Royale to your most critical judgment. Then, in choosing your home here, you will know you have selected the finest!

ON LOW TERMS

Both vets and non-vets can purchase new Enchanted Homes, such as illustrated above, on low down VA and FHA terms. Highly individualized inside and out, each of the homes features a complete powder room in addition to its two baths. Enchanted Homes are located at the intersection of Orangewood and Magnolia Blvds. in Garden Grove.

Luxury Priced Low in Enchanted Homes

Top payment for an Enchanted Home in Garden Grove is only $15,400 Marvin H. Stiller, sales manager announced.

The entire range of Enchanted Home models, each 3 bedrooms and 2 or 2½ baths, is from $15,200 to $15,400 on VA and FHA terms with low down payments, said Stiller.

Because of their luxurious appearance, the homes in new Unit Two have been mistakenly thought to be higher-priced, Stiller explained, noting that prices have been unchanged for many months, despite rising costs in home building.

Each Enchanted Home has built-in range and oven, life-time work surfaces, efficient garbage disposer and natural birch cabinets. Adjacent is a round-the-clock family room with a wide breakfast bar at one side.

The fully-developed Enchanted Homes neighborhood, its green lawns and already-occupied homes is reachd from Long Beach by taking 7th St. to Magnolia in Garden Grove, turn left to models.

sweeping shake roof, diamond-lite windows and such unusual features as panel walls, wide-spreading hearths and deep fireplaces.

EACH ENCHANTED HOME also has the unique luxury feature of a complete powder room in addition to its baths. The powder room, especially for the convenience of guests, has its own wash basin, make-up table, wall-to-wall mirror and stall shower with ceramic tile and wall paper in warm, inviting colors.

Enchanted Kitchens feature caviar.

IN LA MIRADA

Parkwood Royale, new Devon Construction Co. development in La Mirada, is showing five model houses, typified above, on Lultweiler Rd. between Imperial Hwy. and Rosecrans Ave.

Parkwood Royale, in La Mirada, Offers Luxury in Large Home

Diversified contemporary stylings by three leading architectural firms have gone into the making of Parkwood Royale, new Devon Construction Co. residential community which is rising rapidly in the new City of La Mirada.

"Much of the popularity of this new luxury property may be attributed to the widespread approval of the beautiful and functional designs," a Devon spokesman said. "The homes are spacious and range in size to 4 bedrooms, family room and 3 baths, with such features as built-in gas ranges and oversize ovens with rotisseries."

A display of 5 fully furnished model residences, with decor by C. Tony Pereira, has been attracting large crowds to the sales office at Lultweiler Rd., between Imperial Hwy. and Rosecrans Ave., it was reported. The location is in the new City of La Mirada.

DESIGNED BY A. Quincy Jones & Frederick E. Emmons: David Freedman and Richard Leitch, the homes are priced from $20,950 to $23,950 and available to vets from $500 down, plus costs and impounds.

Non-vets may buy for FHA terms or on conventional financing from $3,000 down, plus costs and impounds.

Built on homesites with olive trees of 15 to 25 feet in heighth, the residences feature structural brick walls in varied patterns, wing walls of stone, aluminum-frame sliding glass walls and concrete patios.

Some models boast double fireplaces, while all have at least one custom-planned fireplace of brick or stone, officials pointed out.

There also are Mr. and Mrs. marble-top twin lavatories, glass-enclosed tub-showers, large size glass-doored stall showers with six feet of ceramic tile, built-in vanity tables in master bedrooms, custom-designed plastic room dividers and selected wallpapers.

Homes such as this are selling to non-veterans for $95 down and $90 costs in Ellanbee Manor. They are priced from $11,250.

Non-Veteran Needs Little Cash in Ellanbee Manor

The 1,300-square-foot, 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in Ellanbee Manor are still available to non-veterans for $95 down plus small costs, Frank H. McFarland, sales agent for the development, stated.

"We would like to make clear that the $95 is the entire down payment," McFarland said, "and that the other costs are only $90 for the entire transaction. There are no termination dates and no balloon payments. This is not a come-on where the buyer has to make unusually high payments for a year or two to cover what is really a higher down payment."

• • • •

MANY FAMILIES are taking advantage of the new terms to be in their new homes before Christmas.

Ellanbee Manor homes are on wide, level lots, close to shopping centers and schools in the westerly outskirts of Santa Ana. Of quality conventional construction with genuine plaster walls and acoustical plaster ceilings, the homes sell at the low full price starting at only $11,250.

Features of the homes include special built-ins in some cases, and in all is included garbage disposals, mahogany doors, oversize double garages, large picture windows that open, and spacious dining and breakfast areas.

To see the homes, from Long Beach drive east on 7th St., which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., turn south on Harbor Blvd. to Westminster, then west to Newhope and south to the Ellanbee Manor Sales office.

Immediate Occupancy

Large 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath Harbor Park Estates homes are still available for immediate possession, reports a spokesman for the Garden Grove subdivision. New owners may be moved and completely settled by the holidays.

Especially appealing to families who have outgrown their present homes, Harbor Park Estates offer spaciousness throughout, with expensive features and attractive architectural styling.

Among the many qualities of the dwellings are 2-car garages, plastered interiors, built-in Roper range burners, wall oven, select hardwood flooring and disposal units.

• • • •

IDEALLY LOCATED for families who value short commuting distances to industrial areas, Harbor Park Estates are close to Long Beach, Santa Ana and Los Angeles, with major transportation to all three cities easily accessible. The recreation areas of Disneyland, famous Southland beaches, golf courses, parks and resorts are also nearby.

Non-veterans may purchase a Harbor Park Estates home for only $900 down, while veterans may buy their new homes in the development by paying impounds only.

Models of the homes are three-quarters of a mile east of Harbor Blvd. on Chapman Ave. From Long Beach, visitors drive out Garden Grove Blvd. (7th St.) to Hwy. 39, turn north to Chapman Ave., and continue past Harbor Blvd. to the dwellings.

Many Luxury Items in Stratford Homes

According to Charlie Sanders, Walker & Lee sales manager of the Stratford Homes, Broadway Euclid Series of Anaheim, the 3-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings are the finest of Cunningham Co. homes. Sanders, who has been associated with Cunningham Co. developments 8 years, in Lakewood and West Covina previous to the current subdivision in Anaheim, lists the galaxy of fine features that place these dwellings in the preferred class.

Among them are oversize two-car garages with workshop or hobby room, hardwood kitchen cabinetry, luxury-size bathroom mirrors, built-in bookcases in some models, brick fireplaces in paneled living room walls, patios, sliding glass doors, service porches, Pullman lavatories in both baths, stall showers, built-in dressing tables in some models, dust-free slab doors, thermostat controlled forced air heat, an abundance of storage room in closets and cabinets, sidewalks and street lights installed, and oak floors with two-inch tongue and groove subfloors, found in all Cunningham Co. homes.

Close to the mammoth new Broadway shopping center, the Anaheim homes are easily accessible to Los Angeles, Long Beach and Santa Ana. New schools, shopping and recreation centers including Disneyland, beaches, golf courses, mountains and resorts are all easily reached from the development.

Priced from $15,750, Stratford Homes are available on both VA and FHA financing. Models are reached, from Long Beach, by driving out Carson St. (Lincoln) and turning right on Euclid to Broadway.

BUILT BY CUNNINGHAM

Here is one of the models of the Stratford Homes, Broadway Euclid Series in Anaheim which are priced from $15,750. They were built by the Cunningham Co., well known developers.

Senior Engineers

NORTH AMERICAN'S

at

Downey, California

Has openings in the following select positions.

ADVANCED ENGINEERING

Our continued growth has created several select positions requiring the best engineers in the industry to perform all aspects of composite analysis and design of advanced guided missile systems — airframe structures, air breathing power plants, missile internal functional systems and ground support equipment.
Prefer M.S. or Ph.D. in M.E., C.E. Aero, Physics or applied mathematics.

WEAPONS SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

Several positions exist for men with engineering, scientific or military backgrounds to apply their knowledge to the integration of advanced missile weapons systems. Fields include operations research, economic analysis, weapons systems characteristics, development, evaluation and planning.

These positions require advanced highly professional experience or training in Physics, E.E., Economics, Mathematics, Military Development and/or Air Operations. Combinations of Engineering and Business Administration degrees are also acceptable.

AERODYNAMICS

Senior level aerodynamics engineers are needed for aerodynamic support of our advanced engineering effort.

They will perform all aspects of supersonic and hypersonic aerodynamic and heat transfer analyses and design of advanced guided missile systems. Intermediate and senior level positions are also available on current Navaho project.
Prefer advanced degrees in Aero, Mechanical, Physics or applied mathematics with at least 3 years experience on related problems.

STRUCTURES

Structures specialists with advanced degrees and experience applicable to investigations of thermal stress problems. Heat transfer experience desirable — to investigate new methods of handling structural problems arising from high-speed flight.

Positions also available in structural analysis, load investigations, weight control and design for vibration environment.
B.S. or M.S. in related areas preferred.

THERMODYNAMICS

Excellent positions available for men with experience in internal aero-dynamics, jet engine theory, wind tunnel testing, supersonic air inlet development, compressible flow phenomena, heat transfer or boundary layer theory.

B.S. in M.E., Aero or Physics required.

American Indians used wampum for money...

Modern folks use money from PFI

NEED WAMPUM FOR FALL EXPENSES?

The American Indian spent months making beadwork wampum to get things he couldn't make or hunt. Modern folks use money and credit... need extra amounts this time of year for heavy fall expenses.

PICK A PAYMENT PLAN

12 Mo. Payments	Amount of Loan	24 Mo. Payments	Amount of Loan
$ 9	$139.23	$ 9	$162.11
17	247.44	17	311.89
33	486.40	28	519.16
44	1009.74	54	1052.50

Other amounts up to $1000 or more.

How about you? If you need extra wampum for extra-heavy fall expenses, see PF right away.

American Indians used wampum for money...

Modern folks use money from PFI

NEED WAMPUM FOR FALL EXPENSES?

The American Indian spent months making beadwork wampum to get things he couldn't make or hunt. Modern folks use money and credit... need extra amounts this time of year for heavy fall expenses.

PICK A PAYMENT PLAN

12 Mo. Pay'ts	Amount of Loan	24 Mo. Pay'ts	Amount of Loan

WHY DON'T YOU?

DO YOU NEED A REALTOR?
DO YOU WANT TO SELL?
DO YOU WANT TO BUY?
If you do it seems more than logical that you would want personal service direct from your Realtor. As a matter of fact you have a right to expect it! Yes, even demand it. You will get just that type of service as our staff is small & our sales percentage is tall. We like to stay on the ball and serve you, one and all.

Forecast: A Gay and Warm-Hearted Christmas

YES SIR, MR. SNOWMAN! You're the center of attention as all eyes swing your way. But you'll have to share the spotlight when the Sandlarks Christmas Fantasy gets under way Nov. 30 with its four-day display of intriguing holiday decorations. Fanciful and traditional, miniatures and giants, conversation pieces all, the brilliant creations will set many a visitor a-buzzing with holiday plans. This display of beguiling decorations originated four years ago and met with such enthusiastic response that Sandlarks promptly labeled it an annual event, with proceeds designated for the adoption work of the Children's Home Society of California. Admiring the debonair snowman are (from left) Mrs. Jack Marsh, Mrs. Dan Farnham, Mrs. Robert Peek and Mrs. Charles Stevens. Kneeling beside tiny Dennis Marsh and Stacy Selman is Mrs. Victor Selman. Entries will go on sale when the doors open at 1 p. m. but will remain on display for four days. —(Photo by H. S. Melvin, staff photographer.)

March of Dimes Fashion Show Promises Gala Evening

THE ELEGANCE OF WHITE is dramatized in the costume modeled by Marjorie Wise Sawyer for Mayor George Vermillion (left) and Royal Stanton.

QUILTED WHITE SILK CREPE fashions these attractive Slim Jims and matching three-quarter length coat, worn with a filmy chiffon blouse by Marie Blume. Mrs. George Vermillion, in whose home these pictures were made, and William J. Curry, chairman of the Long Beach Chapter of March of Dimes, look on admiringly. —(Photos by Jasper Nutter.)

Tri-Delts to Celebrate

The 68th anniversary of Delta Delta Delta's founding will be celebrated by the Long Beach Alumnae Chapter and Phi Kappa Chapter of Long Beach State College, at a 6:30 p. m. banquet Tuesday in the Wilton Hotel Empire Room.

Mrs. Charles Burch and Mrs. Richard Alexander are co-chairmen for the traditional event, and reservations may be made with Mrs. D. L. Young, 745 Havana Ave. All collegiate and alumnae members are invited.

Off to Mexico

Three delightful weeks in Mexico City will be enjoyed by Mrs. Rosa Richardson of 10 Atlantic Ave. who flew to that city Friday to visit with her brother. Accompanying her was her granddaughter, Sara Richardson, of Balboa.

PRETTY AS A POSY, little Mindy Miller daintily raises her pale pink skirt to show off her bouffant petticoats for Mrs. Arthur Randall.

'Santa's Fashion Wonderland' Hints of Wondrous Day of Enchantment

Another philanthropic first will make its bow to Long Beach Nov. 27 when "Santa's Fashion Wonderland," fashion show sponsored by the March of Dimes, is presented at 8 p. m. in Municipal Auditorium.

Already ticket sales are zooming, for few can resist the appeal of a delightfully dramatized production when they know all proceeds will go to the Long Beach Chapter of the Polio Foundation. Sponsors expect to make the show an annual event.

Wilma Hastings, who will produce and direct, promises a display of fashions for the entire family, music by Burrel Ubben and his 11-piece orchestra and selections by the 64-voice choir from City College under the direction of Royal Stanton.

Santa Claus, of Course

Appealing star of the show will be little blonde Cathryn Robinson, 7, daughter of a Navy couple, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Cathryn was stricken with polio in October 1950 and has recovered now, progressing to the use of crutches and a brace. Long Beach's own Jimmy McGarrigle will portray the classic role of Santa Claus. Twenty models from Wilma Hastings' modeling school will parade on the 114-foot ramp in the convention hall so that fashions may be seen in detail.

The narrative will tell the story of a typical American family's Christmas. A towering silvertip tree, decorated by the Recreation Commission, will glow with lights in a cozy living room furnished in Early American maple pieces.

Magical Day

Scene one will depict "The Mystical, Magical Morning." Scene two, "Visions of Sugar Plums," reveals through French windows the dining room ready with its bountiful feast, and the final setting for

Yuletide Fantasy Spins an Aura of Anticipation

By ELISE EMERY

The holidays season has rounded the corner — already Thanksgiving has lifted the door latch, and dates on the calendar are an arrow aimed straight through Dec. 25 to New Year's Day.

To the homemaker plagued with the problem of devising unusual, imaginative holiday decorations the Sandlarks bring a soothing solution with their fourth annual Sandlarks Christmas Fantasy which opens at 1 p.m. Nov. 30 in the lobby of Wilton Hotel. Decorations will be displayed and sold for four days.

Many a professional office will likewise make use of the colorful, sparkling decorations. Among an expected 200 entries to be donated by business firms, florists, professional decorators and amateurs will be door decorations, table pieces, mobiles and mantel adornments ranging from modest to colossal size. All are designed to be of permanent use so that they may be stored and used from year to year.

Formal Opening

The formal opening of the fantasy will take place the evening of the first day when trophies will be awarded. Cups will go to a sweepstakes winner, a business firm, and a florist. In addition a $25 merchant order will be given for the best amateur entry and a $25 check for the best pro-

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

Home came the travellers, Irene and Bud Cook, last weekend after seven weeks in Europe. With them they brought memories in all shapes and sizes and, naturally, the most colossal centered around the two world shaking events that occurred while they were there—the Hungarian revolt and the English-French decision to enter the Suez conflict. Their first hand account makes you put your think cap on.

They were in London the day Eden told the people of England's intervention plans. Irene and Bud said the English were as surprised as we Americans were and just as shocked, if not more so. "News is bad," they muttered, "'ope it comes off all right." Arguments pro and con raged in the pubs, on the streets—everywhere, and there were violent riots in Whitehall before the Parliament buildings. One thing was true. A tremendous number of Englishmen objected fiercely that their government had by-passed both the United Nations and United States in its decision.

In Copenhagen, just prior to taking off on their polar flight home, they witnessed an inspiring incident. That huge city came to a complete standstill for a full five minutes. No vehicle moved, no telephone rang, no one spoke to another as the Danes bowed their heads and prayed in absolute silence and fervor for the embattled and courageous Hungarians.

Leaving Copenhagen at night on their return, this being the time of the long winter night in pole country, they flew through total darkness for almost 20 hours. Dawn was just breaking as they sped over North Dakota and full daylight didn't develop until they were over Salt Lake City. The Cooks toured in company with former Long Beachers, Col. Howard and Jean Quinn, who have been living in Peru for the past several years where "Howie" is port authority in Lima.

Ask any guest who was at Assistance League Clubhouse Thursday what it was like. Then step aside quickly to make room for an avalanche of glowing adjectives in description of the harvest brunch which was tri-hostessed there that day by Dorothy Goodknight, Mildred Brayton and Flo Newton. Asked to assist at the gracious party were Marge Van Dyke, Cecile Appleton, Betty Smith of Van Nuys, Emily Persons, Polly Chace, Winifred Campbell, Hart Davis, Margaret Hanson, "Jo" Paap, Marion Rikner, Jane Hosmer, Verna Collins, Hazel Robinson, Della Lawson and Alice Haylett.

A host of dainty angels and tiny cherubs gathered for a meeting Friday along the branches of a white Christmas tree. Then and there they made a ceramic proclamation decreeing life long happiness for John and Elizabeth (Norberg) Hodgkin, who were married recently in Mexico.

Fortunately, their meeting coincided with a tea being given for the new bride by Loraine (Mrs. John) Lungren and Virginia (Mrs. Franklin) Waters. So, smart hostesses, they used them as a tea table centerpiece. In addition to angels and cherubs, Liz was surrounded by about 45 friends also there with their wishes for happiness. The party was given at Loraine's home, 4180 Chestnut Ave.

You know how women walk after an all day shopping excursion in heels too high and shoes too tight? Barbara Ver Plank talked and ate with very much the same kind of excruciating slowness after dental surgery to remove a wisdom tooth first of this week.

Now it can be told. A van carrying explosive cargo maneuvered slowly through Park Estates week ago last night. Inside the big trailer were 64 human beings, all primed and crackling with laughter, ready to explode any minute. The fuse that set them off in a chain reaction of good wishes and merriment was arrival at Ruth and Fred Jensen's new home at 5565 Lonna Linda Dr. where their discovery by Ruth and Fred touched off a housewarming of pyrotechnical proportions! The Jensens expected the truck, but thought it contained some furniture!

Party incendiarists in charge were Dolly and Jeff-Stone Dixie and Noble Millie, Laurel and Bob Bult, Mary and Julian Knutson and Rose and Travis White. In the van with the surprisers were gifts galore for the new house, plus a case of chilled champagne and a cake built in replica of the new home. Understand Ruth and Fred smashed their glasses into the fireplace after the first toast in the traditional gesture of absolute and complete joy.

How's your arithmetic? Three times two celebrating one equals what? The answer will be found in the next sentence. Last night Carolyn and Don Raney, Marion and Jim Fletcher and Dorothy and Fred Wise gathered at the Raneys for pot luck dinner to commemorate the first successful year (almost to the day!) of the beginning of new careers for the men. One year ago Don went into private practice as an attorney, Jim began a gas station venture and Fred started in a paper products business.

The day of feminine courage is not past. Norma Harris had her hair cut—short! The day of the beauticians' art isn't over, either. Norma looks terrific! The day of big business for the milliner is at hand, too, because not one of Norma's hats fits her any more.

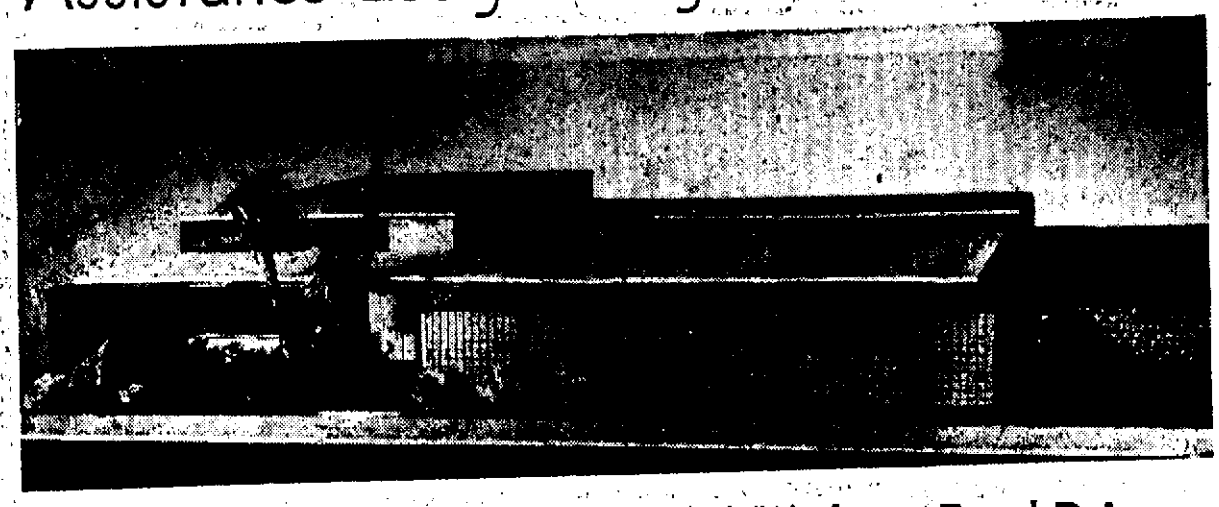

Jimmy Durante has had local competition in the schnoz department ever since Tuesday night when Bill Kelly sustained a bosted proboscis in an auto accident. If Bill's nose is as big as it feels Durante is about to say "Good night, Mrs. Calabash" for the last time.

A fond look backward and a verbal accolade to last week and Polly Chace whose expressive parties, in the spirit of "Thanksgiving for Friendships," were so completely delightful. Just in case Burton's wife doesn't know, we'd like to say that all her friends count knowing her among their blessings, too.

Ready to break in your 1957 calendars? Then mark Feb. 28 in red and save the date. Hark ye what's planned. Alpha Phi alums are going to have a fete that day at Virginia Country Club—a sort of a table setting contest and grand party all rolled into one. Already letters have gone out to just about every woman's club in town inviting them to enter a table setting. A $50 check will go to the winner along with an opportunity, if they so choose, to "advertise" their own particular club objectives through their use of decorations. Spark plugs for the event are Betty Lou Hayter, "Rod" Strong, Mary Marks and Virginia Waters, to name a few. Proceeds from the party will go into the sorority's national heart fund as well as into a strictly local building fund which will grow and grow until Long Beach State College Alpha Phis have a sorority house of their own on the local campus!

If you ever want a good press agent all you have to do is "sell" Jane Kresl on your cause. Her enthusiasm probably sent more people up to the California Water Color Society show at the L. A. Art Rental Gallery than there are camels in Laguna. She was "sold" some time ago on Rex Brandt when she heard him as guest speaker at a Junior League meeting. Then, when she went to the show and discovered his painting, "Going to the Races," had taken one of the major awards, that's when she really started beating the drums in earnest. Accompanying Jane the day she went to see and came home to praise were Rosemary Sadler, Ellie Person and "Win" Rhodes.

Assistance League Begins Bold Venture

MINIATURE MODEL OF THE proposed new Girls' Club to be built by Long Beach Assistance League on Santa Fe Ave. is pictured above. Designed by Architect Francis J. Heusel, the clubhouse will be open to thousands of teenage girls as a wholesome meeting place for recreation and character-building pursuits.

LONG BEACH ASSISTANCE LEAGUE is now embarked on the most extensive venture in its history with plans to build a modern clubhouse to be maintained for the exclusive use of teenage girls. Mrs. Dean Lucas, left, president of Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the league, is pictured presenting a check in the sum of $5,500 to Mrs. Thomas E. Noble, center, building committee chairman, and Mrs. Francis J. Heusel, league president, the first donation toward the building fund drive now in progress.—(Staff photo.)

Fund Drive Started for Girls' Club

A bold new venture—one in which this community can take pride—has been embarked upon by Long Beach Assistance League.

This week the league officially announced plans to construct a new clubhouse exclusively for teenage girls and a major fund-raising campaign for this building is now in progress.

Purpose of the club is to provide a wholesome meeting place for young girls where they can join in character building activities and share yearned-for advantages in crafts, homemaking and social graces with others whose families are not financially able to provide such experiences during the psychologically important years of their teens.

The Assistance League is no stranger to girls' club work, having maintained the only club in this city for 12 years. During this year alone thousands of girls have enjoyed the West Long Beach Girls' Club, totally supported by the league. With an average daily attendance of 70 girls, accounting for 21,000 individual participations, more space is imperative, members feel, if the work is to continue. Juvenile authorities and educators alike agree that untold good is the result.

The new clubhouse will be erected on Santa Fe Ave. between Willow and 27th Sts. on a league-owned lot 245 feet wide by 100 feet in depth. The building, designed by Architect Francis J. Heusel, A.I.A., whose wife is president of the league, will contain approximately 5,228 square feet, enclosed, with a large adjoining patio. The women are asking for a total subscription of $50,000 from the public before ground is broken. They will provide many additional thousands to complete the total amount needed.

Appropriately, the first donation to the building fund, a check for $5,500, was made by Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the league. Mrs. Bruce Mason is chairman of the fund committee. Mrs. Thomas E. Noble is heading the building committee. Slogan for the worthy fund drive is "Girls Are Important" and letters asking for donations are now in the mail.

In its many years of work for teenage girls this is the first time the league has ever asked for public financial assistance. Members are convinced that many others in this community will answer their call, wanting to share with them in "helping girls to learn to help themselves."

Noted Hungarian Pair on Civic Music Program

Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky, famed Russian-trained Hungarian dancers who made headlines with their escape from behind the Iron Curtain three years ago, will appear with their ballet ensemble Friday at 8:15 p.m. at Wilson High School auditorium under auspices of the Civic Music Association.

Since their escape, audiences in Eastern Europe, New York, Paris, London, Brussels, Lisbon and Barcelona have acclaimed the brilliant technique of the young couple, adding to the praise they previously had received in Moscow, Leningrad and Budapest.

The dancers met while students at the Budapest State Opera and came to the attention of the great Russian ballerina, Ulanova, who took them to Russia. There they were recognized as two of the Soviet Union's finest ballet dancers. Despite their success, special privileges and financial rewards, their anti-communist feelings grew as they experienced restrictions of their artistic and personal freedom and observed the life about them.

In 1953 they escaped into the Western Sector and asked Allied officers for asylum. American officials arranged for their appearance with the Festival Ballet in London with Roland Petit's Ballet de Paris. They made their American debut in 1953 on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," later appeared with the Ballet de Paris at the Broadway Theater in New York.

In 1954 they rejoined London's Festival Ballet and appeared with the noted British company during its North American tour in 1954-55. A movie about their escape was shown on the CBS television program "Omnibus." They were warmly received in South America during 1955. This present tour with their dance ensemble will take them to many parts of the United States.

NLB Women Set Luncheon

Members of North Long Beach Women's Club will meet for a Thanksgiving luncheon at noon Wednesday in Houghton Park Clubhouse. Hostesses will be members of Group Two, and reservations may be made with Mrs. Edward Ditto.

Mrs. Rawlin Abrahamson, program chairman, will present Mrs. Louise Meteer, society editor of a North Long Beach paper, who will speak on "Facts and Fancies in a Woman's World." Christene McAdams will be soloist. Mrs. Virgil Koon will conduct the business session.

Glamorous holiday cooking was theme of a recent meeting when Francis Meyer was guest speaker. Also featured was Miss Isla Anna who entertained with a viola solo, accompanied by Mary Anna.

A noon refreshment hour preceded the meeting. The tea table featured autumn decor arranged by Mrs. Kenneth McCafferty. Pouring were Mmes. Virgil Koon, Lee Carter, Arthur Brookover and E. C. Hawley.

WEDS IN EASTERN SERVICE

Miss Leland Merriam Ernst, physical education instructor at Polytechnic High School, became the bride of Melvin Schantz in recent ceremonies read in Kirkwood, Mo., her parents' home. The pair will reside in Long Beach following a wedding trip to Phoenix, Ariz. The bride was graduated with honors from University of Illinois and has done graduate work at LBSC and University of Hawaii. Her husband is an alumnus of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and served with the U. S. Marine Corps.

Appoint Prominent Woman

The appointment of Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell as vice chairman of the Women's Division for the 1957 Red Cross Fund Drive was announced this week by Mrs. Lon E. Peck, chairman.

Mrs. Howell has worked in the Long Beach Red Cross fund drives for the past twenty-five years serving in various capacities.

Active in community service, Mrs. Howell is past president of Chapter KJ, P.E.O., and a past president of the First Baptist Women. She also is a past president of Ebell.

Her activity in P-T.A. and scouting groups throughout Long Beach held Mrs. Howell's major interest for many years. She was president of the P-T.A. at Longfellow, Hughes and Poly, and is one of the few women in Long Beach to have had such a position on all school levels.

Mrs. Howell is a member of the board of directors of the Heart Association and is past vice president of this association.

Upon accepting the position of vice chairman for the Women's Division, Mrs. Howell said she felt Red Cross was one of the most important charities and that the public should accept its responsibility to serve in this civic project.

Mrs. Howell resides at 3845 Lime Ave. with her husband. She has a married daughter, Mrs. Roger T. Williams, and a son, Jack, who is attending Stanford University.

Joan (Hollinger) Johnson Is Honoree 'in Absentia'

Baby shower honoree, in absentia, was Mrs. Dean Johnson of Chicago, Ill., the former Joan Hollinger of Long Beach at a party given Tuesday by Mrs. Burton Chace and Mrs. Edwin R. Chace in the Burton Chace home, 4160 Country Club Dr.

Accepting the lovely gifts for her daughter as guest of honor by proxy was Mrs. Mertroe Hollinger. Inspiration for the pretty courtesy is young Keith, the Johnsons' first child, now just six weeks old.

For the party the hostesses used pink as their color theme. Guests were seated at quartet tables covered by crisp pink linen cloths, each centered by appropriate flower containers in the shape of bootees, baby carriages and the like, holding little bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Guests brought their gifts unwrapped in order that Mrs. Hollinger could enjoy viewing them and then as an after luncheon diversion, guests wrapped the presents and prepared them for mailing.

Those attending the shower were Mmes. Nathan Chace, Josephine Brown, May Chace Miller, Dwight Sigworth, Ray K. Person, Eugene Chace, Allen Kearney, Weldon Parker, Maude Baldwin, Larry Stiles, Mary Alice Melick, Charles Wickham, Robert Goodall, visiting here from her home in Ogallala, Neb.; Mrs. James Record with her baby daughter, Janice; Mrs. William Cheney with her baby daughter, Susan, from Garden Grove, and Mrs. V. Ray Townsend and her baby son, Stephen Chace.

Book Reviews for Ebell Club

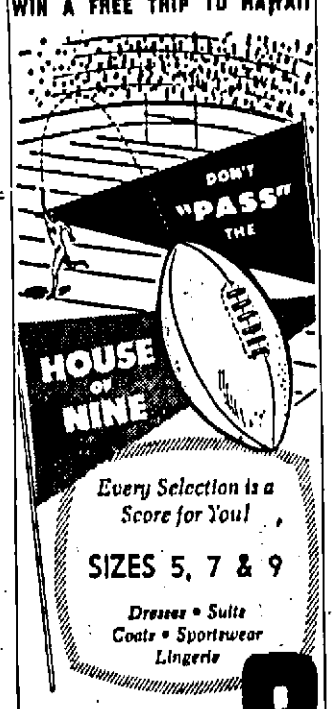

Marjorie MacIntyre will review current books at Ebell Club Monday afternoon following a brief business session conducted by Mrs. L. E. Shanks at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. James A. Worsham, program chairman, will introduce the speaker and members of Group Q, led by Miss Bess Chappell, will be hostesses.

The reviewer has traveled widely throughout the United States and Canada, a circumstance which enables her to bring understanding and interpretation to her program.

Mothers Club

Gamma Phi Beta Mothers Club of Beta Alpha Chapter, USC, will meet at noon Tuesday at the chapter house.

Please Remember the Forgotten Children

Retarded Will Gain From Drive for Funds Monday

By JEAN B. MOORE
Women's Staff Writer
(Last of a Series)

Give thanks by giving.

A nation will bow its head once again Thursday in gratitude for its many blessings.

A city will open its heart tomorrow by opening its pocketbook, glad that it can care for its forgotten children, the mentally retarded.

Those four words—give thanks by giving—might well apply to one's daily living.

Tomorrow in particular they are the theme of the one-day drive by the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

BE ON THE LOOKOUT for a man, woman or teen wearing a yellow badge with the words "Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation," printed in black. Each will carry a lavender and white canister, slotted at the top to receive hard coins or folding money, and carrying the plea, "Help Retarded Children."

Funds realized will be divided this way: 75 per cent to the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation; 15 per cent to the National Association for Retarded Children; 10 per cent to the California Council for Retarded Children.

Now that Long Beach mentally retarded youngsters have their own school at 4519 E. Stearns St., why are more contributions sought, some may ask.

Because . . .

The school receives no monetary aid from the Community Chest, the state or the federal government.

It costs $100 a day just to keep the school running.

Most parents financially able pay $25 to send their child to the school. Actually, it costs at least $40 a month for each child. The first amount was set several years ago and has not been raised.

No child is denied entrance if his parents cannot pay the tuition.

Four salaried teachers, dedicated to their missions and paid below public grade school wage scale, comprise the faculty. Instruction not requiring professional knowledge is given, free, by mothers and fathers of the children.

More qualified instructors are needed, especially a speech and physio-therapist.

Some persons may rationalize, "There is no reason for me to give. My children are not retarded," or "We'll never have a mental problem in our family."

But when three out of 100 babies born daily are mentally retarded, how can they be sure?

(Persons wishing to contribute and not contacted personally by representatives of the Exceptional Children's Foundation may mail their checks (income tax deductible) to the Foundation at 4519 E. Stearns St., Long Beach 15. Or they may call the Foundation, HEmlock 5-0196, or the drive chairman, Mrs. Albert Horn, GArfield 9-8128, and a representative will call for the gift.)

WILLING TO HELP
Giving her donation a day early to the Exceptional Children's Foundation fund drive is Mrs. H. G. Leland. Her gift, received by Mrs. Albert Horn, drive chairman, will aid retarded children in the Long Beach area. A door-to-door campaign is planned for Monday.—(Staff photo.)

Benefit for Polio Fund

"Christmas Night" is around the glowing fireplace as snow softly drifts outside the windows.

Larry Johns, director of Community Playhouse, will act as co-commentator with Mrs. Hastings, while voices of Phillip Drehmer and John Puckett will be heard offstage.

William Curry heads the hard-working committee for the show. Members are Mayor George M. Vermillion, campaign chairman; Lyman Lough, chairman of the Men's Division; Mrs. Le Roy Bonhall, vice president of the Long Beach Chapter; Mrs. Arthur Randall, chairman of distribution; Mrs. Ray E. Withee, ticket chairman; Mrs. Meredith S. Algeo, executive secretary of the Long Beach Chapter; and Mrs. Charles F. Reed, who in her capacity as chairman of the Women's Division and Mothers' March has worked closely with Mrs. Hastings.

The Gibson Style Shop, Tiny Tot's and Walt Jordon Clothes for Men will supply clothes to be modeled. Alexander Shultz will provide furniture for the stage setting and floral decorations will be by Benner Florist. Mace Taylor and the Shriners will set the stage and serve as stage hands.

News Talk by Columnist

Lawrence A. Collins, editorial columnist of the Long Beach Independent, will discuss current events throughout the world at Monday's meeting of North Long Beach Republican Women Federated in Houghton Park Clubhouse. A noon luncheon will precede the business session.

Other events on members' calendars include a 1 p. m. legislative meeting on Nov. 26 at the home of Mrs. Raymond C. Goodmiller, 1655 Poinsetta St. The Bill of Rights will be reviewed during a panel discussion.

The Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women Clubs will convene Nov. 28 at the Ambassador Hotel with Judge Stanley M. Barnes as the speaker.

During December, new officers will be elected and new rules distributed to the membership.

PEO Session

Unaffiliated PEO members and visitors are invited to a meeting of Chapter OL at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. F. W. Schwartz, 536 Winslow Ave. Reservations may be made with the hostess.

Bridal Fete Compliments Merle Stang

Miss Merle Stang, who Tuesday will become the bride of Richard Tiffany in a ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Stang, 2009 Chestnut Ave., was complimented by her sisters at a recent bridal shower.

Hostessed by Mrs. Orville Clay Jr., and Mrs. George Merrills Jr., in the latter's home, 2038 Studebaker Rd., the party featured a pink and white theme in decor. Names of the honoree and her fiance were written in pink and white crepe paper on the wall above the fireplace, and a large buffet table held twin cakes also bearing the names of the engaged pair.

Friends and relatives gathered were Mmes. Don Jones, Lillian Winter, George E. Merrill Sr., Lloyd Lund, Margaret Fletcher, Alice Williams, Vernon Steen, Robert McGowen and daughter Loy, George Kelperis, Peter Bromback, Vic Selman, Ruth Davis, Dwight King, Kenneth Homan, France Tholen, Andrew Bellomo, Marion Clark, Carol Bartlett, Leo Finch, Dale George, Ken Luberg, Miss Karen Luberg, Mrs. Matt Tiffany, mother of the prospective bridegroom, and Mrs. Floyd Stang, mother of the bride-to-be.

Holiday Decor Readied for Lawyers' Wives Meeting

A Thanksgiving motif will be used for Tuesday's meeting of Long Beach Lawyers' Wives in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Hostesses Mmes. George Hart Jr., William Artman and Clarence Hunt are combining artistic talents in their plans for autumn table decor.

Mrs. Everett Miller, president, will welcome members and guests at the 12:15 p. m. luncheon. Program chairman Mrs. Preston Johnson will introduce Miss Happy King who will analyze the handwriting of all present.

A short talk on cystic fibrosis by Mrs. Lois Perry will acquaint attendees on the seriousness of the disease and of the national drive scheduled for next June.

Jewell Tent to Nominate

Nomination of officers will highlight a 7:30 p. m. meeting Monday of Emily R. Jewell Tent 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War at Veterans Memorial Building. Dr. Mabel Conger will preside.

Past Tent Presidents Club will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Bernice Hamble, 1546 Sherman Pl., for noon luncheon. Fanny Whitwood will lead the business session. The sewing and social session Thursday has been cancelled because of Thanksgiving.

DUVCW Tents 15 and 58 entertained recently with a reception at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Carroll, 2895 Fashion Ave., honoring members who hold department office. Honored guests were Mmes. Laura Collins, Bernice Hamble, Hazel Deane, Jennie Duffey and Miss Florence Chadwick. Dr. Mabel Conger and Mrs. Rose Capron poured.

Blessings Upon the Two-Party System!

By ILKA CHASE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luce request the pleasure of Dr. and Mrs. Brown's company for dinner, Tuesday night, Nov. 6. Election returns. Sounds festive. Dr. and Mrs. Brown accept with pleasure.

November 6th being semi-holiday, husband gets home at civilized hour. We re-dress. Are in bed ready ahead of time. Balmy evening, husband suggests walking six blocks to Luce apartment. Walk! In evening slippers? And having just spent hour on casual arrangement of hair! Suspect husband balmy, too. We compromise and take taxi. Arrive couple of minutes early. Husband observes that premature arrival won't bring returns in any sooner. Suggests drink at River Club across street. Do private clubs serve liquor before polls close on election night? Look at each other in ignorance. Feel uncouth. Decide to investigate.

Still hesitating on doorstep when two other couples arrive in evening clothes. They are also going to Luce party. Ride up in elevator together. Greeted affably by host. Look around. Suppose hostess to be in another room. More people arrive. Introductions. Feel moment has come to say good evening to hostess. Spot host again.

"Oh, Harry, where's Clare?" Mr. Luce looks surprised. "In Rome. Didn't you know?"

"Why no. The invitation said . . . "

"That's right. Until Thursday she thought she could make it but with the European situation and refugees from Hungary pouring into Rome she can't get away."

In time of crisis ambassadorial duties obviously come first but disappointed not to see hostess and old friend. Missed her in Rome, too, last summer. No luck.

Meet Lord Beaverbrook, distinguished British publisher. Said he always comes to America for the elections, always hopes for excitement. Said glumly, "No excitement tonight. No contest."

Glittering Guests

Mrs. Stavros Niarchos owner of famous yacht and sister of Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, mistress of another famous yacht, also a guest. Mrs. Niarchos in pale blue with lovely chandelier earrings of rubies and diamonds. Looks rich. Is.

Our ambassador to the U.N. John Cabot Lodge arrives for dinner, leaves immediately afterwards. U.N. in constant session. Pin in buttonhole in backwards. His candidate is Eke. Dark horse maybe?

Buffet dinner served. Two television sets going full blast. News already looking very good. For Republicans. After dinner stroll about admiring Luce art collection.

Ah, Antiques

Sit down to watch television as avalanche begins. Room crowded. When husband comes in move over to make place for him on chair beside me. We sit for few minutes. There is sharp splintering sound of wood as chair gives way and Dr. and Mrs. Brown descend gracefully—I hope—to floor.

Much laughter, hurried offers of aid and we are helped to feet. A tall Monseigneur in black habit says soothingly he is sure damage not serious. Look dubiously at chair. Fear Monseigneur overly optimistic. Tell Harry Luce who hides dismay behind well-bred, host-like masque. Remains delicate task of writing absent hostess to thank her for party and break news of disintegration of antiques.

By now Beaverbrook pronouncement of no contest proven accurate. As must be up at 6:30 next morning to fly to Texas we decide to watch finale at home. Go to bed. In about twenty-minutes husband wakes me up. "Want to see Stevenson concede?" Stumble sleepily out to living room. See Stevenson. See Ike. Think to myself — what a blessing, the two party system.

'Femininity' Highlights Designs

Editors View Edith Small's Custom Work

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent-Press-Telegram Women's Editor

It is one thing to study the art of designing by going to art school, working with and learning from dress designers already established, but it is another thing when you have the background and the knack and literally "fall into" the profession. Such is the case of Edith Small, prominent California designer of custom suits and gowns.

Miss Small's grandfather and uncles were tailors on Bond Street, London, England, counting members of royalty among their clients. She undoubtedly inherited her love of fine clothes from her family. On a trip to California, from her hometown of Chicago, she was constantly asked by friends where she bought her suits — and in reply she always told them she would cut them one. Hence, from small beginnings and 10 years of hard work, she has built one of the greatest designing businesses in the country — it has reached the five-million-dollar mark!

Edith Small

FROM THE HOLIDAY COLLECTION of Edith Small, California couturier designer, is "Rhapsody," a slim ankle-length three-tone chiffon gown with a draped bodice-side swag and back flowing panels. Aqua, green and white are blended in this graceful model accented with rhinestone clips. This was viewed by fashion and women's editors across the nation Friday afternoon at Miss Small's Los Angeles salon during California Fashion Press Week.

Significant trends in her resort and spring collection, as shown Friday to the fashion and women's editors attending the sixth annual National Press Week as guests of California Fashion Creators, are the young short look in her hipbone-length fitted jackets; the smart long look in several high-waisted, high belted models in imported silk or golden beige worsted; the new "weskit" look in a suit of English sharkskin; the jumper look in a two-tone sheer worsted suit with red accent; the jabot look, the short sleeve look and the "decorative" look - suits embroidered in motifs.

Miss Small is utterly feminine and this is reflected in her clothes -- a rose at the neckline, white violets on a sleeve, a white carnation on a lapel or a rose accent on a regency scroll bodice. Suit fabrics in this collection include fine chiffon weight worsteds, striped and pin-check worsteds, imported French and Italian silk tweeds, striped and pin-dot silks and quality striped and teardrop mohair.

Very few designers handle Chantilly laces in as sophisticated a manner as Miss Small. She has created for this coming season cocktail and formal dresses fashioned tier on tier with faille trims and glitter accents. In a long-skirt slender formal she has used Venise lace in daffodil yellow with cascading spiral back panel and in another, the palest pink taffeta in a new old-fashioned silhouette studded with rhinestones.

Important every-day, all-day dresses, include a useful black Italian silk with soft bodice, high-buttoned and high-belted; lots of stripe linens, silk shantung, Persian printed cottons, checked ginghams and silk prints blended in springtime's brightest colors.

TV Can Aid in Education

"It is estimated that by 1960 there will be eight million additional children enrolled in our now overcrowded schoolrooms," said Mrs. Frank J. Hardesty, president of the Long Beach Chapter for Television Education when she appeared as guest speaker this week at the dinner meeting of the Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club.

She pointed out that in this land, where there are more television receivers than bath tubs, educational television is not being fully utilized. There are a number of educational television stations throughout the nation, she stated; however, the Long Beach area is without such a station. Mrs. Hardesty said that "a school without walls" seems to be the answer to the deficiency of educational facilities and public acceptance of educational television has been well attested to by the success of the Frank Baxter Shakespearean broadcasts.

Mrs. Eunice Snyder, president of the club, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Cornelia Pollard introduced the speaker. Marjorie Reed, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Russell Davidson, provided the musical portion of the program.

Schroeder-Walker Vows in Episcopal Rite

A gown of white silk shantung, fashioned with lace bodice, complemented the bridal loveliness of Lt. Maybelle R. Walker of Parks Air Force Base, when she exchanged nuptial vows and rings with A/1c Arnold L. Schroeder Jr., also of Parks Air Force Base, at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in a late afternoon ceremony read by Rev. Hiram Crosby.

The bride, daughter of James A. Walker of Chicago, Ill., was given in marriage by her father. Her bridal veil cascaded to elbow length from a seed pearl crown, and she carried white orchids with stephanotis.

Lt. Marjorie Kindem attended as maid of honor, wearing an emerald green satin sheath dress and carrying bronze and gold spider mums. Ronald R. Schroeder, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the 75 wedding guests were escorted to their places by Kenneth C. Williams and Martin McNair. The bridegroom's sister, Michele Lynn Schroeder, was flower girl.

Mrs. Arnold Schroeder Jr.

The church parish hall was scene of a reception honoring the newlyweds, with Capt. Mildred I. Butler of the Air Force Nurses Corps, and Mmes. Paul Ytreelde, Glenn Martin and Ray Jones as hostesses.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Laguna Beach, and now are residing at Danville.

Mrs. Schroeder, a member of the Air Forces Nurses Corps, was graduated from the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago. Her bridegroom, son of Col. and Mrs. A. L. Schroeder, 2229 Montair Ave., was graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. He will attend Oregon State next fall following completion of his Air Force service.

Karl Seethaler to Exhibit Art in Vienna

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

Here is a peaceful note from the strife-torn shores of the Danube:

Karl Seethaler, director of the Long Beach Academy of Art, has been notified that the Austrian Cultural Society (Oesterreichische Kulturvereinigung) will sponsor a one-man exhibition of his work in the Vienna Concert House (Wiener Konzerthaus) starting Jan. 8. Seventy of Seethaler's paintings and sculptures will be displayed in the foyer of the building.

The Seethalers (Karl and Marguerite) on their recent trip abroad saw an exhibition there when they attended a concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The paintings will be selected by a jury from 150 of Seethaler's works now in Vienna, according to his Vienna agent, United Press representative Hans Janitschek.

Simultaneously, the jury will pick out five or six pictures for the spring show of Austrian artists at the Kuenstlerhaus, to which Seethaler was invited when he was in Vienna.

The Austrian Cultural Society is composed of the elite of Vienna, according to Janitschek. Its president is Egon Seefehlner, managing director of the Vienna State Opera and the membership includes statesmen, university professors, industrialists, etc.

Karl Loebl, cultural editor and art critic of the Bild-Telegraf, Vienna newspaper, was instrumental in obtaining sponsorship of the group for Seethaler's show. Loebl interviewed the Long Beach man on his arrival in Vienna and wrote an article on his work at the Long Beach Academy of Art, Brittany Gardens, 1st St. and Atlantic Ave.

Two other articles written by Janitschek and mentioning Long Beach have appeared in Vienna newspapers.

"I believe the fact that I was born in Austria may have some bearing on this piece of good luck," said the Academy's director.

Paul Edmond Soldner, whose ceramic work has been in many major exhibits in the United States and who has won awards for ceramics, graphic arts and photography, will address the Long Beach Art Assn. at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Virgil Bullock will be program chairman.

Soldner received his Master of Fine Arts degree in ceramics last June from the Los Angeles County Art Institute—the first student to receive that degree from the Institute. His thesis was a creative experiment to discover new ceramic forms suggested by an extended throwing technique, made possible by an improved potter's wheel and stoneware body.

The fall show of the San Pedro Art Assn. opens today in Hotel Hacienda, where it will remain through Nov. 23. A "Meet the Jury" dinner is slated for 5:30 p.m. The jury included Willard Sheets, Arthur Beaumont, Caesar Hernandez.

San Pedro Art Assn. officers are Virgil M. Bullock, president; Wynne Jewers, vice president; Ruby Butcher, secretary; Jessie Bohney, treasurer; Leslie Stone, publicity chairman.

The association will present a series of lectures on fine arts sponsored by the San Pedro Adult School at 8:15 p.m. Thursdays in Hotel Hacienda. Speakers and dates: Arthur Beaumont, marine artist, Nov. 29; Noel Quinn, water colorist, Dec. 13; Ted Gillen, oil painter, Jan. 3; Caesar Hernandez, water colorist, Jan. 17.

Eight colorcastings and two mosaic-castings by Leo S. Hunter, 2808 Monogram Ave., will be displayed the remainder of this month in the Lakewood Plaza branch of the Bank of America, near Palo Verde Ave. and Spring Sts.

They are "African Stalemate," "Lighthearted," "Mrs. Chaney's Bookshop," "Barracuda," "Cruiser," Symphony," "Bohemia," "Survival," "The Musicians," "The Flower Cart."

"The Old Homestead" by Ann (Mrs. Norman) Olmsted won first place in the recent fourth annual art show of the Long Beach Junior Women's Club in the North Long Beach branch library.

Second place went to Meda (Mrs. H. A.) Herbrig for "Faad," portrait of a young Arab employed by the Herbrigs when they lived in Arabia.

Third place went to Athena Hall for "Seclusion," a secluded cottage.

Honorable mention went to Myrle Cooke for "Sis's Farm"; Helen Cott, "Ocean Scene"; Jackie Gott, "Trees and Pond"; David Donevan, "Tartan Warrior."

Drawings, paintings and sculpture by Elizabeth Gyler, Rod Briggs and Connor Everts make up a Christmas show which will open Monday at The Studio, 1009 Ximeno Ave. The show will remain through Dec. 28. Hours are 9-5, closed Sunday.

Ben Messick will demonstrate casein painting at the meeting of the Cultural Arts Center Assn., Inc., at 8 p.m. Monday in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The demonstration and lecture will be open to the public.

Sandlarks Yule Show

fessional arrangement.

Judges will be Mrs. Walter Desmond Jr., Mrs. Pearl McInnis, Mrs. James Krest, Jimmy Jones and Howard E. Rogers.

All entries will be sold to the public and buyers may call for their purchases beginning at 1 p.m. on Dec. 3.

Although holiday-conscious folk have come to look forward to this delightful event for its charm, color and atmosphere, they are motivated, too, by the underlying purpose of the project.

Adoptions Are Goal

Entire proceeds go to further the adoption work of the Children's Home Society of California, an agency which is a member of the local Community Chest.

Sandlarks, with 25 active and 58 associated and sustaining members, is one of 95 auxiliaries throughout the state interested in adoption work. Mrs. Fred Lehman is president of the organization and Mrs. George Lake is chairman of the Christmas Fantasy.

In 1955 the Children's Home Society gave services to 235 families in Long Beach. A total of more than 500 children were placed for adoption in all areas through the agency, and it is expected that the number will be 600 in 1956.

In Long Beach 78 couples entered requests for children, 21 youngsters were placed for temporary care in boarding homes, 12 adoptions were completed and 8 other children were placed for adoption.

A dream of the future, which Sandlarks hopes will soon come true, is the establishment of a local office for the Children's Home Society.

At present, the agency does much of its work here through the Family Service of Long Beach and through the Catholic Welfare Bureau. A major service is counselling—last year 1,200 natural parents sought assistance.

Shortly after the first of the new year, the agency will begin a campaign to promote interest in adoptions in minority groups.

Sandlark members, devoted to the interests of children, work constantly toward an objective. Their shining purpose is that Christmas, and every day, may be radiant with joy as childless couples and parentless children are welded by love into the circle of a whole family.

Among Career Women

Week Highlighted by Tribute to Popular Career Woman

By ANNE GILCHRIST

One of the most heart-warming tributes ever paid a Long Beach career woman was "collected" by Glada Strode Thrall upon her retirement as program director of the Long Beach Armed Services YMCA. Mrs. Thrall was honored during last Sunday's evening buffet dinner at the Y for service men of Long Beach.

Judge Lyman Sutter, chairman of the committee of management, was joined by other members and their wives in serving the dinner and presenting the terrific evening for Mrs. Thrall which was highlighted by a "This Is Your Life" program. Chaplain Harvey McClellan, USN, was in charge of evening arrangements assisted by Mrs. James Bickel, Raymond Gillingham and George McLean, secretary of the organization. Clovis Putney, new director, organized the gala program.

Jasper Mottor Photo

The honoree has served as program director of the Long Beach Armed Services Y for the past eight years and preceding this served in a similar capacity in Shanghai, China, and in Honolulu. By tape recordings, through pictures and in-person surprise attendance service men and women who have known Mrs. Thrall throughout the years participated in the unfolding of "This Is Your Life." At the close of the program she was presented with a tape recorded transcript of the entire proceedings and a book inscribed to her in which all the letters, telegrams and pictures received for the occasion had been placed.

The honoree and her husband will continue to live in Long Beach with Mrs. Thrall embarking on a new career as a teacher in the local school system. For many years she has been associated with Pilot Club, prominent Long Beach women's service club.

Quota Club

The old saying, "never a dull moment," could easily be adopted by Quota Club as its slogan if its pace of this past week continues. Week ago last night members and their guests were bidden by Rita (Stanfield) Phipps and Genevieve Parker for a home cooked lasagna dinner and card party at the home of Mrs. Phipps, 3940 Linden Ave.

Another personalized ways and means feature, the party was successful from all standpoints providing fun for those attending and financial gain for Quota's coffers. Then Monday night members met at the Lafayette Hotel for a regularly scheduled business dinner. It was voted to donate the Saturday night revenue plus additional money from the treasury for the use of foreign exchange students enrolled at Long Beach State College, the fund to be handled by Dr. James Nagar, LBSC counsellor of international students.

Tuesday club energies will be devoted to the monthly party Quota gives for its adopted ward at Long Beach General Hospital. Mrs. Phipps, November hospital chairman, and her committee will provide the customary gifts for ward patients, refreshments and program.

Lois Provart, transfer member from Eureka Quota Club, was welcomed to Long Beach membership Monday.

Soroptimist Club

"Business as usual" was dispensed with at Long Beach Soroptimist Club meeting Friday at the Lafayette Hotel to enable all members to become acquainted with their five newest sister members: Bess Bulgin, Mabel S. Colton, Roma K. Martin, Esther M. May and Ella Place. The honorees told informally of their work, special hobbies and interests during the period usually reserved for a program.

Wire Club

Wire Club (Women in Real Estate) had its annual Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mrs. Grace Small, 3025 Mariquita St. recently. Special guests of the evening were Ros and Pat Plonsky who now reside in Beverly Hills. Ros formerly served on staff of the Long Beach Realty Board office.

President Mary Marrotte dispensed with business for the evening. Winifred Allen, program chairman, presented gifts from the club to everyone present.

Pilot Club

Abner Sneed, special projects officer, Federal Department of Immigration and Naturalization, Terminal Island, will be guest speaker at the program dinner meeting of Pilot Club Wednesday evening in the Boulevard room, Hotel Lafayette. His topic will be, "Problems of Immigration; The McCarran Act."

Anna Louise Gruber, international relations chairman, will serve as program chairman with President Margaret Darby conducting. Carol Kuntz, student at Long Beach State College will be guest vocalist. Other special guests will include presidents of the Anchor Clubs of Wilson and Jordan High Schools which are sponsored by the Long Beach Pilots.

Home Rite Joins Pair

Single ring nuptials at their new Lakewood home, 6200 South St., united in marriage Mrs. Kathleen Gardner and Joseph Glen Gurtler. Rev. Russell G. Shaw of Trinity Methodist Church officiated.

The bride wore a burgundy and black tweed suit trimmed in velvet, and a gardenia corsage. Dainty silver beads adorned her hat of white fur felt. Mrs. J. S. Rustick, as matron of honor wore a champagne lace gown. Attending the bridegroom was Millard Andrich.

The new Mrs. Gurtler is the daughter of Mrs. C. A. Elgin of Long Beach and V. L. Estes of Tulsa, Okla. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Chris O. Gurtler of Long Beach.

A reception followed the ceremony, with the newlyweds later departing on a honeymoon trip to Palm Springs.

Sewing Bee

Anna Etheridge Tent No. 58, Daughters of Union Veterans, will have its sewing and social club meeting at the home of Mrs. Sue Jones, 1639 E. 7th St., at 11 a.m. Monday. Following a sandwich luncheon, Lillian Elstad will be in charge of the afternoon sewing session.

FESTIVE DATE

Preparing for their one big social event of the year—a Thanksgiving Charity Dance Wednesday at Lakewood Country Club—are these members of Young Ladies Institute, from left, Mrs. Joe Hammer, Mrs. Anthony Andrade, Mrs. Laurence Maguire and Mrs. Don Wells. Ray Broggie and his orchestra will play for dancing. The public is welcome.

YLI Dance to Herald Thanksgiving

Turkeys will be stuffed, pumpkin pies baked and all Thanksgiving preparations done early for members of Young Ladies Institute who will entertain Wednesday evening with their annual Thanksgiving Charity Dance at Lakewood Country Club to which the public is welcome.

Proceeds from the group's one big social event of the year will be contributed to the Golden Jubilee Purse, to be presented to the Archdiocese for the education of young men studying for the priesthood.

Included in the entertainment will be a variety show by the Marion Rankin Dance Studio. Ray Broggie and his orchestra will play for dancing.

Heading this year's committee are Mmes. Anthony Andrade and Joe Hammer, assisted by Mmes. Fred Pace, Ward Dixon, William Klein, Don Wells, Laurence Maguire, Misses Martha Metzger, Elaine Hauck and Dorothy Powell.

Grandmother Club Installs

During an impressive candlelight ceremony at the Chandelier Restaurant recently Mrs. Gertrude I. Gardiner was installed president of the West Side Grandmothers Club, Charter 395, a club organized specifically for grandmothers who are also career women.

Mrs. Ruth Serne, national treasurer, served as installing officer, in addition to Mrs. Gardiner, inducted Mrs. Bessie Dunn, vice president; Mrs. Ed Peffly, treasurer, and Mrs. Bernlece Thomas, secretray.

In accepting the gavel Mrs. Gardiner reiterated the aims and purposes of the Grandmothers' Club which include spirited assistance in civic projects and philanthropic aid to worthy causes.

Social Club

Nazareth White Shrine Social Club will meet for pot luck luncheon Monday at Colonial Hall, 10th and Locust.

Mrs. Gertrude I. Gardiner

Sewing Group

Members of the Welfare Sewing Group of Fleet Reserve Auxiliary Unit 43 will meet Nov. 29 at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Doty, 5138 Barlin St., Lakewood.

War Widows Meet Monday

Long Beach Chapter Four, Widows of World War I, will meet at 6:45 p. m. Monday at Veterans Memorial Building. A social hour will follow with Mmes. Thomas L. Perkins, Avery P. Henkell and Francis R. Pontious as hostesses.

The chapter, an affiliate of National Widows World War I, Inc., is a patriotic, educational, social and charitable organization.

Cactus Club Plans Fete for Holidays

Plans for a gala Christmas party and turkey dinner were announced at the recent meeting of Long Beach Cactus Club in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, 5933 Lime Ave. The holiday festivities will take place Dec. 16 in Mrs. Sue H. Loomis' home.

President Clarence Wright conducted the November business session which was highlighted by a question and answer period on plant propagation and classification.

Informality was the order of the day for the meeting in the delightful Miller home, noted for its large gardens, covered patio and inviting rumpus room. In the latter multi-hued tile covers the floor, and beautifully designed inlaid tables are used to fashion the room's tables and long benches.

Fascinating vari-colored rocks and bright desert glass, all collected by the Millers on their many tours, faced the impressive fireplace. On the walls, shelves hold interesting collectors' items, new and antique.

Refreshments were served by the hosts.

Rite Reflects Loving Sentiment

Like a page re-read from a beloved book, the marriage service of Earlene Joan Opie and Garry Lane Leming repeated details made significant in the ceremony which united her parents 23 years ago.

The bride's gown and her flowers were purchased at the same shops which supplied her mother's accoutrements, the reception was given in First Foursquare Church where the earlier wedding was performed, and the bride's grandfather read the service as he had the other one nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Earlene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Opie, 324 Bort St. Escorted to the altar at Colonial Tabernacle by her father, she wore lace trimmed ivory satin with a fingertip-length veil. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

She and her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Leming, 1109 Lime Ave., spoke vows before 500 guests. Her grandfather, the Rev. Earl H. Opie, was assisted in performing the ceremony by the bride's pastor, the Rev. O. C. Harms, and the bridegroom's pastor, the Rev. David Shock. Dr. Peter Slack of KGER played the beautiful wedding music.

Linda Opie, in shrimp colored taffeta, was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids Darlene Mittlestedt, Doris Russell, Millicent Weygandt, Nina Armstrong and Claudia Taylor wore deep aqua taffeta.

The bridegroom's brother, Larry Leming, was best man. Bill Hemple, George Evans, Vernon Leming, Tom Allen and Joe Lee Goodman ushered. Little Kathy Moll was flower girl.

The bride attended Jordan High School and is now enrolled at Long Beach State College. She is a member of the American Guild of Organists. Her husband is a graduate of Polytechnic High School.

After a Santa Barbara honeymoon, the newlyweds will make their home in this city.

Mrs. Garry Lane Leming

Norma Warbington Now Mrs. Ralph A. Anderson

Lighted tapers cast a soft glow in First Brethren Church for the double ring wedding Nov. 9 of Miss Norma Susan Warbington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Warbington, 4332 Monogram Ave., and Ralph Arthur Anderson, 1715 Cherry Ave., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Anderson of Fargo, N. D., Dr. Charles W. Mayes read the lines.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of rosepoint lace and net over satin. Insets of the lace adorned the full length train. Her fingertip length veil was held by a crown of seed pearls, rhinestones and sequins. She carried white orchids and stephanotis on a white Bible.

Curt Ray Studio

Mrs. Ralph A. Anderson

Mary Ann Martin, the maid of honor, was attired in a gown of American beauty velvet with scalloped neckline. Mrs. Dwight Foster, Mrs. Jack Britton and Miss Carol Jean Anderson attended in gowns of varying shades of American beauty and pink velvet similar to that of the maid of honor. All carried cascade bouquets of pink camellias and wore matching hats.

Lee Stauffacher was best man to the bridegroom. Seating the 200 guests were Rodger McClelland, Ronnie Olson and William Mills.

After a reception in the social hall of the church the young couple left on a trip to Idyllwild and Palm Springs. They will be at home in Long Beach after Nov. 26.

The new Mrs. Anderson was graduated from Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City College. She was a member of Tammuz sorority.

The bridegroom's family was in the city from the midwest for the ceremony. His mother and sister plan to winter in Long Beach.

Old to New

Remember the old-fashioned tea cart? Why not make a modern serving unit out of the old relic? Buffet suppers, drinks, hors d'oeuvres, canapes or even tea—hot or cold—can be served from it with ease if it is resurfaced with a heat-proof, stain-proof and durable material such as ceramic tile.

ADPi's Meet in Nursery

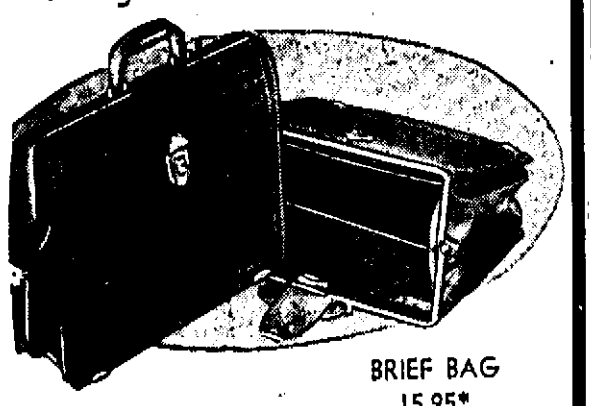

Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Edison School Nursery, Seventh and Main Sts. The meeting will serve as an introduction to the nursery work done there, as well as to provide the group with an evening of activity.

Members will occupy themselves sewing, mending books and painting. On display will be Christmas toys for children of pre-school age.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by Mrs. William McQueen. Hostesses are to be Mmes. John E. Harris and Richard Nelson. Alpha Delta Pi's in the area and those interested in participating with the group in future activities may contact either hostess.

Service Families Will Travel Far to Join Together for Thanksgiving Observance

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Wonderful Thanksgiving time moves front and center stage to star in the many fall activities of the busy Service Set.

Among the many family gatherings for Thanksgiving will be the one at the home of Rear Adm. George J. McMillin, USN (ret.) and charming Mrs. McMillin. And again this year, sharing honors with the turkey, will be the admiral's birthday cake.

Those who will join the family dinner and birthday celebration will be Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lightbody and children; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lightbody; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen, who are the admiral's uncle and aunt from Laguna, and their son, George J. McMillin Jr.

Another Thanksgiving birthday to be celebrated will be the sixth one of Joan Kauffman and ninth of her sister Nancy. A gala birthday event is planned for the two sisters by their parents, Cmdr. and Mrs. Maurice Kauffman of NAS, Los Alamitos. Also helping with the plans are sister Susan and brother, Charles.

Both Joan and Nancy arrived on Thanksgiving Day, although three years apart.

Then up in Mill Valley Michael Creel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Creel will blow out five candles on Thanksgiving Day. Flying up for the party will be his grandmother, Mrs. Margie M. Cobb of this city.

Looks like they'll be able to form a girls' trio before too long at the home of Mrs. Edwina P. Gladden, where Lt. and Mrs. William Lee Jr. welcomed their third child, a beautiful little girl, Susan Jeffery.

Susan, seven pounds and 12 ounces, arrived Nov. 8 and was welcomed at home by her grandmother, Mrs. Gladden, and by her sisters Edwina and Nell White. There was much black cigar smoke drifting this way from San Diego when the happy father, Lt. Lee, announced the event to his shipmates aboard the USS Alamo.

Speaking of new residents, there's a new member in town at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Larner. They recently welcomed a son, Mathew John, who weighed eight pounds and three ounces. Besides being welcomed by his three sisters Linda, Laura and Leslie, he was most joyfully greeted by grandparents, Capt. and Mrs. Harold Larner of this city.

Among those going away for Thanksgiving will be Cmdr. and Mrs. R. M. Wheeley, who will be with their old friends Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Parham Jr., and children in White Sands, N. M. Now visiting with the Wheeleys are Rear Adm. and Mrs. Walter L. Dyer, down from San Francisco.

Then off by train to Albuquerque, N. M., go Mrs. Alberta Davis, and daughters, Diana and Terry Lenore, and father, Stanley Simpson, to enjoy Thanksgiving at the home of Mrs. Davis' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hightower and daughters Susan Lynn and Cindy Lee. Also from the city will be Mrs. Davis' parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Hovey. And joining the gang there will be a sister-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. Crook Waller and Johnny.

Thanksgiving dinner this year will be enjoyed by Cmdr. and Mrs. W. G. Nicol at the home of Mrs. Nicol's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons of this city. And coming here from New Mexico for the dinner will be Mrs. Emmons' mother, Mrs. Walter Hill.

New hospitality chairman for the Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base is Mrs. William Kline, appointed last week by the president, Mrs. Durwood Hegland.

Last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. B. Koethe, a delightful coffee gathering was enjoyed by the wives of officers attached to the USS Helena. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. K. B. Brisco.

Last night Capt. and Mrs. James A. Shilson entertained at the cocktail hour for officers attached to the USS Bryce Canyon and their ladies.

Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Hogan entertained a group of friends recently at a cocktail party.

The Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base had a cake sale recently. Hostesses at their dessert bridge on Friday were Mrs. Hunter Alverson and Mrs. Roma Brooks.

Instead of their coffee at the end of the month, the group will tour a furniture factory and a candy factory in Los Angeles on Nov. 30.

While in San Francisco recently Capt. and Mrs. Arthur F. Spring enjoyed a visit with Mrs. Spring's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Murphy Jr.

Chaplain and Mrs. Ward McCabe entertained a group of friends recently at a dinner party in their Belmont Shore home.

Guest speaker this Sunday at the Navy Family Chapel will be Chaplain L. W. Meachum of El Toro. He will also baptize little Warren and Kenneth Kopes, son of Marine and Mrs. William Kopes. Hostesses for the coffee hour following will be Mrs. Leroy Rodd and her sister, Mrs. M. Sabot. Flowers for the altar will be given by the personnel of the USS Steven Potter.

Neighbors Meet

Ocean View No. 297, Neighbors of Woodcraft, will meet Tuesday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave., with special district guests officiating. Marguerete Truman will be in charge of refreshments. All Neighbors are invited.

Variety in Civic Show Program

Ben Phelan Studio will present young dancers in a fast moving variety show of ballet, tap, acrobatic and personality singing on the Community Program, sponsored by the Recreation Department, in the Exhibit Hall of Municipal Auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

From the opening ensemble "Alabama Jubilee" to the closing group of "Oh-By-Jingo" barberians, the program will move with rapid pace and will offer many interesting acts. Katherine Trammell will accompany the young dancers at the piano.

Dancers include April Allard, Diane Allen, Debra Austin, Linda Bales, Barbara and Mary Jo Bartholomeo, Ginger Bentley, Randi and Leslie Blesner, Linda Bobbitt, Debbie Browne, Patti Brownlow, Polly Burnham, Dorothy Casolo, Peggy Cooper, Nikki Crabtree, Mary Davis, Colleen Deltan, Kathy Drum, Donna and Kathy Duffy, Patricia Ellis, Colleen Galloway, Pamela Huber, Carol Jensen, Felicia Kirchmann, Sally Knox, Earlynn and Sharon Lancaster, Diane Lewis, Leslie McCombs, Linda McInturff, Diane McManamy, Kirsten Perry, Susan Peterson, Teri Rauscher, Charlotte Reels, Barbara Santago, Connie Sico, Deena Jo Smith, Connie Stolp, Linda Vegas, Barbara Wallace, and Alice Zavala.

Community singing will open the program at 7:30 p.m. led by George Griffith with Mrs. Madeline Frazer as accompanist.

Old time and square dancing to the music of the Tyo Orchestra will follow the stage performance.

Everyone is invited to this free civic program.

Ormond W. Merritt

Chef of the Week

Calorie Counters Click as 'Uranium Orm' Cooks

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent-Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

. . . "And so, today, Florida and California meet." Chef of the Week Ormond W. Merritt, in his search for year 'round sunshine, left that other place and came to Southern California in 1922, and to Long Beach in 1935.

Our "chef" actually was given his "given" name from Ormond Beach, Fla. You see, his dad, one of the earliest golf pros, had two golf courses . . . a summer one at Bretton-wood, N. H., and a winter one at Ormond Beach, Fla. Merritt was born in Boston, Mass.

Once here, he made a complete departure from the family "profession." He became promotional manager of the Los Angeles Athletic Club chain, a position which he held for 10 years. Three of those years he managed the Pacific Coast Club.

Inspired and influenced by the importance of the culinary arts, he dreamed of his own restaurant. That dream took shape in Ormondo's, a restaurant which he originated and built in 1946. During the next three years he had some of the most famous European chefs in his employ. The supervisory assistance of Mrs. Merritt, a home economics major from Simmon College, Boston, Mass., is not to be discounted.

After selling his restaurant, Merritt conducted an import-export business with the Philippines, for a number of years, before organizing the American Plant Protection Co.

In this project, he is still active . . . but in a unique fashion. He grubstaked two of his guards in search of uranium. You can guess the rest . . . he made the most of it, now owning the largest uranium deposit in the State of California. His company, of which he is president, is known as Coso Uranium, Inc. They are now negotiating the first uranium mill to be built in our state. It will be located at Lone Pine.

Membership in the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, keeping "hep" with his two teen-age daughters and teaching his young son to play golf, occupy his spare moments.

Needless to say, when he cooks, he's doing what comes naturally. Today, he's preparing a Chateaubriand.

Chateaubriand

Brown a short tenderloin quickly on four sides. Slice in half-inch slices and serve with Sauce Bernaise.

SAUCE BERNAISE

To Hollandaise Sauce add finely chopped parsley, tarragon, shallot or onion. One-half teaspoon horseradish may be added if desired.

Bazaar Plans

Woman's Relief Corps No. 93 will meet in Veterans Memorial Building Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 to complete plans for the club's annual bazaar set for Nov. 27. Luncheon will be served.

DBE Luncheon

DBE members will gather for luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Doris Newton, 560 E. 21st St.

Look Who's Dancing . . . . .

Harvest time—festival time—time for blessing counting and thanks giving—and time for happy people to rejoice once again in the bountiful plenty of our land. Bright young faces above dancing feet—lilting melodies over a gleaming floor—warmth and laughter—Call's Fine Arts Center at Thanksgiving week.

Why Grow Old?

Voice Is Part of Beauty; Practice to Use It Well

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do you realize that the impact of a voice, even over the telephone, is so terrific that large companies often employ experts to instruct the women who take their business calls? The experts teach them how to get "life" into their voices as well as graciousness and good telephone manners.

A voice can give you a lift. It can make you feel valued and warm or it can irritate you, leave you flat or sometimes even make you mad.

If a big business recognizes the importance of an attractive speaking voice, one which has enthusiasm and understanding, why shouldn't we take a hint? Our friends, our social life, the members of our family, the people we deal with in business, all make up our personal world and there is no world so important to us.

In addition, we just naturally expect a charming woman to have a charming voice. When she doesn't it is a jarring note in an otherwise pleasant personality. Your voice is the most important medium for expressing your thoughts, moods and emotions.

Unless there is some structural abnormality, an unattractive voice is usually due to tenseness, laziness or unawareness. Do you really listen to yourself when you talk in order to see how you sound to others? I doubt that you do and, actually, it would take the spontaneity and fun out of conversation if you were that engrossed in yourself.

However, reading aloud is splendid training in developing a magnetic speaking voice. Listen to your diction as well as to the tone of your voice. Pitch it low and pronounce the words distinctly and do not omit syllables and endings. Also try to reflect in tone the moods and thoughts on the printed page.

There are two extremes which detract from an attractive voice. There is the person who has tense jaws, tense lips, a tense tongue and so forth. Then there is the one that has a very lazy mouth. The former leads to a scratchy or shrill voice while the other is the indistinct mumbling kind. Try to avoid either of these.

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

Well, the verdict is in on last Friday's homecoming: the best ever! And despite the fact that their school is still new enough that they can count all past homecomings without taking off their shoes, students at Long Beach State can feel a genuine satisfaction in this year's celebration.

Probably the biggest surprise was the excellence of the float construction; the dean of students complimented the builders when he said all floats would do credit to any college campus in the nation.

Only thing missing was a large number of "old grads" returning to marvel at the many changes taking place. But time will remedy this little deficiency.

Congratulations to Lynn Richmond, Jerry Jones, Gary Flynn and all the others who labored mightily to make Homecoming 1956 a wonderful day. You have given future Forty-Niners a high standard to match.

Now that the hustle and bustle of homecoming is over, and with Thanksgiving vacation—short as it is—almost upon us, a little relaxing is the order of the day.

The Sigma Kappas get things under way tomorrow evening in the student lounge when they host sorority and fraternity members in their regular semester All-Greek Coffee Hour.

Practically a tradition at State, the affair will provide a chance for all the Greeks to gather in one spot and become better acquainted.

Still in a relaxing mood, students will have piano music next Wednesday night when Dorothy Judy Klein is featured in the fourth of the Fall Evenings on Campus. Miss Klein's recital in the campus Little Theater at 8:30 p.m. is open to the public. The program will include works of Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Liszt, Debussey and Shostakovich.

Also listed on the social calendar is a Sigma Alpha Epsilon Thanksgiving dance. Wasn't able to contact any of the SAE boys as to the details, however. Guess they were just too relaxed.

Placer Miner is one of the lucky ones who moved into quarters in the new administration building recently. The new nerve center of the college is an impressive structure, and its occupants are glorying in all the working space available. All facilities are so designed for efficient work handling that we don't see how anyone in the building can help but do a much better job.

LBSC students are responding generously to Crusade for Hungary Week, Nov. 14-21. Designed to raise funds to aid unfortunate student victims of the Hungarian revolt, the Crusade acquired $600 in the first two days.

Jack Markel, chairman of the campus World University Service, the International student aid group which will channel help through its Geneva offices, and Student Body President Huey Shepard are sparking the drive. The two have set a goal of $2,000. They invite the public to join the State student body in their rehabilitation efforts.

Contributions or inquiries should be addressed to Crusade for Hungary Committee at the college. The mailing address is 6101 E. 7th St., Long Beach 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Preston

Pair Notes Golden Year

Four generations were represented at the recent golden anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Preston, 5662 Myrtle Ave., in the American Legion Hall, North Long Beach.

Host and hostess for the evening were the couple's two sons and wives, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Preston, all of Long Beach, and one daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore from Midpines.

Gowned in rose lace trimmed in satin and accented by a white orchid corsage, Mrs. Preston, with her husband, cut a four-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature gray-haired bride and bridegroom. Golden gladiolas, white stock and bronze pompon chrysanthemums centered the tables, which were further adorned with rich ivy and yellow mums.

Among the 125 friends and relatives showering felicitations on the goldenweds were five grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and several of the original wedding guests of 50 years ago.

Miss Eunice Smock attended the guest book while Mrs. Ruby Wilcox registered gifts. Hostesses were Mmes. Glen Yudis and William Spurrier.

The couple exchanged wedding vows in Oconto, Neb., and moved from that town to Long Beach in 1924. Mr. Preston has been employed by the City of Long Beach for many years.

Chi Omega Dinner

Chi Omega Mothers Club of USC will host its traditional Thanksgiving dinner for families and friends of actives, pledges and alumnae, at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Chapter house, according to Mrs. Gustav C. Berg, president. A program will follow dinner.

Our Children

Guiding Power of Love Is Great—Use It Wisely

By ANGELO PATRI

When talking about loving the children so that they feel wanted and cherished, one must define love, say what that means to him. Judging by the letters I get about this, it is evident that some people quite mistake the whole idea.

One group thinks that it means giving a child anything he desires short of the moon, regardless of what that may cost other people. That is not what we mean by living a child love.

Others say that advocating this love is to encourage the parents to spoil their children by giving them their own way, making parents afraid to teach their children the hard facts of daily life and so make them unfit for that life. This is again the wrong idea of what we mean by love.

Love is a powerful force, a strengthening force. Any attitude toward children that weakens their understanding of their place in the scheme of things, that gives them the idea that to have and to get is the alm-all, end-all of life, is not love. Quite the contrary.

A truly loving parent knows that things never make anybody happy for any length of time. Things do not touch the spirit of men with love, but quite the reverse. Too much getting without giving dulls the spirit and creates selfishness, breeds attitudes that can only end in unhappiness.

A loving parent shields his children from their unknowing demands. He says "No" when that is necessary for the sake of the demanding child and for the welfare of the family. That "No" once given and held fast can be a bulwark of strength to a child. He leans on it, although he may be unconscious of the attitude behind it. It is the force that gives the child confidence in the security of home and family. Underneath his seeming rebellion, there is the reliance on the strength of father and mother. They care about him.

The children of today take cars, planes, telephones, entertainment as matters of course, and because they do not know the dangers, difficulties, entanglements these accessories of modern life bring with them, they reach for them. Wisely loving parents shorten that reach and allow their children gradually to become acquainted with these useful things, preparing them, teaching them how to use things sensibly.

A 15-year-old boy complains that his father will not buy him a car. A 13-year-old girl complains that her parents won't allow her to "go steady." A small boy cries because his mother says he cannot ride his velocipede beyond the first corner and must not under any circumstances cross the road. Such mandates come from wisely loving parents. Cheers for them.

Bad Guess Unnecessary

The grand slam was a very reasonable contract in today's hand, and should have been made. South gave himself a guess without really needing to do so.

West opened the ten of hearts, and dummy won with the queen. Without thinking ahead, declarer took the ace of spades and continued with the king and queen.

The spades did not break, and South had to choose a discard on the third round of that suit. After much thought, South discarded a club, since he seemed to have a better chance for four tricks in diamonds than in clubs.

The rest of the story is simply told. The diamonds failed to break and South wound up with only 12 tricks.

There was no need for South to suffer this misfortune. The correct play is to save the spades for last and to try out the diamonds and clubs very early.

If South first tries the diamonds, he discovers that the suit doesn't break. He next tries the clubs, and can claim 13 tricks when the suit breaks favorably. Even if both suits fail to break, South can still fall back on the spades, having lost nothing by his preliminary plays.

Molly Mayfield

He's a Confirmed Wife-Beater

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

To get to the point quickly, I left my husband last summer, I was two months pregnant at the time. When I told him there was to be another child, he became furiously angry and threw me down the steps.

He has an awful habit of drinking and fighting. Not that he'd fight anybody who had half a chance—just me and the children. I put up with this for three years, and finally packed and got out. What else was I to do despite the fact the children were only nine and two, and there was another on the way.

Well, I didn't walk far enough. I went to stay with my parents, as he knew I would. After three or four months of living alone he decided he'd like to settle down again.

In the meantime, I met a man who loves my children. He even helped me pay the hospital bill when my baby was born. This man says he loves me and wants to make a home for us.

My husband, though, promised to reform and I finally went back to him. A mistake, I'm afraid, as he has started drinking again. Now I'm wondering if I should go back to the man who really loves us. My husband beats me two or three times a week. —DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I'm not going to say "go back to the other man," because I simply don't know enough about that part of the whole situation. Maybe he is worthy; maybe he isn't. Maybe he loves you; maybe he doesn't. At least he cared enough to help you when you needed it most.

However, the question of staying with a man who beats you up seems to me so utterly absurd I hardly know what to say. If you can manage on your own, or with help from friends or parents, then why risk your health, and happiness of your children by putting up with such bestial abuse?—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I guess my problem is typically American and happens in every neighborhood, but I am getting to the point where I'm bored with the childish women of today.

My wife happens to be a "Queen Bee," which happens to mean the type that has to be constantly getting the neighborhood women to come over for "coffee." Then the gossip starts flowing and I get it all when I come home, when all I ask is for a nice rest with my three kids.

I'd like your advice, Molly, because I'm seriously thinking of taking up dancing, bowling or anything to get away from my miserable evenings at home. Let me hear from you.—GEORGE S.

DEAR GEORGE S.:

I wish I could be more sympathetic. But, you see, I can't blame your wife for having the gals in for "coffee," or going out with them; I can't blame her for being interested in the neighborhood gossip.

I certainly can't blame her for wanting to discuss it with you. After all, you both have—or should have—mutual interest in the neighborhood.

Why not start taking her out for dancing or bowling or what-not so she will have other interests besides the neighbors? Why not, indeed? —M.M.

Told Value of Service in Military

In keeping with Veterans Day observance, Altrusa Club asked Edward Gulliver to appear as guest speaker at its Monday dinner meeting at the Lafayette Hotel.

Choosing as his topic, "The Importance of Universal Training," the speaker, a graduate of Harvard University and former member of the Armed Forces Strategic Services, said that men's understanding of their duty toward their nation is invariably strengthened through military training. They are stronger physically and mentally because of their experiences.

Susan Moore, accompanied by Jerry Morse, was evening's soloist. Mrs. Jean Joyce, acting program chairman, introduced Gulliver and Miss Moore.

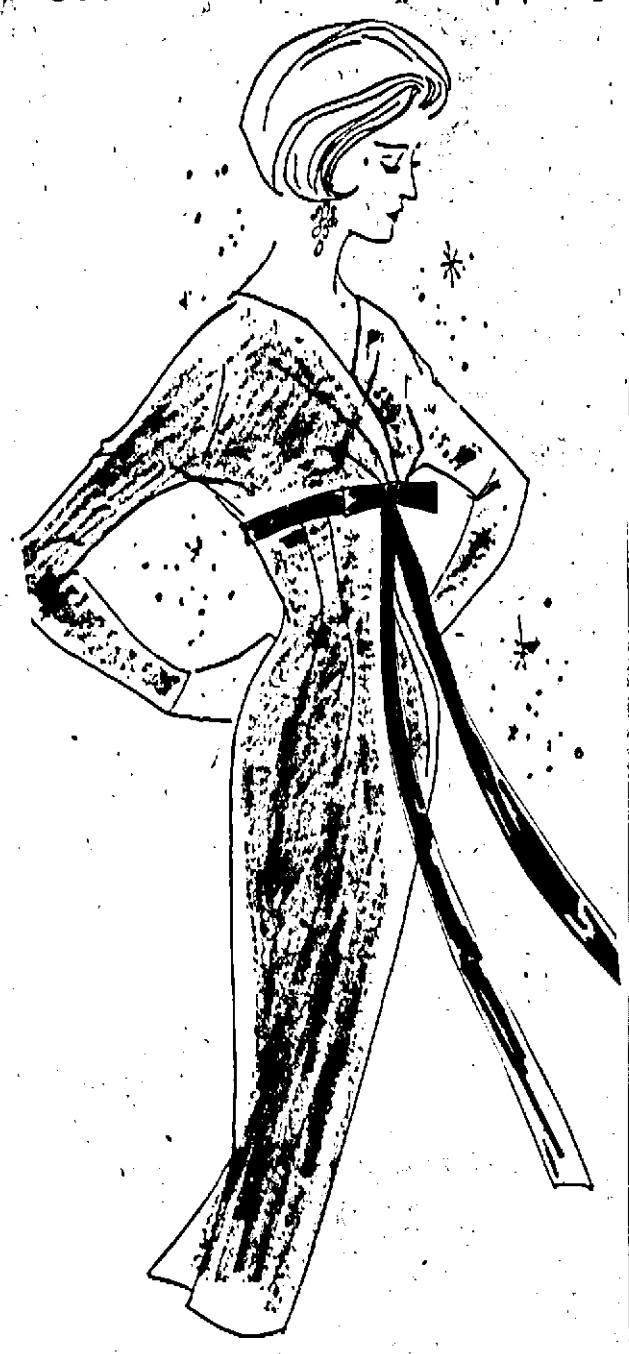

President Carmel Tyo conducted the meeting. Myrtle Poultney announced that Mrs. Joyce was winner of the club's "Double the Buck" ways and means project of last month.

Your Baby & Mine

Family's Friction

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Every parent knows when a child's behavior is beyond the ordinary. She knows when no one's child she knows acts this way, that there must be extraordinary reasons why hers does. Then it is time to find someone to study the child, to study the family to ferret out the causes for this unusual behavior. It demands all of that.

Mrs. R. B. says she baby-sits and has for more than 10 months for a 5-year-old child. "He is brought here at 5 a.m. and goes to sleep until 8 or 9 a.m. He is good until his mother comes for him and then you would think he was a changed boy. He threw a spoon at me and hit my glasses. When she calls he brings in dirt and dumps it on the floor. He picks up rugs and swings them about. He wets in the wastebasket. He soils his clothes (about five times a week). He kicks the milk off the front porch. He will step on you or kick you.

"The mother says other baby-sitters have told her the same. No amount of talking to or spanking works any change. His mother says he is good after she gets him home. She tries to make over him when she comes.

"I buy him a toy or a sundae any time we go to town. He begs to stay here all night and when I keep him over weekends he is a doll. He is a smart boy, loves attention. Perhaps his parents not getting along would be responsible for his behavior. They shower him with presents. He does not seem to notice the upset in the home. He has gained 12 pounds since I took him."

Of course, this boy is aware that something is awry in his home. His behavior is a perfect reflection of his anxiety and the hostility which springs from it. This hostility would most apt to be turned against the mother who leaves him for the whole day—and whom he may blame for the family difficulties.

The anxiety and hostility build up during his day with you—and you aren't to blame—but the moment his mother appears it is necessary for him to spill them out in all of the aggressive and naughty behavior he can think up.

I hope his mother will take this seriously and for the child's sake and maybe her own, consult some counselor who will study the family and the child and try to make some headway in smoothing out the tangles. The Family Social Service or a personal marriage counselor or psychologist or psychiatrist would all be helpful in this situation.

Our leaflet on "Obedience and Discipline," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it and ten cents to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of the Press-Telegram.

Honor Newlyweds on Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory were feted at a post-nuptial reception last Sunday by Captain and Mrs. James Tosh in their home, 929 Terraine Ave., from 3 until 5 p. m.

Mrs. Gregory is the former Suzanne Robinson. This visit to Long Beach marks the newlyweds' first trip here since their marriage in Redwood City on Sept. 22. They are visiting with the bride's mother, Mrs. Bevier Robinson, 411 Orlena Ave.

For the reception, to which 125 were bidden, the Tosh home was beautifully decorated in a repetitive color scheme of yellow and white. The tea table was centered by an arrangement of yellow crysanthemums flanked by tall silver candelabra aglow with white tapers.

Assisting the host and hostess were Miss Barbara Bakken, who stood with Mrs. Gregory as maid of honor, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Howard Bakken, Mrs. Katherine Herbert and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robinson, the bride's brother and sister-in-law.

Worry Clinic

Hubby's Wrath Increases as Wife Dawdles Around

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case T-316: Esther D., 23, has been married four years.

"Dr. Crane, Esther is an ideal wife," her husband admitted. "She is a wonderful cook and housekeeper. "She handles our little boy perfectly. She is also affectionate and charming. I still regard it as a delight to take her out on a date. But one fault has caused me to gripe and complain more than any other.

"It is her inability to be ready on time when we have an engagement at church or for a movie. She claims the baby delays her, but that isn't the real excuse, for she was like this before the baby came.

"Esther just has a poor sense of time. She thinks she can work in the kitchen till 10 minutes before our departure time, and still get ready. But she can't and for four years, I've explained and pleaded and even sarcastically bawled her out. Nothing has worked. Dr. Crane, what can you advise?"

• • • •

WIVES, what have you to say for yourselves. Why don't your surprise your mate and get into the automobile ahead of him? For Esther is guilty of the most widespread fault of all wives. Smart or dumb, young or old, wives seem chronically unable to steer their actions by a clock! And by detaining their husbands, they launch the latter into an ugly fit of criticism and fault-finding.

Many a good husband teaches a Bible Class on Sunday. He is scheduled to be on hand at a definite minute, such as 9:30 a. m. His devoted wife knows this, yet she may work in the kitchen till about 9:15 before putting on her make-up and her Sunday frock. Then she can't possibly be ready and in the car at 9:25 or even 9:30, so she causes the entire family to be late. And her irritated husband is then in no mood for a benevolent Sunday school lesson or sermon.

In order to make the crucial appointment on schedule, he may then speed unduly and possibly wreck the car.

Thousands of adults as well as children, have been killed or badly injured because the family didn't get started away from home on schedule.

• • • •

"BUT OUR WORK is never done," the wives defend themselves. "We are just trying to get Sunday dinner started and all the little chores finished before we leave."

That sounds logical, doesn't it? Yet wives are just about as slow in getting started even before they have any children to use as an alibi. And if they are dining out Sunday noon and thus have no home dinner to prepare, they still are late.

It is a rare woman who can judge time and get into the car on schedule. In fact, if any of you husbands reading this column have such a wife, please drop me a note so I can try to publicize her virtue in this respect.

Often I have suggested to Mrs. Crane that she get all ready for Sunday school first, and then, if she has 15 or 20 minutes of extra time, that she put on an apron and do some of her kitchen chores meanwhile.

"But I don't want to soil my good clothes in the kitchen," she alibies. "Then put on an apron," I have argued ineffectually for almost 30 years. "That's why aprons were invented."

The ability to watch a clock and complete duties before a deadline, is an adult reaction. Children ignore time pieces. Women seem to retain this same child-like disregard of clocks, too.

It would be so simple, however, for them to avoid these recurring criticisms from their husbands. Just get ready first and then wear that apron.

School Menus

Thanksgiving Week Fare for Students

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of November 19-23, 1956:

MONDAY: Meat biscuit roll with gravy, cut green beans, pineapple gelatin salad, cinnamon crunch and milk.

TUESDAY: Barbecued beef on a bun, fresh carrots, spicy applesauce, ½ cheese slice and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Turkey a la king on mashed potatoes, buttered peas, fruit cup with Thanksgiving cookie, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY: Thanksgiving holidays.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch, 25 cents. Soup and salad from the junior-senior high school a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR & SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Cheese enchiladas or creamed chipped beef on cornbread, cut green beans, carrot sticks, raisin bread and butter or Lorna Doone cookie and milk.

TUESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, frozen mixed vegetables, pickled beet and egg salad, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Ham slice with macaroni and cheese, garden peas, Thanksgiving fruit cup, tousted French bread and milk.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY: Thanksgiving holidays.

Demo Club Bazaar Set

Democratic Women's Study Club will sponsor luncheon and a bazaar Wednesday at the Woman's City Club building, 1309 E. Third St., under chairmanship of Mrs. Don McClellan and Mrs. Agnes Jarnagin.

Handiwork articles of members, suitable for Christmas giving, will be offered for sale from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Luncheon reservations may be made with Mrs. Reta Carter, 461 Gaviota Ave., and the public is welcome. Card playing will follow.

Members of the executive board will meet at 10 a.m. at the clubhouse, with Mrs. Lucien F. Remley presiding.

White and White

White nylon lingerie should always be washed with white things only.

Attend Conclave

Five members of Bellflower Business and Professional Women's Club received recognition at the recent conference of Sierra Mar District BPW Clubs at Lafayette Hotel. They were Mrs. Ada Robinson, recently named "Woman of the Year" by the local club; Frances Scott, Mary Ferguson, Carmen Osler and Eleanore Schmodel. Delegates also included Edythe Clearwater, Joan Cameron, Alba Kristensen, Margaret Milan and Dorothy Bush.

Give Warmth

Nice wear for baby or toddler during the days that precede winter are blue jeans lined in cotton flannel. Worn with a sweater and hat, they keep out the wind without making baby a bundle of clothes before it's necessary.

Flushes Fat Right Out of Your Body

BRAND NEW
DIFFERENT! Like nothing you have ever tried before!
NOW AVAILABLE FOR FIRST TIME!

REDUCE up to 6 pounds the first 2 days... up to 11 pounds the first week...

OR PAY NOTHING!

Just Like A Doctor's Prescription! Revolutionary New Reducing Regimen Guarantees Amazing Weight Reductions Without Fad Diets, Without Intense Hunger, Without Exercise! Proved Safe In Doctor-Conducted Tests!

Just released! An amazing scientific discovery that melts off up to 49 pounds of ugly fat! You lose up to 6 pounds the first two days... up to 11 or 12 pounds the first week... up to 40, 50 pounds or more in a reasonable length of time, without A SINGLE HUNGRY MOMENT, WITHOUT GIVING UP ALL THE FOODS YOU LOVE... or you pay nothing!

Yes, it's the amazing discovery you've heard about . . . the product you've wanted to try . . . now available for the first time ever!

It's amazing! It works all the time... while you eat, while you sleep, at work or at play, at home or away! Positively fantastic . . . so effective, your friends may barely recognize you as little as ten days from now!

Sound too good to be true? Don't take our word for it! Prove it to yourself! Try this amazing plan for 10 days entirely at our risk! It must work for you! Must produce the same fantastic results on your body as it has on countless others in Doctor-supervised clinical tests, or you don't pay one single penny!

You have nothing to lose but ugly fat! See for yourself! You be the judge! Read these scientific facts. Then take advantage of this fantastic no-risk offer!

HERE'S WHY . . . OTHER PRODUCTS DON'T WORK!

Here are the facts! Straightforward, hard-hitting facts . . . just as your own doctor would tell them to you.

Ordinary reducing plans...the very kind you are probably familiar with . . . cannot, of themselves, reduce your weight! You have to furnish the will power. You have to do the starving! You have to cut down on the foods you enjoy eating! Then, and only then, will you lose weight!

In other words, the very reducing plans you have paid $5 and $10 for, do nothing more than appease or dull your appetite! You have to do the rest! And it's not hard to see why . . .

Not one of these passive reducing plans actually works on the root of your problem . . . your fatty tissue itself! Not one of those products helps to burn up ugly fat . . . to oxidize fat . . . to actually melt that fat away forever!

And you know it! When you took those products, you did all the work! You took pills and capsules three and four times a day! You turned down delicious foods you loved so well. You suffered week after weary week! And the results? Perhaps if you were very lucky, you lost 3 or 4 pounds.

But how long could you keep up that starvation diet? How long before you sneaked in a snack here and a snack there? How long before you were eating as much as ever? And how long before those ugly ounces and pounds of dangerous, deadly overweight came back to make your life miserable?

What next? If you are like the average overweight person, you tried another plan, and still another. And the results? Always the same heartbreaking story! Little or no loss in weight! Little or no lasting effect. Then what did you do? Were you like the men and women whose utterly amazing case histories were reported in our clinical tests? Did you discover a better, more effective way to reduce? WITHOUT TORTURE! WITHOUT FAD OR STARVATION DIETS! WITHOUT THE NEED FOR TREMENDOUS WILL POWER!

THANKS TO THIS AMAZING DEVELOPMENT, YOU CAN REDUCE FASTER AND EASIER THAN YOU EVER THOUGHT POSSIBLE!

Doctors had the answer . . . a reducing regimen identical in principle to the one more doctor's prescribe than any other . . . an amazing combination of ingredients medically proven to be the greatest aid for the elimination of excess fat ever as proved in astonishingly successful clinical tests!

Not a bulk-producing agent . . . not a sweet wafer supposed to "fill" your appetite . . . not giant pills or capsules, this surrounding compound is like nothing you have ever tried before, because it has just been made available for the first time ever!

It is guaranteed safe, guaranteed effective, guaranteed to perform not one, not two, but all three functions necessary for quick, easy, comfortable weight reduction! This is what it does . . .

1. E.E.D.R. flushes away the bloat-like water that makes up to 70% of your fatty tissue! It goes to work the very first day . . . removes that water . . . makes you lose weight fast! Makes you see and feel results almost instantly!
2. E.E.D.R. actually gives you a boost . . . makes you feel peppy and alert. Helps you overcome that tired, dragged-out feeling. Actually may help you feel more vibrantly alive than you have felt in years!
3. E.E.D.R., without filling your stomach with sluggish bulk, works internally on the true center of your appetite! You still enjoy your food, but you have less desire to overeat, and you find it easier to do without fattening, unwholesome eating that are making you fat.

No wonder that when E.E.D.R. was tried on overweight patients in hospitals, results were so astonishing!

POUNDS GONE FOREVER!

Here are the amazing facts! Read them carefully. Think of what they mean if you are a person who must lose weight!

When doctors tested this amazing product on overweight patients, they did not tell those patients to go on a diet! They did not tell those patients what to eat! They did not tell those patients how to eat!

Those patients lost pound after pound of ugly fat . . . up to 12 pounds the first week . . . up to 20 pounds the first month, up to 49 pounds in a longer period of time! Day by day, safely and more quickly, more easily than ever before, their ugly, health-destroying pounds started to melt away!

While they were eating these delicious meals a day, they were losing weight. While they were enjoying mouthwatering steaks and chops, juicy roast beef, vegetables and desserts, bread and butter . . . while they ate the foods they liked, off came ugly inches from waist, hips, thighs, everywhere!

And best of all, in case after case, they actually said they felt better . . . had more pep, more energy, more vitality than they had in years!

And when the tests were over, those men and women showed remarkable weight losses. And they did it without discomfort, without diets, without horrible hunger! It was like a wonderful dream come true! They had actually turned back the clock . . . made themselves look more youthful and even feel more youthful than they had in years!

And what's more, they could say that way! . . . could continue to keep their weight under control, for as long as they wanted to . . . even the rest of their lives! Because now they had an active, fat-reducing regimen available that would actually help keep ugly fat away!

PROVE IT TO YOURSELF! TRY FULL PACKAGE ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK!

Now you can try this very same tested and proven plan in the privacy of your own home without risking one single penny!

This amazing plan must melt up to 6 pounds of ugly, excess fat right off your body in the first two days . . . up to 11 pounds in the first 7 days . . . or you don't pay one single penny!

These are not idle claims. These are not exaggerations. Your own doctor will tell you the same thing! This plan was proven almost 100% effective in doctor proved hospital tests! It worked for countless other normally healthy overweight folks and it will work for you!

For the sake of your health, for the sake of your appearance . . . even to prolong your life . . . you owe it to yourself to reduce! And in the opinion of our experts the very best way to do exactly that is with the aid of the E.E.D.R. lo-calorie plan.

Now we have done everything humanly possible to make it easy for you. We have presented you with the opportunity to obtain, for the first time ever, the same type of medication doctors prescribe for overweight patients. The rest is up to you. If you really want to reduce, you can. So right now, fill out the enclosed order form, and mail it in the postage paid envelope provided. You'll be happy you did! If you are not absolutely delighted, your money back, no questions asked. You have nothing to lose but ugly fat!

E.E.D.R. IS SAFE!

E.E.D.R. is a safe, tested product proved effective by doctors. It cannot harm your heart, lungs, liver or other vital organs. Any normally healthy person may take E.E.D.R. as directed, with complete confidence, content in the knowledge that it cannot be harmful.

OTIS LABORATORIES, Inc.
2 East Ave., Larchmont, N. Y.

READ THESE ASTONISHING RESULTS OF CLINICAL TESTS CONDUCTED BY DOCTORS!

No other product ever prints actual clinical test results, because no other product can show such astounding weight losses!

1st week	up to 12 pounds lost
2nd week	" " 24 pounds lost
4th week	" " 39 pounds lost
6th week	" " 44 pounds lost
8th week	" " 49 pounds lost

These tests were conducted by doctors on average, normally healthy overweight persons. Those men and women were NOT told to diet... were NOT told what or what not to eat! All they did was TAKE ONE TINY TABLET SMALLER THAN AN ASPIRIN, BEFORE EACH MEAL... yet their weight losses were almost unbelievable!

THIS IS THE MOST POWERFUL PROOF YOU HAVE EVER SEEN FOR ANY REDUCING REGIMEN! NO OTHER PRODUCT SOLD IS AS EFFECTIVE AS E.E.D.R.

HERE ARE FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT E.E.D.R.

WHAT IS IT?

E.E.D.R. is a scientific combination of safe drugs which works just like a doctors prescription to help you lose weight.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

E.E.D.R. works three ways to help you reduce quickly, safely and easily.

1. E.E.D.R. draws off and flushes out the weight-adding, bloat-producing water that makes up to 70% of your fatty tissue.
2. E.E.D.R. inhibits your appetite without bloating your system with bulk material.
3. E.E.D.R. makes you feel better, more peppy and alert . . . actually gives you a lift while those pounds are coming off!

HOW DO YOU TAKE IT?

E.E.D.R. is a tiny tablet smaller than an aspirin tablet. For the first three days you take two tablets before each meal. After the first three days, you take only one tablet before each meal.

IS IT SAFE?

E.E.D.R. is not a dangerous drug, not a laxative, not a thyroid extract, not a bulk-producing medicine! It is a safe, doctor-tested product made of pure, medically-approved ingredients. Any normally healthy person may take E.E.D.R. as directed with complete confidence because it cannot harm you in any way.

When you follow the E.E.D.R. plan, you do not have to do back-breaking exercises, you do not have to go on a fad diet, you do not have to give up all the foods you love to eat, you do not have to take giant pills and capsules, powders or sweet wafers all day-long!

YOU SIMPLY TAKE ONE OR TWO TINY, TABLETS (SMALLER THAN ASPIRIN TABLETS) BEFORE EACH MEAL! NO OTHER PRODUCT IS SO EASY TO TAKE!

WHY YOU SHOULD TRY E.E.D.R. . . .

EVEN IF YOU PROMISED YOURSELF YOU WOULD NEVER TRY ANOTHER REDUCING REGIMEN AGAIN!

Are you a person who has tried everything? . . . giant pills and capsules 3 and 4 times a day? . . . fad diets? . . . powders you sprinkle on food? . . . exercise? . . . gadgets and gimmicks? . . . everything and anything that promised freedom from those extra pounds of fat that are spoiling your figure and endangering your health?

Are you a person who swore you'd never try another reducing plan? Stop and think a moment. Wouldn't it be a shame if E.E.D.R. was really the one product that could help you, and you didn't at least try it?

You see, regardless of what you think, regardless of how many times you have been disappointed before, E.E.D.R. really works! Really does everything we claim it will! It's safe, it's quick, it's easy! In doctor-supervised clinical tests, it was proved to be astonishingly successful!

And no wonder . . . For it is the only reducing regimen sold that is really like a doctor's prescription. It flushes away bloat, it keeps you from feeling hungry, and it actually picks you up and makes you feel better than usual while those ugly pounds are coming off! And how they come off — actually faster than ever before!

So don't miss out on this opportunity! Don't turn back now! Even if you have been disappointed before, now you are within sight of your goal. Think of how wonderful it will be to look better and feel better . . . to really be slimmer and trimmer than you have been in years! That's the opportunity that now awaits you! And you can do it all without risking one single penny! Simply send for E.E.D.R. now.

Try it for as long as you like. If you are not satisfied, you are under no obligation to keep it. All you do is mail back the unused portion and get your money back immediately, no questions asked. You are trying, not buying. If you don't get the results you hoped for, you have paid nothing, and at least you have had the satisfaction of trying this amazing new product. You have nothing to lose but ugly fat!

So don't put it off. Act on that impulse! Determine to help yourself . . . determine to have the slim, youthful-looking figure that amazing new E.E.D.R. can help you obtain. And do it now! It only takes a minute to fill out the enclosed order card and mail it in the postage-paid envelope provided. If you are not delighted in every way, all you will have lost is a few minutes of your time. You know we must have great confidence that E.E.D.R. will help you or we could never afford to make this spectacular no-risk offer. So why not send now?

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Use a whole package of E.E.D.R. in your own home at our expense! If the E.E.D.R. plan doesn't help you lose up to 6 pounds in the first 48 hours . . . up to 11 pounds the first week . . . if it doesn't make you look better and feel better . . . if you are aren't completely convinced this lo-calorie regimen is the quickest, best way to reduce you have ever tried, don't keep it! Return the unused portion and we refund your money immediately, no questions asked!

Try the shake test and see... extra measures per pound... lots more flavor, too!

Shake several brands next time you're shopping. You'll find most coffees rattle, but M.J.B's quiet. That's because it's packed right to the brim with extra measures! M.J.B's fuller can gives you as many as 8 extra measures, and more flavor, too! Special roasting is the secret of this big-plus value in every pound of M.J.B.

As the coffee beans are roasted, they're slowly expanded to release all the deep, satisfying flavor. This increases the volume, too. Gives you a bonus of 2 to 8 extra measures. Try the M.J.B shake test next time you're shopping. You can't make a bad cup of M.J.B!

Let's Be Realistic About CD

By Stella George

AT THE VERY MOMENT you are reading this article, how prepared are you for an emergency? Suppose right now an earthquake occurred — or a bomb exploded 30 miles away — what would you do? Do you have an adequate food and water supply on hand? Would you (housewives included) be able to turn off the main gas valve for your house? Could you find a flashlight in the pitch-black of night, and would it work? Do you have medicine for that asthmatic youngster, in case he developed a sudden attack in the midst of confusion? In short, are you prepared for the worst in case it should happen suddenly?

Actually, the need for preparedness is a vital one which exists every moment of every day, and one which requires the full support and consideration of every adult, regardless of age or position. As one woman who had lived through the last war in London said:

"We were asleep because we said, 'It can't happen here.' Heaven help the people in America if they are asleep, too."

AS EVERYONE KNOWS (or should know), the Long Beach-Los Angeles area could be a prime target for destruction. A calm and relaxed attitude on the part of local residents could result in panic and chaos in the event of an emergency. People who lived in Long Beach when the 1933 earthquake shook the city from its foundations will remember the distress and confusion suffered by those who were routed temporarily from their comfortable homes.

We can and should do something about Civil Defense (which, of course, means preparation for other emergencies such as earthquakes, fires and floods as well as hydrogen bombs) by giving the subject a lot of thought and a little effort. The average housewife can easily provide for the material needs of her family at such a time. And with these physical needs taken care of, many psychological problems will be eliminated also. Here are some specifics:

1—FAMILY ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION — At the earliest possible time have a family round-table discussion about emergencies. Point out that while we don't look for things to happen, they can and often do occur when we least expect them. If the discussion is presented in a matter-of-fact way, the children will accept the possibility of an emergency as part of daily living, just as they accept air-raid and fire drills at school and treat them as a matter of course.

2—KNOW YOUR HOME — Right now, today, look at each utility valve. Find out if you would need a special wrench to turn off the gas and water. Learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker or replace a fuse in the dark. Know how to make use of the water in the water heater for drinking purposes.

3—BASIC EQUIPMENT FOR EMERGENCIES — Keep basic equipment for emergencies in one place, and keep it there at all times. This should include a flashlight with reserve batteries; medicine, including any special prescription needed by a certain member of the family; first-aid supplies for minor cuts and scratches, and the most recent pamphlets obtainable from Civil Defense headquarters for quick reference. A portable or battery-operated radio and a small camp-type gasoline stove are highly desirable to have on hand.

4—FOOD AND WATER SUPPLY — Check your food and water supply. Have an adequate food and water supply on hand at all times. Every family should have a survival food kit in the home where it will be readily accessible in case of evacuation. It should be remembered that these survival food kits are designed for basic menu needs, and would, of course, be supplemented with other food on hand in case of emergency.

Many families make a practice of once-a-week shopping at the market, and thus, at the end of the week, the kitchen shelves are nearly bare (with the exception of staples). It would be an excellent idea to buy for 10 days instead of a week, and keep in reserve the extra three-days' supply of food. This reserve can be built up gradually if, at each marketing time, an extra can of tuna or beans is added to the shopping list. The reserve will not stay built up if, when company comes and a minor emergency arises, the extra can of tuna is used and not replaced. A well-stocked pantry shelf plus a survival food kit will ensure adequate menus — a "must" for any emergency.

As many gallons of bottled water as can be conveniently stored away should be kept with the reserve food supply. Because of possible breakage, half-gallon bottles are desirable. The importance of extra water cannot be over-emphasized, as parents of small children especially will understand.

It's a good idea to keep a small stock of hard candy and gum on hand for between-meal snacks — and moral uplift. And those who smoke should by all means keep an unused and unopened carton of cigarettes for the time when they cannot run to the drug store.

5—CARE OF PETS — The care of pets in time of an emergency is an important issue to be considered. Those who own animals owe it both to the animals and themselves to keep extra cans of pet food stored away. A crazed, half-starved animal roaming the streets in search of food would be a menace to the community as a whole. It is the responsibility of pet owners to take care of the animals' physical needs during an emergency, in the same way that it is expected at other times.

THOSE WHO FEEL and act realistic about civil defense emergencies should encourage their neighbors to do likewise. Civil Defense authorities would have almost more work than they could handle at the actual time of an emergency. Their heavy load can be lightened if each householder does his part in home preparation. The time to prepare for an emergency is when no emergency exists, in the same way that an insurance policy is taken out before an accident occurs. For those who have a realistic and wide-awake outlook of their own and their families' future, that time is NOW!

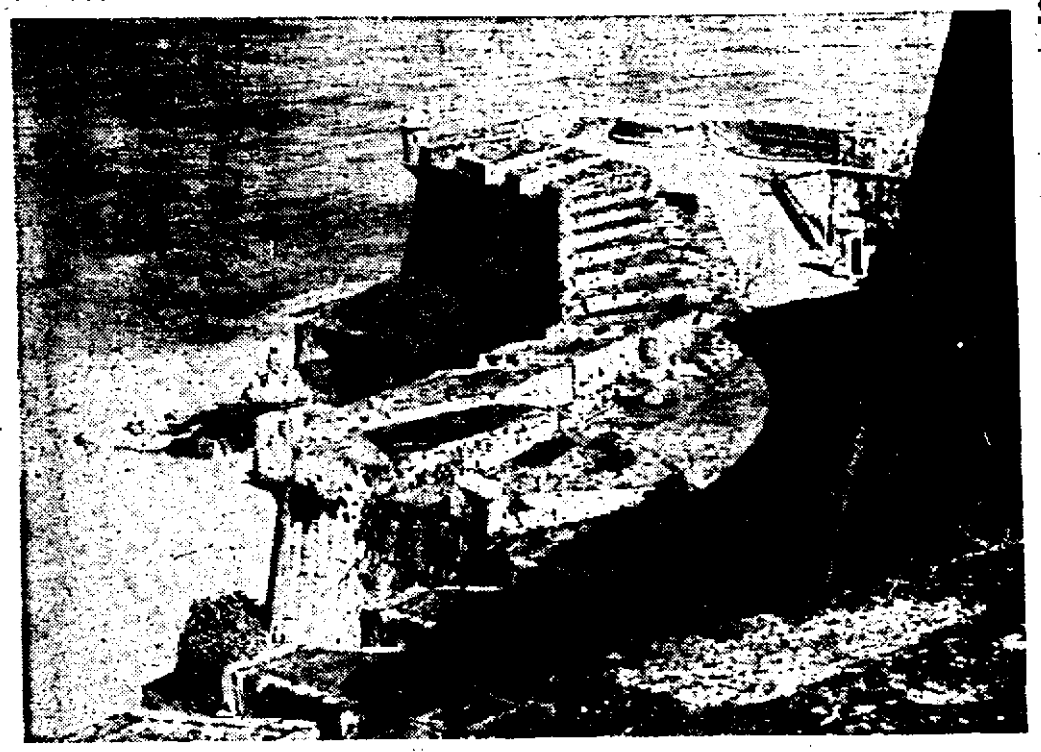

A smart housewife will buy a few extra cans of food each time she does her marketing, thus gradually building up a reserve supply of staples for emergencies.

The housewife should learn how to reset the electric circuit breaker before an emergency occurs. And she should also know how to turn off the gas and water.

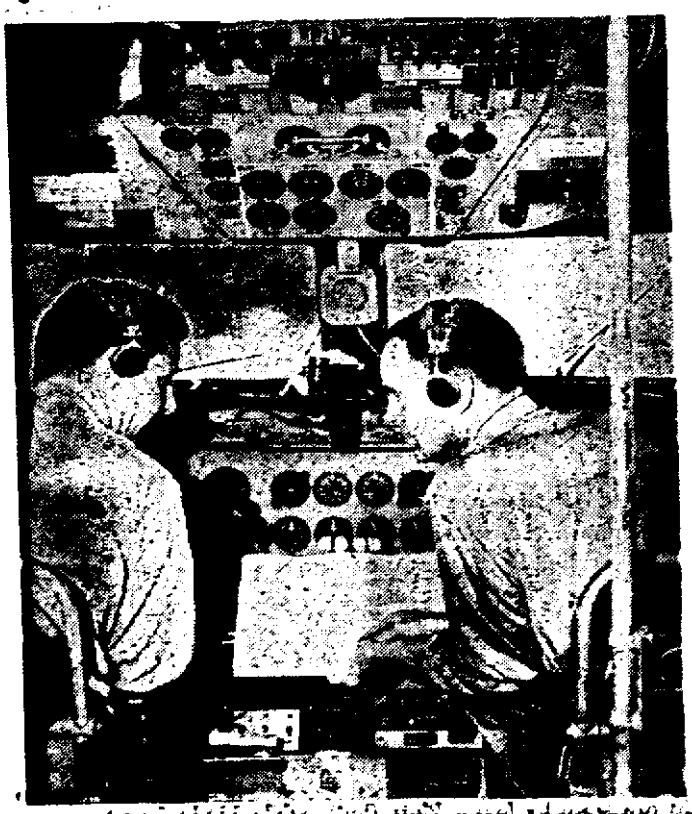

El Morro, famed fortress that guarded San Juan, Puerto Rico, juts out in the sea. Navy training party found time to visit this ancient landmark.

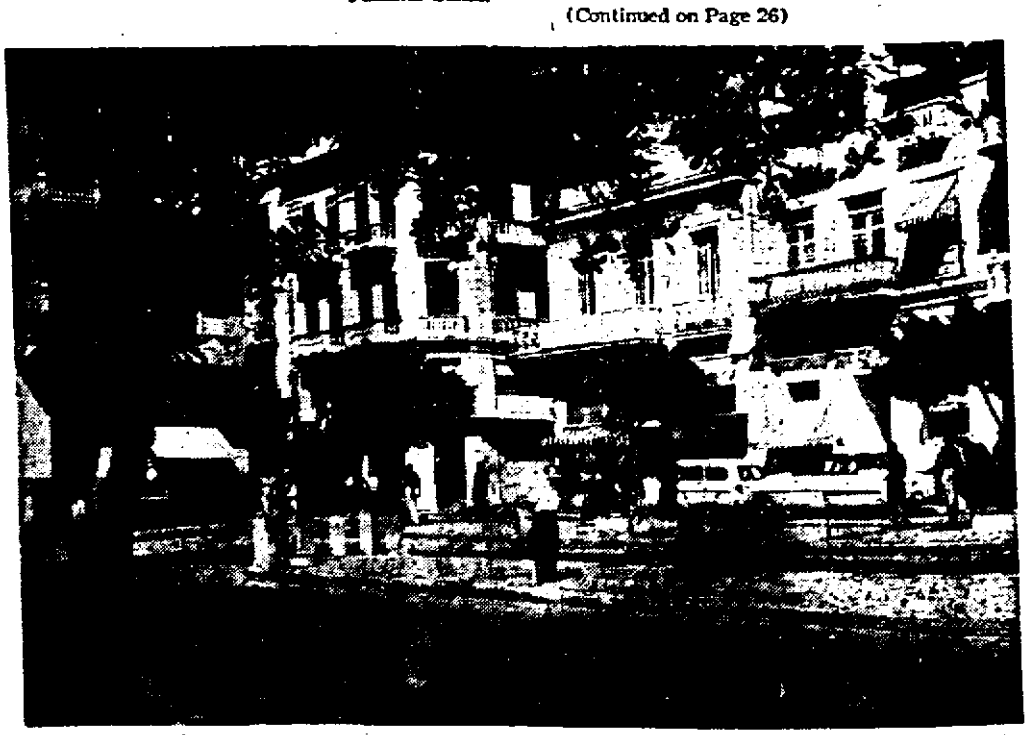

A typical Puerto Rico girl poses for fliers' cameras.

The author takes a brief turn in the co-pilot's seat to get the feel of the plane controls while in flight.

Plane skipper, Lt. Cmdr. R. H. Hippe (11), studies flight plan with Lt. Cmdr. G. B. Wilson, one of two co-pilots.

SHADES OF BUCCANEERS!

Flight to El Morro

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Independent, Press-Telegram staff reporter James A. Allen accompanied a Naval Reserve crew on a 7,000-mile training flight from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station to Miami, Fla.; Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone; San Juan, Puerto Rico, and return. This is his story of that flight.)

By James A. Allen

THE BIG NAVY four-engine transport plane rolled down the runway at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and took off into the night.

The lights of Long Beach fell astern as the pilot set his course for Miami, first leg of a flight to the nation's outposts in the Caribbean.

Aboard the plane were members of VR771, a Naval Reserve air transport squadron based at Los Alamitos, participating in their annual two-week training period.

They were simulating the squadron's war mission - to deliver supplies or personnel to scattered points throughout the world.

In this role, the squadron during the two weeks traveled 61,272 miles in three R5Ds (the Navy designation for the Douglas DC4), making two flights to the Caribbean, three to Honolulu, two to New York, one to Washington, five to Phoenix and two to Alameda.

THE SQUADRON'S PILOTS averaged 86.5 hours of flying time in the two weeks—more than the average for airline pilots in a month.

The plane commander for this Caribbean flight was Lt. Cmdr. Robert H. Hippe, 2661 Crestview Dr., Newport Beach, a partner in the architectural firm of Ramberg, Hippe and Lowrey, Santa Ana.

Lt. Cmdr. William J. McGillivray, Westwood, a pilot for Trans American Airlines, was navigator. He supervised navigational training on the flight.

Co-pilots were Lt. Cmdr. Gerald B. Wilson, Altadena, assistant superintendent of building for the City of Pasadena, and Lt. Cmdr. Levi Bowman Brookshire, Westchester, a designer for Northrop Aircraft.

Crewmen were AD1 Douglas A. Wignall, 5750 Scrivener St.; AT1 Clarence E. Doxstater, 9752 Russell St., Garden Grove, and AD1 Elwood W. Milson, all Naval Reserve stationkeepers at Los Alamitos NAS; AD1 Lee Joseph Braem, San Bernardino, an aircraft inspector at Norton Air Force Base; AD1 Clarence A. Poulson, Phoenix, ad room foreman for the Phoenix Gazette and Arizona Republic; AD2 Charles E. Joiner, Palm City, a journeyman aviation machinist at the Naval Air Station, North Island, San Diego, and AA Jerry D. Stark, San Diego, a jig and fixture builder for Convair.

JOC LEWIS B. REED, Temple City, of Wing Staff 77, and a power sales engineer for the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power, co-ordinated news coverage on the trip.

The plane flew airways to Galveston, then headed across the Gulf of Mexico on the flight to Miami. The pilots had ample opportunity to brush up on celestial navigation on the long overwater hop.

The group landed at the Marine Corps Air Station, Miami, at 10:50 a. m. Tuesday after a nonstop flight of 13 hours. After arranging for refueling and servicing of the plane, squadron members enjoyed a little relaxation at Miami Beach, noted for its miles of plush hotels and assorted night clubs.

THE PARTY DEPARTED Miami at 9:10 a. m. Wednesday for the Naval Air Station, Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone. In a short time the plane passed over Cuba, then was over water until Pt. San Blas was sighted, northeast of the Panama Canal. The plane flew in over dense, humid jungles and landed at Coco Solo at 3:40 p. m.

The landing strip at Coco Solo has been hewed out of the jungles. At the far end, a taxi strip led to the Naval Air Station. As the plane taxied along, it appeared that the trees nearly touched the wingtips on either side. Near the station, the strip crossed the highway. A police officer and traffic signals held back the cars while the plane passed.

The officers and crew took advantage of the variety of exotic items offered in the ship's service at the base, then headed for the port of Colon, a few miles distant at the Caribbean side of the Panama Canal.

Junior Coeds Look the Most

By design and not by accident are the girls in the local junior high schools well groomed, tastefully attired teensters. In their first days at junior high these 12, 13 and 14-year-olds learn that blouses and skirts, sweaters and shirts or sport type dresses are the only acceptable items in milady's school wardrobe. Low necklines, midriffs and backless or shoulderless garments get the thumbs-down treatment. Also unacceptable for school wear are play clothes such as slacks, pedal pushers or shorts. Definitely out are head coverings, curlers or pin curls. Excessive jewelry and makeup are not considered appropriate. Personal grooming, such as hair combing, applying makeup and manicuring in the classrooms is a violation of good manners. Shown here are DeMille Junior High School girls in typical, appropriate and approved school wear.

Girls are invited to discuss dress and activities with faculty advisers, as group above is doing with Mrs. Georgia Hambly, DeMille dean of girls.

Easy to keep up, dressy and comfortable are skirt and blouse separates worn on campus by Jackie Uhlenhop.

How Big's Your Thanksgiving Table?

Spread for the bountiful feast that is imminent, this Thanksgiving table is a symbol of national rejoicing.

By Barbara V. Myers

LINKED to the rich heritage that is ours, no holiday can surpass Thanksgiving in national significance to Americans. Whether we trace our forebears to an early sailing vessel or an immigrant ship of recent years it is easy for all of us to identify ourselves with the reverent crowd who gathered to hear Gov. Bradford proclaim the first Thanksgiving on Nov. 29, 1623, and to thrill, as did those pioneers, at the goodness and greatness of this, our America.

Family gatherings about well-laden tables at Thanksgiving have become a favorite American tradition. All over the land in the weeks before the holiday great preparations are made. Homes are cleaned and decorated, silver polished, and a menu planned that will surpass all previous occasions.

Yet, if we are true to our heritage, we will remember that there is a deeper preparation called for in this season than that which satisfies our physical appetites alone. It is the preparation of a grateful heart. Attempts to express our gratitude in three different ways may help get our hearts ready for the real feast of Thanksgiving.

THE FIRST, of course, would be, in the words of Gov. Bradford, "to render thanksgiving to Almighty God for all His blessings." Mrs. Grover Emmons, a Long Beach author, has included a poem by Corlandt Sayres in her book, "The Mature Heart." The poem describes a dream in which the writer receives a bill from Life. On it were listed the dawns and the sunsets, the flowers, the sea and the stars, his friends, his love—all the blessings of his life. Seeing this abundance in one magnificent picture his heart filled to overflowing and he burst forth:

"I wondered when I waked at day,
How—how in God's name — I could pay."

Who has not felt like this? "Though our mouths were full of song as the sea," says a prayer from the Hebrew morning service, "and our tongues of exaltation as the multitude of its waves . . . we should still be unable to thank Thee . . . O Lord, our God . . . for one ten thousandth part of the bounties which Thou hast bestowed upon our fathers and upon us."

BEING THANKFUL for our blessings is a fairly easy exercise, but along comes St. Paul and complicates things. It is easy enough, says he, to be grateful for just the good things. Our need is "to give thanks in everything." This is much more difficult. A modern parable tells of two men who were riding in a train whose roadbed was extremely rough. One man cursed and complained everytime they hit a bump and alighted from the train cross and physically exhausted. The other man sang "Hallelujah" each time the train hit a rough spot. He reached his destination calm in spirit and nearly fresh as when he had started. By journeying the entire trip with praise on his lips

Honeybees Crown a New Queen

(The author is a noted wildlife and time-lapse photographer who has contributed many fascinating scenes of animal and plant life to Walt Disney's nature films. He has spent years in close camera study of bees, and here tells of his adventure in filming the bee sequence on wilderness location for "Secrets of Life." His home is in Garden Grove.)

By Stuart Jewell

MY MOST exciting adventure as a wildlife photographer was not in the realm of big savage beasts but in the separate world of the insects—among the wild bee colonies of the California foothill country.

It was not only the most fascinating, but one of the most difficult and dangerous as well.

My assignment for Walt Disney's most searching nature picture, "Secrets of Life," can be as deadly as a rattlesnake. The honey bee can sting a man quickly to death.

It was with caution that I approached these disarmingly beautiful creatures on the strangest of all motion picture locations.

I SET UP my camera in an aged oak within a couple of yards of a very populous bee castle in the hooded hollow of a tree. One afternoon I noticed a sudden strange commotion about the entrance of the hive.

A regal looking creature, golden and glistening, had emerged from the castle port and paused there in the sunlight. At once hundreds of little workers began gathering about her with folded wings as if awaiting some signal. I knew I was about to witness one of the supreme and ceremonious events of apian society—the change of reigning queens in the dynastic successions of a million years.

Inside a young princess would be ascending the throne. On the threshold, the old matriarch, surrounded by her loyal retainers, was taking her peaceable and ordained departure.

IN A MOMENT they rose in a great golden swarm, following their queen to some new home the scouts had indicated. Through my "head mask" I heard the hum of their myriad wings.

Carefully, I opened a section of the hive to expose the interior for my spying movie cameras and waited for the inevitable attack upon my armor-clad person to subside. I had interrupted the violent procedure by which the new queen would establish her reign. The deadly business had not yet been completed.

The regal succession is determined by duel—by battle royal.

The ensuing battle was witnessed by my close range camera with the magnifying lens.

From special cells in the waxen compartments four newborn candidates for the throne emerged in as many minutes. An instinctive rage, a blind jealous hatred for their princess sisters was born with them.

THEY PAIRED OFF in grappling duels, their lethal stilettos probing and stabbing for the death thrust. One after another they lost their brief lives until only the two finalists were left. These then closed in the last furious embrace, with one groggy survivor entitled to the crown.

Apian society is a matriarchate. Every instinct and act is shaped to the benefit of the pampered queen who is the preserver and propagator of her race. She is a prodigious egg layer, incredibly fecund from one impregnation. The only sexed female of the hive, she is the mother of swarming generations until in turn displaced by a new monarch.

The queen bee is the product of one of nature's chemical marvels—the transformation of a neuter embryo into a highly potent female by specially administered vitamins known as royal jelly. This is a mystery to laboratory scientists.

AS SOON AS the surviving princess has recovered from the wounds of battle, she prepares for her wedding flight.

The one-time marriage of the queen bee is an irresistible compulsion. Waiting for the event, and sensing the time, a group of drones or sexed males, present themselves as competitive mates. One of them, the boldest and the swiftest, will become the actual bridegroom. His conquest will cost him his life.

The camera watches the young queen and her courtiers take off in the fateful flight. No man has seen the actual moment of mating. But within the hour the impregnated matron returns to the hive and her paramour will have fallen from the high rendezvous.

From this time on the queen will be a captive in her own castle, endlessly depositing eggs in the nursery cells.

The drones who have returned in chagrined defeat from the amorous chase now face a crucial day.

FROM BIRTH THESE dandies have been petted and pampered by attentive workers and hive nurses. They do not work, merely eat and loll at ease, preening themselves. But now they are no longer needed, even as standby paramours.

Inglorious, they are cast from the castle in the oak, to perish of hunger and neglect.

Bees are especially susceptible and sensitive to smells. Odors guide them to their sources of food supply. Nectars seduce them to the heart of flowers where they help perform the germinating rite that supplies the precious pollen for bee bread. Odors identify friend from enemy.

Even the human breath will excite and antagonize them. In working close to a bee colony, wild or domestic, I always sprinkle myself with floral perfume and disguise my breath.

A DEFENSIVE creature, not a belligerent warrior, given to minding its own business, the honey bee has needed its potent venom to survive down the long ages of animal competition. Slow to anger, its fury, once aroused by peril to his hive and the precious queen, is matched by few living things. Their attack is suicidal, for the very act of stinging eviscerates them.

I have discovered by painful experience that it takes from 20 to 30 successive stings during an interval of several weeks to become immunized. Half that many stinging in a brief period can cause serious illness and might prove fatal in some cases.

Naturalist-photographer Stuart Jewell of Garden Grove films humming bird at closeup. Bees also were pictured for Walt Disney's "Secrets of Life."

Classics in Yuletide Cards

"Christmas on the Railroad," by John Rogers.

LAVISH as always in the wealth of originality and gaiety they offer, the Designers & Illustrators, this year, have added a series of "Engraved Classics" that show, for the first time, just how glamorous a formal Christmas card can be!

Choice examples of the engraver's art are enriched by high - lustered "jewel - strewn" backgrounds and other contemporary elegancies.

Among the well-known Designers & Illustrators whose new cards tell charming, gay and entertaining stories of life at Christmas time are Mary Blair, Roger Duvoisin, Fred Eng, Oscar Fabres, Isabella Howland, Ervine Metzl, Art Seiden and Elli Zappert.

Mircea Vasiliu, author of a best-selling fabulous autobiography and illustrator of many other books, shows his own festive living room, complete with a tree that actually sparkles. Other designs that radiate cordiality are gaily decked doorways by Hall Byther of the West Coast.

John Rogers contributes an exhilarating view of a railway caboose—which he titles "Christmas on the Railroad," with its gala Christmas tree aboard

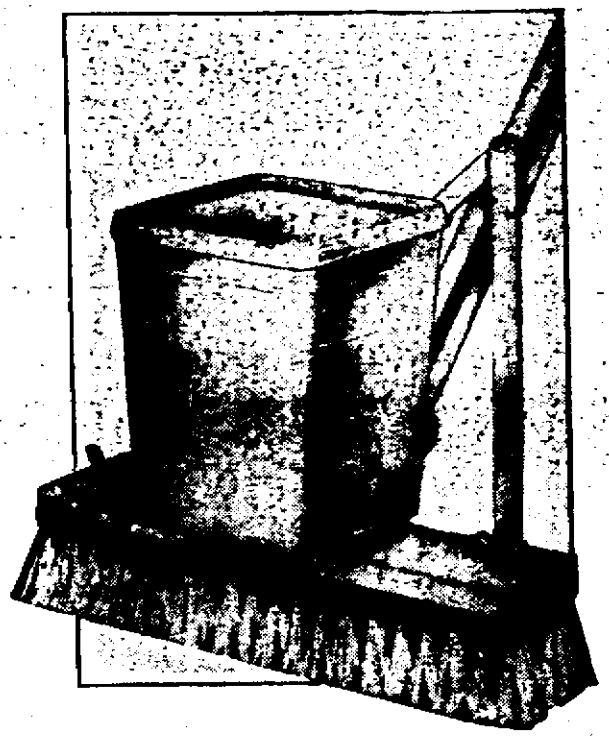

Amusing new Designers & Illustrators Christmas cards, some of which show Santa as a major performer, reflect many popular interests: Photography, television, golf, weight-reducing—even "parlor magic"! In more serious vein are designs that ingeniously combine today's universal hope for peace and good will with various individual interests.

There'll Always Be an O'Brien

By Terry Vernon

Independent, Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE an O'Brien in the entertainment field and just to be sure they come from Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs .Vicnent P. O'Brien of 1400 Hellman St., have 14 of them coming along.

Of course, two of them have already achieved some fame in the world of show business and both are extremely beautiful colleens, which doesn't hurt a bit.

Erin, now 21, is back in New York where she stayed after her sister, Sheila, 19, introduced her on Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" (CBS). Erin won with ease and got her week of work with the Godfrey daytime show. This led to bigger and better things and she is now a "discovery" of Steve Allen, who should have known her when he was deejaying on KNX.

ERIN BEGAN her career several years ago on the Al Jarvis show and this taste of show business imbued her with the top. Jarvis is still ecstatic about her and calls her one of the best singers he has ever heard.

She stayed with Jarvis on his afternoon show until she fell in love, was married to singer Jimmy Fitzgerald and had a baby. She retired temporarily when the stork arrived but show business was in her blood.

Now Erin is well on the high road to success so let's take a look at her sister's future.

SHEILA IS ALSO a singer but spends her working days at the General Telephone Company here where she is a Miss Information . . . not prone to giving mis-information.

First of 14 Long Beach O'Briens to win a place in the entertainment field is Erin (above), who sings on TV.

She has won the junior and senior division award presented by the Long Beach Women's Music Club and has studied under Louise Agal, Long Beach voice teacher. She is a member of Phi Beta, a national women's fraternity of art, music and speech. She went to St. Anthony High School and Long Beach State.

Her most recent TV appearance was as a panel member on the now defunct "Johnny Carson Show" (CBS). Her job was to answer questions and "gripes" thrown at her by the studio audience.

JOHNNY ASKED the first question, probably the one uppermost in the minds of all men who saw the show, "Do you have men asking for dates when they call Information?"

"Yes, I have," replied Sheila.

"Well," asked Johnny, "did you accept any dates?"

"No," was her reply and she added, "If any of them get too persistent, I would refer them to the supervisor."

Immediately Johnny wanted to know "would the supervisor accept the dates!"

Sheila hasn't yet cracked into the entertainment field with her vocal abilities but she is studying and readying herself for the day when she can take her place in the limelight along with Erin.

Then after she gets going good there are still 12 good Irish O'Briens ready, willing and able to step into the spotlight.

Beautiful Sheila, Erin's sister, hasn't made a permanent place in show business, but is ready as a singer.

The Magic Wand of Music

Long Beach adores the majorettes who march in city's annual All-Western Band Review. Above, Barbara Webb.

By Martha Johnson

ALL LONG BEACH—all the world, in fact—loves a pretty girl. All the world likes vibrant music. Put them together, add a swirly skirt, sky-stepping boots and shining, fast-spining baton and the result is the main ingredient for this city's All Western Band Review, spectacular annual parade which goes into its 16th presentation next Saturday.

But, suppose that in front of the band, instead of this lithe-legged lovely, marched a gangling man, carrying a tremendously long spear with hammered brass washers dangling on the shaft. The washers are jingling to the rhythm of many tomtoms and the man twists his body accompanyingly. At the same time the spear clangs noisily up and down his arms, shoulders and back.

Strange? Well, not if the scene was in Siam decades ago. For there was baton twirling in its earliest traceable stage.

WHEN THE energetic youth of today throws a flaming baton into the air, he or she is using the same kind of trick employed long ago by the natives of the Samoan Islands. Instead of fire, Samoans used a cane knife, razor-sharp, attached to a long rattan-bound handle. This was done in unison at many celebrations.

American baton twirling began its rise to popularity along with the first crinolines and has increased in interest and enthusiasm, until today it has become a mathematical art requiring top skill and physical endurance.

For many years men held top priority in the field of the animated peppermint stick. Musical groups were called upon to participate in community celebrations and a capable young man would march alongside the unit carrying an object that aroused more curiosity than the strange "clinkers" of the band. It resembled a jug, with a small sphere-shaped bottom and a long stem jutting out from the top. For a while, the necessity of this queer object was kept secret, but the secret gradually leaked out and soon everyone knew the strange ornament contained wine, which went along with the group as a "pick-me-up."

DESPITE THIS FACT, the urn-like musicians' companion continued to go along with parade bands. Exuberant young men began to take advantage of the situation, perhaps to attract more attention, and twist the urn about with as much a degree of grace and rhythm as the liquid contents would allow. This touch of showmanship soon paid off for the questionable adornment was soon promoted to the very front of the musical unit. This led to the liquid being removed and the urn being remodeled into a crude-looking stick with a long shaft, resembling the present day signal baton.

In the early 1900s the "juggling drum majors," as they had labeled themselves, began to outdo themselves with new twists, turns and extreme rhythms. Because of the difficulty in maneuvering the long, heavy baton, the athletic wand was shortened and evolved into a stick about the size of today's large twirling baton. At this time, the art became officially known as "baton spinning" and the juggling majors guarded their tricks and movements with zealous secrecy, refusing to teach anyone their professional secrets.

IN THE SECOND quarter of the 1900s, the "hand that rocks the cradle" moved in. Several women were called upon to head musical units solely to display their graceful movements and appearance. This seemed to please the general public. At first their beauty and boldness in accompanying the bands held the public interest but as their presence more and more became an accepted fact, the gals searched for a different means to maintain their popularity.

A lighter and shorter baton was designed for feminine use and, one by one, girls began to take over the decorated stick. As the year 1940 approached, women twirlers numbered in the thousands and men began bowing out to their more comely competitors.

By 1950 many high schools and universities had begun adapting baton twirling for use in their musical and physical education programs.

Today, wherever the smiling nimble-fingered majors or majorettes appear, they capture the audience and the cameras, still, movie and TV. American baton twirlers are the most famous in the world. They are living evidence of the poise, gracefulness, ambidexterity and self-confidence required to master an ageless art.

The Log of a Fighting Lady

Will an A-ship be named for Long Beach? Once before a proud warship bore the city's name—a frigate (above)—launched in 1943 and battle-tried in World War II.

By Fred Bolinger

NAVY SECRETARY Charles S. Thomas announced recently that "careful consideration" is being given the proposal to name an atomic-powered cruiser for Long Beach.

That turned back memories to the night—yes, night, it was wartime, if you remember!—of May 5, 1943, when the USS Long Beach, a frigate, was launched in the Wilmington yard of the Consolidated Steel Corp.

What became of that doughty ship, named for Long Beach, home port of the Pacific fleet?

Toughness must have been built into the frigate's steel plates for within a brief time after her shakedown cruise, she started to gather battle stars.

Manned by a Coast Guard crew of youngsters, the ship was rushed across the Pacific to join Adm. Halsey's famous 7th Fleet.

Sleek and fast, the frigate slugged at the Japs with her 3-inch and 50-caliber guns. She'd knife in near the shore and support LCI's as they rammed onto the terrible beaches of the South Pacific.

Her machine guns covered troops as they fought for their slender beachheads among the Admiralty Islands and in the Bismarck Archipelago.

A FIRST BATTLE star was won for those operations.

The frigate was in the spearhead of the surprise landing at Hollandia, in New Guinea, and won another battle star.

Came August 1944. The USS Long Beach really grappled with the foe.

She bombarded Soepiori and Biak Islands, in New Guinea.

Knifing within a few hundred yards of the beach, she fired her guns point-blank at the Japanese, entrenched in fortified caves.

DURING THE ATTACK, an Army reconnaissance party was put ashore. They re-embarked aboard the frigate as she covered them with her blazing guns. Mission accomplished.

In September 1944, the ship was an escort into Morotai, for a convoy towing heavy equipment to outfit a small naval base.

For fighting in the Philippines, at the Leyte landing operations, in November, she won her third battle star.

New Year's Day 1945, found the frigate homeward bound. She sailed to Boston, via the Canal Zone and was drydocked for overhaul.

RECONDITIONED and with new war paint, the frigate returned to the Pacific, arriving in Seattle, in April.

She proceeded on to the Aleutians and was turned over to the Russian Navy along with 100 other naval vessels.

Only July 21, the frigate reached Petropavlovsk, Siberia. The next month, the Soviet Union declared war on Japan.

With the Hammer and Sickle flying from her mainmast, she saw action in the coastal waters off Manchuria and Korea.

The Japanese surrendered September 2.

During the next four years, the frigate was lost behind the Iron Curtain.

QUITE SUDDENLY on Oct. 17, 1949, she was returned to the U. S. Navy at Yokosuka, Japan.

The heroic USS Long Beach appeared somewhat the worse for wear—decks were dirty, were in need of paint and polish. She went into drydock again to be reconditioned by the Navy that first had tested her mettle.

Then in November 1953, the frigate was loaned to the Japanese Navy.

In Costa Rica, the Oglers Get Ogled at La Retreta Time

THE PRETTIEST senoritas, the gayest oxcarts, the best coffee, the most orchids and the retreta — that's Costa Rica.

Ah, the retreta! It is something every member of the National Society of Girl Watchers should know about. It is more dignified but more effective than watching on windy street corners.

The ogler gets ogled in the retreta. Instead of an averted face and embarrassed blush as on windy corners, eye meets eye and boy meets girl in the retreta.

THERE ARE RULES for the delightful custom. It takes place three times weekly at Central Park in San Jose, the highland capital of Costa Rica served by Pan American World Airways.

Boys walk in circles around the park. Girls walk in the opposite direction. Their elders sit on the park's benches to insure decorum is maintained. And everybody watches to his heart's content.

ALL THIS OCCURS in a setting of great natural beauty. San Jose is a city of 90,000, built on the central plateau, a region about 3,700 feet high and ringed by mountains. Its altitude gives a temperate climate and blankets are frequently needed for sleeping comfort. Two of the mountains are dormant volcanoes.

Aside from its senoritas and volcanoes, Costa Rica has the most interesting oxcarts found in the Western Hemisphere. Their two wheels are made of 16 wooden wedges held together by an iron rim. Elaborate geometric designs are applied in bright colors, and the wheels have been compared with stained glass windows of cathedrals.

Orchids grow by the millions in Costa Rica. Bunches of orchids are sold like daisies on city squares, and as cheaply. Enough to decorate a room can be bought for 25 cents. The country's national flower is an orchid — the Guaria Morado (cattleya skinerii).

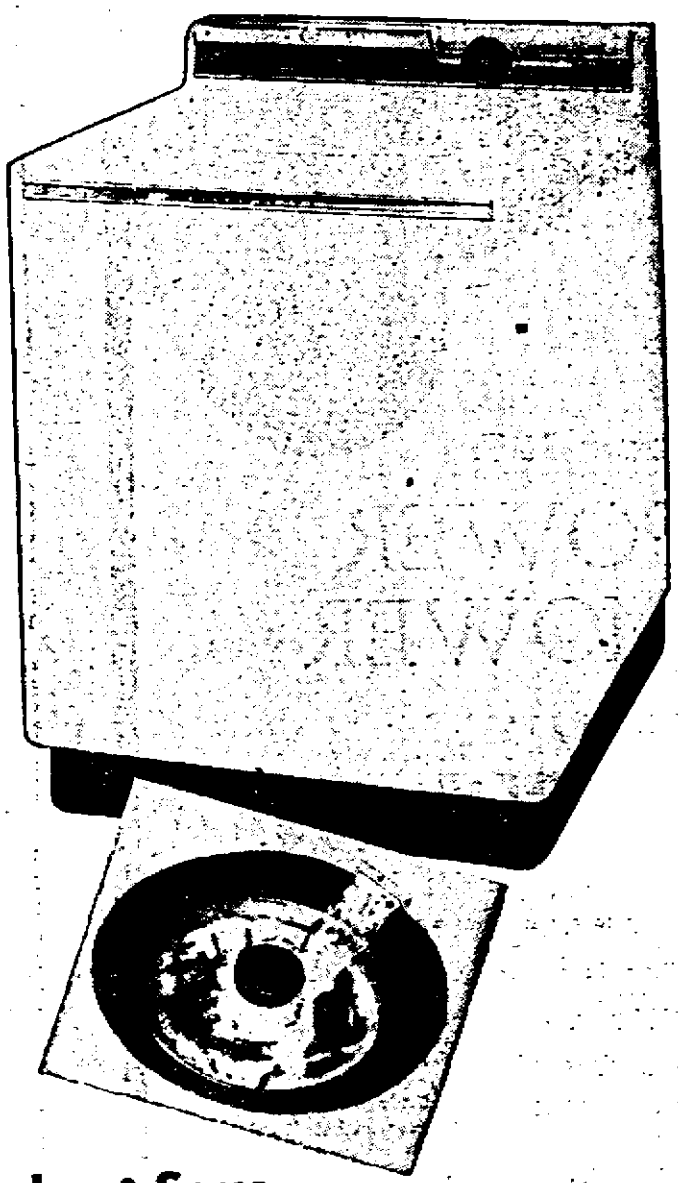

There are good hotels and the cities are clean, the water supply pure and sanitary facilities equal to those in the United States. Among San Jose's better hotels are the Gran Hotel Costa Rica, the Grand Hotel Europa and the Oriental, with rates averaging $5.50 to $8 single, $9 to $12.50 double without meals. Other good hotels are available, among them a ranch-type hostelry in a mountain coffee plantation.

California's Sage Grouse

E. J. Greenwalt Photo for U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

California sage grouse are doing a comeback after almost becoming extinct due to heavy hunting interest.

By Mark McMillin

WALK WESTWARD through the back country of Modoc County from the Nevada line to the west side of Lower Klamath Lake, or southward along the east side of the Sierra Nevada as far as Big Pine in Owens Valley, Inyo County, and you will surely scare up several flocks of sage grouse, appropriately dubbed the "Cock of the Plains," though its habitat ranges from an altitude of 3,500 to 12,000 feet.

The largest native upland game bird of California — and also, incidentally, the largest of the American grouse—it is more or less limited in habitat to the semi-arid sagebrush ranges of eastern California and therefore far removed from large population centers. For this reason, it is one of the least known of the game birds, both to the general public and also to the sportsmen of the state.

ONLY THE WILD turkey has a more lavish physique. Measuring from 2 to 2½ feet long, the male grouse weighs from 2 to 8 pounds, and the female from 3 to 5 pounds.

Both have similar plumage—a body of mottled black, grayish brown, gray and yellowish white and a throat of varied black and yellow. The female is chiefly distinguished from the male by her shorter tail. Also, the male has a line of air sacs on the side of his neck, which he inflates during courting season while strutting around in grand style to attract females. While sucking the air in and out of the sacs, he makes a noise very much like a leaking pump.

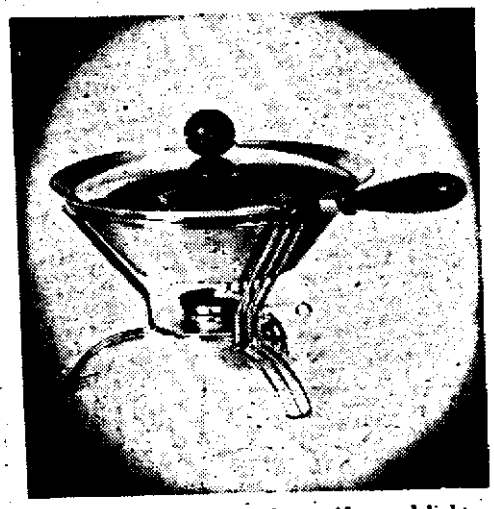

THEY PRODUCE ONLY one brood a year, and like other wildlife they follow a definitely established cycle. In the spring the eggs are laid, usually from 8 to 15, though often coyotes invade the nest and leave a much smaller number. The eggs are heavily colored, greenish gray or olive buff, dotted and spotted with dark brown. While nesting, the hen hides from the cock in a slight ground depression, which is usually canopied with sagebrush and which may or may not be lined with twigs and sage leaves.

The brood is hatched in April or May, and thereafter moves in a covey with the mother and remains under her protection until late autumn, when several small coveys will unite to form a pack. Only then do the males rejoin the flock, which is non-migratory and only mildly nomadic, preferring familiar terrain and waterholes. All winter they shun the more exposed flatlands, and retire to the shelter of heavily wooded valleys.

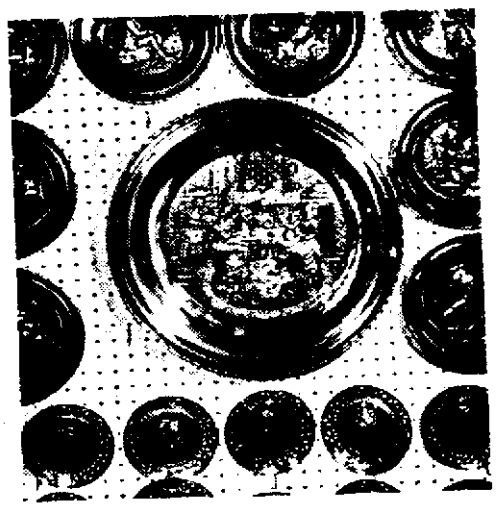

SAGE GROUSE FEED largely on sagebrush leaves and flowers, and to a much lesser

Gloryhole of the Tough Thirties

By Jo Hindman

MUCKERS loading ore buckets beneath its groaning timbers called the mine the "Gloryhole." The late William J. Rogers, prospector who discovered the golden heart of it on a manzanita-grown hillside, named the strike after his wife. Thus, the Big Susana came to life.

This was in the depression 1930s. A mining journal reported the Rogers discovery in Neenach Township and a gold rush started. Hundreds of persons swarmed into the western spur of Antelope Valley—prospectors, hard rock miners, card sharks, opportunists, muckers, speculators, tin horn gunmen, cooks, and the merely shiftless. Drawn from nearby mines of Mojave's Soledad mountain, from diggings elsewhere, and from points around the world. The prospectors grubbed for new strikes and found them.

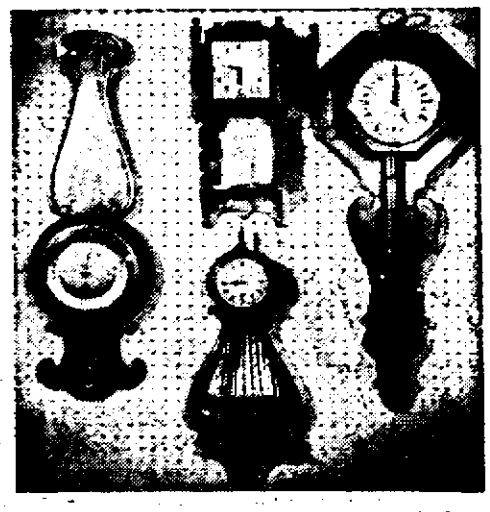

Millions of dollars in gold came from the fabulously rich Gloryhole mine, entry seen above as it is today.

Hard rock miners and the muckers asked for work and got it; likewise, the cooks. The shiftless got drunk.

ALL THE DOINGS stemmed from that precise moment when middle-aged Bill Rogers looked into his pan and saw gold. As the story goes, the gaunt, sunbrowned prospector, who even in wealth remained faithful to work clothes and a nondescript hat, told the curious, "I was trying to find water on the place."

"I had shoveled out a damp hole and sat looking out over Antelope Valley to see if it would fill. I noticed a whitish

When the family has had its fill of turkey and all that goes with the main Thanksgiving Day meal, an oldfashioned cranberry pie is a tempting topper.

FOOD

Turkey and All the Trimmings

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

THANKSGIVING DINNER—there is such hominess about cooking it.

Thanksgiving will be celebrated again next Thursday and, of course, the table will be piled high with the best of the season's food. Today the same traditional foods are found on the Thanksgiving table, but prepared in a different way.

To assure the real holiday spirit in your home, have the biggest, brownest turkey your budget affords. Homemakers may now buy frozen, tender, meaty birds, wrapped in glistening transparent coverings in many sizes to suit particular family needs. Remember when buying the turkey, count on at least ½ to ¾ of a pound of ready-to-roast weight per serving. Keep it frozen until ready to thaw, and then thaw according to the directions on the branded label. It may be kept in the refrigerator up to 24 hours until ready to stuff and roast. And just to make it easy for you, schedules for thawing and roasting may be found elsewhere on the page.

Old-Fashioned Cranberry Pie:

2 1-lb. cans whole cranberry sauce
½ cup raisins
3 tblsp. molasses
2 tblsp. cornstarch
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine cranberry sauce, raisins, molasses, cornstarch. Spoon into unbaked pastry shell. Cover with miniature turkeys cut from pie dough. Bake at 425 deg. for 30 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Cool. Serve with or without ice cream.

Turkey Roasting Schedule:

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Approximate Roasting Time for Stuffed Turkey (325 degrees F.)
8 to 10 pounds	3 to 3½ hours
11 to 13 pounds	4 to 4½ hours
14 to 16 pounds	4¾ to 5½ hours
17 to 19 pounds	6 to 7 hours
20 to 24 pounds	7½ to 8½ hours

Thawing Schedule:

Thawing Time Read-to-Cook Weight	Refrigerator 40 F.	Approximate Running Cold Water
4 to 12 pounds	1 to 2 days	4 to 6 hours
12 to 20 pounds	2 to 3 days	6 to 8 hours
20 to 24 pounds	3 to 4 days	8 to 12 hours

Southern Dressing

2 cups rice (uncooked)
2 cups finely chopped onion
2 cups finely chopped celery
1 cup minced bell pepper
Ground or chopped turkey giblets
2 teaspoons salt
5 cups stock or bouillon
Poultry seasoning as desired
2 well beaten eggs
1 cup chopped pecans
1 cup minced parsley.

Add onion, celery, bell pepper, giblets, and salt to stock and bring to a boil. (Five bouillon cubes may be dissolved in 5 cups boiling water.) Stir in rice; cover and cook over low heat for until liquid is absorbed. Remove from heat; fold in seasonings and eggs. Add pecans and parsley; combine well. Stuff turkey and bake.

Sassy Cranberry Horseradish

2 cups (½-lb.) fresh cranberries
2 small beets (or 1 large), skin removed
1 small orange (quartered and seeds removed
½ cup (5 oz. jar) horseradish
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Put cranberries, beets and orange through food chopper (fine blade). Add horseradish, sugar and nutmeg and mix thoroughly. Chill. Makes about 1 pint.

Kitchen Tip:

Baking powder thrown on a small fire will extinguish it.

Imagination Creates a Home

From the stairway of the Walter Crawford home, unusual design of a 28-foot living room sofa becomes apparent. Reflecting wall is a striking feature.

By Eileen Ball

A FEW YEARS AGO a two-story residence was built for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crawford at the corner of Redondo Ave. and Ocean Blvd. that caught the interest and pleased the fancy of passing motorists. The builders utilized Ojai fieldstone — vast amounts of it—to face the exterior up to the second story roofline.

Thousands of tourists and natives alike, driving along the ocean bluff, have had their imaginations captured by this outstanding house and their curiosity sparked with wonder as to what it must be like inside.

The Crawford home relies on an enormity of windows and the flattering effects of tropical planting to open up and soften the lines of the structure. Thus, it avoids—completely and happily—the ponderous "stockade" quality that so often goes with stone structure.

A SMALL GATE opens to a walkway bordered on the left by an abundance of heavy-foliaged tropicals that, in turn, are edged by a low wall of Ojai fieldstone.

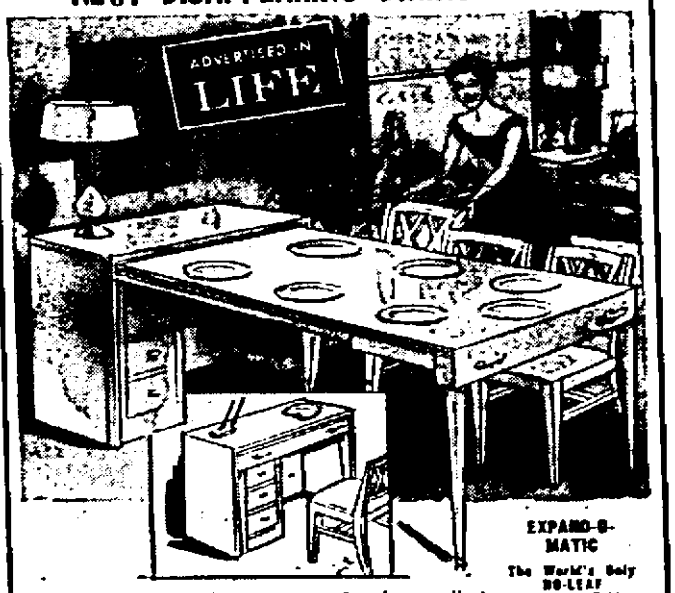

The front door opens, not to an entry hall per se, but into an alcove that is part of the living room. From the front door one sees the majestic sweep of a mahogany paneled staircase that is, without doubt, the most outstanding feature of the interior. The staircase spirals up in a gentle curve, with a solid bannister-height panel of Philippine mahogany that follows the contour of the stairs like a fluid, honey-colored ribbon. Fixed panels of fluted, obscure glass have been set into the wall as it curves with the staircase, flooding the steps with highly effective light patterns.

To the left lies the living room, a large and tastefully furnished area. Through an open arch one gets a glimpse of the dining room which, by means of its furniture and its decor, is an uninterrupted reflection of the living room. Immediately one is impressed with a simple sort of elegance. Greatly responsible for a feeling of serenity is a soft, completely neutral monochromatic background. The carpet is of wool in a soft facepowder color that is just a blush off beige. Of the same tone are the painted plaster walls.

THERE HAS BEEN no attempt to "startle" or spark the room through the use of vibrant color splashes. Mrs. Crawford likes colors in the purple to lilac range — she wears them well and likes to live with them. This, coupled with the fact that these colors are also pleasing to her husband and sons, prompted the choice of an unusual grape-colored fabric interwoven with small block motifs in metallic gold for the upholstery.

View is the feature of the Crawfords' upstairs family room, which is furnished in rugged leather appointments. Room is well-fitted as a fun area.

stery of a gigantic 28-foot sofa that was designed with three attractions in mind: conversation, a fireside and a view. These considerations dictated the ultimate form of the button-back sofa that curves around a huge cocktail table in an intimate conversational arrangement, that extends down to the fireplace and then with a back-to-back sort of arrangement—doubles around to face the front view window.

A fireplace faced with black-and-gold veined Italian marble is set into a wall of plate mirror that serves to reflect and seemingly magnify the size of the living room.

THE COCKTAIL TABLE and occasional tables throughout the room were custom-finished in a mar-proof baked lacquer that is impregnated with gold leaf. The soft gold luster of the tables has the admirable quality of being both durable and elegant at once. A perfect contribution to this scheme are candy dishes and smoking accessories in exactly matching, grape-colored ceramic edged with gold. Lamps with ceramic bases of dull gold are topped with rose-pink silk shades that give a most flattering blush-toned light.

The dining room is separate from the living room. Its ceiling-high, open arch is flanked on either side with stationary panels of fluted, obscure glass. The dining set was custom made, as were the living room tables, and is finished with the same baked gold lacquer. The upholstered dining chairs are covered in ashes of roses upholstery.

One wall of the dining room is composed entirely of glass with a pair of glass doors that open to a small and completely secluded courtyard defined by a wall of fieldstone and planted with tropicals. They grow against the glass almost as if they were inside the room. This illusion is further heightened with application to the wall opposite of a ceiling-high philodendron motif.

THE KITCHEN is large and is planned for efficiency and ease in its share of the housework. The color scheme is sunny yellow and apple red.

The downstairs den is dramatic with its stark black and white decor. Hand-blocked Egyptian print in black and white was used for the boxed day bed spreads and for the identically matched wallpaper. Geometric plastic-topped tables in black and white are perfect accessories for this room.

The bath is sage green and yellow. Its stall shower is handy for bathers who can come in through the service area, the back door and down a short hallway to the bath. Back-to-back with the downstairs bath is a very attractive guest powder room. Copiously mirrored, it features a color scheme of black and turquoise that has been carried out in fixtures, accessories and French wallpaper. A dressing table draped in gold satin adds appropriate elegance.

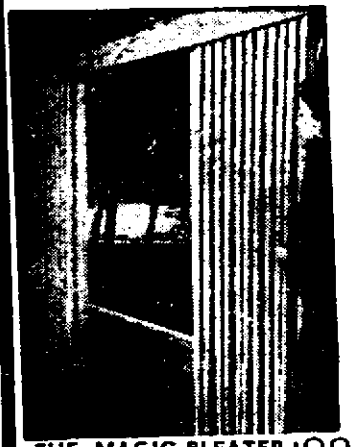

At the head of the stairs is a large open area designated as the family room. It features tremendous floor-to-ceiling

Ojai fieldstone, copiously used, gives a dramatic accent to exterior. Plantings soften stone's austerity.

FLIGHT TO EL MORRO

THIS PANAMANIAN CITY is a dirty but entirely fascinating hodge-podge of historic buildings, shops, cabarets and slums.

The plane took off at 10:13 a.m. Thursday, bound for the high spot of the trip, fabulous San Juan, Puerto Rico. Fabulous is an overworked word, but it doesn't seem so when applied to Puerto Rico.

The plane approached from the west side of the island and flew along the northern coast to San Juan. Rain clouds scudded across the plane, but they could not dim the lush beauty of this Caribbean paradise.

THE CLOUDS CLOSED IN completely about the plane as it made the approach for the landing at Isla Grande Airport. At about 1,500 feet, the craft hurtled out of the clouds and the newcomers aboard were startled to see they were practically in the middle of San Juan.

The walled city known today as "Old San Juan" is situated on a tiny islet just across San Antonio Channel from the airport and adjacent Navy Base on the main island.

The business section of Old San Juan and most points of interest are jammed into a small area about six blocks square. Narrow streets, built centuries ago, provide a fascinating atmosphere but make automobile traffic difficult. Visitors make better progress on foot.

San Juan, capital of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, is one of the oldest cities in the Western Hemisphere. Old San Juan was settled in 1523 after being moved from the original site across the bay in Caparra where it was founded in 1508.

THE SUBURB of Santurce, just across the channel. In the past two decades grew to meet the town of Rio Piedras, 7½ miles away. San Juan Incorporated Rio Piedras and the outlying suburbs in 1952.

Modern San Juan is the center of what the Puerto Ricans call "a testing ground to see if an underdeveloped country can raise its standard of living in terms of democracy, contrary to communist claims."

In a dramatic bid, the commonwealth government has offered a completely tax-free period of 10 years to U. S. manufacturers who set up new plants in Puerto Rico.

This, a labor reservoir of 650,000 men and women who have been given training in the commonwealth's vocational schools and a wonderful climate, have resulted in the establishment of 400 new plants there.

THE VISITORS wound up their stay in San Juan with a tour Friday morning of El Morro, the fortress which guarded the city for centuries.

The fortress was started in 1539 and completed in 1591. It was unsuccessfully attacked by Sir Francis Drake in 1595 and taken in 1598 by the Earl of Cumberland. However, he later had to abandon Puerto Rico when his troops contracted dysentery. It successfully withstood all further attacks.

One of the strangest golf courses in the world is situated within the walls of the old fort. Two holes actually are played within the filled-in moat of the fortification. On another, the player shoots out of the moat over a 30-foot wall. The greens are of packed sand. A guide explained that if bent grass were used, the course tropical grass of the fairways soon would overrun the greens.

AFTER THE BEAUTIES of Puerto Rico the return flight to Los Alamitos was dull. The party left San Juan at 1:12 p.m. Friday and arrived at Dallas at 10:45 a.m., then took off at 8:15 a.m. Saturday and landed home at 12:54 p.m.

The squadron members had covered more than 7,000 miles and had gained valuable training which will be of untold benefit to the nation in the event of national emergency.

plate glass windows that make a real "command performance" of the magnificent ocean view. for cozier atmosphere, draperies of burnt orange pull across the windows, adding brilliance to the room furnished with leather upholstered furniture in tones of parchment and terra cotta. A piano, a pool table and a series of built-in compartments for hi-fi, records and books contribute to the room's "fun" qualities.

THE TWO CRAWFORD sons have rooms that have sufficient wardrobe storage to accommodate clothing, hobby and sports equipment. Each room has a built-in desk across windows that feature beautiful views.

The master bedroom is a large room that achieves an elegant richness with its grape and mulberry color scheme, its lavish use of slipper satin for dressing tables, bedspread and ornately styled curved headboard. Pale pink boucle glass curtains cover huge windows with a gossamer blush.

SOUTHLAND'S SHORT SHORT STORY

The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha

By Owen Rhodes

Illustrated by Diane Demack

PARAPLEGICS were already out in force taking the Southern California sun when Chaplain Hoag walked across the grounds of Veterans Hospital. Some were in wheelchairs. Others, looking for all the world like fabled centaurs, rode the low-slung gurneys.

"Hey, parson!" a voice called as he turned in at Wing 17. It was Boxcar Smith, idling his wheelchair along the foot of the ramp. "You goin' in to see Johnny Hawkins?"

"He is very ill," the chaplain replied.

BOXCAR RELAXED in his wheelchair. "Saturday night I took Johnny out on the town. In my Cad. When we got back it was raining and he wanted to walk in—"

"Why, he is a quadriplegic," the chaplain said. "He can't even—"

"—Can't even twiddle his toes," Boxcar said with a fine air of contempt, wiggling his own toes to show how it was done. "He got wet and caught cold."

The chaplain started to edge away. Then, "They said something over the phone about a brass box—"

"The one Johnny keeps all those love letters in." Boxcar inched his wheelchair forward confidentially. "The boys won't sleep in the ward with it any more. Parson, something jumps around in that box!"

THE CHAPLAIN stiffened. "Nonsense, Boxcar! Your own religious teaching should tell you so."

Boxcar winked mysteriously. "You're a good Joe, parson. Let me give you a tip. Don't lend Johnny your scarf pin!"

Chaplain Hoag was still fiddling with his black onyx pin when he entered Nurse Vestry's small office. She lifted a metal casket from a shelf and slammed it onto the corner of her desk.

"You know what?" she demanded. "You're to read him his five hundred love letters. Take this thing out of here and don't bring it back."

CHAPLAIN HOAG picked up the brass box and held it to the morning light. It was ornate and very old and carried a nameless air of authenticity. Molded on the cover was a sleek, smiling Buddha, its tapered hands pressed against its sides. A break in the stylized perfection, caught his eye. The right index finger was missing.

"Tai-Nam Ha!" he exclaimed. "The Healing Buddha!"

"I don't care what it is," the nurse began. "I—"

The chaplain coughed delicately. "I am somewhat of an authority on these things, Miss Vestry. This casket has been missing for hundreds of years. It is worth a king's ransom!"

"I wouldn't have it around for all the gold in Fort Knox," Miss Vestry stormed. "There's something alive inside!"

THE CHAPLAIN tucked the box under his arm and sidled toward the door of the private room. "Johnny—how long?" he asked.

"Better see him while you can." The nurse dropped into her chair and, surprisingly, began to cry. "This is just not my day," she confessed. "That horrid box. And a quadriplegic with five hundred love letters. . . ."

Johnny Hawkins lay on the tilted hospital bed. His face was thin and flushed, his fair hair combed back from his forehead. A sly smile was etched about his lips. He was very young. The chaplain touched one of the slender, unresponsive hands.

"It's Chaplain Hoag, Johnny," he said gently.

JOHNNY CHUCKLED. "Played a big joke on everybody. Got a scarf pin, chaplain?"

The other's hand flew protectively to his onyx pin.

"Need it to open the box," Johnny grinned. "Just fits the hole in the finger stub."

"Do you know the story of this box?" the chaplain asked. "How the Buddha stood on a cliff near Seoul? How, to the afflicted who visited it at midnight, it held out a hand to touch and heal? How—"

JOHNNY LAUGHED. "—How a chiselin' thief cut off the Buddha's finger and carried it away in the box. Tryin' to practice medicine without a license. How the idol shook up the land and threw itself into the sea—"

"The Finger is supposed to heal—" the chaplain began.

"Sure it heals," Johnny chuckled. "Made to heal. Reg'lar Chinaman's trick. Still mad. It heals for an hour, then blooey! Blow's everything sky high!"

"It's worth a fortune, Johnny. Did you—"

"Steal it?" Johnny grinned. "Old geezer at the temple gave it to me. Scared. Thought it started the Korean War. Open the box, chaplain!"

THE CHAPLAIN shifted the box from hand to hand. "You shouldn't have put your letters in here, Johnny," he temporized.

There was a gay raillery in Johnny's voice. "You afraid somethin' will crawl out and bite you, chaplain?"

The chaplain removed his pin and attacked the box with grim determination. The lock yielded with a tiny snick of sound. Ex-

And because Mary wanted it that way . . . he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Reagan in marriage.

outcropping and decomposed quartz nearby, I mused on the possibilities of the quartz carrying gold. I got my mortar and pan from the car. I pounded up some rock, put it in the pan, dipped from the new water hole and began panning. I finished, and there was a complete circle of free gold!"

That was on Monday, New Year's Day, 1934, and Rogers had owned the property but 13 days.

GLORYHOLE was reamed out of the area's typically firm, decomposed granite into a large room-sized cavern by the square-set, slot-and-pillar type of mining that left chunky pillars of the conglomerate standing to support the cavern ceiling. Stout shorings were set to brace the gopherholing as the fabulously rich gold pocket began raying underground. In all directions Gloryhole was explored, picks and shovels knocked down gold or scooped it up.

For untold years, storekeepers in desert outposts had been accepting gold nuggets presented by the Indians in trade for their simple needs. George Bowers' discovery in 1894 near the present town of Mojave brought mining to the area; in 1931, the Gloryhole pitched gold fever on the desert to a new high.

The tough-muscled, hard-fisted Neenach mining population was centered in a hootin', tar-paper and tent "boom town" that mushroomed in Rivera Canyon over the ridge from Gloryhole. Beer sudsed night and day within the sprawling frame of the "Oasis," the eating house and bar that trembled from the tread of boots walking up and down. Slot machines and a battered piano tinkled crazily.

THE DRINKING, carousing, shootings, romancing, thievery and tomfoolery were punctuated intermittently by the boom and shudder of dynamiting as Gloryhole's three shifts worked around the clock. Fuses were lighted after each shift checked out, charges exploded and air pumps worked to clear the mine interior before the fresh manpower entered.

In spite of inevitable accidents, Gloryhole claimed no human life, although Fritz Mollinet, a stalwart mucker, came close to losing his at one of the mine's lower levels. Water and mud from a pocket overhead became tapped accidentally. Tons of mud forced the chute gate, poured down in a stifling flood. The ore car that Fritz was using filled, overflowed, and disappeared under the rising tide of mud.

Above in the shaft, Fritz's helper was frantically trying to replace the gate. "Go on—leave!" Fritz shouted, feeling sticky mud trapping him at armpit level.

The mucker grimly remained, straining, fighting and pushing at the crude planking. The timber groaned into place. The mud stopped rising, just inches short of snuffing out Mollinet's life. By then, he was buried to his chin.

THE NEENACH mining boom continued through 1935 and 1936, lesser mines producing along with Gloryhole. Then the richness petered out. Poorer mines found operations unprofitable and closed. Miners folded their tents and the shanty town vanished from the canyon. Bill Rogers moved to Bakersfield; Gloryhole changed hands, settled down to commercial operations of a less colorful sort. A miner and his family set up housekeeping in the ghost town's former "Oasis."

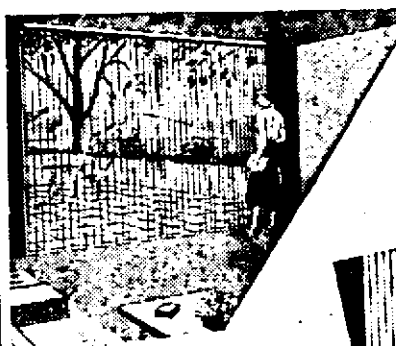

During the two decades following, the ball mill situated a few yards down-canyon from Gloryhole's entrance accepted the mine's later day ore, pulverizing, stirring it into the acid bath diluted by water flowing from the original springs that led Bill Rogers to discover the precious mineral. Tailing piles have inched higher and higher with the years until today, the conical mounds of light colored rock stand almost higher than the looming canyon walls.

At length, even Gloryhole's golden shafts were scraped to poorness. The mine was shut down in the fall of 1955. Abandoned pathways, twisted tracks, rusting ore cars and a padlocked gate guard the silent labyrinth hidden below.

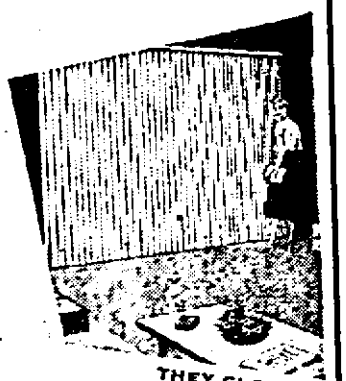

The glory is gone from the Gloryhole.

THE FINGER OF TAI-NAM HA

cept for a folded rectangle of paper the box appeared empty.

"Fooled everybody," Johnny giggled. "No love letters. Never had a girl, except— Read the paper. It'll slay you!"

CHAPLAIN HOAG spread out the deeply creased document. It was an unexecuted license for Johnny Hawkins and one Mary Reagan to wed.

"Joke was on us," Johnny said. "Shipped out too fast to get married. This happened to me and I pulled a hot one on Mary. Faked a wire—missing in action! Bet you can't guess what else is in the box."

The chaplain peeped in with some foreboding. There it was! A slender, gleaming length of bronze lying recessed in the bottom of the box. The Finger of Tai-Nam Ha! He closed the casket and heard with relief the snap of the hidden lock. He stood up.

"I MUST GO NOW," he said. "I will be back soon."

"Sure!" Johnny grinned. "Come any time. Come at midnight. Put the Finger on me and watch the fun."

"Johnny, that's not amusing!"

Of a sudden the boy's face was a tragic mask. "You think bein' just a brain, a voice and a digestive tract is funny, chaplain? I want to live that hour!" Then the passion drained away and he smiled again. "Just thought of somethin', Mary's still waiting. I've checked. Joke's too good to keep. Go tell her not to wait any longer."

JOHNNY'S EYES closed and he seemed to sleep. Then his lips moved and the chaplain bent over him to listen. He heard him say, "—just to wiggle my toes like Boxcar Smith can do—"

Chaplain Hoag drove through the hospital gate a little later and did not return until eleven o'clock that night. There rode in with him a slender, plain girl whom he addressed as Mary Reagan.

And because Mary wanted it that way, at a quarter to twelve he joined Johnny Hawkins and Mary Reagan in marriage, with Boxcar Smith and a hastily summoned Miss Vestry as witnesses. And just before he left the two alone, in answer to Johnny's pleading eyes and an urge he could not define, he placed his onyx pin on the night stand beside the brass box.

A local temblor struck Wing 17 at precisely one a.m. Gas lines under the structure broke in several places and in seconds the whole building was ablaze. Heads-up work cleared the wards with just instants to spare.

Chaplain Hoag hurried up, spied Boxcar Smith in the forefront of the gathering crowd.

"All out, Boxcar?" he asked.

"Johnny's still in there, parson," Boxcar said.

"Look!" It was Nurse Vestry cry! he said, pointing toward the blazing structure.

JUST INSIDE A FLAME-enshrouded window stood Johnny, a blanketed form in his arms. Unhurriedly, he shifted its weight to his left arm and raised the sash. He lifted a foot and kicked out the screen and lowered the burden gently over the sill.

"Johnny! Johnny!" the chaplain shouted.

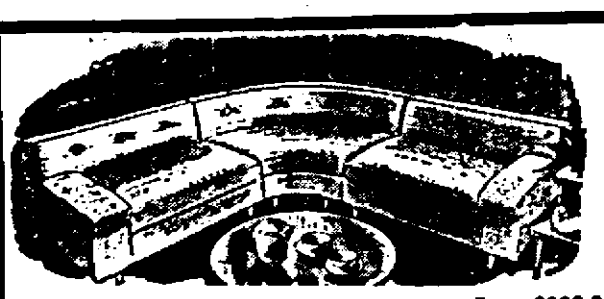

Johnny heard him. He grinned and brought up his hand in the GI's gloating symbol. Then the roof caved in over his head.

BACK FROM THE searing heat, they unwrapped the blanketed figure. Mary was unharmed. The brass box lay in a crook of her arm.

"Funny thing," Boxcar Smith said. "Not another building damaged. What you think happened, parson?"

The lowering flames of Wing 17 reflected the thoughts back of Chaplain Hoag's eyes. He removed his hat.

"Why, an act of God, Boxcar!" he said.

CAMERA ANGLES

Be Thankful There Are Cameras

By the Shutterbug

THANKSGIVING is one of our most beloved holidays . . . It is a time for looking back, for remembering and giving thanks. It is a time when families are close together . . . when reminiscences are the order of the day's conversation.

It's a day for looking back through the family album, for viewing of slides and movies that bring pleasant memories of other days.

IT IS ALSO a day of taking pictures, for creating the snapshots that will come into their own on future days of family reunion, for adding today's pleasures to the record.

Flash photography makes such indoor picture taking very easy, when you're taking still pictures. And the bar lights now available for movie cameras make the type of shooting equally simple. With these kinds of artificial light available, you can take the picture wherever it is happening.

You can take a pre-dinner look into the kitchen, for a close-up of mother and grandmother testing the doneness of the big bird or swirling the decorative touches of whipped cream atop the spicy pumpkin pies.

YOU CAN LOOK into the living room where other members of the family are talking together in small groups. The flash attachment on your camera allows you to carry the light source right with you, so you can picture these people in the natural groups which they formed about a mutually interesting topic of conversation.

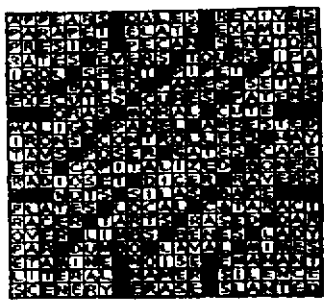

You can then move into the dining room with your camera and light when the anticipated

In the Manner of the Holy Land

Glimpsed through this archway is part of the Biblical garden of St. Luke's Church. The olive tree in center is linked closely to Holy Land and history of mankind.

Ivy of this kind was used in Holy Land rites, festivals. Markers link present plants to Biblical times.

By Walter Finch

CITYWIDE attention is being directed toward the courtyard garden of St. Luke's Episcopal Church because of the unusual theme employed in the landscaping.

Plants for the sheltered garden of the church have been restricted to those mentioned in the Bible and accredited by botanists to have been growing in the Holy Land during or before the life of Christ. Funds for the trees and shrubs were donated by members of the church.

THE PLAN, as above described, sounds deceptively simple. However, Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrill, originator of the Biblical garden, has done an unbelievable amount of research on the subject which offers plenty of scope for debate. One factor that tends to complicate the issue is that many plants referred to in the Bible bear names that have been replaced by newer nomenclature. For example, the "gourd" mentioned in the Book of Job is what we know as the castorbean; the green bay tree referred to by David is known to us as the laurel.

To further confuse the issue, the Holy Land that once was verdant and productive is, today, virtually a barren wasteland. Historians blame the barrenness of Palestine, Syria and Transjordania on two factors: first, the cutting down of natural timbers and leaving exposed land to be eroded and swept away; second, neglect of the ancient terrace-type cultivation. These countries stand today as grim testimony of some of the world's most devastating soil erosion.

Unaware of the change that has evolved since the 7th century, some artists are given to portraying Christ walking in deserts amidst cactus which botanists feel sure was not present in the Holy Land during his life.

OF ADDED INTEREST is the fact that a garden to the Palestinians and Syrians meant, literally, a grove of trees (usually olives) surrounded by walls of stone or briars. The latter was to discourage marauders both animal and human. In the center of these gardens was a mound of earth or rock that afforded the owner of the garden a view of the surrounding—and threatening—countryside.

This garden bears little resemblance to the riotously-colored, heady-smelling rose arbor-pansy bed sort of thing we associate with the name today. Shrubs and trees were cultivated in the Holy Land for purely practical purposes--food, fuel, building material, fodder, medicants and for drink. The business of survival was such a big enough job that there was no time left for the cultivation of prettiness for any save the richest men.

And so the garden at St. Luke's Church may never be known for lush prettiness. But for historical correctness and dignity it is distinctive.

The courtyard of this English-style church is surrounded on three sides by the parish house, the guild hall and the church itself. Across the front of the garden is the covered ambulatory connecting the parish hall with the church.

BEYOND THE OPEN arches of the walkway lies the garden. The enormous and handsome olive tree that spreads its sheltering branches over the southeast corner of the courtyard was transplanted to this site two years ago. A hedge of myrtle borders the garden across the east side, screening the street within the open walkway.

A margin of color and fragrance is offered by a bed of narcissus and tulips that grow in front of the myrtle hedge. Both flowers were referred to as "roses" in the Bible. Covering the beds bordering the north and south sides of the garden is glossy ivy that is referred to by that name in the Bible. Growing in the north section, which avoids the hot afternoon sun, are the acacia tree, almond tree and the fir. The latter specimen was actually brought here recently from the Holy Land. Brought to the garden at the same time was a small pine tree that, like the olive, grows within the center plot.

The walkway leads past a mass of other incidental plants and shrubs that have been identified by small metal markers as to name and to the section of the Bible wherein they are mentioned.

ACROSS THE BACK of the garden is a boxwood hedge, known Biblically as the "box". In front of the hedge grow the lilies. The anemone was known as the lily of the field, the hyacinth as the lily of the valley, the Madonna lily as the Easter lily and the yellow iris as the lily of the stream. These latter two are impractical to grow in the garden and so are merely set out in pots during specific times of the year.

Also growing in this section are herbs which were purchased by money donated by children of the church school. Growing side by side with the fragrant and lovely hyacinth is garlic, onion, mustard, coriander, mint, endive and rue.

On the south side of the garden is a shaded plot that features an old and rustic bench that invites visitors to stop and meditate. The bench is sheltered by a carob tree on the right, a fig tree on the left and is banked in back by willowy bulrushes that wave their feathery foliage in the breeze.

Pleasure Tour of West--1843

By Katharine B. Moore

IT'S A LONG WAY from Perthshire, Scotland, and the 19th century to Southern California and 1956! A Henry Inman portrait of Sir William Drummond Stewart has traveled that distance, to be a part of the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Porter of Santa Ana. To this couple—formerly of Kansis City, Mo., Taos, N. M.—western history has been a pastime and a supplementary career.

Mrs. Porter (Mae Reed Porter), who collaborated with Bernard de Voto in "Across the Wide Missouri" (Houghton Mifflin), found this portrait under unusual circumstances while doing research in New York. It is one of their many priceless mementoes of the dashing, high-tempered Scotch playboy of well over a century ago. In America, Sir William is chiefly known as the organizer of probably the first conducted pleasure tour to the West—in 1843—after his preliminary treks in 1833 and 1837.

HIS RIGHT-HAND man was Col. William Sublette, hunter, fur trader and explorer. The colonel, an enthusiastic guide, was an associate of such famous mountain men as Joseph Reddeford Walker, discoverer of Yosemite, and Walker's Pass, in the vicinity of Bakersfield.

It is not unusual for present-day sportsmen to travel 2,200 miles to fish in the Pacific or hunt in the High Sierra. In 1843 such a trip was hazardous. Sir William had no air lines or vista dome trains by which to route his clients, but his organization methods were strictly modern. Preparatory publicity consisted of a personal trip to New Orleans, and one to St. Louis by Sublette, to enlist "tourists." The nobleman's previous years in the West made him an ardent advance agent. For an expedition in 1837 he had employed a talented young Baltimore artist — Alfred Jacob Miller — to record the adventure in pictures. As it was not until 1838 that Louis Daguerre invented photography, Miller's tools were water colors, brushes, paper, and a background of European art technique. Ninety-six of his original water color sketches bearing penciled notations are among the treasures of Mr. and Mrs. Porter. Through lectures, illustrated with colored slides made from these paintings, Mrs. Porter has stimulated interest in this once almost forgotten craftsman. A group of the sketches, many perfectly reproduced in color, illustrate "Across the Wide Missouri."

MRS. CLYDE PORTER
Collector of Americana

THE SIR WILLIAM-Sublette guided tour took place in an era of excitement and restlessness. In Southern California the fabulous Yankee Dons, Abel Stearns and Juan Temple, were making plans for fandangos, barbecues, bull fights and horse races on their newly acquired ranchos where Long Beach now carries out its industrial and recreational programs. In Westport and Independence — the east-west links—serious minded emigrants were preparing to launch forth to populate the Oregon country. They looked on in amazement at the elaborate equipment of Sir William's gay crowd.

In May his party of 93 started. It included health seekers, doctors, lawyers, botanists and (according to Sublette's journal) "bug ketchers," besides a large crew of hired men. Their goal was the Scotchman's favorite lake in the Wind River Mountains, just east of the Continental Divide. There they fished from collapsible India-rubber boats. They had on their menus canned delicacies, imported cheeses, and wines. Like many a modern vacationer they thrilled to the scenery of the Grand Tetons. With Joe Fourier and Antoine Clement to lead them, they hunted buffalo. The trails over which echoed the voices and rifle shots of this spirited, heterogeneous cavalcade were new and lonely ones. It was not until six years later that searchers for Sutter's gold streamed across and beyond them.

SIR WILLIAM'S wilderness party was his last fling in America. Managing his ancestral estate, he dreamed of the freedom of the plains. On the walls of Murthly Castle were dramatic reminders of the new world—oil paintings done by Alfred Miller from the water color sketches of 1837.

In a philosophical mood, Mrs. Porter looked at the Inman portrait of a regal and formal Sir William above the mantel in her living room.

"I like to think that Sir William is very happy to be back in America—and the West," she said.

The Porters' home on secluded Tropic Lane is a reflection of true art connoisseurs. Their hobby of researching has yielded many unforgettable experiences, as well as tangible souvenirs. Among them is an exquisite miniature of Lt. George Frederick Ruxton, a contemporary of Sir William, gained while delving for facts in England. These energetic historians have co-authored "Ruxton of the Rockies" and have re-issued Ruxton's own book, "Life in the Far West"—both through the University of Oklahoma Press.

"YOU MIGHT SAY Ruxton was a world-traveler," said Porter, as he displayed some formidable appearing horns and other trophies of the daring man's African and Canadian exploits. "And we also have his medals won during the Carlist Wars in Spain in 1937."

The latest achievement of this Western Americana team is a compilation of the reactions of Matthew Field, the ex-actor who "covered" Sir William's 1843 tour for the New Orleans Picayune. This will be released in January 1957 by the University of Oklahoma Press.

Strange spectacle—for 1843—was the conducted tour of the West led by Sir William Drummond Stewart (above).

HOW BIG IS YOUR THANKSGIVING TABLE?

the bumps had turned into blessings!

The second exercise is just pure fun. It is the expression of our gratitude to others. When grateful thoughts come to us about a person during these days let us speak them. It will not only bring them great joy, but will encourage them to release more of this same quality for which we were originally grateful.

WE ARE SOMETIMES slower with gratitude to members of our own family than we mean to be. Al Vermeer's delightful little cartoon character "Priscilla's Pop," appearing daily in the Independent, Press Telegram, expresses the true spirit of family thanksgiving when, after her "pop has granted some girlish desire, she ecstatically exclaims: "Gee, I'm glad we married him!" Pop's chest swells a little bigger, and we can almost feel the love grow between them everytime there is an occasion for a hearty thank-you.

One local family has put gratitude into their Thanksgiving celebration by annually writing letters to two or three people who have meant a great deal to them throughout the year.

THE THIRD EXERCISE in gratitude is its tangible expression through gifts and service. Mrs. A. V. Jacoubowsky, dynamic Long Beach worker for the U.N., once quoted a relief worker in a foreign country who was shocked at what he saw and wrote: "I ask myself this noontime how is it I was the one chosen to eat this food and my neighbor to starve? I do not know nor shall I ever know. But this I do know. It must be paid for by humility and service which springs from a sense of responsibility or else this world makes little sense." Whether it be a basket of food to a local needy family, a CARE package for a neighbor overseas, or an invitation to dinner for the lonely person down the street, our own Thanksgiving feast will taste better for our act of sharing.

California's Sage Grouse

degree on clover, rush, snowberry, prickly lettuce, wooly sunflower, dandelion and rabbitbrush. They also eat ants, grasshoppers, moths and butterflies as well as some seeds. When near wheat fields, they eat the grain, perhaps because it is so easily available.

The grouse of California are undoubtedly the descendants of the great flocks whose original range extended over much of the western states as far east as Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, and northward to southwestern Canada — the region known as the "sagebrush country." The birds were first protected in California in 1901, when a closed season was enacted, making it unlawful to possess them between Feb. 1 and Oct. 1. The same law prohibited the sale of wild sage grouse, and also prohibited the shipment of more than 25 birds in one day by one person. But these restrictions were still too liberal, and in 1903 the closed season extended to the period from Feb. 15 to Sept. 1.

THE OPEN SEASON on grouse was still further reduced from 1903 to 1918, yet by 1921 the birds were virtually extinct in several counties, notably Modoc and Inyo. In that year, grouse shooting was prohibited throughout the state. In 1925, all counties were again opened for grouse shooting from Aug. 1 to 15. In 1928, the State Legislature set aside a game refuge in Lassen County as a sage grouse and antelope refuge, and relaxed the hunting regulations. Soon, however, grouse were facing extinction, and a closed season was enforced from 1941 to 1950 throughout the state.

In 1950 and 1951, the season was opened in Mono County, but only for two days, Sept. 1 and 2, and with a two-bird season bag limit. In 1952, a one-day season, Sept. 1, was opened with a three-bird bag limit in Modoc and Lassen Counties.

CHECKING STATIONS set up during the 1950, 1951 and 1952 season revealed that hunting pressure is increasing and that fewer hunters are successful in bagging the grouse. For the year 1953, therefore, grouse hunting was permitted in Modoc and Lassen Counties for two days—Sept. 3 and 4—with a bag and possession limit of two birds per season.

A New Adam and a New Eve

IS THE BIBLE accurate in its account of the creation of the world? Did Biblical characters such as Adam and Eve, and Noah, actually exist? Did David really slay the giant, Goliath?

Greatly expanded, the most-read and best-loved stories to come from the lips of mankind for thousands of years about these figures from the mists of ancient times — are reverently retold by Louis Ginzberg, the noted Talmudic scholar, in "Legends of the Bible" (Simon and Schuster, $5). In what may well become the most significant religious work of the decade, Mr Ginzberg gives new dimensional values to the oldest and most renowned people in all literature and brings fresh and vibrant appreciation of the Scriptures.

For, instead of leaving fragments of pictures of these legendary figures as we have known them, Mr. Ginzberg calls upon all reliable sources extant to piece together the complete stories of their lives. The result is that Adam and Eve, and Noah, and others emerge as if a veil were lifted from the time they walked the paths of the earth.

Clearing the way for the reader, Schalom Spiegel, another scholar of Jewish history, explains in the introduction that "legend may be taken to imply whatever will come to be read by successive ages into an event or record of the past; the ever-new and ever-changing rereading of old sources by new generations of man. Great events and great books have a posthumous story of their own. Each following period pours its inner self into the patient and pliant texts of old."

Of the legends in the Bible, Spiegel writes: "Devout centuries wove endless fantasies around the characters and occurrences depicted in the holy Writ. Both folk imagination and scholar's wit coaxed and forced from its pages a multitude of tales and a host of fancies unforeseen and unsuspected by the writers of the Bible. . . . Its stories, even before they were written down, had moved the minds and hearts of men for centuries."

Of how these stories came to be included in the Bible, Mr. Spiegel continues: "Even when the legends were assembled in special books, the principle of their arrangement was purely mechanical: they were strung to the passages of Scripture which they employed or elaborated. This method gave them the false appearance of being a running commentary of sections or selections of the Writ . . . "

But believers will find Mr. Ginzberg's mountainous effort tremendously rewarding.— R.J.B.

She had forgotten her alphas and betas, sure, but Emily Kimbrough had reasons of her very own to visit Greece. So visit Greece she did, and also the Aegeans, and such en route spots as Paris and London. The excursion, with its delights, surprises, mishaps and curiosities, seemed to call for another of her inimitable books, so she put it all down in "Water, Water Everywhere" (Harper, $3.75). The result, naturally, is a revealing and witty voyage for the armchair traveler; in fact, he never had it so good.

DR. ROY A. BURKHART, now director of the National Council of Community Churches, shows the way to attainment of four vital freedoms for healthier and happy living in "The Freedom to Become Yourself" (Prentice-Hall, $4.95). Dr. Burkhart believes that most of us go through life knowing only half of ourselves, that great areas of our strength lie hidden, making us strangers to our own souls. He seeks, through ancient teachings and modern psychology, to put us on more intimate terms with our great potentials for happier living.

THE CREAM of the crop of outstanding Yuletide tales, as told by some of the world's greatest writers, illustrators and cartoonists of the last 50 years — comes in "A Merry, Merry Christmas Book" (Prentice-Hall, $2.95). Editor Erie Posselt includes such authors as Robert Benchley, Max Beerbohm, Damon Runyon, Christopher Morley, Roark Bradford and many others, and an array of artists that includes Bill O'Malley, Carl Rose and O. Soglow.

SCHOLARLY Francis H. Buffum's soft-cover book "America at the Crossroads" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $1.25) is something which should be read by all Americans who seek understanding of the basic differences between our country and Russia. It traces the history of the two countries and the factors that led to their growths in world prestige. It compares the ideologies of democracy and communism.

AN INSIDE LOOK at executive-level greed and corruption is given in the first novel of John G. Burnett, "Company Man," (Harpers, $3.50), when Robert Franklin leaves his own agency to join the staff of Farnsworth Airlines as advertising manager. Working with Sidney Starkle, public relations boss, and Peter Lafferty, agency representative, Franklin struggles to maintain personal dignity, yet still conform enough to be accepted into the inner circle.

"THE MAINSTREAM of America" has become a series of books for which the readers of American history await with eagerness and anticipation of a solid delight. Now Irving Stone presents his "Men to Match My Mountains" (Doubleday, $5.95) and the volume is one of the best of the series. You name a hero or a rascal whose feet trod the early western land, and he is here. Just what drew men and women into the roughness and insecurity of the early west is a question, but perhaps it was restlessness or a general contempt for peaceful surroundings. And from 1840 until 1900, brashness, brawn and raw courage had their places beside greed and hatred. Here is how a continent was settled and made secure, and the doing is going to live forever in the hearts of Americans, due in most part to authors like Irving Stone who write proudly and sincerely of great and daring men who walked the land.

WHAT A MAN DOES, thinks, and feels, when told by doctors that he has cirrhosis of the liver, is no doubt the theme behind "The Crossing" by Jean Reverzy (Pantheon $3.50). But the theme obscures and becomes tiresome amid endless, many-syllabled words describing the South Seas, numerous flashbacks, and "pretty prose." If it is a gripping sharply-cut yarn you want—then this is not your cup of tea. This novel is a so-whater.

A STORY of the decline in power of the Indian in Washington Territory, and particularly of the Wanapums held to their own ancient ways long after the intrusion of the White Man by a medicine man called Smowhala, the Dreamer, is "Drummers and Dreamers" by Click Relander (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $6). This is a scholarly work which seems to fill several gaps in the history of the settling of the Northwest. Smowhala, the Prophet, and his nephew, Puck Hyah Toot, the last Prophet of the nearly extinct River People, the Wanapums, make intriguing reading for Westerners of the modern day.

ONLY THE SIMPLEST costumes and props, and no special lighting or scenery, are needed to produce in church, school or elsewhere the classical religious plays contained in "Great Christian Plays" (Seabury Press, $7.50). Ecellent editing is done by Theodore M. Switz and Robert A. Johnston. The plays are translated into modern English acting versions, and represent the best extant medieval dramas, including the ageless "Everyman." The text of each play is accompanied by an introduction to the background and characters, notes on props and staging, costume sketches and appropriate music. This book would seem appropriate for the library of any Christian church.

LITTLE REAL knowledge of the Japanese geisha has reached the western world. But the true position of the dedicated woman is demonstrated in "Three Geishas" by Kikou Yamata (Day, $3.50). Okichi is the first geisha and she was chosen to be a companion to the first American consul. She was soon scorned by her own people, but she later earned her place in history. Okoi married a fine actor, but she turned to a prime minister to further her country's cause. The last geisha still lives, and her great but tragic story is touching. So the "persons of art" are brought forward and presented with sympathy and drama.

WHAT TO DO with river-loving Grandpa Binkley when the new bridge does away with need for the services of his "faithful ferry" is the problem facing Andy in "Binkley's Bottleneck" — a children's story written and illustrated by Stella F. Rapaport (Putnam's, $2.50).

Mile-Deep City

By Bettie Payne Welles

A CASUAL visitor in Butte, Montana's famous copper camp, no doubt may think it is just like any other western city spreading under vast blue skies. Late model cars are parked at the curb, people walk casually along the sidewalks and shop in the stores. Life is normal.

But stop any citizen and ask him about Butte. He will offer a broad friendly smile and tell of his town's many attractions. He will relate that this metropolis is known as the "mile-deep" city. Underground mine levels and raises form a network of more than 2,200 miles, and there are over 5,000 miles of stope workings. For the uninformed, a stope working is an excavation underground for the removal of ore formed by mining from a block of ground.

At the western city limits is the Montana School of Mines. This school is part of the University of Montana, and has a museum with one of the finest mineral collections in the United States. The museum is open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. At the approach to the campus of the School of Mines is a statue of Marcus Daly made by the American sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens. To know the story of Marcus Daly is to know the history of Butte.

It was in the early 1870s that young and brilliant Marcus came from Virginia City, Nev., to manage the Alice Mine for a group of Salt Lake City bankers. He came in time to see the bonanza silver mining days of Butte on the wane, for the silver ore mined was of low grade. Every one in the camp was discouraged, and one by one families were leaving for better "diggin's." For a few years it looked as if Butte was destined to be another ghost town.

COPPER WAS discovered, but very little was known of this metal at that time. Its production was very expensive. It was shipped by sailing vessels around the Horn to the Atlantic Coast to the smelter. This took many months.

But the faith and courage of Marcus Daly saved the camp. He borrowed money and sank mine shafts. He blocked out ore when people said it could not be done. He persevered, refusing to admit defeat. Today he is credited with founding the vast copper industry in Montana, and making Butte the world's leading copper city.

In the years that followed, history records that great wealth poured into Butte from all corners of the earth. It became a city of contrasts. Fabulous fortunes were made and lost overnight. There were bitter quarrels and murders to settle disputes over mining claims. Court calendars of that era were filled for years with mining claims to control the bodies of ore underground and on the surface. All this is different today. The mines are consolidated and operated by the Anaconda Mining Company. Underground mines are connected for safety, drainage and ventilation. These factors give good up-to-date mining operations.

Butte serves her country in times of peace as well as in times of war. For example, her yearly production of copper, zinc, lead, and manganese reaches well into the hundreds of millions of pounds.

IN THE COURSE of conversation with Butte residents one may be told that a visit to a copper mine may be arranged. The Leonard Mine is usually the one used for guided tours for visitors during the day. It is located next to Meaderville, a lively little Italian settlement on the outskirts of the city on U. S. Hwy. 91.

From the parking area of the Leonard, the view is dominated by copper mining. There are large flumes and launders, locally known as "copper tanks." They carry the mine water which is pumped from the high ore shaft on the hill. Years ago it was discovered that iron left in the water was replaced by copper precipitates, and today copper tanks yield 6,000,000 pounds of copper a year.

On the right are the Rarus, the Berkley and the Tramway mines, properties made famous in the rowdy early days of Butte's gaudy mining history. To the east are McQueen and East Butte, settlements made up of Central European people who have brought their language and their customs with them. Below these settlements are slag dumps from smeltering operations years ago when copper was "heap-roasted" in the open by igniting sulphur. All vegetation for miles around was killed by this method of smelting.

BREAKING THE SKYLINE to the west is the giant Anaconda stock. Marcus Daly selected Anaconda as a sight for this smelter because of the favorable water supply and the nearness to limestone sources. This is another trip of interest to add to the list of things to see in Butte.

ANOTHER COMMUNITY outside of the city limits of Butte is Centerville, a Cornish settlement where generations of Cornish miners have lived with their families. A common joke among local people is that in by-gone days on St. Patrick's Day the Cousin Jack Band used to lead the parade for the Irish because every Irishman insisted on being the bandleader.

One with extra time to spend in Butte will enjoy a trip to the Columbia Gardens, a popular recreation spot two miles east of the city and located at the foot of the Continental Divide.

This is Butte's Park St., looking west. The city is called "the copper capital"; mines support economy.

Tour of Europe

Norway, Sweden and Denmark will be three of the 14 countries visited by Lindskog's Annual Friendly Spring Tour of Europe when it departs next May 19 for 57 days. Sixteen days will be spent in these three countries during the midsummer eve season when there is no darkness, when flowers and trees are in bloom and the Scandinavians are celebrating the coming of summer.

The tour will feature the best in sightseeing, including magnificent drives by private motor coach along the Amalfi, Riviera, through Swiss Alps, the Dolomites, and along Sweden's Lakes Vattern and Vanern. There will be steamer trips down the Sogne Fjord in Norway. Other spots to be visited include Lake Lucern, the baron castles along the Rhine, and London Bridge, Heidelberg Castle, Four Musicians of Bremen Statue, Stoke Poges and Zeiderzee Dyk will bring back childhood memories. There will be gondola rides in Venice, the jaunting car rides around the Lakes of Killarney. Entertainment will include the Holland Music Festival, opera in Paris, Midsummer Eve festivities in Stockholm, Folies-Bergere in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf E. Lindskog, 13764 E. Lindskog Dr., Whittier, will accompany the group.

. . . Should we buy foreign money before we leave the United States or should we wait until we get to Europe?

MONEY is stiffening up all over the world in relation to the dollar. Even the asthmatic French franc doesn't gasp into the high exchange brackets any more. And those seedy street peddlers around the American Express and the Boulevard des Capucines in Paris have almost disappeared.

Geneva, Lisbon, Tangier are money markets. They deal in money like groceries. They are close to the European sources. They buy at the best price and sell competitively. You can't do better anywhere than buying in Switzerland.

However, many people don't go to Switzerland first. If you don't, buy at one of the American exchange houses. Nearly any bank will get you foreign exchange. But they won't cut the price quite as close as an exchange house.

Can you suggest some places in Honolulu for cocktails . . .

THE QUEEN'S SURF, the Surf Room at the Royal Hawaiian and the top deck of the Princess Kaiulani. The best drink is a Mai Tai as made at the Surf Room. Best music—Bill Akamuhou at the Royal Hawaiian and Alfred Apaka at the Hawaiian Village.

. . . and dinner?

THE WILLOWS beside a pond of carp. The Queen's Surf is excellent. Canlis is good. The Broiler is elegant and has very good food. Prices are about Stateside.

Local boys touted me on a place called "The Embers" as good and inexpensive. They don't serve liquor and local custom is to pick up a bottle of wine before you go and have it with the steak. The management expects it.

We know woolens are a good buy in London. What else would you buy there? Where?

TRY SIMPSON in Piccadilly, Fortnum & Mason nearby, the Army & Navy Store, Liberty House in Regent Street for silks and woolens. Dunhill has a good shop for pipes. Daks skirts and Daks slacks are good at Simpson's. Burberry and Aquascutum are both good for topcoats, men's and women's. And Locke's is the fashionable place for men's hats.

For antique and modern silver, the silver vaults. Try Mall Deposit and Forwarding Company, Ltd., 10 St. Alban's Street, S. W. 1, or Chancery Lane Safe Deposit and Offices Company at 65 Chancery Lane, W. C. 2. These are show places worth a visit if you don't want to buy.

Nearly all stores have the "export scheme." Means you can buy without the heavy British purchase tax and have the things delivered to your plane or boat.

PET PARADE

Monkeys Are Fun

By Eleanor Avery Price

A monkey can be lots of fun to own and watch if loved and well cared for.

MONKEYS and their antics are fascinating, as any crowd watching simian antics will attest, and this fascination is the basis for the almost-obsession some people have for owning a monkey.

Often the start is made with a marmoset (which is not a true monkey but is a dainty and interesting little fellow nevertheless) and graduates up to the gibbon apes and chimpanzees.

A monkey is usually easy to train providing the pet has complete confidence in his owner and providing the owner remembers constantly that the monkey, in spite of the fact that he resembles a little person, is not human. Be patient at all times, scolding only when necessary and never teasing.

IT IS ALSO important that the monkey be rewarded with tidbits when he does things that please, but do not stuff him with peanuts as they will constipate him if consumed in too large quantities. Don't go overboard on the fruit, either.

The monkey's diet should consist mostly of bananas, nuts, whole wheat bread spread with a special liquid vitamin, white and sweet potatoes, carrots and leafy vegetables. Poached eggs, pablum, and milk are often relished. Watch his diet carefully so he will be odorless and easy to keep clean.

If you wish, you can dress the monkey in diapers and rubber pants with or without outer garments. Usually monkeys resent delicate, silky, stiff, or fluffy clothes but will submit to soft knitted outfits.

A monkey should have his own quarters, a sling to swing in, and a tree branch or two to clamber on. He needs to play games with his owner and be talked to by him.

AS WINTER APPROACHES and you think of your own comfort, pause a moment. Have you thought also to "winterize" your pet?

Have a comfortable shelter available for the cat or dog, one with a warm bed out of drafts and shielded from damp weather. Even a turtle needs a nice warm spot in which to snooze!

Step up the richness of the food in your pet's diet, and that includes birds. Be certain the right vitamins are given to help see your pet safely through cooler months without his developing some illness peculiar to this period. Fresh water must always be available, and it should be cool, not icy and not heated. Extreme temperatures in foods should be avoided.

Don't make any pet an "in-and-outer" in cold weather. Radical changes of staying outside for a few days, inside for another period and then outside again will have harmful efects. So plan now just where your pet is to spend most of his time during the next few months.

DONT USE DDT on a cat for ticks. Dip a cotton-tipped applicator in turpentine and touch the tick's head where it enters the skin. The tick will release its hold and can be picked off with tweezers and dropped into turpentine or burned.

A CAT NEEDS its teeth cleaned twice a year to prevent pyorrhea, abcesses, loss of teeth. Even chronic stomach inflammation and kidney diseases have been traced to bad teeth.

HOW TO Cover a Cabinet Top with Linoleum, With Installation for Backsplash

1. INSTALL COVE molding next to wall, if you'll have backsplash of linoleum, pictured here.

2. PRETTY FELT and linoleum to match dimensions of top and where it forms backsplash. Sharp jackknife or hawknosed linoleum knife cuts material quickly and easily. Felt should come just to bottom of cap strip—not over it. Attach cap strip after you tack on cove molding.

3. SPREAD LINOLEUM paste onto wall, molding, and top. A notched applicator, you can buy, distributes adhesive evenly. Work from back of the cabinet toward the front. This keeps your arms and your clothing from dragging through the fresh linoleum paste—easy to remove before it hardens.

4. COVER TOP and wall with felt and smooth it down to remove air pockets. After paste has set, apply second coat on felt, and place the linoleum. Slide material against wall, and seat top edge under edge of cap strip. Firm down rest of material, removing air-pockets. Weight till dry.

5. METAL EDGING strip goes on last. Fasten it along one end. When you come to a corner, preform metal by bending it with your hands. Be careful not to kink it. Special fittings are available for square corners, or you can miter this edging for a snug fit at square corners.

6. WITH A WOODEN block, finish molding metal around corners and fasten it to edges.

Survivor of age of reptiles, ginkgo is a stately tree. Leaves resemble those of the Maidenhair fern (inset).

Tree of a Lost World

By Gladys Diesing

LONG YEARS AGO in the age of the reptiles the ginkgo tree was a widely distributed tree in both the eastern and western hemispheres. The ice of the glacial epochs destroyed all of these trees except in China. There it survived and has been carried down to modern times through garden culture — it no longer is found growing wild even in China.

The unique fan-like shape of the leaves resembling the little leaflets of a maidenhair fern have given rise to the ginkgo's common name of Maidenhair tree. The tree itself, however, is not fern-like. Young trees often have the branches radiating in clusters, tier above tier, giving it a spirelike outline. When mature it is a stately tree whose shape is loosely pyramidal. The tree often is rather slow-growing, its rate of growth varying with its location but will eventually reach a height of 70-80 feet or more. It is deciduous and in the autumn the leaves turn a golden yellow, persisting on the tree for a considerable time before falling to make a golden carpet upon the ground.

One should be sure to obtain a male tree for planting as the fruit of the female tree when it falls has a very disagreeable odor. It is from this fruit that the silver nuts of China and Japan are obtained, being the pure white kernel after the offensive pulp has been removed. The gingko tree is not particular as to soil and is practically pest free. Like other deciduous trees, the gingko is best planted when bare root during the winter.

Harvest Vegetables With Care

By Bob Gilmore

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that so many vegetable crops are ruined by improper handling at harvest time. Garden books usually devote whole chapters to planting, cultivating, spraying, irrigating and feeding, but are strangely silent on how and when to harvest.

The manner of harvesting lettuce is often determined by the variety or type. A head lettuce should be allowed to attain maximum size to guarantee the formation of a solid head. On the other hand, loose-leafed varieties such as the Simpson may be harvested as soon as the foliage becomes large enough. To insure maximum crispness, it is best to harvest just before serving. Don't remove the heads when wet.

SUMMER SQUASH grows very rapidly, and the bushes should be checked daily as they reach maturity. A zucchini squash seems to grow faster than almost any other comparable crop. Pick the individual squashes before the rind has a chance to harden. But the winter varieties, on the other hand, should not be harvested until the shell is quite hard. Harvest muskmelons when fully mature, but before the fruits separate from the vines. The mushy texture of melons results from their being left on the vines for too long a time.

Snap beans should be harvested before the pods have reached maximum size and while the seeds are still relatively small. Maturity of the seeds is usually accompanied by a tough and stringy texture of the pods. Lima beans should be gathered before the pods turn yellow and, as with snap beans, before the seeds reach their greatest size.

GENERALLY speaking, most vegetables will be more tender if picked when comparatively young. The methods utilized by commercial growers may prove quite distinct from what you practice at home. That is because farmers must ship their crops a long distance to market; the home grower, however, probably eats the crop immediately after harvesting it.

Radishes may be pulled sooner than any other vegetable because they grow so much faster. You can enjoy mature radishes just three weeks after planting. It is advisable to delay harvesting until the crop has attained the ideal size, and this may be determined by consulting a reliable seed catalog. Radishes turn pithy quite soon after reaching maturity.

GREEN ONIONS may also be pulled when quite small. Dry onions, on the other hand, should not be dug until the tops have died down. After picking them, they should be dried in the sun. Line the bulbs up so that the tops of one row cover those in each succeeding row. This prevents sunburn.

When cutting celery, make the cut below the surface, thus leaving a section of the root attached. An extremely sharp knife is required for proper harvesting of celery. After washing the celery, it should immediately be placed in a refrigerator. This crop is extremely susceptible to decay unless stored at low temperatures.

Correct harvesting procedures preserve flavor and nutrition in vegetables.

By Dorothy Jonson

Wooly aphis is a cottony substance sometimes found in the crotches of plants such as pyracantha and it is really an enemy with two armies. (1) The "aerial" force, which is seen on the plant, and (2) the "subterranean" force, which you find around the roots.

When spraying the plant for wooly aphis, use considerable force to break the cottony protective covering. But eradicating it from the plant itself will not do too much good unless you eliminate it from the roots also by distinfecting the soil with an ether product.

Long ago, wood ashes were recommended as a control for wooly aphis. Regardless of new and modern products, if you have a fireplace where you burn logs, I suggest that you save the ashes and scatter them occasionally throughout the winter and early spring months in the root growing area around your fruit trees. Wood ashes constitute a simple, natural control for these subterranean enemies in the soil.

Nemesis of Gophers

—Author's Photo

A sweetly scented flower proved to be fatal undoing of this gopher. The flower lured the animal into the trap.

By Grace Killam

THE CALIFORNIA pocket gopher is just as big a pest in Long Beach as it is proportionately in the whole state of California. He works like the little bulldozer that he is, taking every bit of vegetation above his underground labyrinths, regardless of what a gardener may have paid for a prize plant.

Each gopher burrows out a small system of dry tunnels for its home. The twisting runways are dug with a ceiling to be just a fit for one gopher. Only one gopher lives in one labyrinthian unit at a time, but the young stay on with mother gopher until they are able to go out on their own. If by luck one of these prospectors finds an unoccupied subway, it immediately takes it over for an apartment to start a family of its own.

THE BROOD NEST is just a wide place in the lowest spot below ground level. Each brood consists of from two to 13 new little pests. They multiply as rapidly as guinea pigs.

Trapping is the most approved method of ridding a place of gophers, in the long run. Occasionally, one can be flooded out of its dry canal by running a garden hose into an open hole and turning the water on full blast. When the gopher comes out burbling for breath, he can be killed. Another method is to attach a hose to the exhaust pipe of the family car and insert the other end into the gopher hole, then race the engine at full speed. Monoxide gas does the trick.

SEVERAL TYPES of gopher traps are on the market and are probably more efficient, less costly and less wasteful of water and gasoline than the hose or car. Gopher runways must be opened to accommodate the trap, which must be matched to the hole, and sacking or shrubbery should be used for covering, allowing only a tiny aperture for light to draw the gopher into the trap. Gophers are good housekeepers and stray soil should be removed if it falls into the runway. They also are possessed of a keen sense of smell and no trace of human scent should be permitted on either trap or bait. A bit of fresh carrot or a scented flower can be used to tempt the little marauder into the trap.

Should the scent of the trapper's hands alarm the gopher, the animal will carefully push dirt into the trap, packing it tightly, and the quarry will fill a section of runway and withdraw to safety.

POISONED BAITS are also available at nurseries but must be placed in the runways carefully to prevent human scent from alarming the gopher. Covering should be placed leaving only a tiny ray of light to bring the gopher to inquire about the open door to the burrow.

The pocket gopher is named for the fur lined pockets in its cheeks. The animal eats around the circumference of each runway, packs the surplus into its cheeks to be carried underground for later eating or feeding to the young. When the food harvest has been completed, the opening is filled to prevent the entry of enemies.

Tips on Gardening

TIPS FOR THIS WEEK . . . If you have dark spots in your garden that require highlighting, then plant one of the following: Cyclamen, cinerarias, primulas and bedding begonias. The latter bloom intermittently throughout the entire year.

New crop gladiolus bulbs or corms should be planted. Bulbs planted last spring or early this summer should be ready for digging. They should not be replanted immediately, but should be given a rest period.

Begonia tubers may now be lifted as the tops have probably died down fairly completely. Store them in a cool place until planting time next February.

Discarded beads, costume jewelry are decorations for perfume, cologne bottles in hands of Mrs. Verl Onken.

Gems on Her Bottles

By Ellen Saunders

SOME WOMEN can discard a few loose beads, a broken brooch or a solitary earring without a moment's regret. But Mrs. Verl Onken, 1740 Erie St., prefers to use her old jewelry to transform ordinary perfume or cologne bottles into shimmering bits of golden glitter.

"It's an ideal hobby," says Mrs. Onken.

Decorating bottles with jewels is by no means a new art. What makes Mrs. Onken's hobby different is that she utilizes whole pieces of jewelry as well as individual stones.

A SMALL BROOCH, a cameo, a large jeweled button or a clasp earring, the back of which has been clipped off, is cemented to the bottle and becomes the focal point of interest around which the decorative design is planned.

To decorate more than 200 bottles without duplicating any design calls for imaginative use of color and materials. Beads of every size and shape, rhinestones, sequins and even seashells are utilized.

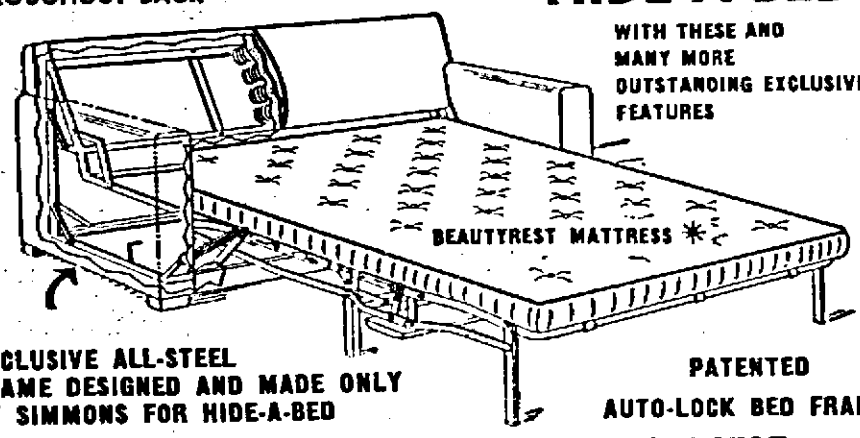

Stamp Meet Set

Don Greaton will speak on stamps of Mexico at the Long Beach Stamp Collectors Club meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday at 208 Linden Ave. Greaton, a teacher, attended the National College of Mexico and the International Stamp exhibition in Mexico City where more than a million pesos worth of stamps were displayed. The talk also will include "How to Live All Summer for $50." Visitors are welcome.

A LAVISH LUAU—featuring cuisine and entertainment authentic enough to delight the most discriminating Hawaiian royalty—will be held Tuesday night at The Hawaiian, 4645 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., a restaurant dedicated to bringing the romance of the islands to Long Beach.

Approximately 350 persons will attend the feast, sitting on the floor in true island fashion and eating exotic foods with their fingers. As an additional fillip, the colorful proceedings will be televised by a Los Angeles station. (We can't mention the time or identify the station because it's a secret.)

The evening will start with a cocktail hour at 6 o'clock. As each guest arrives, he will be given a flower lei and a glass of tropical punch. The feasting will start about 8, and will include the following delicacies: Hawaiian luau pork (barbecued); chicken and long rice, kona yam, baked Hawaiian bananas with coconut chips; lomi salmon (marinated) and poi; banana bread and haupia (frozen coconut pudding). In addition, the long low tables will contain platters of fresh pineapple and papaya.

ENTERTAINMENT will be provided by the Al McIntire Trio. The show, which will start at 9, will be Polynesian in theme and will feature performances by five singers and dancers.

The price will be $7.50 per person. The event will be open to the public, but by reservation only.

Plans for the elaborate affair were worked out in detail by the late Al Mack, owner of The Hawaiian, who opened the beautiful restaurant in July, 1955. His plans have been carried to completion by his wife, Thelma; Bob San Jose, restaurant manager and greeter, and Wally Miller, assistant to Mrs. Mack.

The Hawaiian is open daily, serving American and Cantonese dinners and tropical drinks. Buffet luncheons are served Monday through Friday starting at 11:30 a.m.—TEDD THOMEY

Thanksgiving in Purvis Bay

by ADM. ARLEIGH BURKE Chief of Naval Operations

There may have been blacker nights than Thanksgiving Eve, 1943, in the South Pacific, but none could have been more completely blacked out with regard to information of the enemy.

The Solomon Islands campaign, one of the decisive battles of World War II in the Pacific, was at its height, and the issue had not yet been resolved. Our destroyers were steaming north in search of the Japanese, who were reported to be evacuating their forces from the islands of Buka and Rabaul.

Suddenly our ships made contact with an unidentified force — strength unknown — and closed to fight it out.

The battle continued throughout the night. One after another, the breaks fell to us. The pieces of the puzzle gradually slipped into their proper places as, one by one, the enemy warships were routed or sunk.

But, as dawn came, a new battle loomed ahead. Pursuit of the beaten Japs had put our formation deep in enemy waters, far beyond our own air cover. The weather was clear, Japanese airfields were close by, and we knew they had many fighters and bombers on the four bases in the vicinity of Rabaul.

As we began our retirement to the southward, aerial attack seemed imminent. We hadn't suffered a single casualty during the night action, but now, perhaps, our luck had run out.

To our surprise, nothing happened — nothing at all. The Japanese did not strike back! As we continued to sail into friendlier waters, identical requests began coming in to the flagship from every destroyer in the formation. Finally we passed them all along to Admiral Merrill, our commander back in Purvis Bay: "Please arrange Thanksgiving services for all hands on arrival."

They were waiting for us when we returned to port — our Protestant, Catholic and Jewish chaplains. An explanation also was waiting — a reconnaissance dispatch stating that 58 enemy bombers and 145 fighters had been observed on the Japanese airfields near Rabaul. They had not attacked us presumably because, through the grace of Divine Providence, they didn't know our exact position and, hence, couldn't find us in time.

I'll always remember that Thanksgiving Day in that beautiful, tropical harbor: battle-scarred ships nested together in a quiet anchorage, battle-weary crews giving thanks to God for their victory — and for their deliverance. ■

Mrs. McCormick and son

On the cover: a mother who's an athlete too

The flying young lady on today's cover is probably the most unusual woman athlete on the U.S. team in the 1956 Olympics (which begin Thursday). Not only is Pat McCormick the mother of an 8-month-old baby, but her coach is also her husband.

Most unusual or not, she's clearly our best woman Olympian. (A special forecast by PARADE on how our girls will fare at Melbourne — where they will decide whether America or Russia wins the unofficial team championship — starts on page 8.) Pat, 26, won gold medals in the two women's diving events in the 1952 Olympics, is PARADE's pick to win both first places again this year.

Her husband, Glenn, coach of our women Olympic divers, confesses it's "a little rough" being both husband and coach to a woman athlete, "since it's hard to find time for normal lives." He cites the schedule that enabled Pat to perform the spectacular feat of winning top place on our women's diving team just five months after giving birth to their son.

"Our boy is under my mother's care at our home in Lakewood, just outside Los Angeles," says Glenn. "We see him an hour or two in the morning. Then we go to Los Angeles where Pat practices six to eight hours. When we get home, the baby's in bed. Housework? That's done at night."

S. CON. RES. 88

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Whereas the world today is divided by conflicting ideologies which cause people to live in constant fear of conflict and embarrassment; and

Whereas the basic principles of man's ethical conduct are set forth in the Ten Commandments, which have been cast aside throughout much of the world today; and

Whereas a return to the precepts as expressed in the Ten Commandments never was more vital to our survival and continued civilization than today; and

Whereas we believe the Ten Commandments as the primary moral force behind the three great religions of today, Christianity, Judaism, and Islam, should be reaffirmed as the ethical code governing the lives of men and are the means of bringing about lasting world peace and a solution to the many problems of mankind: Therefore be it

UNRESOLVED:

How will Congress handle the

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Suppose the 10 Commandments were sent to Congress for legislative action. How far would Moses get on Capitol Hill?

That he would encounter obstacles not mentioned in the Bible is indicated by the Senate's handling of Concurrent Resolution 88. Introduced by Sens. Styles Bridges (R., N.H.) and Earle Clements (D., Ky.) two days before Congress adjourned, it went almost unnoticed by the press. Yet it threw the Senate into a parliamentary tizzy.

Resolution 88 proclaims a simple belief that "the 10 Commandments, as the primary moral force behind the three great religions of today, Christianity, Judaism and Islam, should be reaffirmed as the ethical code governing the lives of men and are the means of bringing about lasting world peace and a solution to the many problems of mankind."

The idea was urged upon Bridges by religious-minded friends. Clements joined in sponsoring the resolution to keep it nonpartisan. "We hoped it would stimulate spiritual thinking," Bridges explains.

Then why did this unpublicized resolution cause the biggest backstage stir the Senate has seen in years? The answer is found in the first clause of the first Constitutional Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion . . ."

Intended not to discourage religion but to assure equal religious freedom for all, this clause has been held by the courts to be the basis for separating Church and State. Congress, as an arm of the State, has authority to consider just about every known topic in its various committees — except strictly religious ones.

Thus the parliamentarians first thought the Constitution, itself, would have to be amended before Congress could consider the resolution. Then the Senate's wise chief parliamentarian, Charles Watkins, reread the last line: "Resolved: . . . that we hereby proclaim our faith in the Word of God and thereby perpetuate renewed observance throughout the world, by nations and by individuals, of the 10 Commandments."

The words world and nations caught his eye. Since the subject also had to do with other nations, Watkins assigned Resolution 88 to the Foreign Relations Committee. He soon got a call back from a startled clerk: "Since when did we have jurisdiction over the 10 Commandments?"

That is a question the new Congress will have to face. Bridges and Clements will reintroduce the resolution at the next session. The parliamentarian likely will cross his fingers and send it again to the Foreign Relations Committee.

If no objections are heard from Constitutional lawyers, the committee probably will study and approve it. Then it will be sent to the Senate floor for a vote, then to the House for concurrence. Congress may yet declare formally its faith in God and the 10 Commandments. ■

LADY DRIVER does a slow burn as young "cop" writes a ticket for parking near fire hydrant in midget town of Safetyville.

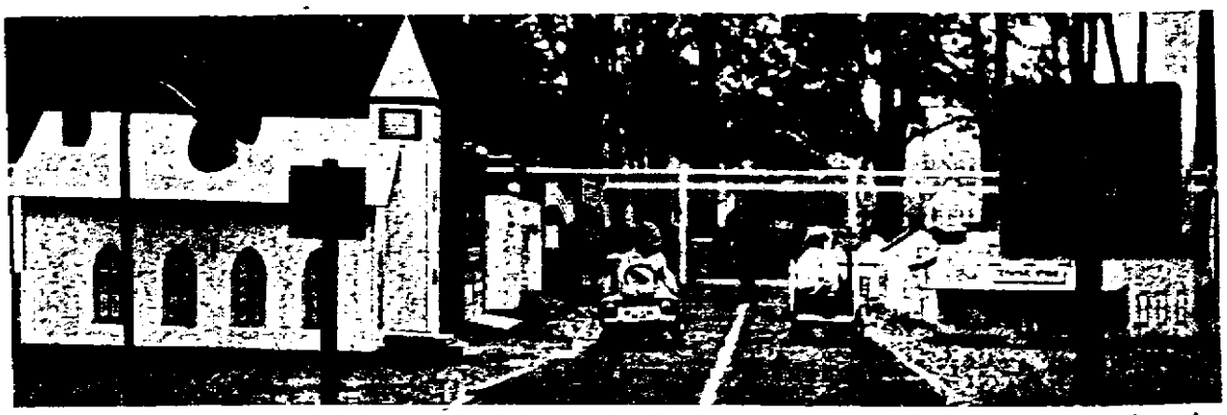

TRAFFIC ABC'S FOR TODDLERS

Vermont airmen build a tiny town to teach littlest drivers safety rules

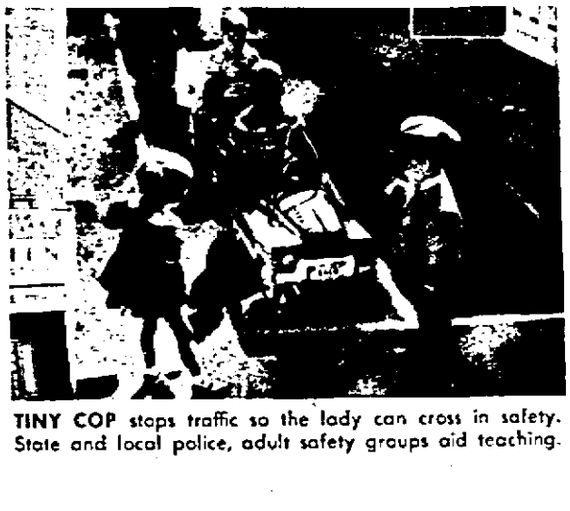

WINOOSKI, VT.

A new way to teach tomorrow's motorists the importance of safe driving today has been developed by airmen of the Ethan Allen Air Force Base here. Their secret: a complete town in miniature, called Safetyville. Its realistic buildings, put up by the airmen themselves, intrigue the small fry (ranging in age from 4 to 11). Meanwhile, its asphalt streets with exact copies of regulation highway signs permit a sound grounding in the ABC's of traffic safety.

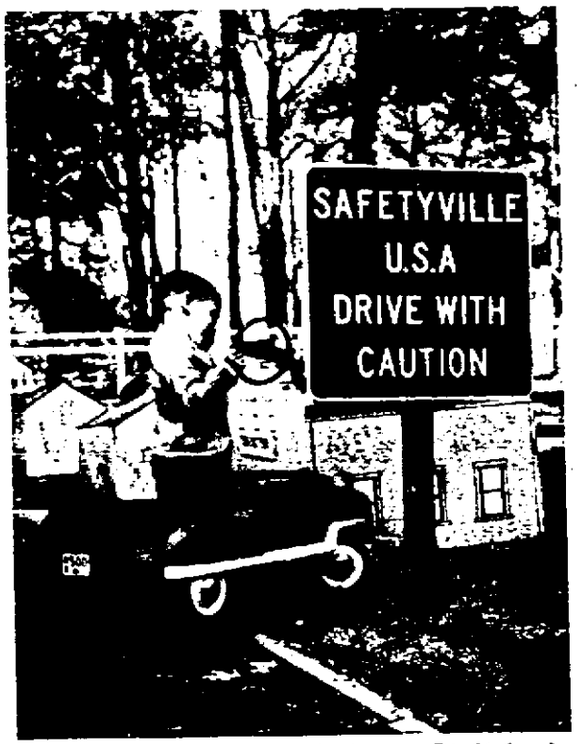

Officers and men of the 14th Fighter Group, and their wives, invited nearby communities to join in Safetyville's program of instruction. It has proved so successful that duplicate programs are being planned for other air bases across the country.

PEDALING on asphalt street, kids learn to heed signs, copies of real ones. They're taught both day and night safety rules.

TINY COP stops traffic so the lady can cross in safety. State and local police, adult safety groups aid teaching.

TROUBLE: When the steering wheel came off in his hands, this unlucky driver ran off road, now wonders what to do.

LESSON: Sgt. Bill Turner, safety teacher during off-duty hours, tells children how reflecting signs help at night.

U.S. GIRLS, led by Shelley Mann, will score most in swimming and . . .

We can win the OLYMPICS!

Our girls, a special Parade forecast shows, hold the key

by JOHN DEVANEY

IF THE UNITED STATES is to triumph over Russia in the 16th Summer Olympics, starting Thursday in Melbourne, the deciding factor will be our girl athletes.

If they score enough points to stay fairly close to the Russian women — thus giving our men only a relatively slight handicap to overcome — we're in.

In 1952 the U.S. girls were soundly trounced by Russia's women in the unofficial point score, 161 to 63. But despite the 98-point handicap, our men scored enough for a U.S. victory, 614 to 553.

With the American men as strong as in 1952 — or perhaps stronger — most experts feel our girls must do only slightly better for the U.S. to win.

Chances are that our girls will do much better. If they follow PARADE's "scoreboard" forecast (above), they'll trail the Russian women by only 68 points. Barring injuries, the U.S. men should easily make up those 68 — with some left over — to win the team championship.

Talk of competition between nations, of course, nettles Olympic officials, who point out that the modern Olympics were set up in 1896 strictly as a contest for individuals. But, unfortunately, the Olympics have been dragged into the cold war. Says Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee: "It is against the Olympic idea to throw one nation against another.

"But we cannot ignore the fact that Russia is putting tremendous emphasis on the development of its athletes."

The obvious reason for this sports push is to help "sell" the rest of the world on Communism as a whole. Willy-nilly, the U.S. has been drawn into a two-nation test of strength.

This year we should win it — if our girls do as expected. After talking with the coaches of our women's teams (we're entered in all four sports open to women), plus checking the best performances of foreign athletes, PARADE has picked, event by event, the probable order of finish for Russian and U.S. girls (below). The forecast shows our girls doing better in fencing and swimming, getting belted in track and gymnastics.

. . . DIVING, with Pat McCormick, 1952 champ, who should win twice.

Track and Field	11	12	70	80
Fencing	4	6	0	0
Gymnastics	0	1	85	84
TOTALS	63	99	161	167

"SCOREBOARD" for U.S. and Russian girls compares point scores for 1952 and '56. This year's points are based on predicted order of finish (as shown below). First place is awarded 10 points; 2nd, 5; 3rd, 4; 4th, 3; 5th, 2; 6th, 1.

RUSSIAN GIRLS, like this Kiev woman exercising with a ribbon, will do best in gymnastics. Note the emphasis on grace rather than strength.

Since fencing has only one event, most of the girls' points must come from swimming. Led by diver Pat McCormick (cover and page 2) and a raft of swimmers, our squad should pick up three gold medals, possibly four, and almost double our 1952 point total.

If we don't, our men athletes will face another uphill fight. For the other two women's sports — gymnastics and track — have a total of 15 events (thus a lot more potential points). And in both the Russians are loaded. Here's a rundown:

SWIMMING and DIVING — Ours could well be the greatest collection of girl swimmers and divers ever assembled. On top of that, a change in the rules probably has dropped an extra 19 points into our laps. Until this year the butterfly stroke — similar to the breast stroke and long an American specialty — has been lumped with the breast-stroke race. This year it's a separate event and the U.S. girls entered — Shelley Mann, Mary Jane Sears and Nancy Ramey — should finish 1,2,3 in that order.

We'll get at least one place in each of the other swim events too, says our 24-year-old coach, Stan Tinkham of Washington, D.C. He expects the Australians to be our toughest competition, sees the Russians placing in only two events.

Diving, though, will really be our dish. There are two events, a dive from a 9½-foot springboard and a leap from a 32½-foot platform. In '52, Pat McCormick won both; this year she's again rated a double winner. Behind her are four other U.S. girls expected to lock up 2nd and 3rd spots in both events.

TRACK and FIELD — Though our coaches are optimistic, a check of best performances around the world during the past year indicates we'll do little better than our mediocre 1952 showing. Mae Faggs should place in the 100- and 200-meter sprints. Mildred McDaniel has a chance for 6th in the high jump, as does Margaret Matthews in the broad jump.

But the Russians, besides doing well in track, figure to run roughshod through the field events, particularly the weights. The discus champ should be Russia's Nina Ponomareva (if she's not kept home because she was fined for shoplifting some hats in London last summer). The shot-put champion also ought to be a Russian and the Reds have a fair chance of taking another gold medal in the javelin throw.

Our weight throwers, with one exception, will be out of it. Javelin flinger Karen Anderson actually has a chance to win — but more likely will come in 3rd. Another possible U.S. point scorer is Mrs. Earlene Brown, a young housewife who had never even thrown a shot put until this year. She recently broke the U.S. record with a 46'9½" heave (just 6½" off the world mark).

FENCING — Olympic girl fencers compete only with foils (a sword with a button on the end). Our team captain, Jose deCapriles, thinks either Mrs. Maxine Mitchell or Mrs. Janice-Lee Romary could win; but they're more likely to be 3rd and 5th. The Russian girls, says deCapriles, have so far shown little fencing skill.

GYMNASTICS — Here the U.S. outlook is grim. In the 1952 Olympics we were shut out without a point. This year Mrs. Sandra Ruddick should score at least 1 — but the Russians ought to hit something over 80.

Why? The answer is an ironic one. Since the last century, U.S. gymnasts have followed the lead of Europeans, stressing feats of strength. But in the past decade, the Europeans — led by the Russians and Scandinavians — have switched to a style that emphasizes grace instead (above). Since the U.S. doesn't yet have experienced teachers of this new style, we've been left behind.

All in all, however, our girl Olympians will reflect credit on America's physical fitness. And, barring injuries to our men and the collapse of either our girl swimmers or Mrs. McCormick, U.S. women athletes can be the straws to break the back of the Russian bear in his bid for domination of world sports.

FENCING star, Mrs. Maxine Mitchell of Pasadena, Calif., is picked for 3rd.

HE STAYS AT HOME— AND MAKES MILLIONS

A Connecticut

IN SUMMER industrialist Victor Muscat uses waterproofed phone with wife and children sharing his "office."

GREENWICH, CONN.

UNTIL 18 months ago, successful young businessman Victor Muscat would rise each morning around dawn, rush through breakfast, then race to catch a train for the 40-mile ride from here to his New York City office. At 5 o'clock, or later, he'd race out of his office and tear for a train, usually getting home about the time his wife was aiming their three children toward bed.

"It was getting so I saw more of the train conductor than of my own kids," says Muscat. So one day, abruptly and without much thinking about it, he moved his office from Manhattan to his home. In the summer he now works beside — and even in — his swimming pool; in the winter he directs his million-dollar business from his rumpus room.

At 37, he's president of several companies (inherited from his father). They make metal objects ranging from toothpaste tubes to furniture. Last year they grossed $18 million, a higher figure than when he ran them from a regular office.

"Four hours of work at home," says Muscat, "are worth about seven at the office.

businessman shows how it's done

For one thing, I don't waste time chatting with people who just happen to drop by; Greenwich is far enough from New York so that when people come up to see me, they mean business. Also I save two hours of commuting. And I don't have to sit through business lunches where the eating takes 90 minutes and the business 10.

"Then, of course, I don't have to squeeze myself into suit, collar and tie each morning. I can lounge around in slacks, an old shirt and sneakers. I've concluded some very profitable business deals wearing a watch and swimming trunks."

Muscat does the bulk of his business by phone. His pool phone has two direct lines to New York (so customers can phone him without paying a long-distance charge), plus four extensions. In the winter he moves the phone into the basement rumpus room, where he conducts business among furnishings that include a bar and a TV set.

Some of his friends accuse Muscat of being an escapist. "Nothing of the kind," he replies. "I just got out of the office habit, which a lot of other men also would profit by doing. I adapted my life to my family — not to my office."

Temptations do beset the businessman working at home, Muscat admits. There is a tendency to switch on the TV in the afternoon, to take a snooze on a couch after lunch, to go for a lazy swim in the pool on a hot day. But even when an executive succumbs to such temptations, claims Muscat, he wastes far less time than he would in office rigmarole.

Just as enthusiastic about Muscat's ramble from office to home is his wife, a red-haired ex-showgirl nicknamed "Happy" by her friends. "Victor would come home from the city tired and hot," she recalls. "Sometimes, if he worked late, the kids would be in bed and he wouldn't see them at all. Now, even if he has to work late, he can tuck the children into bed and go back to his telephone."

ALL YEAR LONG he works in casual attire. Though cluttered desk shows how busy he is, Muscat makes sure he gets the time to relax.

Mrs. Muscat may well qualify as the hardest-working wife of a tycoon in America today. Although they obviously could afford it, the Muscats employ neither a maid nor a cook (though they do have a governess to care for the children). Muscat has a theory — one of many such revolutionary ideas — that domestic employes just get in the way.

His favorite theory concerns how to relax. "Most people," he says, "don't know how to rest. They chase around after a tennis ball or knock themselves out trying to remember who played what card in what trick. Or else they sit in the hot sun trying to catch a fish they'll then have to clean. There's only one way to relax and that's to sit down, preferably on something soft, and have a drink put in your hand by a pretty wife."

IN WINTER Muscat (r.) moves indoors to rumpus room. After conference held amid some of his products (on table), his wife mixes a drink.

Occasionally, Muscat will stir himself to the extent of paddling idly around his pool. And sometimes, to pop the eyes of friends who doubt a business can be run from a pool, he playfully launches his "floating desk," complete with waterproof phone and water-resistant pad.

Somewhat shamefacedly, Muscat admits to a fancy for golf — but no more than three holes, instead of the usual 18. In typical Muscat fashion of making the mountain come to Mahomet, he had a golf course built on his estate last summer. Number of holes: three.

To Muscat, the best part of working at home is the time he gets to play with his children, for he sees them morning, noon and evening. "You know," he says, "I may be the only father in the eastern United States whose kids see as much of him as they do of television." ■

Why The Church Says: DON'T MARRY A CATHOLIC

Catholic opposition to mixed marriages is often misunderstood — and resented.

Some imagine it to be a manifestation of Catholic clannishness. Others say it is a selfish and unfair practice dictated by a domineering clergy. And still others take it as an insult to their own non-Catholic religious convictions and to their personal integrity.

Believe us when we say that none of these inferences is correct —none of these conclusions is true.

From long experience, the Church knows that the permanence and the harmony of family life are often jeopardized by mixed marriages, and, because of the religious division, the children often grow up in an atmosphere of religious indifference. This does not mean that the Church regards non-Catholics as unworthy or inferior. It is, simply, a matter of the church's concern for the religious life of the Catholic in a family which is divided from the start on one of the most vital questions demanding unity.

It is for this reason that the church recommends the marriage of Catholics to Catholics, and imposes serious obligations where a Catholic and a non-Catholic wish to be married in the Church. These obligations often cause resentment upon the part of those who do not understand the reasons for them.

Catholics believe that marriage is a holy and indissoluble union— a Sacrament instituted by Christ. If a Catholic elects to marry a non-Catholic, the obligation still remains to have the marriage witnessed by a Catholic priest. This does not require the non-Catholic to become a Catholic, but it does require the signing of an agreement to refrain from interfering with the religious life of the Catholic partner, and to raise and educate any children in the Catholic Faith.

The signing of this agreement is, moreover, only the first requirement before the Church will dispense from the law forbidding mixed marriages. The non-Catholic party to the marriage is also required to take at least six hours' instruction in the Catholic religion so as to know what is involved in marrying a Catholic. Above all, the Church requires moral certainty that the union will be a lasting and happy one.

While some may call this attitude of the Church dictatorial, thoughtful and responsible non-Catholic religious leaders take the same dim view of mixed marriages. They know from experience that such unions all too often create a disasterous disunity of family life.

The story that had to be told...

Our forgotten mental patients —who are they?

PART II

HAND IN HAND, an aged married couple walk down a corridor in a California mental hospital. As patients, they must live in separate wards—but they could be discharged if a suitable foster home for two people were available.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

A gentle, white-haired woman greeted a PARADE reporter at the Milwaukee County Asylum: "Good evening, sir. My name is Mrs. James L. This is my home. Won't you sit and talk to me?"

Pointing to beds in the crowded ward, Mrs. L. declared, "I'm so much better off than many of these other ladies. But it does get rather monotonous for an alert person like me to lie here all day long . . ."

That woman, keen, aware, clear-eyed, could have been released from the Asylum years ago. But she's still a patient; there's no place else for her to go.

Mrs. L. is one of thousands of forgotten or "lost" mental patients who are hospitalized in the U.S. today — but shouldn't be.

PARADE got their story first-hand from doctors, nurses, administrators and patients themselves in several states. It adds up to two glaring facts: There are at least 60,000 "mental DP's" — patients who don't belong in mental hospitals because they are improved sufficiently for release, or should not have been committed in the first place. Meanwhile, our mental hospitals are trapped between rising demands and shockingly inadequate facilities to treat and release patients.

The aging, like Mrs. L., represent one of the biggest dilemmas facing the hospitals. Between 30 and 40 per cent of our 675,000 mental patients are past middle age. Yet experts say that up to 50 per cent of this group do not belong in mental hospitals.

Why are they in? Inadequate nursing homes, family rejection, lack of local facilities. People are living longer, but are offered too little, too late in mental-health care.

Let the experts speak for themselves:

Wisconsin: "Mental hospitals represent the end of the road for many aged persons who shouldn't be in from the beginning."

Arizona: "A minimum of 15 per cent of the aged in our mental hospital could be released tomorrow."

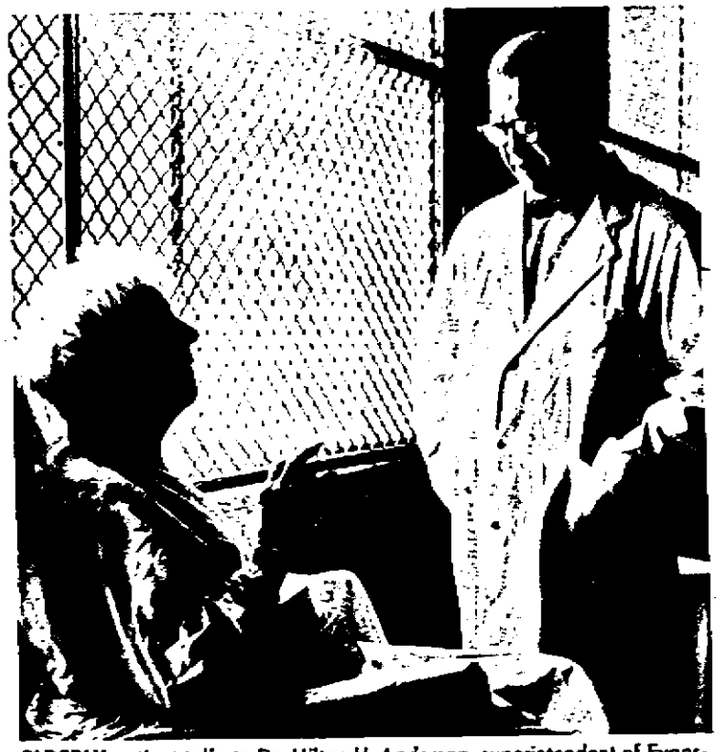

Illinois: "Up to 40 per cent of the hospitalized aged belong in other facilities — or at home."

New York City: "Too many aged are being rushed to mental hospitals. We feel the majority do not require commitment."

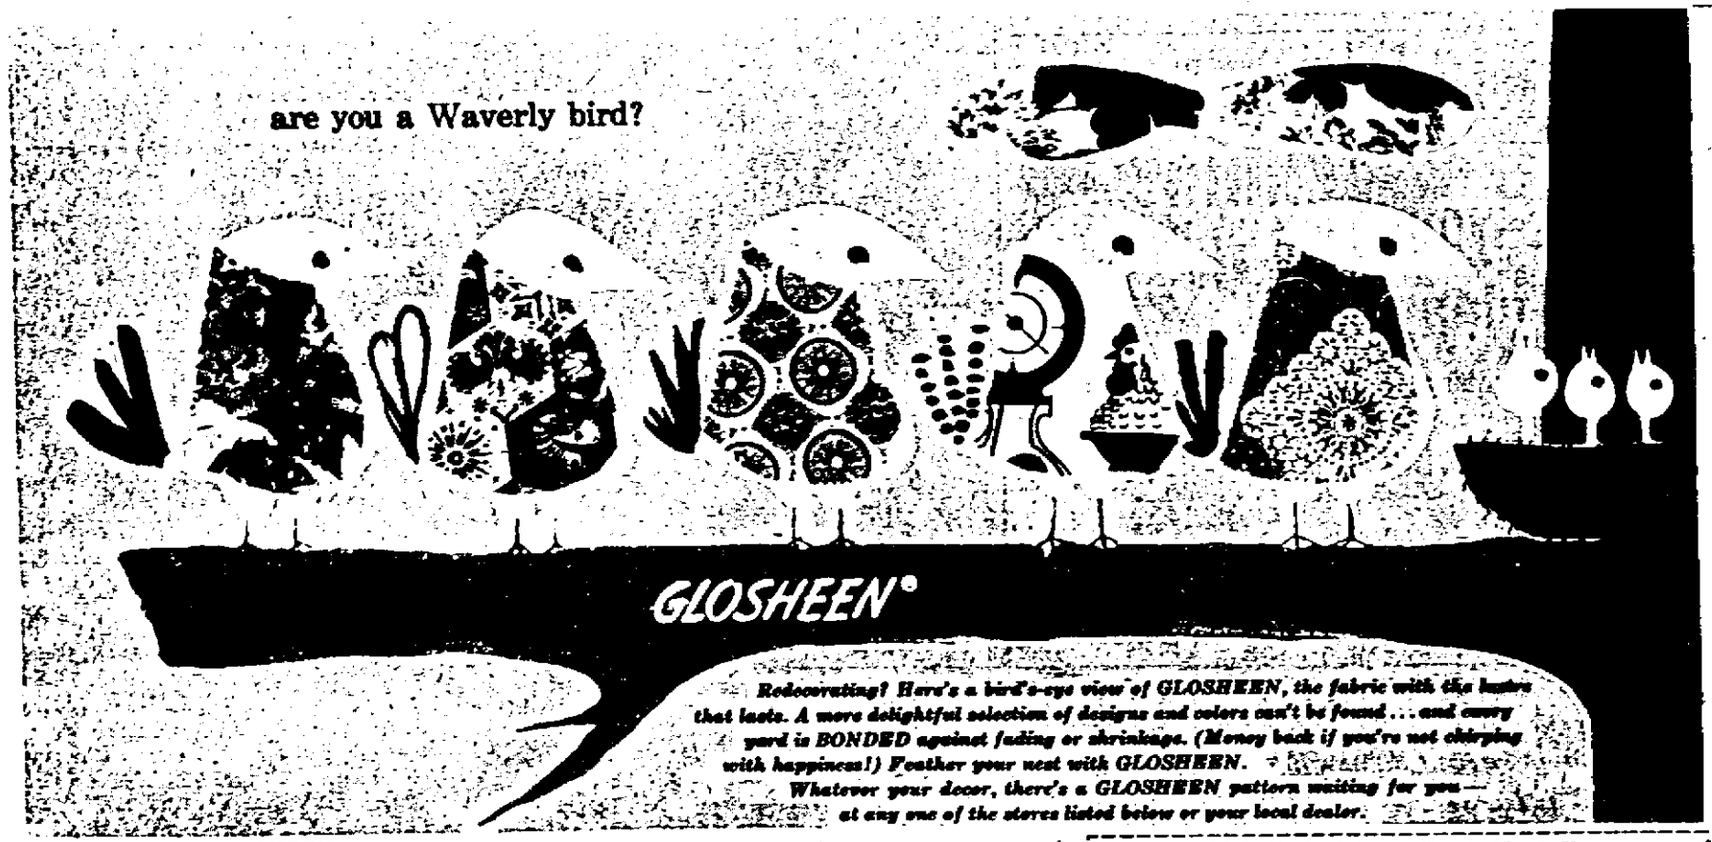

Texas: "Nobody wants them. They're supposed to be here a few weeks or months, but actually, they're here until they die . . ."

Desperately short of staff and funds, many mental hospitals are turning into glorified old-age homes. In some, patients lie helpless like babies in cribs waiting for the end to come.

The tragedy of the aging: patients hospitalized 'by default'

RECREATION TIME at Central State Hospital (Wis.) finds criminally insane patients pitching horseshoes, playing ball. This group requires intensive treatment which many hospitals cannot provide.

Meanwhile, there is much to be learned about treatment of the aged — and much disagreement among experts on how to proceed.

In Illinois, for example, doctors told PARADE: "Only about 50 per cent of the aged admitted to mental hospitals are 'true' psychotics. The rest have mental illnesses that are not as severe. They do not require hospitalization. They belong in regular hospitals or nursing homes. They are placed in mental hospitals only by default of society."

On the other hand, listen to Dr. Paul H. Hoch, commissioner of the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene (New York, Connecticut and California are said to be among the best states in mental-health care):

"Statements have been made that mental hospitals are admitting patients who are not mentally sick, but who have nowhere to go and therefore go to the mental hospital. As far as we have been able to ascertain, this has not occurred.

"Today, there are patients admitted who show memory impairment, confusion, disorientation and many of the signs of senile mental involvement.

"Nevertheless, many of these patients are harmless, and with proper supervision could be cared for outside of an institution."

Dr. Hoch, however, is opposed to sending aged persons who need psychiatric supervision out of the hospital to receive custodial care only. He concludes: "To what extent myriad mentally or emotionally sick aged persons can be treated in nursing homes, in general hospitals, in geriatric clinics . . . will have to be studied."

Thus, hot debate in the mental-health field continues about 1) how many patients could be cared for "on the outside" and 2) what constitutes ideal outside facilities.

Aside from the debate, this much is clear: There are old people in hospitals today who do not belong there.

California estimates that the number is one in three. A Cleveland study indicates that the number may be slightly greater. Illinois claims it may be one in two. Massachusetts says it could place 300 aged disturbed patients a year in facilities other than mental hospitals. (That state and some others are setting up special geriatric facilities.) Connecticut and Virginia say aged "mental DPs" comprise only a small percentage of overall patient loads.

In any case, the aged are just one of many "lost" groups in our mental hospitals. Among the others who don't belong are alcoholics, epileptics — and mentally retarded patients.

ROCKING in single file, patients in a Milwaukee hospital make a depressing but typical picture. Because of staff shortages, many patients spend days just sitting.

Despite the fact that many states have special facilities for the mentally retarded, an estimated 40,000 or more of these persons are patients in state mental hospitals.

Here again, hospital authorities pull no punches. Says one: "Schools and homes for the mentally retarded are terribly overcrowded. So many spill over to the hospital. We cannot provide them the special training which might result in release."

Sometimes retarded persons are said to be psychotic (suffering from a serious mental ailment) — and thus are sent to mental hospitals. Many doctors label this as one of the "big lies" of institutional buck-passing.

Says one at Terrell State Hospital, near Ft. Worth: "They don't belong here. We cannot do much for them. We write the family, but get no response. Sometimes, these poor people are in here for life."

And from another hospital: "We give them the best we can, but it's haphazard. Usually, we wind up giving these patients work assignments — the lawn, the garden, the farm, the laundry . . ."

PARADE found many hospitals in which the mentally retarded are used as workers — for no pay or "insult" wages of 50c a week. But, says Dr. John T. Petersik of Winnebago State Hospital (Wis.) in a typical comment: "I am not going to delude myself that as it stands, work is therapy for the patient. Therapeutic benefit occurs by accident — if at all. It doesn't even make sense from a dollars and cents standpoint. Most patient labor is uneconomic."

REYNOLDS WRAP

The Original Pure Aluminum Foil!

Here's the tested Reynolds Wrap higher-heat method. Lay the trussed turkey, breast up, on a long sheet of Reynolds Wrap (use the 18" wide Heavy Duty or join two 12" widths together by double-folding edges). Put small folds of foil over wing tips and ends of legs to prevent puncturing. Now bring foil up, overlapping edges 3" and molding to shape of bird. Place in shallow pan in a hot (450°) oven, preheated. Following are approximate roasting times:

(Ready-to-cook weight before stuffing)

6-9 lbs....2¼ to 2½ hrs.
10-13 lbs....2¾ to 3 hrs.
14-17 lbs....3 to 3¼ hrs.
18-21 lbs....3¼ to 3½ hrs.
22-24 lbs....3½ to 3¾ hrs.

Now open the foil and admire your plump, golden turkey. If you want a browner, roast 15 minutes more—foil open. Make gravy your usual way—and bow to the praise!

Just follow this quicker way to more flavor and more meat!

Wrap your turkey in Reynolds Wrap and you have a custom-fitted aluminum "roaster" that turns out the plumpest, juiciest bird ever! No oven-watching, either...no basting. You can visit with your guests and still rate tops as a turkey cook. Stock up on Reynolds Wrap for the holidays!

How young lives are wasted in mental hospitals

In institutions solely for the retarded, treatment has come a long way in the past 20 years. No longer are such persons universally considered "nature's rejects."

At Southern Wisconsin Colony, for example, an expanded social-service department has stepped up the discharge rate markedly. Ex-patients who have been educated to their capacity — fourth-grade level or higher — can live near-normal lives on the outside and even hold down jobs.

Still the Colony and many comparable institutions are terribly short-staffed. They have tasted success of treatment, yet cannot broaden that success. Says SWC superintendent John Garstecki flatly: "We're not even approaching the job we should be doing."

RETARDED children, many far from hopeless, play a simple game at Southern Wisconsin Colony near Racine. About one in three SWC patients can be taught to be self-sufficient.

Far out of proportion to their numbers is the tragedy of emotionally disturbed or mentally retarded children who often live side by side with the adult mentally ill. There are an estimated 5,000 or more of these youngsters in state hospitals. Many of them should be out, or in another type of facility geared especially to their needs.

At a California hospital, staff members put it this way: "We can offer a family $70 per month to take a child on family care, but families want older, more settled patients. That means we often have to delay discharges until the children grow older — and perhaps can go out to work."

And from Dr. Norbert I. Rieger, of Camarillo State Hospital (Calif.): "Right now I could probably discharge 12 to 15 children — maybe more — if we had proper home placements and supervision for them.

"What a terrible waste of human life to have to send a young child to a mental hospital, then compound the waste by keeping him in even when he's ready to be released."

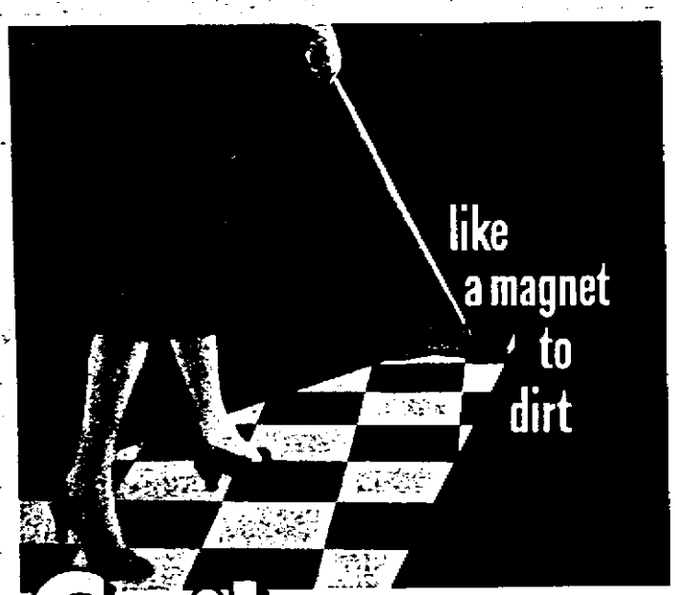

Often, parents want their children home as soon as possible. But not always. As an example of the depths to which parental callousness can plummet, one doctor tells this story:

A 12-year-old was ready for a short home leave when his mother called the hospital. "Doctor," she asked, "could you keep Billy there for a few more days? We're having company over the week end."

LAUNDRY WORK occupies this patient more than eight hours a day in a Texas hospital. It may save money—but, experts ask, is it therapy?

Our counties and states battle about 'dumping'—of human beings

Mental-hospital stays — especially for the aged — at times are prolonged by behind-the-scenes battles between communities, counties and states. Typically, state hospitals claim county homes refuse to admit patients who do not belong in state facilities; county officials claim state hospitals "dump" patients on their already crowded institutions. Result: Patients are pushed back and forth — or remain in state hospitals.

In California, state hospitals have fought for years what they call "county unloading" of aged patients. But the war goes on virtually coast-to-coast.

PARADE ran typical county-state battlelines in Posey County, Indiana. There an outspoken judge, Francis E. Knowles, tells of a patient who could have been released from a state hospital in September, 1955, to a county infirmary. He said county officials object to the transfer because, they claim, the former mental patient might disturb fellow infirmary patients. In addition, the judge said, county officials say such transfers will cost taxpayers more money.

"I've tried to appeal to them on a humane basis," says Judge Knowles, "but it hasn't made any impression. When people become mentally sick, local authorities want to put them away and forget about them."

Adds Dr. Milton H. Anderson, superintendent of Evansville State Hospital, which receives Posey County patients: "I may get my head knocked off for this, but...

"It does not cost the county money when the patient is in a state hospital. They know it and they know we can't do much about it.

"The county homes are run by small-town politicians anxious to save their community a buck. We try to convince the counties that it costs them more in the long run in state taxes to keep these patients here.

"We almost have to trade patients. We tell them we won't take any more of theirs unless they take back some of ours."

In all this, who wins? Certainly not the patients who shouldn't be in at all. ■

SUMMING UP the county-state dispute in his area over mental patients, Judge Francis E. Knowles contends: "Money is the real issue."

NEXT WEEK What is the answer to the problem of the forgotten mental patients? PARADE shows how some states are breaking the bottleneck of delayed discharges.

HAPPY PEOPLE EVERYWHERE HAVE FOUND IT—WHY NOT YOU?

HEALTHFUL WAY TO BREAK THE LAXATIVE DRUG HABIT

ALL-BRAN AND MILK—NATURE'S GREAT FOOD COMBINATION

For relief from irregularity due to insufficient bulk

Delicious, appetizing—solid nutritional benefits

Is the laxative drug habit becoming an increasingly annoying and unpleasant problem with you, as it has with so many adults?

Then here is a simple fact that may come as welcome news to you: Millions of grown men and women like yourself have found the answer to their irregularity problem without resorting to harsh purgatives that drain the system—without the use of habit-forming drugs. They have simply changed to an appetizing and nourishing breakfast serving of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk.

How is it that Kellogg's All-Bran can succeed in so many cases where drugs and chemicals fail? For this one reason. Such preparations, intended only for relief of temporary stoppage, contain no bulk. Yet, lack of bulk is one of the common causes of constipation. So, because All-Bran provides all the good food bulk you need daily, it brings gentle, lasting relief from irregularity.

The Flavor Best Liked by Millions. You may be interested to know, too, that All-Bran is one of the most nutritious breakfast foods you can eat. And so very tempting, many prefer it to other cereals on taste alone.

W. K. Kellogg, who originated All-Bran over 40 years ago, made certain of this. Mr. Kellogg discovered that the outer layers of the whole wheat grain were not only a fine natural laxative food but rich in nutritive value as well. He found, too, a special way of milling so as to improve the flavor of the whole grain without losing any of its natural laxative effectiveness or nutrition.

Little wonder that Kellogg's All-Bran, the original, has grown to be the most widely accepted and used of all bran cereals. So why don't you try it? Eat a half cup of Kellogg's All-Bran every morning for 10 days. Get back on schedule the gentle, natural way.

If All-Bran does not satisfy you in every way, return empty carton and get double your money back. That's a promise from Kellogg's of Battle Creek, Michigan.

TERRIFYING witch Rangda embodies the spirit of Evil. Her white cloth can be her weapon or render her "invisible," depending on how she holds it.

DANCE IN A TRANCE

The rhythmic ritual on these pages, rarely if ever photographed before by a white man, was captured on film in the Indonesian island of Bali by PARADE's Richard Harrington. This is the climax of a Balinese ceremony called the Barong, or trance dance.

The dancers, in a hypnotic frenzy, vainly turn razor-sharp knives against their own bodies. When they finally fall exhausted — but unharmed — they are revived by a priest with incense and holy water.

STRUGGLE begins as Rangda faces Barong, the spirit of Good, mimed by two expert dancers. Although Barong sides with humans against Rangda, he is finally defeated.

Boys and girls in their pre-teens often write me letters. Here are some of the recent ones:

Q. If a boy walks you home and you haven't been on a date with him, should you invite him in? How would you entertain him? — L.C., St. Johnsbury, Vt.

A. Yes, you may invite him in, if your mother or another adult member of the family is at home.

Depending upon the time of day and the circumstances, you might make a snack together, play records, watch television or just sit and talk.

Q. How would you politely tell company that it is time to leave? — C.C.M., Detroit, Mich.

A. You would have to offer an adequate explanation, such as, "I wonder if you'll excuse me now, I have to get cleaned up for dinner. But perhaps you'll come over some other time."

Q. I am nearly 13 years old and my mother still has a lady come in and watch me. My girl friends my age baby-sit, but I can't. What do you think of this situation? — J.R., Anaheim, Calif.

A. In a city apartment, in a good neighborhood, where there is a doorman, parents might well leave a 13-year-old girl alone at night, if they are coming home at an early hour. In a small town, where there are neighbors adjacent who could be told that such a girl was alone, this might be possible, too. But if you live in an isolated spot and have no older brothers and sisters in the house, your parents are wise in giving you this protection that a boy of the same age would not need.

Q. I am 12 years old. My best girl friend is coming to spend a few days with me. I, of course, want to show her a good time. My boy friend and I go to the show every Friday. When she is here, would it be all right to have him get a date for her? How should I go about asking him? Also, do you think this is too young to date? — D.I., Little Rock, Ark.

A. First of all, it is very young to date at night. The parents of your friend may not approve of her dating unless you change your arrangements and go to an afternoon show on Saturday or Sunday, or, if you are accompanied by an adult, on Friday night. Bearing all this in mind, if you do ask your boy friend to get another boy, merely state the circumstances simply.

Q. I am a girl of 11. I have a sister, 13. When she does something wrong, I always get the punishment. She is always tormenting me. What can I do about this? —J.H., Godfrey, Ill.

A. All sisters have these problems and they are something you will have to work out between yourselves. The situation may improve once you enter the teens.

Q. When a girl has a date with a boy, who should suggest they leave for their date after he has talked with her parents? — J.A., Fort Worth, Tex.

A. It is always the girl who makes the first move to leave. A boy must never seem anxious to leave the family of the girl he is escorting unless there is some valid reason for his rushing off.

Grandma's pumpkin pie

From the leaves of an old cookbook comes the perfect pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

For years we have searched for the perfect pumpkin pie — the kind Grandma used to make without a recipe. We tested, tasted and rejected until, at long last, we found what we were looking for in a faded 19th-century cookbook. Here it is, slightly modified for today's taste. We think it is perfect; you will too!

GRANDMA'S PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 large can (1 lb. 13 oz.) pumpkin
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup white sugar
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- Unbaked pie shell in deep 10" pan or 2 9" pans

Combine first 8 ingredients; mix well. Combine evaporated milk and cream; heat to scalding point; add; mix well. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 350° F. 1½ hours for deep 10" pie, about 1 hour for 9" pies. Pie is done when knife inserted near rim comes out clean. Garnish with cheddar-cheese-spread "pumpkins."

Quick Cooked

Our "Mr. 5 x 5" can (it's as wide as it's tall) tells you this corn is vacuum packed. Every kernel stays crisp. You get as many servings as in taller liquid-packed cans. And you don't pour vitamins and minerals down the drain.

Quick! That's the way cookbooks say to cook vegetables. That's how you keep the flavor, color and vitamins the sun and good earth put into them.

And now quick-cooked corn is here. Niblets Brand corn.

A revolutionary new pressure cooker does it. The corn is whirled through the cooker under high heat and pressure. Zing! It's cooked.

No can of corn ever brought you such flavor before. Such crispness. Such color. It's like eating kernels from an ear fresh out of the garden.

You try it and see. New quick-cooked Niblets. All you do is heat and serve.

1. Frank Sinatra and Frenchot Tone are caught by the artist during a one-sided conversation. Written on one of them is the name Nina.

2. Marlene Dietrich muses alone — except for Hirschfeld's Nina.

CAN YOU FIND NINA?

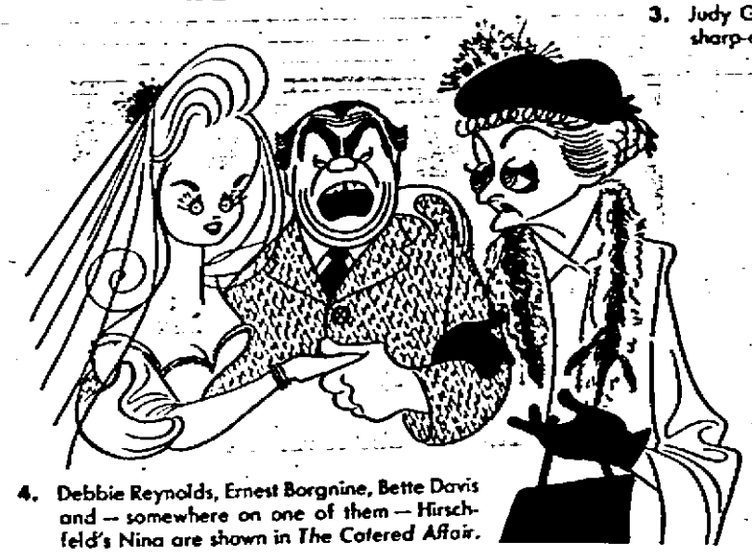

The Hirschfelds and Nina.

Ever since his daughter was born, 11 years ago, caricaturist Albert Hirschfeld has paid her a unique tribute: in sketching stage, screen and TV personalities for newspapers and magazines, he has nearly always managed to put her name — Nina — somewhere in the drawing. On this page are five Hirschfeld sketches of well-known faces in the entertainment world. Look carefully and try to spot the name "Nina" printed on each. Answers below.

3. Judy Garland sings at New York's Palace for the sharp-eyed Hirschfeld and his omnipresent Nina.

4. Debbie Reynolds, Ernest Borgnine, Bette Davis and — somewhere on one of them — Hirschfeld's Nina are shown in The Catered Affair.

5. Arlene Francis of TV fame shows off an award to her fans—and Nina too.

HERE'S WHERE TO FIND NINA

1. "Nina" is written on Frank's right coat sleeve. To see it better, look from the opposite page.
2. See it now on top of Marlene's fur jacket?
3. It's written clear as a bell in the folds of Judy's shirt bosom.
4. The trick here is to ignore Debbie and Ernest, take a long hard peek at the decorations atop Bette's hat.
5. Look right under the badge proclaiming Arlene "Father's Favorite Female."
